The town assessors have begun the arduous job of the revaluation of taxable property of Griswold, which this year is going to be in accordance with the state law requiring such action by the officials to be done every ten years. To defray the expenses of the work which the assessors will have to do, the town has appropriated $2,000. It is to be expected that a number of changes will be necessary and that some advances must be made. The men to whom the job is assigned, Irving O. Burdick, Henry E. Olsen and Edward Blanchard, are of the opinion, before the survey is made, that some

PUTNAM

OFFICIALS DO NOT DENY THAT MILL IS TO MOVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 16.—Publication in this column this morning of a rumor to the effect that officials of the Waterman Worsted Co. are considering the removal of their Putnam manufacturing interests to a plant in Manchester, N. H., met no denial on the part of local plant officials today, although they are still reluctant to confirm the stories which have persisted for nearly three weeks.

The first inkling of an authentic nature disclosing the departure from this city of the Waterman Worsted Co. was gleaned from a recent edition of the "News Record," official textile organ. The publication carried the following story: "W. H. Duval & Co., Inc., will purchase the entire plant and business of the Devonshire Mills of Goffs Falls, N. H., of which the Allen Lane Co. and associates own controlling interest."

The Waterman company is one of the most stable manufacturing organizations in the city and its loss to the community would be a great one, both to workers and to business interests. Its weekly payroll is $2,500. The concern occupies the east wing of the Putnam Woolen Co. plant, which is now closed, and was organized by the late Fred and Percy Waterman, who before coming to Putnam, were agent and superintendent of the one-time French River mills at Mechanicsville. Howard W. Sherriffs, now superintendent of the plant, has made no comments on the future of the company as far as Putnam is concerned, other than to state that no official statement of the rumored removal has as yet been made by the Duval interests.

MAJOR McINTYRE WITHDRAWS NAME FROM PROBATE RACE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 16.—An acute situation in the democratic ranks developed here late this afternoon when Edward F. Girard, town democratic committee chairman, announced that Major A. D. McIntyre, democratic candidate for judge of probate, had withdrawn as an aspirant for the office now held by Judge Henry N. Benoit, republican. "Major McIntyre's decision to withdraw," Mr. Girard stated, "was made in view of the fact that if elected he would be forced to retire from office only a year and eight months after taking the oath of probate judgeship. The major is now 68 years of age and the law requires that all judges of probate must retire upon attaining the age of 70 years," the chairman concluded.

When asked what the party chiefs intended to do relative to the naming of a candidate to succeed Major McIntyre, Mr. Girard intimated that the column would undoubtedly remain vacant.

What effect the withdrawal of Major McIntyre as a candidate will have on the chances of the democrats for staging a recurrence of the town election victory at the polls on state election day, is unknown. The McIntyre candidacy was viewed as a strong one, although local republican leaders when informed of the candidate's sudden decision to withdraw, received the news without comment.

When interviewed tonight, Major McIntyre said he had no statement to issue other than to confirm Chairman Girard's announcement that he has pulled out of the race.

OBITUARY

Mrs. George L. Miller

Mrs. Emoline Miller, widow of George Lyman Miller, died late last evening at the home of her son, George U. Miller, after a brief illness. Mrs. Miller was in her 95th year. Despite her advanced years, Mrs. Miller had been in excellent health until about a month ago. She had been confined to her bed since Monday. When 93 years of age, Mrs. Miller, who was an ardent aviation enthusiast, went to the Oxford, Mass., airport, where she took her first airplane ride. Thrilled to the nth degree, the nonogenarian, upon disembarking from the plane, was resolved that she would make future flights. Last Memorial day, she assisted her daughter-in-law in entertaining the eight surviving veterans of the Civil war at a turkey dinner.

Mrs. Miller was born in Suffield, Conn., the daughter of William Ulrich and Emoline Carey. She lived for many years in Westfield, Mass., where she was married to Mr. Miller, whose death occurred about 20 years ago. She was a member of the A. G. Warner post, W. R. C., of this city, a member of the Central Baptist church of Hartford and a member of the Ivanhoe chapter, O. E. S., of Hartford. Besides her son in Putnam, Mrs. Miller is survived by a daughter, Mrs. John Smith, of Hoosatonic, Mass., and a granddaughter, Mrs. Lester Lanning, of Bristol.

Selectman Edward E. Girard is now first selectman of the town and replaces Clarence E. Pierce, republican, of Putnam Heights, who held the office for many years and who has been a member of the board for nearly 80 years. Mr. Girard, minority member of the board, was elected to the office in the democratic overthrow staged by the party on town election day.

PICTURING OUR ATTRACTIONS

Connecticut is bound to be interested in the outcome of the roadside photographic contest which is being sponsored by the Connecticut Forest and Park association and the American Nature association.

The purpose of this contest which closes with this month, as set forth by the associations, is to encourage "A greater appreciation of the beauties of Connecticut and to arouse the public to the need for roadside beautification."

It will have to be admitted that Connecticut can boast of some very attractive scenery, some decidedly pretty roadside scenes and the treatment of certain areas in an attractive manner along new highways. It has, however, not only the beautiful but the unsightly for which prizes are being offered. There is a desire to show the contrast and, because of the advance that has been made in certain directions and the need of attention in others, the good that has [illegible] ing which comes from these conditions will be realized.

It is a common habit to believe that the distant and unseen [illegible] beauties far excel anything that can be found in Connecticut. This state doesn't lay claim to being the most beautiful, but it isn't unmindful of the fact that those who use its highways may enjoy some rare and beautiful views, views that will compare well with those in many other regions.

Nothing has directed attention to this more than the development of the highway system and the great use that is made of the roads which reach out in all directions showing such attractions. It is desirable that they should be emphasized. That is the object of the contest. It will not be surprising if there are prize winning views and pictures that will awaken wide interest and appreciation and stimulate a desire to see the attractions by personal visitation.

If the contest results in promoting a greater desire to see more of Connecticut, it will be worth while. If it develops greater public interest in roadside beautification, it will do much, and if it results in the elimination of some of the unsightly and eyesores, a still greater accomplishment will be made.

MONOXIDE GAS PERIL

We are getting to the season of the year when there is a temptation to do any little job that needs to be done on the automobile while it is in the garage, instead of taking it out into the yard. It is more comfortable on the days when it is a bit cool and the wind blows [illegible]. As the season moves along the disposition will increase and with it will the danger of sudden death.

This week a [illegible] was found dead in her machine in the garage. She had been working about it while the door of the garage was closed. The engine was running and while she was engaged [illegible] the interior the oxygen in the garage became exhausted [illegible] monoxide gas [illegible] the cause of her death [illegible] where she had been [illegible] up the machine.

There is a [illegible] others who disregard [illegible] respect and [illegible]. There have been hundreds of deaths from this very cause under [illegible] circumstances. Thousands of others have had very narrow escapes. The [illegible] of the gas is so stealthy and [illegible] less that it is the [illegible] when persons get a [illegible].

Protection against such fatalities lies in prevention. If there is work to be done about an auto engine, or about the car, it should be done when the engine is not running or when there is a sufficient supply of air to overcome the possibility of [illegible]. This can be assured by keeping the garage door open. That may not make it as comfortable as would be the case with the door shut, but between comfort and death there ought to be no hesitation.

It seems to be necessary to blazon such warnings on the walls of all garages in order to make people give heed to the peril, and it might be an excellent move if every dealer would attach some warning alongside his garage to remind [illegible] is not able to bear such a thing in mind. It might, even then, be necessary to put one on all four sides, the floor and the roof, to get and hold the attention of those who persist in forgetting.

THE FISHERMEN'S RACE

If there is any class of seamen who know what storms and heavy weather are and know how to handle their craft under such conditions it is that of the fishermen who do their fishing on the banks and encounter [illegible] conditions.

In view of that, and the fact that their vessels are constructed [illegible] just such conditions, one can [illegible] the disappointment and the indicated anger that was displayed when the race between the Bluenose and the Gertrude L. Thebaud was called off while a rough sea was running and when rain squalls made it difficult to find the turning buoy.

While there are times when it is clearly indicated that racing yachts should not be permitted to start because of weather conditions, it is hard to convince the skippers of fishing schooners that it isn't a test of the lines, construction and sailing ability of their craft, and their own seamanship, to race in other than just the most favorable condition of wind and waves.

With two of the crew of the Gloucester fishermen washed overboard and rescued, it is apparent that the race was being run in other than the smoothness of a millpond. The Bluenose was ahead and for that reason it might have been the feeling of the skipper of the Gertrude L. Thebaud that the calling off of the race was wise, but such was not the case. He was as much provoked as the skipper of the Bluenose.

Both boats were prepared for the heavy weather. It was probably no worse than the fishing schooners are obliged to meet on many occasions, though perhaps not under racing conditions. But if there is a desire to see what account they will give of themselves under fair conditions there is equally as much eagerness to determine what kind of a performance will follow in a heavy sea. If they cannot stand other than the long swells under a fair sky it will be an interesting revelation to the thousands of fishermen who are eagerly watching the contest for the cup.

LET THERE BE MORE

There was need for rain and rain we had. There was need for it long before it fell but it was necessary to wait until this week to give the soil a drink and to get the first step in the way of replenishment for the wells, the brooks and the ponds and reservoirs.

We have had rain, but we need much more. Much of the harm that has been done by the drought cannot be corrected by the rainfall we have had. We must have much more before cold weather sets in, for it is an old and well established saying that winter doesn't arrive until the brooks and streams are filled.

The rainfall did a vast amount of protective good through the soaking that was given to the leaves and dry underbrush. It furnished a protective blanket against fires and, followed by cloudy days and little wind, such rain as fell was given a chance to soak in to the parched earth. Trees, shrubs and late flowers are certain to get certain benefits.

Woodland fires which had been giving trouble were quenched for the time being. It will not take long, however, for the sun to remove all evidences of rain, or for a brisk wind to dry it up. Then the menace from fires rises again.

To those in cities where the water supply was dwindling to the danger point and to those in the country who have suffered from dry wells and been forced to carry water for themselves and their cattle, there could have been little more satisfying than the rainfall. But in all such instances the situation calls for more and more such rains, soaking rains, without the destructive torrential rains, and the fact that the drought is broken stimulates the belief that more rain is in the offing. It is greatly needed and no complaint is being heard just now over too many rainy days.

ONE MORE CHANCE

When the board that makes voters completed its task last week there had been made voters far less than half of the names that appeared on the list of to-be-mades, far less than half of those who had made application to become voters.

This week Saturday, tomorrow, the board will be in session again. This means that another opportunity is provided for those who have not appeared before the board and qualified under the simple but definite requirements and taken the elector's oath. It is an opportunity which should be embraced by those who are able to appear before the board.

Because there are simple requirements and because it requires but a little time doesn't mean that it should be neglected. Having started the process there should be a desire to go through with it. It is one of those steps in connection with citizenship which should require no urging. There should be an eagerness to obtain the franchise and to make use of it. There should be a desire to make such a contribution to good government by those who have lived here the required length of time and those who have always resided here and become of age.

In order to have a voice in the conduct of government and to participate in the selection of officials it is necessary to become a voter. There is a duty of real importance involved. It is unfortunate that there isn't a greater desire to provide oneself with the right to vote whenever the opportunity is offered.

The voters made at the provided time are never 100 per cent of the to-be-made list. Sickness, or absence, or lack of interest may prevent, but the percentage should be much higher than it customarily is.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Closing the state forests to hunting doesn't always cause the rainmaker to loosen up, but it works sometimes.

Any city can sympathize with the Indian cities which are complaining about the destruction of their streets by overloaded trucks.

Talk of Mayor Walker of New York resigning overlooks the fact that he couldn't resign and still get that increase in salary he voted himself.

The man on the corner says: Prohibition has been in operation long enough so that most people are able to talk about it, one way or another.

The fellow who sought a year at Atlanta instead of three-quarters of a year in a North Carolina jail evidently appreciates the difference in punishments.

The delegates to the international road congress at Washington were most favorably impressed with Connecticut highways. Wonder what they would have said had they been shown some of the dirt roads last spring?

AND STILL IT WAS THURSDAY

"Nothing interesting ever happens on Thursdays and this is Thursday," Clerk No. 547, better known as Mary Meredith, announced to all interested members of Lord & Snyder's chinaware department. "If any one should ask me I'd say it was the calendar man's great mistake—Thursdays are." She gave a tap to the blue and white creamer on the table in front of her and pursed lips which it was a shame to waste on a department store.

"Here's a Thursday for you." She was talking straight at May Blue now just as if the whole thing were her fault. "Woke up half an hour late because the alarm clock didn't go off—forgot to set it last night—and of course the kid brother was in the bathroom. It's the first time in weeks he's been moved to wash as far as I can remember. When I finally pulled into the store the timekeeper pleasantly remarked, 'Late again.'

"Then it seemed as if all the old cranks in town formed a line down State street and filed in to ask for china we haven't had since before Christmas. Great life! I'm sick of this place. I'd like to have a shop of my own or something and go to Europe and buy beautiful china for it and have a great romance." She was seeing over stacks of plates to moonlit castles in Vienna.

"And now me with a new dress," Mary returned with a thud to the chinaware department of Lord & Snyder's, "and no one to appreciate it—not even a date tonight. Will you tell me, May, what ever made me such a little sunbeam as to wear a new dress on Thursday?"

"A lot you have to fuss about," said May, who was one of Mary's stanchest admirers. "A new dress, a raise first of the year, the floorwalker favoring you and that John Barrymore that asks for you every time he wants china and seems like he's furnishing a hotel the times he's been in here. What if you were me, with that fat old lady who's so keen about Japanese tea sets on your trail? But, say, tell me about this black-haired boy of yours? What's he say while he's asking you about luncheon sets?"

"May, you're such an old idiot." Mary could not help laughing even on Thursday at the picture May conjured up of her most mystifying customer. It happened that frequently, very frequently of late, the same tall, slim young brunette had come to purchase china. Wedgwood was his favorite and even if he did not buy more than a single piece he asked many questions about the history of various patterns. Ever since his first purchase he requested that Mary serve him.

"I just happened to wait on him the first time, that's all, so he asks for me," she explained to a group of envious sales girls. But his absorption in chinaware was as baffling and enigmatic as were the deeps of his black eyes.

"You're all so silly," Mary insisted. "He doesn't even know I exist and meanwhile here's my brand-new dress going to waste," and she whirled off to rearrange the "odd pieces" table.

It could not have been more than three minutes later that the sonorous voice of the floorwalker rose above the clatter of dishes being picked up and replaced. "No. 547—where is Miss Meredith? Oh, Miss Meredith, here's a customer asking for you."

"Oh!" Mary said involuntarily and then carefully added, "What a bore!" But she was not convincing.

Mary approached her black-haired customer as if she were trying to walk slowly and her feet would not let her, which was disconcerting even to Mary.

"Miss Meredith," the mysterious customer smiled, "I wonder if I may take just a few minutes of your time? You see, I don't want to buy anything today, but I—I want to steal something." To Mary's puzzled look he quickly added, "And that something is—you. I am James Burton of James Burton & Son.

"And we have been looking for a new manager for our store," he continued. "I have tested you with all the questions about china I could think of and find you know more about it than I do, so I have come to offer you the position. Of course, that would mean you would have to take a trip to Europe once a year. Would that be all right?"

His black eyes looked as if they could not stand no for an answer, so Mary said yes.

"And I wonder if you will have dinner with me tonight so we can discuss it?"

Again his black eyes signaled that they could not endure life if she said no, so there was nothing left for Mary to answer but yes.

And still it was Thursday!—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Anti France

Mr. Editor: We read a great deal about the protest of France against our new tariff law enacted to help our industries and give employment. Whether or not high or low tariff is good is not the question; but the attitude of a foreign nation against a nation that sacrificed her youth that France might overpower her enemies. We also read in the paper a few days ago of a criticism against Adolph Hitler saying he would tear up the Versailles treaty and plunge the world into war. I wish I could do something to help Adolph Hitler tear that treaty, not because I want war, but to see justice done. When there is justice between nations there will be no war and as long as there is not, war is a sure thing. When the World war broke out I was against the United States going into a war that did not concern us. Then the haranguers brought up what they called the terrible insult in the sinking of the Lusitania and that we must go to war against Germany for the sake of, and to save humanity. I considered that Germany had been fair with us in warning Americans not to travel on English ships as they would endanger their lives. They went and reaped the benefit of their stubborness. As for saving humanity, it would have been more sensible to begin at home to save humanity and save the lives of those boys that we really love. Instead we sent them to destruction in a war that did not concern them or their country. I want to see that treaty torn up that all those in France that robbed our boys may get their punishment. All the boys I talked with on their return from France told me the same thing that they were robbed everytime there was an occasion to buy anything. If a Frenchman bought a handkerchief it was .25, if an Englishman bought it it was .50 but if an American bought the same handkerchief it was .75. In order not to be stung they sent a Frenchman to make the purchase. It may be a small matter, but it is the principle of the thing.

Then how about our heroic dead that died on the fields of France. Our government had to buy the ground where Americans lie buried in order to prevent their bodies from being dug and cast on the ash heap at the expiration of three years so others could be buried in the same graves. Another sample of French gratitude. No red blooded patriotic American will ever buy anything of French manufacture no matter how low the tariff. I am waiting for Der Tag when the Germany army eats dinner in Paris and I hope I will be invited to serve the cranberry sauce.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—The perpetual round of civil war in China, now happily abating it appears, was not new thing to Nelson Johnson when he went out from the state department to be American minister at Peiping, nee Peking.

Twenty years as an American consular official in China had hardened him to such things. And, anyway, Johnson is of such a philosophical temperament that he's hard to excite.

Even the embarrassing development that left him domiciled at the legation in Peiping, while the nationalist government to which he was accredited kept its capital at Nanking, a long distance away, failed to break his calm.

He just shuttled back and forth as occasion demanded, taking it all as a matter of course.

The fact that he divided his time between the two centers of the warring Chinese factions did not even disturb his thirst for knowledge as to local customs, native dishes, regional historical backgrounds and all that.

Studies People

This particular career diplomat never goes any place without getting deeply interested in the way folks live near about him. He was a great motor tourist while assistant secretary in Washington.

And now, out in civil war-torn China, Johnson is putting in his spare time, the Bystander hears, prowling about afoot.

He takes long pedestrian tours, brushing up his already extensive knowledge of Chinese dialects and learning a whole lot about the habits, history and all that of the people among whom he lives.

Being a bachelor, Johnson does not have quite as much social coming and going to think about as his colleagues of the corps at Peiping.

He wrote a friend here that he found the legation itself rather large for his uses, whimsically adding that there were so many rooms that he had hung up his extra suit in a closet when he first got there and had not yet been able to find again even the room in which the closet was located.

Hard To Fill

Johnson's former post as assistant secretary in the state department still is vacant. It has been vacant nearly a year. Secretary Stimson seems to be having a lot of trouble finding just the kind of man he desires.

Obviously there are very few chaps like Jack McMurray, whom Johnson relieved first as assistant secretary and then as minister in Peiping, or like Johnson himself to whom the department can turn. There are not so many trained diplomatic experts on China and the Far East generally.

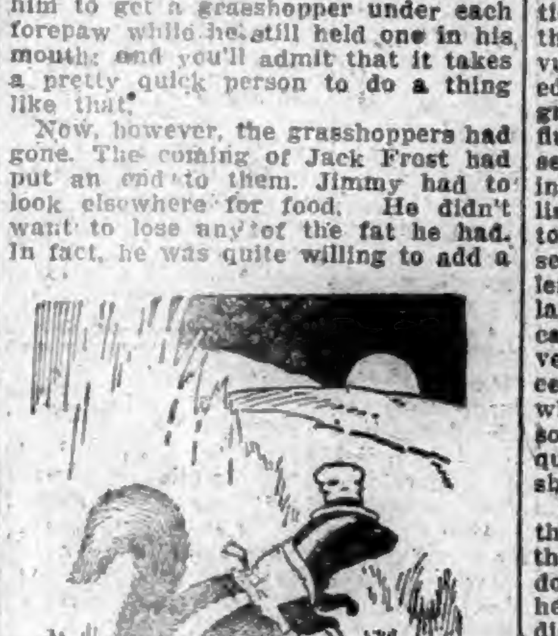
Stimson, however, is supposed to be looking for quite another type. He has some notion of making over the functions of the vacant office to create a high departmental staff officer in direct charge of public relations for the department. That would be

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Some people grumble when they're fat;
I call them silly to do that.
Jimmy Skunk.

Jimmy Skunk was fat. There was no question about that. He was so fat that his feet seemed too small for him. When he walked, he fairly rolled along. You see, there had been plenty of grasshoppers in the latter part of the summer. Jimmy had stuffed himself with grasshoppers. There is nothing he enjoys more than catching and eating grasshoppers. He is very clever at catching them, too. You wouldn't expect it of Jimmy, for he looks rather clumsy. He isn't, however. I've known him to get a grasshopper under each forepaw while he still held one in his mouth; and you'll admit that it takes a pretty quick person to do a thing like that.

Now, however, the grasshoppers had gone. The coming of Jack Frost had put an end to them. Jimmy had to look elsewhere for food. He didn't want to lose any of the fat he had. In fact, he was quite willing to add a little fat, if possible. You see, Jimmy learned a long time ago that a fat body means a comfortable winter; and Jimmy means to be comfortable at all times, if he can be.



Jimmy did a lot of prowling about

These frosty moonlight October nights were wonderful for prowling about. Jimmy did a lot of prowling about. Down on the Meadows and up in the Old Orchard he dug out grubs and caught mice. Now and then he got a fat beetle, and Jimmy is very fond of fat beetles. He was having no trouble at all in getting plenty to eat. Every night when he started out it was with no particular plan. He just wandered about enjoying life. So it was that one night he came to Farmer Brown's farmyard.

Jimmy sat down and looked across the yard. "It's a long time since I've been up here," said he. "I wonder where Bowser the Hound and that impudent young dog, Flip the Terrier, are. I don't want to have any trouble with either of them. I guess there isn't much danger of trouble with Bowser. He knows me of old. He knows that if he doesn't bother me, I won't bother him. That young dog is different. He gets excited and loses his head. I taught him a lesson once. If he hasn't forgotten that lesson, there'll be no trouble with him. Anyway, I think I'll look around a bit and see what I can find."

So Jimmy Skunk shuffled across the farmyard over to Farmer Brown's house and there he began to poke his inquisitive nose into every nook and corner. He found a cellar window open. It was open only a crack, but when he pushed against it, it opened further. Jimmy's nose told him that there were good things in that cellar. He wanted to go right in there and investigate. But he didn't do it. No, sir, Jimmy didn't do it. He remembered something. He remembered that when he was a young fellow, not altogether wise in the ways of the Great World, he had entered by that very window and tumbled down into that cellar and then couldn't get out. So Jimmy backed away. "I don't make the same mistake twice," said he.

He continued on along towards the back of the house and presently he came to a little doorway. It was a round doorway; it was a new doorway. Jimmy was certain that it had not been there the last time he had visited Farmer Brown's house. He was right about this. It hadn't been there. As a matter of fact, it had been made only the day before. It was a doorway for Black Pussy the Cat, that she might go in and out of the shed when she pleased. Jimmy stopped and examined that doorway. He poked his nose inside and sniffed. Then Jimmy Skunk grinned. Yes, sir, after that first good sniff Jimmy Skunk grinned.

Convultions and Epilepsy.

By GEORGE W. SWIFT, M. D.
Seattle

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

There is a general belief that epilepsy is a diseased condition of the mind, usually inherited but occasionally due to a severe injury to the brain. The injuries that are supposed to cause epileptic convulsions occur in early childhood, such as injuries from the use of forceps at the time of birth, or some fall in early infancy. Practically all physicians who are treating many cases of epilepsy have observed that the parents associate the initial onset with some injury to the head. Gastro-intestinal disturbances are considered by laymen also to be the cause of epilepsy. Intestinal parasites are frequently given as a cause. The bloated abdomen in some children is considered evidence of a gastro-intestinal origin for this dread condition.

In recent years the subject of epilepsy and periodic convulsive seizures in general has been studied from an entirely different angle than in the past. Since the time of Hippocrates, observers of the brain, circulating as it does in the arachnoid or middle layer of membranes which protect the brain in the skull.

Today it is a generally accepted fact that the presence of an accumulation of cerebrospinal fluid in the cranial cavity is associated with convulsive seizures.

It is now established that the failure of the cerebrospinal fluid to leave the cranial cavit is the same proportion as it enters, is due to dysfunction of the filtering glands through which the fluid enters the venous channels. Even though the fluid does get into the venous channels, in a definite mander of epilepsies, the anomalous development of the venous sinuses and the occipital bone, prevent the normal return of the venous blood from the cranial cavity and thus cause a backup of the cerebrospinal fluid. The venous return may be blocked also by the persistence of the thymus gland which, wrapping itself around the jugular veins, causes a retardation of venous circulation.

This conception of the accumulation of cerebrospinal fluid as one of the prime factors in the cause of convulsive seizures has been demonstrated experimentally by measuring the gradual increase in the cerebrospinal fluid pressure prior to the convulsive seizure and by noting its fall following the seizure. This work has established, definitely, the mechanical factors involved in periodic convulsive seizures. There now remains the problem of discovering what direct stimulation, either electrical or chemical, causes the blow off or the active conversion of the irritating force of the cerebrospinal fluid into motor energy which is the convulsive seizure. The solution of this phase of the entire question will no doubt be forthcoming shortly.

From the standpoint of the public, the important point to remember is that heredity, in all likelihood, has to do with the size and shape of the head and not the inheritance of a diseased brain, as has been the common belief.

Adrianople

"The destructive wind which recently left Adrianople's windows without glass, leveled buildings and toppled lofty minarets, adds another, if minor, disaster to the history of the venerable city," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Since Hadrian rebuilt the city in the second century, Adrianople has risen to envious heights among Turkish cities in commercial importance. It also has been engulfed in periods of distress.

"The city lies on the banks of the Maritsa and Tunja rivers, 137 miles northwest of Constantinople on the railroad which connects the famous old Turkish capital with Belgrade, Sofia and Salonika. Commerce that passed between the Balkans and other portions of Europe, and Turkey, made Adrianpole a great market and distributing point. Tariff barriers set up by the Balkan states and emigration of the city's population—the Turks eastward and the Greeks westward—have been charged with the more recent depression of the city's commercial importance.

"If visitors to Adrianople were unaware of its location on the map, a tour of the city would lead them to believe that they were east of the Bosporus, for a marked oriental atmosphere prevails. Caravans arrive as they do in Damascus; dusty, ruddy-skinned camel men mingle with the street crowds, peering into windows where a colorful array of oriental carpets, shawls, bric-a-brac and other eastern merchandise predominates; lofty cypress trees poke their uppermost limbs above the conglomeration of red roofs, and mosque domes dominate the irregular skyline much as they do in Brusa, while muezzins call the faithful Moslems to prayer from tall white minarets which point fingerlike to the sky.

"As one peers into Adrianople shops, guides decry the fact that their city is not what it once was. Before the World war, they will tell the visitor, Adrianople shops displayed handsome pieces of Austrian crockery, artistic German iron pieces, fancy French jewelry, and English textiles. And during a shopping tour, the tones of an American phonograph competed with the loud bickering of shop keepers and purchasers, and the boistrous calls of street vendors.

"Although the city now is quieter, its population has diminished from 85,000 to 56,000 since 1905, and things Turkish appear to be moving eastward, Adrianople continues to hang on to a certain commercial prestige. Raw silk from nearby mulberry tree plantations, cotton, opium, rosewater, attar of roses, wax, and Turkey red dye are exported, and the city still has a pride in fine wines produced from grapes from neighboring vineyards.

"Adrianople came into its own in 1361 when Murad II took residence there and for a century it remained the seat of Turkish Sultans. Then Constantinople fell and Adrianople was shorn of its political importance. Bulgarians, Turks, and Greeks have all had a hand in governing the city from time to time since 1913, but in 1922 it was returned to Turkey."

Beer Variety

A young bride called at a farmhouse to buy grapes.

How Old Are You?

Gloriously Alive At 45

My Friends: Correct Your Eating Faults and Lose Your Fat With Kruschen Salts

Yes: I'm forty-five today—built like a race horse, my friends say—and I know I feel 10 years younger than I did three months ago—and I'd hate to tell you how much fat I lost with Kruschen.

I call Kruschen Salts the "magic salts" because when I was fat and wretched, despondent and half sick all the time—it took only one bottle that I bought for 85 cents to liven me up—put ambition and energy into me—make me feel years younger and with the help of a change in diet show me how to lose the fat I was so ashamed of.

Cut out pastries and desserts—go easy on potatoes, cream, cheese, and butter — eat lean meat, chicken, fish, vegetables and fruits and never fail to take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

Every drug store worthy of the name in the World sells Kruschen Salts—an 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks—not much to pay for buoyant health.

Quick Relief From Constipation

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

SEASON FOR CLEANING CHIMNEYS, SAYS TAFT

"If persons have not had their chimneys, stoves and heaters cleaned yet, they should do so before starting them up for the season," said Chief Henry R. Taft of the local fire department, in a statement issued Thursday. Continuing, the chief said:

"The soot in the chimney is apt to catch fire and not only destroy their home or places of business but it may be the means of loss of life of their entire family. Often you read in the papers of entire families being wiped out where that dirty chimney was the cause of it all, so why take that chance? Then again if you allow the soot to remain in your stove pipes, stoves and heaters it is going to take more coal to heat your homes, etc., also cause this fire department a great many useless runs.

"The fire insurance statistics show us that the greatest originating cause of all fires are chimney fires. Just stop and think that there are 10,000 lives lost annually by fire.

"It seems to me that it is the duty of the head of each household and landlord to protect the lives of those he rents his apartments to, or the head of the household to protect the lives of his family against the possibility of fire causing sorrow, injury or even death in his or their homes.

"There are plenty of chimneys in this city that need attention not only by cleaning but should be inspected for leaks from the cellar to the roof. A great many of them were built years ago and are only one brick thick and unlined, when they should have been either single brick thick with tile lining or double brick thick with no lining eight inch walls.

"Let your slogan be from now until it is time to start your fires in your stoves or heaters, 'Inspect and clean all of our heating units.'"

Piles Go Quick

Piles are caused by bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Only an internal medicine can remove the cause. That's why external remedies and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID succeeds, because it relieves this congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has such a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief even in chronic and stubborn cases, that Lee and Osgood say try HEMROID at our expense, Your Pile suffering must end or money back.

CHARGES OF POOR SPORTSMANSHIP BY BIG COLLEGES RIDICULED BY LITTLE

By Edward J. Neil
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—All this talk of lack of sportsmanship in a big college football team that pours four or five elevens onto a small college squad of an early Saturday in the fall fails to impress Lou Little, new head coach at Columbia.

He sat at the head of the training table in the old mansion that houses his small squad during the pigskin season, with a half dozen young assistant coaches around him, and argued the matter fiercely. There was a variety of opinions, and Lou met with plenty of opposition, but the boss man, like an echo in the Alps, always has the final word.

"Small college teams insist on playing the big fellows in the early games," Little argued. "They don't have to schedule them unless they want to. They have two good reasons for doing it. Either they believe they have a chance to score an upset and jump into fame or they want the big guarantee that goes with a licking.

"Now if they come up to these big schools trying to upset the apple cart, they deserve little sympathy if the apple cart runs over them. Suppose Gene Tunney offered Al Singer $10,000 to fight him—would Singer, a lightweight, have to battle a heavyweight?

"All right. Now the rules of boxing wouldn't let Tunney send in a substitute for himself in the third or fourth round to carry on the fight but the rules of football allow substitutes to go in there and the game is played according to the rules. Anyway if you couldn't take out the first team and send in substitutes the scores of those early season games would be doubled. The first string players are the best players and there is no way of keeping a college boy from scoring a touchdown if he gets the chance."

Little laughed, and so did his assistants, at the idea that substitutes should be sent in only for injured regulars.

"What would there be to stop me or any other coach from warming up a substitute right halfback, for instance, as a signal to the regular right half that he was to be 'injured' on the next play?" he demanded.

"There's no use arguing, football would be a better game if the big colleges scheduled major opponents right from the start of the season. Let the little fellows play the little fellows, and the big ones the big ones. Notre Dame does it and gets away with it, so do the big west coast teams, California, Southern Cal., Washington State, for instance. The Big Ten does not waste a lot of time and development fooling around with minor opposition.

Arthur Sampson, former head coach at Tufts and now Little's backfield director, had some direct knowledge of the small college problem.

"Harvard, Dartmouth and Brown used to invite us to play an early season game every year," he said, "but we never accepted anyone but Brown once or twice. We played teams of our own class, with every game from start to close of the season a major game, and we built up a following that finally made us more money than we could have gotten taking lickings and big guarantees from the large colleges. It's no fault of football that one sided games are played. All that's necessary is for the small college scheduled makers to get smart."

Little scoffed at the idea that eastern elevens haven't the manpower of the west and midwest to carry through a season of eight major games.

TWENTY GRAND SETS RECORD AT CHURCHILL DOWNS

CHURCHILL DOWNS, LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 16—(AP)—Twenty Grand, Mrs. Payne Whitney's fleet colt, won his richest stake here today, defeating by a neck Equipoise, H. P. Whitney's leading two-year-old, in the Kentucky Jockey club stakes, worth approximately $25,000 to the winner. The mile race was run in 1:36, one-fifth of a second under the track record.

Twenty Grand, second choice in the betting, paid $7.54 for a $2 win ticket. The place price was $2.82 and show $3.22. Equipoise, the odds on favorite, paid $2.24 to place and $2.26 to show, and Knight's Call, E. B. Jones' Audley farm entry, which was third, paid $3.98 to show.

After the field had acted badly at the post for several minutes, the seven juveniles were away to a good start, Equipoise quickly assuming a commanding position and soon taking the lead. Twenty Grand dropped back and was last during most of the running on the back stretch. At the back turn he moved up to fourth place and began disposing of the leaders.

At the turn into the stretch, Equipoise was leading, but with a burst of speed Twenty Grand moved up, passed him and drew away, then followed a fine stretch duel, with Twenty Grand lasting to win by a neck. Knight's Call held on well to outlast the others for third, ten lengths behind the leaders. Back Log ran fourth.

By his fine race today, Twenty Grand entered the forefront of Derby prospects with Equipoise, which has a more impressive two-year-old record than the colt that beat him today.

Twenty Grand has won four of his six starts, but the total of his winnings until today was little more than $10,000. Equipoise, which has run in more races, has won more than $100,000 this year. C. Kurtsinger, Kentucky Jockey, had the mount on the winner today, with "Sonny" Workman riding Equipoise and H. Schutte on Knight's Call.

Among the crowd of 20,000 that watched the race was John Hay Whitney, son of Mrs. Payne Whitney, and his bride, formerly Mary Elizabeth Altemus of Philadelphia, who are on their honeymoon. Whitney received the jockey club cup on behalf of his mother.

KOZAK BEATS FARRELL TO REMAIN IN PLAY

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 16—(AP)—Walter Kozak, New York pro seeking his second consecutive Metropolitan Professional golfers' title, today advanced to the third round with a brilliant display of shot making over the Bedney Farms Country club course.

The youthful professional took the measure of Nick De Mane of Mamaroneck, N. Y., 4 and 3, in the morning round and then eliminated Johnny Farrell, former National Open champion, 3 and 2, in his second match of the day. In his match with De Mane, Kozak toured the outward nine in 33 to be five up at the turn. He was out in 37 in his battle with Farrell.

Farrell made the turn in 38 and was only one down to the defending champion, but Kozak came back to take the eleventh and twelfth, sinking a 20-foot putt on the latter for a birdie two. Johnny won the thirteenth but Kozak again went three up with a par 4 on the fourteenth. Johnny won the fifteenth with Kozak taking the sixteenth and the match.

The only upset of the day was the elimination of Billy Burke of Greenwich, Conn., by Tom Creavy of Tuckahoe, one up. Burke was the comedalist of the tournament with Herman Barrow of Portchester, who got into the third round with a close one up decision over Sol Di Bruono of Larchmont in the afternoon round.

YALE LOSES HEIM AS QUATERBACK BY INJURY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 16—(AP)—The injury jinx continued to dog the Yale varsity football squad today and deprived Coach Mal Stevens of another quaterback.

Charley Heim, who was favored to start against Brown next Saturday as quarterback, was declared unfit to play because of an injury suffered in practice earlier in the week. The seriousness of his injury did not become apparent until today's session. Heim was to have replaced McLennan in the starting quarter of ball carriers because of a twisted ankle suffered by the latter last Saturday.

Sandy Wiener, tennis star, fourth ranking quarterback, was choosen by Coach Stevens to replace Heim. He is expected to start against Brown with Sullivan, Dunn and Crowley as the other members of the backfield. The relief group of ball carriers today was made up of Albie Booth, Taylor, Austen and Muhlfeld.

Coach Comerford, who has charge of the ends, announced today that Hans Flygrare will be at left end Saturday, replacing Lindenberg who is also on the injured list.

A long dummy scrimmage in which punting and drop kicking were stressed was held today. This was followed by a forward passing drill.

SUAREZ IS FAVORITE TO BEAT KAPLAN TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—Justo Suarez, fighting son of the Argentine, has a chance to consolidate further his position among the outstanding lightweights tomorrow night in a ten round battle with Louis Kid Kaplan, former featherweight champion, from Meriden, Conn., at Madison Square Garden.

In his march to a title match with Al Singer, 135 pound champion, Suarez in a brief sorte has walloped Joe Glick, Herman Perlick, Bruce Flowers and Ray Miller. If he gets safely by Kaplan, and the odds are 2 to 1 he will, a tussle with Jimmy McLarnin awaits him here Nov. 21. After that he is scheduled to return to South America, to reappear next spring for a title match outdoors with Singer here.

SHARKEY TO BOX THE GAGNON-O'KELLY WINNER

BOSTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—Jack Sharkey, outstanding Boston heavyweight, today agreed to meet the winner of next week's Jack Gagnon-Con O'Kelley bout here in the Boston arena on November 10. Sharkey will perform for Eddie Mack's Argonne A. A. club.

Mack said he and Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, signed agreements promising Sharkey a $20,000 guarantee with a 40 per cent privilege. The matchmaker predicted that Sharkey and either Gagnon or O'Kelley would attract a $45,000 gate with prices scaled from $1 to $6.

Sharkey, idle since his unsuccessful encounter with Max Schmeling last June, is, according to Buckley, near his fighting peak. The ex-gob battler underwent a long training seige for his cancelled bout with Campolo and needs but little work to get in shape.

Eastern Football Briefs

PITTSBURGH—Carnegie Tech's squad of 37 left tonight for Elkhart, Ind., where it will remain in seclusion until just before going on to the field against Notre Dame at South Bend. Practice will be held at Elkhart tomorrow.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The Orange, preparing for Saturday's clash with Pittsburgh, went through another punting session, with further practice in covering kicks. The Syracuse kicking, in Coach Vic Hanson's opinion, is the only weakness shown this season by his grid squad.

HAMILTON, N. Y.—Colgate university's football squad went through a light drill of two hours before leaving for East Lansing tonight for the Michigan State game Saturday. Head Coach Andy Kerr took 35 players with him for the first intersectional game of the season in which the Maroon has played. Howard Crane, tackle, was left behind on account of a leg injury.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 16—(AP)—After a brief workout at noon, Army's football squad, 38 strong, left today for Boston, ready for the big duel with Harvard. Practice sessions will be held tomorrow in Harvard stadium and at the Belmont Springs Country club.

NEW YORK—The Columbia Lions went through another gruelling workout before leaving at midnight for Hanover, N. H., where they meet Dartmouth's strong eleven Saturday. Scrimmage against the freshmen was the outstanding business of the day. The squad of 34 will practice in Harvard stadium tomorrow.

ITHACA, N. Y.—A long signal drill with emphasis on the aerial attack closed Cornell's intensive preparations for the Princeton game. Thirty-five players left on a special train tonight for Princeton. Indications were that Pond, Ross, Cornish and Skokos would start against the Tigers with Viviano and Stevens held in reserve.

PHILADELPHIA.—With the whole squad in first rate condition, Penn's gridiron warriors left for Madison, where they will play Wisconsin of the big ten on Saturday. "I feel Penn has an even chance, provided the weather is fair and the field dry," Head Coach Lud Wray said.

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—With Duke next on the program, Bill Ingram put his Navy squad through its hardest workout since the Notre Dame defeat.

PRINCETON, N. J.—Herbie Gooch, sophomore, was tossed into the first string Princeton backfield as the Tigers polished up offense and defense for the clash with Cornell. Trix Bennett was at quarterback.

MAYS-PILKINGTON BOUT TONIGHT TO BE TORRID

Matchmaker Al Weill of the Thames A. C. will stage an all-star card featured by a 10 round encounter between Bobby Mays, New London lightweight and Irish Jackie Pilkington of Meriden, at the Thames arena tonight. The Mays-Pilkington shindig has created a great deal of interest and a large gallery of fans are expected to witness the boys in action.

Joe Russo, Westerly, R. I., 152 pounder, and Johnny Woods of New York, will battle in the semi-final windup for six rounds. Three months ago at Taftville, the Gothamite registered a knockout over the Rhode Island State Italian, and the latter will be out to avenge the defeat. Two other bouts listed for six rounds will bring together Sid Taylor of the Coast Guard Academy and Johnny Mack, New Haven lightweight; while Young Lizzo, Westerly bantamweight, faces Artie Weinberg of New York.

A four rounder will show Carmen Knapp, New Haven lightweight, against Jimmy Kearns of New London formerly hailing from Nebraska.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—(AP)—The Cubs today completed negotiations with the Cincinnati Reds for the purchase of Jakie May, veteran lefthander pitcher. The deal was strictly cash, but, as usual, the amount paid to the Cincinnati management was not revealed.

The acquisition of May, who was with the Reds for seven seasons, brought the Cubs' purchases to three veteran hurlers in less than a week. Lester Sweetland was obtained from the Phillies for cash, and Bob Smith came to the club from the Boston Braves for cash and players.

STRONG SUPPORTING CARD BOOKED FOR VIC DARR-AL KOZIOL FEATURE

Matchmaker Leo P. Flynn has lined up a strong supporting card for the Al Koziol-Vic Darr eight-round main bout of the first indoor boxing show of the season under the auspices of the Shyma Boxing club next Friday evening at Parish hall. The card looks to be one that will create plenty of local interest as all the boys on the card are popular throughout the eastern part of the state.

Besides the main bout there will be two other eight-round star bouts. In one Joe Russo of Westerly will meet the veteran Johnny Curcio of Providence while Jimmy Quinn, local featherweight, will take on Tony Caprio of Providence in the other. Curcio is an old timer and a crafty ring master, who should make the Westerly boy travel at top speed to win. In Caprio the Norwich featherweight meets a strong opponent. Local fans will remember the tough battle that Caprio gave Romeo Dubois on the Majestic roof last summer.

One of the feature bouts of the evening will be the six-round preliminary in which Al Rodman of Goodyear and Young Rochette of Westerly meet for the third time. Those who saw the first bout between these youngsters at the Martin field will never forget it. It was a slugging match from gong to gong. The boys met again at Westerly and the same kind of a bout resulted, Rochette winning the decision, Rodman having won at Taftville.

Opening the card will be Julio Rossi of Westerly and Al Brouillard of Danielson, brother of the illustrious Dynamite Lou. Brouillard has yet to lose a bout, but he will be up against as strong a fighter as he has ever met.

BRILLIANT GOLF MARKS WOMEN'S NATIONAL TOURNEY

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Booming drives and flashing short games combined today to furnish a huge gallery with some of the most brilliant golf of the week as four feminine stars stroked their way to the semi-finals of the 34th annual women's national championship.

No upset marred the play. The four favorites, Miss Glenna Collett, New York; Miss Helen Hicks, Inwood, N.Y.; Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, and Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, all moved into the semi-finals. Three matches produced sub-par golf, and the fourth ranged on the borderline of standard figures.

Four times winner of the title and striving for a third successive reign, Miss Collett defeated Miss Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo, N. Y., 3 and 1. The defending champion won the first two holes and was never headed, although her more youthful rival squared accounts once, at the eighth.

Miss Collett won the ninth with a par 3 to make the turn one up. Each toured the first half in 39, par figures.

With the next two holes halved, Miss Collett captured the 12th and 13th to go three up, lose the 14th to a birdie 5 and after halving the next two posted a birdie 4 on the 17th to clinch the match.

Miss Collett finished four under women's par. Miss Wattles was two under.

Lured by what promised to be the greatest battle of the day, more than a thousand spectators trailed Miss Hicks, 19-year-old star, and Mrs Leona Pressler, of San Gabriel, Cal. Miss Hicks won, 2 and 1. The crowd was not disappointed. For ten holes the pair battled even. They finished the first nine all square, Miss Hicks stroking a 38, one under par, to 39 for Mrs. Pressler, 1929 national runner up.

Mrs. Pressler went into the lead at the second hole with a birdie 4 to her opponent's par, but the latter evened accounts on the third with a birdie 3 to a five. Miss Hicks won the sixth and seventh with par 4's but Mrs. Pressler snatched the eighth with a spectacular eagle 4.

The Californian evened matters with a par 3 on the ninth. They halved the tenth and Miss Hicks won the 11th and 12th to increase her lead to two up. The next five holes were halved. Miss Hicks was three under par when the match ended and Mrs. Pressler was one under.

Miss Collett will oppose the flashing Hicks girl tomorrow in what figures to be the most sensational round of the tournament.

Mrs. Hill and Miss Van Wie pulled through today without difficulties. Mrs. Hill, medalist, eliminated the rising young star, Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. H., 3 and 2, and Miss Van Wie routed Mrs. Roy Green, of Culver City, Cal., 7 and 5.

Miss Van Wie will match strokes tomorrow with Mrs. Hill, the tournament medalist.

PLENTY OF TORRID BOUTS SEEN AT PUTNAM AMATEURS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 16.—Promoter Dan Tredeau of the Putnam Boxing club is deserving of much praise and credit for his part in the arrangement of the excellent fight programme staged in St. John's hall on Providence street tonight, which ushered in the city's 1930 boxing season.

Starting the match off by sending a well directed left hook to the jaw and following the punch up with two smashing rights to the stomach, Charlie Goulet, 136 pounds, Putnam boxer, scored a knockout over Kid Martel of Worcester, 40 seconds after the opening of their three-round bout.

Kid Brouillard of Danielson won a hard-earned decision in a three-round battle with Paul Jones of Worcester, fighting in the 108-pound class. Brouillard was well matched and was forced to employ every ounce of strength to outclass his quick-witted and hard-hitting opponent. He was credited with winning the first and third rounds when he battered Jones with a series of left hooks in the stomach and head. Jones managed to slow Brouillard up somewhat in the second round with a number of body punches.

In the 132-pound class, William Leo of Danielson outpointed Harry Wood of Worcester in two rounds of a three-round bout.

Ray Landry, Danielson school boy pugilist, added another victory to his steadily growing list by winning tonight over Tony Burke, fast-stepping 129-pound Worcester fighter, battering Burke with a barrage of right hooks to the head and stomach. It was a three-round affair, Landry gaining the decision.

Kid Allen of Danielson, 140 pounds, took a terrific beating from Kid Bellanger of Worcester, the latter taking the decision after outpointing Allen in the three rounds. Allen appeared to be the more experienced but did not fight with the fire and aggressiveness of his Worcester opponent, who shellached him continually with head and body punches.

Young Plasse of Webster, 134 pounds, was awarded a close decision over Josse Sandall of Worcester in a three-round bout.

Kid Tourney of Webster lost the decision to Patsy Long of Worcester in what proved to be the fastest bout of the night. Tourney entered the ring at 115 pounds and Long at 116. Hammered by smashing rights to the head and stomach, Long was slowed up in the opening rounds, but in the second and third unleashed a terrific body attack on Tourney and came near scoring a knockout when he sent his opponent to the floor with a left hook to the jaw. He took the decision with a series of body punches.

Danny Roy of Webster won a decision over Norman Lasch of Danielson in a fast two-round bout, Lasch fighting gamely but suffered heavily from Roy's left hooks to the head and body delivered in rapid succession. Both weighed 108 pounds.

Lou Bogash of Bridgeport, former heavyweight fighter, refereed the bouts. Lou Lambert of Danielson was official timer and Armand Lebeau of Putnam, announcer.

CHOCOLATE GETS QUICK KAYO OVER NABORS

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Back in action again after a long layoff, Kid Chocolate, crack Cuban Negro featherweight, knocked out Benny Nabors, Armory fighter from New York, in the first round of a ten-round bout at the Olympia A. C., tonight.

Chocolate scaled 127 1-2; Nabors 131 3-4.

Nabors went down and out from the only really solid blow of the fight. They danced around for the first minute or so as Chocolate tried to feint his man into position. When the opportunity came, the Cuban took full advantage of it, crashing home a right to the chin that sent Nabors to the floor for the full count.

Black Bill, Chocolate's stablemate, outpointed Freddy Latanizo of New York in the ten-round semi-final. The Cuban led all the way and floored Latanzio with a stiff left in the first round, although the New Yorker bounded to his feet without a count. Black Bill weighed 113 3-4; Latanzio 114.

Pablo Blanco, another Cuban, stopped Bobby Herman of New York in the third round. He weighed 127; Herman 125. Walter Palm, New York, 152, easily defeated Mario Pina, Italy, 147, in a six-rounder.

LARRIVEE WINS VERDICT OVER MIKE TORONTO

WATERBURY, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Leo Larrivee, Waterbury, 166 1-2, won a ten-round decision over Mike Toronto, Bridgeport, 163 1-2, in the feature fight of the opening indoor boxing show of the Waterbury A. C. at Buckingham hall, here tonight. In two other ten-round bouts, Alex Hart, Ansonia, 149 1-2, outpointed Frankie Cook, Bridgeport, 148, and Paul Rojas, Cuba, 163, won the verdict over Tut Jackson, Waterbury, 169.

Jimmy McLarnin, Watertown, 178, knocked out Al Mariano, Waterbury, 168 1-2, in the first round of a scheduled four-round bout. Joe Vignali, Waterbury, 127, four-round decision over Mike Cavalier, Bristol, 130.

TOMMY LOUGHRAN EASY WINNER OVER DICK DANIELS

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Playing a staccato of left jabs on his opponent's face, Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, won a newspaper decision from Dick Daniels, Minneapolis heavyweight, in ten listless rounds tonight.

Loughran's jabs kept Daniels off balance while an occasional right piled up the offensive points with Daniels landing seldom with effect. Loughran weighed 183 1-2, three-quarters of a pound less than his opponent.

Charley Ratzlaff, Duluth, 197, knocked out Angus McDonald, 223-pounder, in the second round.

$5,000,000 LIBEL SUIT FILED BY BISHOP JAMES CANNON, JR.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Attempts to discredit Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and malign the character of the present Mrs. Cannon were charged today in a $5,000,000 libel suit the bishop filed against William Randolph Hearst in the District of Columbia supreme court.

The churchman charged that last July 24 and 27 the New York Evening Journal and other Hearst newspapers printed accounts saying the bishop was at the home of his present wife, then Mrs. Helen Hawley McCallum and his secretary, at the time of the late Mrs. Cannon's death and while there telephoned his sons to obtain information as to his wife's condition. The first Mrs. Cannon died two years ago.

The bishop and Mrs. McCallum were married in England last July and went on an extended honeymoon to South America. Just before they sailed to return to the United States, four ministers of the Methodist church filed charges against him. They have never been made public.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, with whom the charges were filed, is expected to appoint a committee of 12 ministers to determine whether a church trial is necessary.

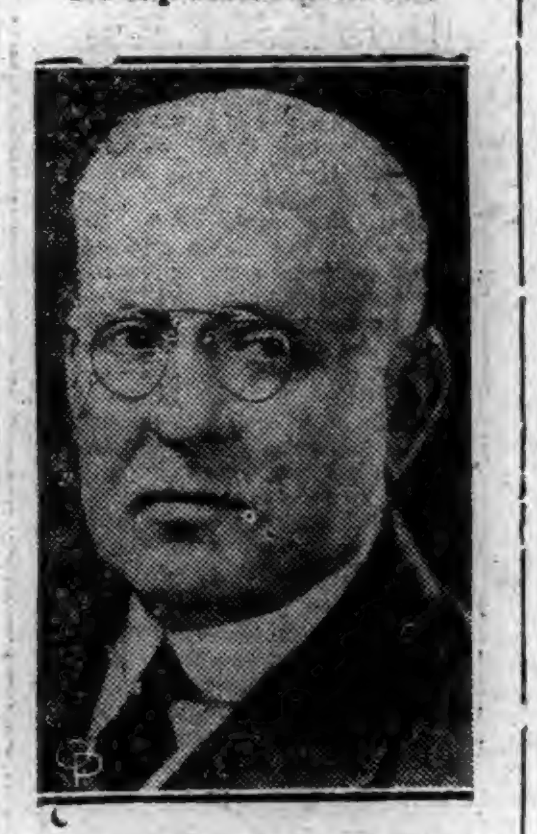
STABBED WHILE TRYING TO QUIET INTOXICATED MAN

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Mystery surrounding the stabbing last night of a witness summoned before the senate campaign funds investigation committee was cleared today with a formal explanation by the victim that the incident occurred while he was trying to quiet a man who was "intoxicated and inclined to be boisterous."

Reports that James Cox, 55-year-old telephone executive of Cookeville, had been wounded seriously in his hotel room has simmered down to the statement by his physician that the wound was "little more than a scratch."

Mr. Cox was to have appeared today before the committee that is inquiring into the democratic senatorial primary in Tennessee.

To Spend Millions



So confident is Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities magnate, that America's present business depression will not be long lived that he has announced that the Insull Utilities will spend between $195,000,000 and $200,000,000 for permanent improvements in 1931.

DEVICE STANDARDIZES SIZE OF X-RAY 'DOSE'

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Invention of an apparatus for standardizing the measurement of X-ray "doses" may unify all X-ray treatments.

Developed by the bureau of standards, the sensitive instrument measures X-ray intensity within one one-hundred-billionth of an ampere. With this as a standard, dosage meters used by physicians may be calibrated at the bureau in the accepted unit.

It is necessary, bureau experts say, for physicians to use some standard dose that can be duplicated generally with the knowledge that they are giving the exact amount in the treatment.

BURNING PROCESS STUDIED BY 'INSTALLMENT' METHOD

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—A new method of learning exactly what happens to a burning particle is reported in the American Chemical society by Austin Gudmendsen of Carnegie Institute of Technology and David F. Smith of the bureau of mines.

The particle is heated in an inert gas, that is one in which it cannot burn, then suddenly blasted with a stream of air.

The touch of air produces instant burning, but before this has gone far the particle is plunged back into the inert gas. This puts out the fire, without changing effects of burning. Thus a particle is burned step by step, with stops to study what happens after each air blast.

ARKANSAS FOOLS 'EM WITH SOY BEAN CROP

STUTTGART, Ark. —(AP)— The last laugh's always the best, and that's what A. E. Moran has now.

The first laugh was enjoyed by Moran's neighbors when he told them he planned to take 700 acres, or just half his rice farm, and plant soy beans.

That was last May. Now Moran chuckles as he shows them long straight rows of dark green soy beans, from waist to neck high, just blooming and still growing, beginning to lap over in the middle of the 38-inch rows and not seeming to mind the fact that they've had no rain at all.

Mr. Burdick said Thursday that the selectmen have already submitted an expense budget for the coming year, which includes $62,000 for the schools and about $40,000 for the current expense account. When the abstract is completed, it is promised that if the expense estimates can be met by means of a tax rate less than the last, which was 30 mills, then the selectmen may recommend a lower figure. MOTHER ALPHONSA LATHROP IS SUBJECT OF NEW BOOK

Mother Alphonsa: Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, is a new book by Dr. James J. Walsh, of New York. Beautiful, gifted, imperious and fastidious, for twenty years Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, "the rose of all the Hawthornes," Nathaniel's younger daughter, was a favorite in New York's most exclusive literary circles. She received the gift of faith in 1893, and then determined to devote the rest of her life to the benefit of her kind. A friend's death directed this intention to the care of the destitute cancer patients. She was, her brother says, "an innate patrician . . . ugliness, dirt, disharmony, revolted her." The heroic courage that enabled her to carry on the daily, most repulsive work for the thirty-two years during which she founded her Sister Servants of Relief for Incurable Cancer and their cancer homes in New York and on the Hudson, is a most appealing story that loses nothing in the way that Dr. Walsh tells it. He was one of Mother Alphonsa's most zealous cooperators in the practical accomplishment of her charitable ideals. His biography of her is founded on intimate knowledge and sincere appreciation. Before the death of her husband, George Parsons Lathrop, also a writer, Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop were for a time residents of New London. Older members of local society recall the distinguished and brilliant pair.

CALIFORNIAN SEEKS TO KNOW ABOUT NORWICH

In a communication received from A. R. Arnold of the Bank of Italy at Tracy, California, which has been sent to Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, the mayor is asked for information regarding families with three well known Norwich names, Huntington, Lathrop and Tracy. The mayor has written in answer that he has turned the letter over to Mrs. Edna M. Rogers of this city, who will in all probability supply the inquirer with the correct information.

The letter to Mayor Robbins was as follows:

Dear Mayor:

I am a sort of old book fiend and in rummaging through a book shop recently, I located a book entitled "The Norwich Jubilee," which celebrated the 200th anniversary of that little city in 1859.

In it I find several names that lead me to wonder if they are not of the same families of early Californians, for instance, Huntington, Lathrop, Tracy. I am wondering if this is not the same Huntington family that was one of the founders of the Central Pacific Railroad Co., in California in early days along with Leland Stanford, Crocker and Hopkins. These men were commonly referred to as the "Big Four" as they pushed the Central Pacific over the mountains to connect with lines of the east.

I also notice the name of Tracy and it reminds me that our little city was named for Lathrop Josiah Tracy and I know that this Mr. Tracy was the friend and lived in the same community with some of the early railroad company officials and that is the reason that they named this town for Mr. Tracy and also named an adjoining town, Lathrop.

Of course, I know that this Mr. Tracy has been dead a good many years, but I believe that with this data you will be able to tell me whether or not these family names in the anniversary book are the same people.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

"BACK TO THE FARM"

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Just who started the phrase "Back to the land," I don't know. A somewhat prolific second-rate novelist of the last century once wrote a fiction called "Back to Eden," in which he described with an inaccuracy almost amounting to genius the adventures of a city family who found the purchase and working of a run-down up-state farm a blissful return to Eden. Perhaps that suggested to some equally impractical agricultural hack writer the phrase "back to the land."

Whatever its source, the slogan has been used for too many years in an attempt to beguile those who have failed in the city into thinking that they could make good at farming.

Which is just about equivalent to suggesting that a man who can't earn a living hammering steel on an anvil might get rich breaking stones for the highway.

Equivalent in absurdity, I mean. I am not intimating that farm-work is anything like stone-cracking or that it calls only for big muscles and a stout back. Almost any fool can break stones. The census of unsuccessful farmers is sufficient proof that he can't run a farm.

The simple truth is that farming is at the same time a science and an art. To succeed at it requires both careful and patient study and a skill obtainable only from long experience. If you object to this and point to the fact that many farmers are neither scientific nor expert, all I can say is that some farmers are wretched failures for that very reason,—they're too dumb to learn and too shiftless to become adepts.

There are probably quite as many failures among farmers as there are among store-keepers, proportionately. Neither fact is proof that either occupation is predestined to bankruptcy. But both facts unite in proof that a man needs to know his business, whatever it is, if he expects to succeed at it.

For a man who knows nothing of the innumerable problems of even the simplest farm-work to assume that he can start in with nothing but brute strength and ignorance on his side, and play Jack-the-giant-killer to them all, instanter, is as unreasonable as it would be for him to assume that he could repair watches with no training.

For him to assume, because he has read a lot of re-touched and toned-up semi-fiction in the so-called "agricultural press," that he is thereby instructed in farming is even more absurd. There is a considerable basis for the real dirt farmer's contempt for the "book farmer."

The trouble with most of the stuff printed in the distinctively farm papers is that it is largely devoted to exceptions;—to exceptional successes or exceptional cases. It is interesting, of course, to read about that hundred and sixty thousand acre wheat farm in Montana and how it is all machine-worked. Interesting, but how does it help the sixty acre farmer on a Connecticut hillside? It is interesting to read how they grow muskmelons in Colorado by irrigation. Interesting, but how does it help the Lebanon farmer grow potatoes with no irrigation possible? It is interesting to be told how somebody raises 16-foot corn by the 10,000 acres on black Illinois loam. Interesting, but how does it help the North Stonington farmer on his stony fields?

The problems which are first to face the freshman farmer are seldom if ever alluded to in these written-to-sell tales of big farmers and big farming. They are too commonplace. Also, they are too pernickety. The only way he can solve them is by living with them, "getting onto their curves," finding out their why's and wherefore's, devising and trying out scheme after scheme, till at last he hits on one which will work.

And, when he has done this with one problem, the very next morning will find another camping on his fields and daring him to attack it. His work is a constant battle against forces which he can hope to overcome only by patient observation, judicious planning and the following of a really "grand strategy." Books and periodicals may give him occasional hints, but he must plan his own tactics and do his own fighting.

George W. Russell, the Irish farmer-organizer, who is in this country for a short visit, wisely remarks that the true slogan is not "back to the farm," but "stay on the farm." The elements of farm success must be learned early or they are not likely to be learned at all. Farming is a life-time campaign which can neither be planned in a year nor won in a dozen years.

Of course, we are talking about successful farming. There is too much of the other kind; too much unsuccessful farming, unsuccessful in many cases for the very reason that its practitioners don't appreciate the amount of knowledge and skill demanded, or are too "sot" or too easy-going to take the trouble to learn.

Nor do enough of the farm-born appreciate the true dignity and honor of the combat which invites them. Yet it is only the farm-born and farm-bred who can justifiably hope to make farming a successful vocation. They can't begin too early; they can't stick at it too persistently.

One of the most successful farmers I ever knew said to me, near the close of his long life, that he had farmed it for almost 70 years and he couldn't remember a single year in which he hadn't discovered something new or learned some better way to do things. He added; "Eighty years aren't enough to learn farming as it ought to be known."

This "back to the land" whoopee is mostly a delusion and a snare. It is a will-o'-the-wisp, luring most of its victims into a swamp. "Stay on the land" is, on the other hand, the call of an inspired prophet.

But how are we going to get the farm boys and girls to hear it or to heed it, when heard? At, that is the hardest conundrum of all! The city lure of more money, of easier work, of more attainable amusements, is strongest just when the strength of purpose to resist is weakist.

To get more money, even if they have to spend it all as fast as gotten; to mix with the crowds, even when they care no more for you than for any other stranger; to have more "fun," even when the "fun" brings its morning-after headache;—what chance does the steady grind of the old farm have against such temptations?

The present tendency is to attempt to counteract the city allurements by bringing as many of those allurements as possible into the country. Hot and cold running water, telephones and radios, automobiles and rural mail delivery, many a farm house boasts that it has as many "city conveniences" as the average city dwelling. So far, so good. But there is usually small success in attempting to stop a typhoid fever by giving a headache powder. The way to cure a disease is not by salving its symptoms but by attacking its source and cause.

To succeed at farming in any high degree takes all the knowledge one can buy, borrow, or beg; and all the skill constant practice can impart.

And yet, to succeed at farming is something exceedingly worth while. It is something which any winner can be proud of. It is something which means more to the individual and to society than almost any other variety of success.

It is not a sordid occupation, because it aims at making homes rather than just bank balances. It is not a menial occupation, because it offers the widest scope for the fullest exercise of every highest human faculty. It is not a slavish drudgery, because it affords opportunity for the most complete independence of any occupation in the world. And it is a richly remunerative calling,—in everything except cash.

But how to make the boys and girls see this and appreciate the opportunities before them in staying on the farm? You say you don't know; I own up that I don't know.

To our older and wiser eyes the facts seem so self-evident that we are inclined to be impatient with the younger set who can't or won't see them. Which doesn't help matters a whit. For, no matter how "sot" we may be in our ideas, there is a stubbornness in youth which is more immovable than mountains. They are really much more certain of what they think they know than we are of the few things we do know.

Many parents have learned that the surest way to insure a match of which they disapprove is to oppose and try to thwart the adolescent lovers. The surest way to drive youngsters off the farm is to attempt chaining them to it. A doctor of divinity once told his congregation that the habit of going to church was rarely fostered by tying children to bed-posts on Sunday and compelling them to learn the hymn, "Thine Earthly Sabbaths, Lord, We Love."

And yet, there must be some way in which the lads and lasses who are mentally and physically fit for farm life can be brought to appreciate its opportunities and its charm. There is no puzzle which can't be solved, if attacked in the right way. There is no difficulty which can't be removed, if the correct methods are used.

The first thing to do is to understand what we are up against, and to get a firm grip on what we want to do.

The sooner we stop talking "back to the land" to cityfied people, and begin a crusade to induce the country-born and bred to "stay on the farm," the better.

Every case must be met on its own merits. There don't seem to be any general rules which apply.

But the end sought is so desirable, in fact, so essential, that any honorable and fair means ought to be used.

THE FARMER.

Cottage Destroyed

Fire of unknown origin completely destoryed the summer cottage at the lake belonging to Mrs. Foster of Hartford, early Monday evening. The house was unoccupied and the flames had gained much headway before discovered by a passing motorist.

An alarm was sent out by telephone, and many responded, although there was little to do except watch the fire consume the building and its contents, and see that flying sparks did not set fire to surrounding grass. It was considered fortunate that there was no wind blowing, as everything is so dry at present.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Apothecaries Hall Company, Waterbury

In 1849, Dr. Gideon L. Platt opened a drug store on the triangular spit of land between Bank and South Main streets, facing Exchange place in Waterbury and called it "Apothecaries Hall."

Today, 81 years later, Apothecaries Hall company is doing business under the same name, on the same site, and with only such changes of ownership as the normal workings of business life and human death inevitably bring to pass in any enterprise.

Out of Dr. Platt's tiny venture has grown a great manufacturing, wholesale and retail business. From its extensive warehouses on Benedict street, Apothecaries Hall company of today distributes throughout Connecticut and New England immense quantities of chemicals, drugs, paints, oils, and other related commodities; the company has branched out to include an anode foundry on Manhan street, an extensive fertilizer plant at East Windsor; a division on Benedict street where the manufacture of cleaning compounds and buffing compositions is conducted; while on the site of the original drug store opened by Dr. Platt there now stands a 7-story building of marble, granite and Roman brick, which like the structure it superseded, is one of the city's most striking landmarks.

In 1852, Aaron Benedict and John S. Mitchell with several others, joined with Dr. Platt in forming a corporation under the name of "Apothecaries Hall company." Dr. Platt was the first president and Dr. Fish was the secretary-treasurer.

The company was originally capitalized at $12,500. In 1854 this was increased to $20,000 and the capitalization remained at that amount until 1916 when it was raised to $240,000. In 1925 the capitalization was increased to $720,000. The par value of the original 800 shares was $25 each. At the present time the company has 7200 shares with a par value of $100.

In 1873 the company purchased from the Farrell foundry the property on Benedict street where the beginnings of the present wholesale department were made by the construction of a railroad siding and the building of the first unit of a warehouse system.

Progress from that time until the middle 90's were steady and consistent.

In this period the retail branch of the business had outgrown the ancient structure on Exchange place, and the old building was demolished in 1891. The company was then first housed in its new seven-story building in March, 1894.

In the warehouses, on Benedict street, are stored ready to hand some 10,000 items of merchandise. Building stretching over an entire city block contain stock ranging from tank cars of turpentine, gasoline and alcohol through chemicals, drugs and medicines, agricultural and dairy supplies, motor oils and lubricants, automobile accessories, candy, penholders, laundry pins and flower pots.

It is a business almost unbelievably varied in its nature, serving the community in multifarious ways.

The company owns the famous "Deloye anode" patent, well known to all nickel platers, and originated the "Improved Deloye anode," also the famous "Nucast" anode.

The company is represented in the sale of nickel anodes, cleaning compounds and buffing compositions by a number of jobbers throughout the United States. Through these agencies it supplies many of the largest automobile, stove and other manufacturers in various parts of the country and in foreign lands.

Forty miles away from Waterbury in the old town of East Windsor, is another of the company's manufacturing divisions— the huge Liberty Fertilizer plant. This plant stands nearly in the center of New England's most intense agricultural activity.

Research work done by the chemists in the laboratories of the company, very often in collaboration with the state experiment stations, results in a unique service to the farmers of New England.

During the 75 years of its existence, Apothecaries Hall company has never known any labor trouble. Many of the employes have held their positions for more than a quarter of a century. A group insurance policy is in effect and in addition, the employes are privileged to take out a separate policy provided for them by the company on which they pay a low price.

The present officers are: Isaac P. Kellogg, president and treasurer; Levi Wilcox, secretary; Evan H. Jones, assistant secretary; Clark H. W. Newton, assistant treasurer.

STAFFORD

The addition built on to the chapel is nearly completed. The new church organ is being installed this week. It was purchased in Brattleboro, Vt. The organ is the gift of the late Henry C. Thresher, for many years an active member of the Baptist church, as were his father and mother.

The foliage has been the most beautiful this year seen for many seasons.

Mr. and Mrs. William Batchelder, of East Milton, spent the week end with local relatives.

The Riverside Woolen mill is closed for the week. The Phoenix Woolen mill closed the three days of the fair, running Thursday and Friday.

Many wells and springs are dry, or so near it that it causes much anxiety.

CHAPLIN

Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Bradford, Miss Dorothy Bradford Searles and John Bradford, of Putnam, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gallup, Sunday.

The C. E. society attended the union meeting at Mansfield Center church, Sunday evening.

Mrs. Herbert E. Plass and Mrs. F. E. Roundey, of Glen Ridge, N. J., Herbert R. Plass and G. Kingman Crosby, students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology were at the Plass summer home over the week end. Others in town over the week end were Merritt Welch and a friend from Bogota, N. J., with Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Welch; Burton Welch of Bogota, N. J., at the home of his father, B. M. Welch; J. Wilbur Lanphear and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Streeter and daughter, of Hartford, at the Witter house; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Storrs and Billie Storrs and friend of Braintree, Mass., at the Storrs summer place. Several of the Purvis family of New Persey were at their Bear Hill place over Sunday.

The new grange hall has received a first coat of paint and the building has been wired for electricity and ready to connect with the line when it reaches the village. A hard-wood floor is to be laid and much finishing on the interior remains to be done.

A number of the townspeople attended Stafford fair this week. One of the best in the state, that draws crowds.

AMERICANS ARE FAVORED BY LOW PRICE OF SUGAR

Most Nations Pay Much Higher Price for This Product

According to statistics, sugar is one of the cheapest food products bought by the American housewife day in and day out. In Australia and New Zealand, where the per capita consumption is thirty pounds more per year than in the United States, a higher price is maintained.

The standards of this country in refining sugar, not only insure uniform color, granulation, density and purity, but give it unlimited keeping qualities. Besides, Americans are offered sugar in many inviting forms, conveniently packed to suit their needs.

The low price of sugar, its many uses, and the important part it plays in the diet should not be overlooked. It is one of the chief ingredients in wholesome desserts, including puddings, custards and ice cream. It improves the taste-appeal of beverages, nutritious stewed and fresh fruits, also breakfast cereals. Used as a seasoning with salt, sugar heightens the flavor of vegetables rich in vitamins and minerals.

The healthy, well-fed United States Army consumes considerably more sugar per capita than those in civilian life. Inasmuch as the diet of these soldiers is constantly watched by medical and dietary experts, this consumption of sugar is significant. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

DRESS UP YOUR GARDEN FOR WINTER

Many people plan gardens and shrubbery borders so that something will be in bloom from early spring to late fall, and having achieved a satisfying succession of bloom with an interesting foliage background, rest contented with the result. And they have reason to feel that they have done well, for it is no small achievement to keep the garden tastefully dressed according to the everchanging modes of foliage and flower.

But how about those months that come between fall and spring—must the garden wear "just anything" during that trying season? This is a good time of the year to give a little thought to providing an interesting, colorful winter costume for your garden Of all seasons when the garden needs gay-colored attire, winter certainly heads the list.

Get some of the shrubs that have colorful bark in winter. By contrast they make even the browns and blacks look gayer. Plant plenty of bright-berried shrubs near the house. Not only do they contribute their full share of beauty to the garden's winter wardrobe, but they draw the cheerful, hardy little winter birds to your grounds.

Evergreens are indispensable for the note of warmth they lend the garden's winter ensemble. They give an excellent background for the bright hued berries and twigs, and when massed at strategic points bring about a feeling of snugness in the home place where otherwise a shivery exposure of sweeping winter winds might be felt.

In the Dogwood or Cornus group we find the best examples of shrubs with colored bark in winter. There are several of these which vary in color from the crimson through the deep red and into the purple. One variety has yellow bark, and when grouped with the red-twigged sorts, it will give a touch of lively contrast to the winter costume of your rounds.

Barberry, euonymus in variety, honeysuckle in variety, buckthorn, sumacs, snowberry, Indian currant and viburnum—all are valuable for their berries which hang on into the winter.

Trees which have attractive bark and are desirable in both summer and winter are: Birches (white bark), elaeagnus (silvery bark), platanus or Oriental plane tree (white patched bark), and golden willow in both upright and weeping forms (yellow bark).

With such a selection of shrubs, trees and evergreens, you'll find it interesting to plan a colorful winter wardrobe for your garden.

SUCCESSFUL FALL PLANTING OF TREES AND SHRUBS

To plant trees and shrubs in fail will give them many advantages for successful growth that they do not have when planted in spring. Why is this? Most any hardy shrub will serve as an example to illustrate the advantageous conditions existing in fall.

When the first warm days come in spring the sap begins to flow through the plant and the buds commence to swell. Even though the soil seems cold and wet, the whole plant is alive with the urge of another growing season. When the branches, leaves and flowers are ready to burst forth, every tiny rootlet is called on to supply the needed sap. But all this takes place very early—in fact, so early that outdoor work would be impossible, in most cases, due to the soil being too wet to work with. Consequently plants moved in spring are taken up after this activity starts and the growth is then checked.

In fall the opposite is true—the growing season is over and the plant is at rest. Such a dormant plant may be lifted and moved without suffering the shock which is bound to occur when a growing plant is moved.

The actual planting of trees and shrubs is, however, the same at this season of the year as at any other. When planting, do not let the roots become dry; keep them covered at all times with damp sacks or something similar.

Cut off broken or bruised roots just above the place of injury. Shorten any roots that are over-long, with a sharp knife or sharp pruning shears.

Dig generous sized holes with perpendicular sides (never saucer shape). Put the good dirt to one side so that you can use it around the roots. Losen the soil in the bottom of the hole. If well rotted cow manure is available it may be mixed with the soil beyond the roots so they will reach out to it as they grow. Another fertilizer to use in place of the cow manure is bone meal. Humus is lacking, however, in bone meal, as well as most other commercial fertilizers. As it is most important in the upkeep and fertility of the soil it should be supplied by the addition of leaf mold, compost, and peat moss.

Set trees one to two inches deeper than they stood in the nursery; set shrubs at about the same depth they stood in the nursery, or slightly deeper. Spread roots out naturally and work soil over and around them. Keep putting in good dirt until the hole is nearly full, tramping the dirt firmly about the roots.

If the ground is dry, pour in a bucket of water. Finally fill up the hole with loose dirt, which should not be tramped.

At planting time all trees and plants must be pruned if best results are to be expected the first year. With shade trees having a heavy top, at least one-third of the [illegible] should be removed. Prune to avoid crowding branches. Cut out some of the small branches, shorten back the [illegible] branches, but do not [illegible] the leader or main stem. Try to get a well developed head, strong leader and branches at wide, not close angles. Cut off all broken roots.

Cut back shrubs one-third to one-half. If shrubs are heavily branched, cut out a few whole branches at the base.

Heeling-in Trees and Shrubs

In case of late shipment of plants, or in case the ground is in such condition that planting must be postponed until spring, the plants can be kept over very well by temporary planting or "heeling-in."

Select a well drained location. Dig a trench deep and wide enough to hold the roots without crowding. Throw the dirt from the trench so as to form a bank. Unpack the plants and place the roots in the bottom of the rench with the topes leaning against the bank.

Keep the varieties separate and spread out the plants so the dirt can be filled in about the roots. Fine moist soil should be packed rather firmly about the roots to exclude air. Then heap more soil on the roots and a third or more of the tons. Some growers completely cover the trees. This prevents danger of injury from rabbits and mice and drying out of the tops if the weather turns warm. All packing material and grass that might harbor mice should be removed. If the ground is too dry, moisten the dirt about the roots.

HOW TO PREVENT WINTER DAMAGE BY ANIMALS

The bark of apple trees of all species, both wild and cultivated, as well as the bark of a number of ornamental shrubs, is a favorite food of mice and rabbits. There are a number of ways to ward off these pests.

To prevent mice and rats from girdling trees in winter, see that no tall grass, corn husks or dry materials gather about the trees in the orchard in fall. Tie thin strips of wood, such as lath or shingles, about the tree. Common window screen placed about the tree is also safe and effective, but be sure to remove it in spring as it is likely to attract borers. A collar of tar paper about three feet high, or a coating of coal-tar-cresote mixture on the bark, is [illegible] preventive for both mice and rabbits. Remove the tar paper when the warm weather comes.

THIS KEEPS OFF RABBITS

An effective wash to keep rabbits from girdling trees is made as follows: Use one peck lime and slack in soft water to make a wash the consistency of house paint. Add, when hot, one-half gallon crude carbolic acid, one-half gallon gas tar, and four pounds sulphur. Stir well and then apply to trees.

Spring Goes Dry

The water problem becomes more and more serious here. The spring owned by the railroad company went dry this past week. The oldest resident here cannot recall this ever happening before. This leaves only the old well at the corner which now contains about two feet of water to supply nineteen families and the school with drinking water, as all other water is drawn from the river.

The autumn foliage is at the height of its beauty.

NEW ALUMINUM REMOVER TO AID ZINC DIE CASTING

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — (P) — Numerous articles like handles of automobile doors, made of zinc die casting, are likely to be manufactured easier through a chemical discovery at the University of Michigan.

The process removes aluminum from metals where it exists in only small quantities, but nevertheless is an obstacle in die casting.

The method is reported to the American Chemical society by Dr. H. H. Willard and N. K. Tang.

SURGEONS TO STUDY 'EVERYDAY' WOUNDS

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Common wounds, so common they cause loss of time to 3,250,000 workers in America, are to be an important consideration when the American College of Surgeons meets here October 13 to 17.

Like the "common cold" common injuries have been somewhat neglected by medical science, according to Dr. Franklin H. Martin, director general of the college, and their care has not kept pace with other developments of surgery.

Statisticians of the college estimate the compensation cost of these wounds at $104,000,000 yearly.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Trading in vegetables which were of leading importance on farmer's markets last month, has decreased now to such an extent that these same items have almost disappeared and fall and winter crops now hold the center of interest. Sweet corn is entirely gone from markets, lima and snap beans have decreased to such low levels of supply that shipped in stock is making up a larger share on sale and tomatoes have dwindled to small amounts. The market for the few of the products which are of good to high grade is firm and higher prices are being paid for them. Both lima and snap beans were being bid up to higher price levels in most cities. Tomatoes when high grade were in active demand and fancy shipped in stock was selling at premium prices.

The potato market was quiet, traders evidently being depressed to some extent by the latest crop estimate which places the total crop for the United States at 13 million bushels more for the first of October than was predicted a month earlier. Sellers on some markets were not quite as firm in the price demands.

Eggs were firm for large, high grade offerings. Top quotations for New York on these grades were holding at levels 3c to 4c which was encouraging sellers here to hold firm in their price demands. Under grade and under size eggs were not sharing in the firmness. Live poultry was quiet.

The much desired rain started about 12 a. m. Wednesday, Oct. 15. Before dawn enough had fallen to eliminate the immediate danger from forest fires.

Brilliant Foliage

The foliage here has been about the most lovely ever remembered by those who have enjoyed it for many seasons. The severe drought seemed to make the colors more brilliant than usual. The second week of October, and including Columbus day, brought the height of glorious autumn scenery. October 12 and 13, the dry leaves, still bearing their lovely tints were dropping continually during the hot, still days.

The week-end and holiday brought cottagers and other friends to town for a bit more of enjoyment before the mild days are over. Fred W. Moore and family of Worcester, Dr. and Mrs. S. M. Lindsay, New York, Prof. F. Alexander Magoun and family of Watertown, Mass., and cottagers from Southbridge, were among those who spent the week-end here.

The schools were closed one day for the Stafford fair. Red school on Tuesday and Rock Meadow school, Wednesday.

A New Start

I will start anew this morning with a higher, fairer creed;
I will cease to stand complaining of my ruthless neighbor's greed;
I will cease to sit repining while my duty's call is clear;
I will waste no moment whining, and my heart shall know no fear.

I will look sometimes about me for the things that merit praise;
I will search for hidden beauties that elude the grumbler's gaze;
I will try to find contentment in the paths that I must tread;
I will cease to have resentment when another moves ahead.

I will not be swayed by envy when my rival's strength is shown;
I will not deny his merit, but I'll strive to prove my own;
I will try to see the beauty spread before me, rain or shine;
I will cease to preach your duty and be more concerned with mine.

POETRY

A September Violet

For days the peaks were hoods of cloud
The slopes were veiled in chilly rain:
We said: It is the summer's shroud,
And with the brooks we moaned aloud
Will sunshine never come again?

At last the west wind brought us one
Serene, warm, cloudless crystal day,
As though September, having blown
A blast of tempest, now had thrown
A gauntlet to the favored May.

Backward to spring our fancies flew,
And careless of the course of time,
The bloomy days began anew,
Then, as a happy dream comes true,
Or, as a poet finds his rhyme—

Half wondered, at half unbelieved—
I found thee, friendliest of the flowers,
Then summer's joys came back, green-leaved,
And its doomed dead, awhile reprieved,
First learned how truly they were ours.

Dear violet! Did the autumn bring
The vernal dreams, till thou, like me,
Didst climb to thy imagining?
Or was it that the thoughtful spring
Did come again in search of thee?

—Robert Underwood Johnson.

A family moved from the city to the suburbs, and were told they ought to get a watchdog to guard the premises at night. So they bought the largest dog that was for sale in the kennels of a near-by dealer.

Shortly afterward the house was entered by burglars, who made a good haul while the dog slept. The householder went to the dealer and told him about it.

"Well, what you need now," said the dealer, "is a little dog to wake up the big dog!"—Tid-Bits.

NEW GOITRE REMEDY SEEN IN IODINE OF LIMESTONE

LOUISVILLE — (AP) — Limestone, once advertised by Kentucky distillers as producing water peculiarly good for making whiskey, now promises to join the anti-goitre campaign.

This rock contains small quantities of iodine, the goitre remedy, says a report of the Kentucky agricultural experiment station, and is useful in making fertilizers.

"When these fertilizers are used in growing important farm crops," says the report, "the iodine content of the latter is apparently enriched and foods better suited for nourishment of animals are thus produced."

ORDERLY DECLINE IN STOCK PRICES AS BOLDNESS OF SHORTS DWINDLES

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—This was a day of reactions in the stock and commodity markets. Shares prices sagged almost steadily in the dullest trading since Sept. 18, closing 1 to 4 points lower in a 1,554,710 share turnover. Wheat and corn lost 1 to 2 cents and cotton was off 60 to 90 cents a bale.

The lethargic decline in stocks caused favorable comment in quarters which are hoping that the market will get plenty of time for stabilization. The shorts have lost some of their boldness in the face of the tightest loaning rates in years, regardless of whether those rates are the result of an organized effort to prevent indiscriminate short sales that might tend toward demoralization. On the other hand, support from covering was not so noticeable today and it was apparent that the larger bear operators were willing to wait for definite signs of strength.

For two successive days the market had advanced, which was something of an accomplishment, and profit taking, therefore, was regarded as natural, although some brokerage circles had expressed a belief that the rally could carry further. Nevertheless, the realizing failed to make a very deep dent on many of the favorite shares, for good support was in evidence at the lowest levels. U. S. Steel rallied promptly on its frequent excursions below 150 and closed a fraction above that quotation, off 2 points net. General Electric met large offerings and lost 3 points, while Westinghouse, whose earnings statement is expected soon, dropped more than 4 before firming slightly. The net loss was 3 3-4.

Bonds appeared stronger. Call money officially held at 2 per cent but was available at 1 3-4. A lively demand for commercial paper failed to affect rates.

The $27,000,000 increase in outstanding bankers' acceptances last month in comparison with August, was encouraging at first glance, since it was in line with seasonal trends, but it developed that the gain was due chiefly to credits of the grain stabilization corporation of wheat held in warehouses. Export and import credits declined.

Shipment of $5,000,000 in Argentine gold to New York was seen as a move to support the peso. It was reported that the republic might send in considerably more, although such a movement would not be interpreted as forecasting the re-opening of the Argentine conversion office.

The $153,000,000 decline in federal reserve brokers' loans, about in line with expectations when allowance was made for the Monday holiday, brought the decrease for the past three weeks to $470,000,000 and carried the total down to $2,752,000,000, the lowest since early 1927. The deflation from the peak on Oct. 2, 1929, slightly exceeds four billions.

A few stocks, mostly those affected by special situations, showed independent strength, especially Gillette, which rallied more than 7 points on announcement of the Autostrop merger plans. The closing price was 5 net higher. Consolidated Film ran up a couple of points, stimulated by news that an important contract had been closed. Warner Brothers Pictures gained more than 3 and Paramount and Loew's held firm. Fox Film sagged. Southern Railway rallied 3 on covering prompted by assurances that the dividend would be maintained.

On the downside, there were losses of between 2 and 3 in American Telephone, American Can, Sears Roebuck, New York Central and Consolidated Gas, Bethlehem Steel, Standard of New Jersey, Baltimore & Ohio, Woolworth and Vanadium dipped about a point, Colorado Fuel & Iron broke to a new low on publication of a bearish earnings forecast. Eastman Kodak also lost 4. General Motors was freely sold but halved its extreme decline of 1 point.

Losses in wheat amounted to a cent and a half. Canadian pool selling and large western and Argentine exports were factors in the market. Corn dropped 2c on increased country offerings and liquidation.

Foreign exchanges were firm to strong, featured by advances in sterling and the French franc. The Spanish peseta also improved.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Big shipments of wheat from Russia, the largest yet announced this season, led to sudden downturns in wheat values today, despite an earlier upward trend. Russian wheat exports for the week were 4,616,000 bushels and there were advices today that 6,500,000 bushels of Russian wheat were now afloat unsold, with 37,000,000 bushels more wheat ready to clear from Russia in the next seven weeks. Sharp breaks in corn prices today resulted largely from undoing of spread trades between corn and wheat, with consequent heavy selling of corn future deliveries.

Closing quotations on wheat were weak, 1 1-8a1 7-8c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 7-8a2 3-8c down, oats 1-4a5-8c off, and provisions varying from 30c decline to a rise of 37c.

For the most part, provisions were lower with grain and hogs, notwithstanding decreased stocks of lard.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Futures closed barely steady, 12 to 18 points lower; spot quiet; middling 10.20.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The more active curb shares reacted moderately in today's stock market, but stock was not pressed for sale on declines.

The action of the list suggested that much of the liquidation represented profit taking by traders who bought at the recent low levels. Trading continued to slacken, and few losses exceeded 2 points. The day's sales aggregated 515,100 shares.

Electric Bond & Share and American Gas, lost more than 2 points each, and United Light & Power, 1 point. Brazilian Traction, however, closed fractionally higher, as traders appeared to feel that the disturbances in Brazil had been fully discounted by the protracted decline of the stock. American Cities A rallied 2 points.

In the oils, Standard of Ohio dropped 3 1-2 points to a new low at 61, following its announcement of a cut in gasoline prices. Humble and Vacuum sagged about a point to new lows, and Gulf dropped nearly 3. Cities Service eased fractionally. Mining issues were mostly quiet, although Newmont sagged a point to another new low.

In the investment trusts, report of reorganization brought rallies of a point in Prince & Whitely Trading common, and 2 in the preferred. Ungerleider Financial rose 3 points. The Goldman Sachs, Blue Ridge and Shenandoah group was steady to firm. Selected Industries touched 3 1-8, a new minimum.

Industrials and specialties were quiet and irregular. Aluminum Co dropped 7 1-2 to a new bottom at 172. Deere sagged a point. Crocker Wheeler, National Aviation and Insurance Co. of North America, gained about a point. Ford, Ltd., closed up 1-4.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Foreign bonds advanced on a broad front today as bargain hunters attracted by the greatly reduced prices established in the recent selling wave bid briskly for a wide list of South American and other foreign obligations. There were many gains ranging from 2 to 5 points.

In addition to the rally in the foreign section, prices in the domestic group moved a shade higher, and a better inquiry for some high grade railroad and utility liens developed. U. S. governments also were firmer, featured by the rise of Liberty 3 1-2s to a new year's high at 101.8. The record high of this tax exempt issue is 103 1, established on Oct. 10, 1922.

As on previous days of the advance, the advance in foreign bonds centered in the Latin-American group. A favorable factor was the announcement by the state department that the government would not interfere with purchase of supplies in this country by Brazil to quell the revolt.

Turnover was very moderate but some of the gains were as spectacular as the recent drops. Antioquia 7s B climbed 12 points and the 7s A, 10, and Brazilian Central Railway 7s regained 10 3-8 points.

Other prominent gains included Argentine 5 1-2s, up 2 7-8; Argentine 6s of September, 1960, 2 5-8; Brazil 8s, 2; Brazil 6 1-2s, 1 1-2; Bolivia 7s, 3 7-8; Colombia Mortgage Bank 7s of 1946, 4 3-4; Cundinamarca 6 1-2s, 5; Chile Mortgage Bank 6s, 6 3-8; Minas Geraes 6 1-2s, 3; Peru first and second 6s, 2; Rio De Janeiro 6 1-2s, 3 7-8; Rio Grande Do Sul 6s, 5 3-4; Sao Paulo 7s of 1956, 6, and Uruguay 8s, 2.

The European list was much improved. Polish bonds recovered sharply from the year's lows. The 8s were up 4 and the 7s and 6s, 1 to 2. British 5s, which are thinly traded, rose 2 1-4, and good gains were made by Berlin City and Electric Co. issues, Denmark 5 1-2s, Hungarian Municipal 7s, Karl- Servian 8s and 7s. German 7s gained 1-2 but the International 5 1-2s, which have moved uncertainly, sagged 3-4.

The upward trend evidenced in recent sessions was maintained by rails on narrow advances. Price improvement was more marked in the utility group. American Water Works 5s, Brooklyn Union Gas 5s, Detroit Edison 6s and 5s, Duquesne Light 4 1-2s, New England Telephone 4 1-2s, Pacific Gas & Electric 5s, gaining 1-2 point or more. International Telephone debenture 4 1-2s rebounded 1 1-2 and other bonds of the company showed small advances. Utilities Power & Light 5 1-2s soared more than 2.

An 8-point advance by Warner Brothers convertible 6s was the feature of stock privilege issues. The bond closed at 82 compared with the year's low recently established of 68. American International 5 1-2s were up more than a point.

Goodyear 5s slumped to a new year's low at 88 on a 2-point loss. Manati Sugar 7 1-2s rose 7 points to 35, coincident with the better tone of the commodity market.

Found Guilty

Six months in prison is the sentence given ex-Congressman Manuel T. Herrick of Oklahoma, found guilty of violating the dry law at Baltimore. When arrested, while stoking a still, he said he was acting as an informer for the prohibition department, but bureau officials did not confirm this.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Gold imports to the port of New York during the week ended Oct. 15, totaled $662,000, the Federal Reserve bank of New York announced today. The shipments consisted of $575,000 from Argentina and $87,000 chiefly from other Latin-American countries. There were no exports and gold earmarked for foreign account increased $4,000,000.

H. T. Parson, president of F. W. Woolworth Co., said that stocks of merchandise, whether in the hands of manufacturers or on the shelves of retailers, are so low that in some items there exists almost a scarcity, with the result that it is difficult to buy goods in sizeable amounts for immediate delivery. He was of the opinion that while the absence of large inventories tends to keep down bank loans on merchandise and therefore creates a healthy credit situation, it may operate to retard trade because of the delay experienced in filling orders for prompt shipments. He said the Woolworth stores have been building up their inventories for several months to supply the fall trade, which always is the best of the year.

Directors of Prudential Investors, Inc., have declared operative the plan under which stockholders were offered the privilege of exchanging shares of common stock for a maximum number of 50,000 shares of $6 cumulative preferred stock on the basis of 4 1-2 common shares for one share of preferred. The time limit fixed for deposit of common stock was Oct. 15, and it was stated there will be no extension of time under the offer.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—Treasury receipts for October 14 were $2,965,552.07; expenditures $6,615,772.26; balance $252,449,210.21.

SULPHUR AND FATTY OILS MAKE 'RUBBER SUBSTITUTE

MADISON, Wis.—(AP)—A "rubber substitute" which does not replace rubber but is said to extend its uses is described to the American Chemical society by Ellery H. Harvey and H. A. Schuette of the University of Wisconsin.

It is made by combining a form of sulphur with fatty oils, and was discovered 80 years ago by a French chemist who accidentally mixed the sulphur with olive oil.

Foe of Pinchot

The gubernatorial election in Pennsylvania is complicated by the desertion of old guard Republicans from the support of Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate, in favor of John M. Hemphill, above, Democratic-Liberal party candidate.

STATE CONFERENCE OF RED CROSS CHAPTERS HELD AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 16—Two hundred and fifty members of the Red Cross, representing 24 chapters throughout the state, held their annual conference here today at the Hotel Mohican. The delegates represented chapters in New London, Bridgeport, Bristol, Danbury, Hartford, Jewett City, Meriden, Middletown, Naugatuck, New Britain, New Haven, Norwich, Norwalk, Putnam, Rockville, Southington, Stafford, Stamford, Stratford, Torrington, Wallingford, Waterbury, Westport and Winsted. The session was opened at 10 o'clock with Robert L. Smith of this city, presiding. The invocation was by Rev. Edward M. Chapman. Following the address of welcome by Chairman Smith, City Manager William A. Holt addressed the assemblage, bidding them welcome to the city. Walter L. Davidson, assistant manager of the eastern area of the Red Cross, gave an interesting address on the importance of the Red Cross in the home and the community, referring to the signal work done by that body, especially whenever any calamity occurrs.

Miss Mabel T. Boardman, director of volunteer service at national headquarters, Washington, D. C., called attention to the fact that during the war there were 20,000,000 active Red Cross workers, as compared with 4,000,000 at present. Miss Boardman said that there was as much need for the services of the volunteer worker now as during the war, especially so when the new veterans' hospital is opened in Hartford next year.

Madeline Harvey gave an interesting address, her subject being "Public Health Nursing," and referred to the importance of this branch of service being performed.

Miss Edith M. Peckham, assistant to the national director of the Junior Red Cross, urged greater interest in the work of this branch and support it to the fullest extent. Demonstrations of first aid in life saving were given by members of the submarine base and Fire Chief Thomas Shipman.

Alleges Evasion

Rose Trioni, 637 Bank street, made complaint to the police this evening that the driver of an automobile was guilty of evasion of responsibility. She said that after the automobile had collided with the car she was driving, the auto was speeded away without the driver attempting to ascertain the extent of the damage, which was not great. The woman driver supplied the police with the number on the colliding auto and information received from the state motor vehicle department was that the owner of the car sought was Frank E. Cheslock, U. S. coast guard. Cheslock is one of the coast guardsmen engaged in patrol duty on the streets of this city.

RESTAURANT CHIMNEY CAUSE OF $20,000 FIRE

The two and a half story wooden building, 151-159 Main street, owned by Mrs. Sarah Moutran and occupied on the ground floor by Walter's restaurant, Walter Mosie proprietor, also a meat and grocery store conducted by Peter Vong and on the second floor as a lodging house, was threatened with destruction by fire early today. The restaurant was completely gutted and the upper part of the structure was so badly damaged that loss of $20,000 is estimated. During the fire several lodgers escaped in scanty attire and two firemen were injured, though not seriously.

Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran and Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty were in conversation at the corner of Main and Federal streets at 3 o'clock when they observed a vivid glare in the window of the restaurant, which had been closed since midnight. The officers hurried to the building and found the entire interior of the restaurant a mass of flames. One officer went to the corner of Federal street and sent in an alarm from Box 321, while the other smashed in the door leading to the lodging house and aroused the sleepers. Within a few minutes after sending in the alarm, Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and four pieces of apparatus responded and the companies were joined by Chief Thomas Shipman. Three lines of hose were stretched into the building so intense were the flames, the blaze having made its way through partitions and concealed openings between the walls and floors. The fire gained rapidly and within a short time the flames were leaping through the roof. However, with the three streams directed effectively on the flames they were subdued, but not until the department had been given an hour and a quarter of the hardest kind of work. The fire originated from an overheated chimney in the kitchen of the restaurant.

During the task of conquering the flames Walter Auwood, member of Northwest Hose company, sustained painful laceration of the foot when he was using an axe. He was taken to Lawrence Memorial hospital where an x-ray picture was taken to determine whether the bone had also been injured. George Harran, of Konomoc Ladder company sustained painful burns. The fireman was ripping off tar paper on the roof and the star surface, which had been melted by the intense heat, flowed over the fireman's arms and shoulders. His burns were dressed at fire headquarters.

The Newport Contracting and Engineering Company, Inc., of Lee Hall, Va., has been awarded the contract to rebuild five finger piers at the submarine base. The contract price is $114,496.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Sol Ockooneff, 91 Jefferson avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beatrice Ockooneff, to Benjamin Pelenberg, of New York.

If friends do not go to King's assistance he will remain in jail about three months, for today King did not have money to pay the penalty. King was arrested Aug. 5 ast, charged with indecent assault, his accusers being youths of about eight. When King was penalized he assured the court that he would pay if he was given an opportunity to do so. As he failed to do that which he promised and after two months had elapsed, the arrest of King was ordered by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer. The young man was taken into custody last night by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey.

She was taken in charge by Officer Kenney and will be sent back to the Canadian city where she formerly resided.

Taken Back to Reform School

Piscatella violated his parole in the commission of the numerous robberies. The other boys will be in the juvenile court tomorrow or Saturday. William Mason, Shaw street youth, who was arrested last Monday night by Patrolman Dennis Murphy charged with trespass, when the former was found in the rear of the Jefferson avenue building, and who was suspected of being implicated in the thefts, will not be prosecuted for when his case is presented on the 29th inst., a nolle will be recommended. Since Mason's arrest it has been ascertained that he went to the rear of the building seeking an acquaintance, who had run away from home and had been sleeping there.

Bruhns for Patrolman

Today Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney sent a communication to City Manager William A. Holt recommending that Supernumerary Officer George Bruhns be appointed a regular patrolman, to succeed Patrolman Harry Watterson. Watterson tendered his resignation last night in the face of charges made against him and was to have been given a hearing this week. Bruhns, who has been performing supernumerary duty nearly two years was examined by City Physician George P. Cheney for the purpose of determining his physical fitness and the examination revealed that Bruhns was qualified physically to perform the work of a patrolman. Watterson was suspended Tuesday night by Lieut. James Sullivan when found intoxicated in a building on his beat.

A three-cornered automobile crash occurred on the Boston post road in Waterford last night, and two arrests were made by state police officers, who investigated the accident. George B. Thompson, State street, this city, was charged with driving with improper lights and William L. Harvey, Sylvester, Ga., was charged with failing to grant right of way. Harold E. Pendleton, Waterford was the driver of the third auto. All three cars were traveling in the same direction, headed westward. At the intersection of the Oswegatchie road, Thompson gave a signal that he intended to drive to the latter highway and as he slowed down, the car driven by Pendleton which was following closely, also slowed down. About that time the auto of Harvey crashed against Pendleton's machine and the latter car was forced against Thompson's car. Thompson and Harvey were ordered to present themselves in the Waterford town court Monday afternoon next.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lincoln Stores, Inc.

Once again the Norwich Lincoln Store celebrates an anniversary, this time it's seventh, and extends to the shopping public of Norwich and the surrounding trading area a cordial invitation to be its guests at a "Big Anniversary Sale." This sale is fittingly designed to commemorate the passing of another year in the progress of this steady-growing business.

Saturday, October 18th, is the day. Unusual specials will be offered to celebrate this occasion, at a price that expresses the Lincoln Stores appreciation of the patronage of the people of Norwich and the surrounding trading area during the past year.

Six years ago the organization which is now the Lincoln Stores opened its doors for business in Quincy, Mass.

JAMES V. CARROLL
Manager of Local Store

The store was small, the fixtures were old-fashioned and makeshift. But the merchandising values and the enthusiasm of the organization were tremendous.

The success of the store was instantaneous and gratifying. The fundamental policy of the Lincoln Stores of giving the greatest possible value at low prices won an instant response. Since then the business has experienced a steady growth. New stores have been added and old stores remodeled. Today the Lincoln Stores stand as an example of an efficient up-to-the-minute merchandising organization. This speedy growth has been due in a large measure to the enthusiastic support of the people in Norwich and surroundings. Acknowledgment of this public cooperation is being expressed by this Anniversary Sale.

This modern department store specializes in selling medium-priced merchandise. Efficient store operation and expert buying are the keynotes of the company's methods.

Each store crew is well trained in store management. Each buyer is an expert in his field. The fundamental merchandising policy of the store is to give the customer the greatest possible value.

The principal lines of merchandise carried by the Lincoln Stores are domestics, piece goods, house furnishings, curtains, hosiery, underwear, women's ready-to-wear, men's and boy's furnishings, gloves, shoes, millinery, infant's wear, etc.

There is no secret to the low prices offered by the Lincoln Stores. Large volume buying for a group of stores assures every advantage of low prices. Expert buyers in constant touch with national markets assure style and quality. Efficiency of store operation and low overhead result in a minimum cost of doing business. The service of the Lincoln Store in Norwich is simple and direct with no expensive "frills" to increase the cost. The result is savings. These savings are passed along to the customer.

These factors unite in enabling the Lincoln Store to establish and maintain their slogan "Save When You Spend."

Plans for this great event were laid early in the spring. Merchandise has been sought in all the markets of the country. Every department in the store has its quota of Anniversary Sale specials. Practically every seasonable need of man, woman, and child as well as household requirements are on hand at worthwhile savings. The store is teeming with bargains waiting for patrons to come and get them.

The sale will last for one week only. Infinite pains have been taken in the laying out and display of merchandise to facilitate easy selection and quick service. Scores of extra salespeople and floor superintendents have been employed to insure prompt service. All merchandise is plainly priced to avoid confusion. Stocks are piled out openly on counters and tables to permit individual inspection of each article.

Saturday, October 18th, at 9.00 A. M. is the time the big event starts.

Palace Theatre.

"The Squealer" with Jack Holt and a fine cast and "Maybe It's Love" with Joe E. Brown and a large supporting case are billed together in the double feature bill which will be shown at the Palace theatre for the last times today and tomorrow.

"The Squealer" is the story of a man with a great future who foolishly becomes involved in a series of crimes with bootleggers who in the end try to get him. His wife, knowing that he is guilty and fearing that he will suffer at the hands of his gang, brings about his imprisonment to protect him.

This is a thrilling melodrama of New York night life and shows a phase which has not been portrayed in the motion pictures before. Jack Holt, assisted by Dorothy Revier, Matt Moore and Zasu Pitts gives one of the best performances of his career.

Joe E. Brown as a campus cut-up is a perfect scream in his latest production "Maybe It's Love," which is a comedy that is all about college, football, love and has plenty of peppy catchy songs and tunes.

Joan Bennett makes a charming campus belle and Laura Lee as Joe's sweetheart, is just as silly as he.

On Sunday the Palace will present the comedy masterpiece, "Up the River," which has a superlatively fine cast including Spencer Tracy, Warren Hymer, Claire Luce, Humphrey Bogart, William Collier, Sr., and Joan (Cherie) Lawes, little daughter of the famous warden of Sing Sing. This is magnificent entertainment and no mistakes.

BANKRUPTCY REFEREE RECEIVES INQUIRY BLANKS

The nation-wide agitation for a revision of the bankruptcy laws, to end alleged flagrant evils for which the present provisions are said to be inadequate, has resulted in an intensive program of research into the causes, conduct and effects of bankruptcy actions by the office of the attorney-general in Washington. Referee in Bankruptcy Henry L. McGuire of New London received, on Monday, a quantity of forms and charts relative to the study with instructions immediately to begin the work of tabulation of all details relative to particular cases from the moment petitions are filed to continue until the actions are closed.

The forms sent to referees in bankruptcy throughout the country have anticipated all factors entering into the administration of estates, with a particular request for the opinions and recommendations of the referee and for other data not on record. Significant are the questions relative to the occupation and affiliations of persons in any way connected with the particular cases.

Each case before the referee is to be charted in minute detail, whether pending or not, up to Dec. 15, when the analysis will have been completed. The purpose of the charts, according to Referee Berman, is to give the department of justice a detailed picture of bankruptcy administration on a scale sufficient to be significant. While data will be obtained from the clerks of the courts and other sources, it is felt that, without an itemized analysis of cases by the referees themselves, no permanently sound conclusions can be drawn as to the problems and difficulties of bankruptcy administration.

The questions asked on the reports are particularly pertinent regarding trusteeship action. The names of each proxy holder or attorney voting are requested, together with the name of each candidate voted for, occupation and affiliations of each candidate as well as of each proxy holder or attorney.

If the referee refused to confirm the trustee elected by creditors the government wants to know why, also the name and occupation of the person whom the referee appointed where elected trustees were not confirmed. The questionnaire also wants listed the facts if an election was closely contested and if creditors, proxy holders or attorneys effected any compromise or shifted their votes.

RESEARCH SHOWS BANDITS SHY FROM ARMORED CARS

NEW YORK—(AP)—The "armored car holdup" is as mythical as the legend of honor among thieves.

Cold research by competent agencies has research that rarely do robbers attack trucks which really are sheathed in steel plate and protected by armed guards.

Figures show that in the past six years there have been no holdups of armored cars operated by independent companies and that only four armored trucks belonging to national operators were held up.

These figures, supplied by the Merchants Trucking corporation of Indianapolis, are cited to counter-act the popular belief that robbers make a practice of successfully holding up armored trucks.

Often in the excitement that a particularly brazen piece of banditry entails, it is reported that the car held up was armored. Investigation shows it probably was protected by armed guards and in general appearance resembled an armored truck.

OHIO CAMP HONORS DOGS SACRIFICED IN RESEARCH

CHARDON, O.—(AP)—Thousands of dogs, sacrificed during a search for a cure of diabetes, have a memorial here in what is believed to be the world's only organized camp for diabetic children.

The camp was built by Dr. Henry John of Cleveland, and the memorial is a large gilded statue of a dog mounted atop one of the buildings.

A hundred children now are being cared for in the camp. They receive insulin treatments under expert supervision, together with a prescribed diet.

Two weeks after entering the camp noticeable improvements are shown, it is claimed.

"Before the discovery of insulin," Dr. John said, "only one of every 100 diabetic victims lived. Now the proportion is just reversed."

Dr. John established the camp, he said, because of a desire to "do something for humanity." Mothers of the children are taught what must be done when a child is returned home from the camp.

Referring to the memorial to the dogs, Dr. John said he wanted the children "to know and appreciate the dog's part in bringing relief to them."

NO CHANGE IN SNAILS SINCE ANCIENT TIMES

URBANA, Ill.—(AP)—The fashionable Parisian of today eats the same species of snails that men ate 40,000 years ago, says Dr. Frank C. Baker, curator of the museum of natural history at the University of Illinois.

He has completed a comparison of 5,000 living specimens of snails sent from Algiers with fossilized snails from the same place—and found them the same.

Defies Fascists

Dr. Paul Loebe, president of the German reichstag and a Social Democrat, has warned Germany that the "Social Democrats will oppose the Fascists with iron will, and if necessary with workmen's fists." With 107 Fascists and 77 Communists in the new reichstag, the session opened turbulently.

Co-ed Sponsors Band

Campus celebrations at the University of Kentucky wouldn't be complete without Miss Virginia Dougherty, Lexington co-ed, for she is sponsor of the school band. She attended the University of Wyoming until her father, Lt. Col. Clarence Dougherty, was transferred to Lexington.

Can't PLAY
Can't REST
—child needs Castoria

WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. Its gentle action will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. In more liberal doses it will effectively help to regulate sluggish bowels in an older child.

All druggists have Castoria; it's genuine if you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature and this name-plate:

Mention was made of the thank offering service to be held in November in the vestry, after which there will be a social hour. The afternoon program was made up largely of excerpts from magazine articles, also various Scripture references pertaining to the main theme. After the hymn, Faith of Our Fathers, the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, offered prayer, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Readings by members of the society: Why the Salvation Army is for Prohibition, by Commander Evangeline Booth, Mrs. George Manning; Sizes Up Prohibition, by Lieutenant Dan Beard, Mrs. Albert G. Of special interest to the meeting was the address given in the afternoon by Miss Gertrude S. She made her address, wearing the sari, the dress of East Indian women, and the ushers who took up the collection also wore the sari.

Miss Avery spoke of the remarkable contrasts in India in climate, in the poverty and richness of the different castes, the highly cultured and the densely ignorant and destitute, the palaces of the rich and the hovels of the poor, but declared that education is waking up in India in a way that will do away with much of the present conditions. She spoke of the passage of the anti-child marriage law and the part that Indian women are taking to ameliorate the condition of their sisters. Miss Avery referred to what is done by the infant welfare association, an adult education school for widows, a rescue home for girls, and social service work for the children of working women.

In conclusion she said that the spirit of Christ is permeating the heart of India with transforming power and effect.

Two Addresses Given

Her address followed two others in the afternoon session, the first by Rev. Dr. Theodore M. Shipherd of Park Congregational church who spoke upon "The Individual's Part in Worship,' and the second by Miss Amy Welcher of Hartford, president of the council, who spoke upon "The Woman and Her Church." She told her audience that the viewpoint of tomorrow is held by the mission board and she urged that each church consider what the situation of tomorrow will be and get the vision of the missionary church of tomorrow.

At the meeting the girls' choir of the United church rendered the anthem, Lift Up Your Heads O Ye Gates, singing with fine effect under the direction of Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard. Those in the choir were: Nancy Pitcher, Eleanor Sargeant, Betty Sargeant, Madeline Spaulding, Nelda MacDonald, Lois Allen, Mary Kerr, Lucille Hayden, Frances Hill, LaVere Tubbs, Jean Leslie, Ruth LaPierre, Elizabeth Whitehead, Lois Durie, Anita Armstrong, Marie Spicer, Helen Spicer, Louise Dziomba, Susanne Higgins, Elizabeth Cherry.

The closing prayer and benediction was by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott.

Morning Session

The morning session opened at 10:30 o'clock with the singing of the hymn Holy, Holy, Holy, Mrs. Miriam Bliss Beckwith of Franklin leading the singing. Miss Elizabeth Pullen offered the invocation.

Mrs. Allen Latham, vice chairman of the eastern district, gave a very interesting talk on "Our Work in the District." The talk was in the nature of reports of the various committees, operating under the jurisdiction of the council.

Mrs. Latham, reporting for the nominating committee, announced that the following officers had been installed: Chairman, Mrs. Carl H. Holdridge, of Ledyard; vice presidents, Mrs. John R. Pratt of Danielson and Mrs. Edward F. Smiley of Windham; chairman Young People's work, Mrs. John D. Waldron of Franklin; chairman of children's work, Mrs. George Boson of Colchester; chairman social relations, Miss Alice A. Bishop.

Home Service Report

Mrs. Latham also reported for the committees on devotions, speakers, projects, religious education, literature and home service. The report of the home service committee was as follows:

From April 1, 1929 to April 1, 1930, 30 societies in the district reported home service work done, which included the sending of dormitory and hospital supplies, boxes of second-hand clothing, etc., to both the home and foreign fields. These included 17 groups in the New London association, whose gifts were valued at $1,636.50, and 13 groups in the Windham association, who reported work valued at $1,050.06. Total valuation reported $2,686.56. Some societies who did some form of service work, gave no valuation, so the total amount was probably greater than this.

Windham association more than doubled the number of groups doing service work in 1929, over that of the previous year.

The Second church of New London reported the largest amount in gifts to home service, and the church in Windham was a close second there being only a difference of $2 between them.

The report of the secretary was read by Mrs. William G. Park after which Mrs. Lawrence Howard, member of the administrative committee of the A. M. A., was introduced. Mrs. Howard spoke on One Nation Indivisible. The speaker told of the work among the Negroes and Indians and spoke at length on the accomplishments of the two races and branded race prejudice as inhuman and intolerable. She made mention of the fact that the colored race has produced some of the most brilliant men in the country and that the race as a whole is being given more opportunities to educate themselves than in years past.

Dr. Valeria H. Parker, a nationally known figure, spoke on The Church and Social Hygiene and after her address there was a luncheon in the dining room. Those on the luncheon committee were:

Mrs. Charles T. Bard, chairman; Mrs. William P. Wade, Mrs. J. Herman Tubbs, Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Mrs. Marcus Leith, Mrs. Herbert W. Gallup, Mrs. Edward A. Rich and Mrs. William H. Dawley.

The flowers were in charge of Mrs. Frederick W. Lester and the waitresses were: Mrs. C. Eugene Saunders, head waitress; Mrs. J. H. Powers, Mrs. Carl Johnson, Miss Lucille Spalding, Miss Anita Armstrong, Mrs. A. P. Cherry, Miss Mary Hill, Mrs. Florence Ford, Miss Mildred Fox, Miss Emma Thompson, Mrs. Robert Dziomba, Mrs. Howard Peckham, Mrs. Harold Carpenter, Mrs. E. V. During the morning the ushers were Misses Jane McG. Aiken, Edith Young and Isabel Mitchell, and in the afternoon, Misses Emma Thompson, Mildred Fox, Mrs. Albert J. Sinay, Mrs. Richard P. Gregson, Mrs. Harold W. Carpenter and Mrs. Henry S. Lyon.

SAY BUSINESS IN STATE HAS TURNED CORNER

"Business in Connecticut seems to have turned the corner during September and is swinging upward," according to the monthly business survey issued by the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the leading local chambers of commerce. Substantial increases during September over August, 1930, in such business indicators as postoffice receipts, telephone installations, gas and electricity consumption and savings bank deposits are the grounds on which this statement is based.

Gas consumption increased from 2 per cent to 89 per cent, the latter gain being reported in Willimantic. The increase for the state as a whole was 18.3 per cent. Electricity consumption showed a like increase, the state-wide gain averaging 20.2 per cent. Middletown showed a gain of 104 per cent over August. WILL INSPECT AUTOMOBILES FOR TIRE CONDITIONS

The condition of tires on automobiles will be the special subject of attention in the quarterly inspection to be carried out shortly by the state automobile department, according to a radio talk given Thursday by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel. He wants to provide that no car shall be traveling on Connecticut highways with tires that are on the verge of blowing out.

"While there may be some question in Connecticut as to the authority which an officer has to control the tire equipment of a car," said Mr. Stoeckel, "yet there can be no reason why the motor vehicle commissioner, upon ascertaining that a car is unsafe for the highway, cannot revoke its registration. Such procedure will be followed during future inspections.

"Every person who has a car should examine it now with particular regard for tires. Those tires which are so worn that they may be expected to blow out should be discarded. If everyone would do this at once, many accidents would be avoided in the next two months, and a considerable amount of discipline, which otherwise will be necessary, would also be avoided."

NEW MOVEMENT BY HOOVER TO LESSEN UNEMPLOYMENT

Chief Executive Has Appointed a Committee Composed of Cabinet Members and Governor Meyer of the Federal Reserve Board to Alleviate Unemployment During the Winter Months—Will Enlist the Cooperation of the Governors and Mayors Throughout the Country—Aid of Business Leaders Will Be Sought

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Appointment of a cabinet committee to cope with unemployment during the winter was announced today by President Hoover.

The group, composed of Secretaries Lamont, Davis, Wilbur, Hurley, Hyde and Mellon, and Governor Meyer of the federal reserve board, is to formulate and submit to Mr. Hoover plans for continuing and strengthening organization of federal activities for increased employment.

The decision to name the committee came after a series of business conferences between the chief executive and financiers at which short selling on the stock market was one of the subjects discussed.

Last night Mr. Hoover conferred with Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier and chairman of the war industries board under President Wilson. Previously he had talked at the white house with the president and vice president of the New York stock exchange and other business leaders. He plans to talk with others to keep informed on the situation in general.

In naming the unemployment committee, the president said indications have been received from governors and mayors of a "strong feeling of local responsibility and determination to meet the situation."

"As a nation we must prevent hunger and cold to those of our people who are in honest difficulties," he added.

Three roads were charted for the government activities: First, cooperation with the governors and employment organizations; second, development of methods with the national industries; and third direct federal employment in public works. The text of Mr. Hoover's statement follows:

"I have today requested Secretaries Lamont, Davis, Wilbur, Hurley, Hyde, Mellon, and Governor Meyer of the federal reserve board, to formulate and submit to me plants continuing and strengthening the organization of federal activities for employment during the winter.

"There are three directions of organization in which the federal government activities can cooperate: First, cooperation with the governors and employment organizations of the state and local communities; second, development of methods with the national industries; and third, in direct federal employment in public works, etc."

"It will be remembered that ten months ago we set up such arrangements which have continued since that time, and which have contributed greatly to reduce unemployment. At that time the governors of many of the states established strong committees for action in relief and most of these organizations have shown a high record of real unemployment.

"The present conditions of organization vary greatly in different states. In the great majority of industrial states the governors have on their own initiative taken steps to reorganize or develop or further strengthen their organizations for the forthcoming winter. During the past few weeks I have been in communication with some of the governors in developments of methods by which the federal government can further supplement assistance to their organizations.

"The cabinet committee will further discuss these conditions with governors and state agencies and will again seek the cooperation of our business leaders and our national industries which we have had on so generous a scale during the past year. We shall also review the federal situation of public works and the situation in construction among the national industries together with other methods by which we can continue to be of assistance.

"There are no two states or municipalities where the problem is the same or where the methods for assistance are identical. With the survey of the methods in progress for the past ten months we should have valuable suggestive material and information for the winter.

"The initiative of the various governors and local authorities in preparation for the winter is well indicated by the action of the governor of Illinois, who recently organized a state committee; reorganized efforts with the mayor of Detroit; the committees created in New York; the extraordinarily effective organization in the state of Ohio, and at many other points throughout the country—all of them indicating a strong feeling of local responsibility and determination to meet the situation.

"As a nation we must prevent hunger and cold to those of our people who are in honest difficulties."

WOMAN KILLED BY GANGSTERS IN PEORIA, ILL.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 17.—(AP)— Mrs. Cora Garrison, 37, was killed and her husband, Clyde, a reputed gambling house operator, was wounded by an assailant who opened fire upon them tonight with a machine gun as they were entering their home from the garage.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrison had just returned from an automobile ride. As they left their garage a man stepped from the shadows and ordered them to raise their hands. Instead, Garrison jerked a revolver from his pocket.

As Garrison fired, a spurt from the machine gun struck Mrs. Garrison in the head. She fell, dying instantly. Garrison emptied his revolver at the machine gunner, then ran toward his house. Another volley of machine gun bullets struck his legs and he fell.

Garrison, reputedly the operator of a gambling house known as "The Windsor," could give no reason for the attack.

The assault was regarded by police as a continuance of efforts of Chicago gangsters to cut into the profits of Peoria gambling.

Police learned that Garrison had received several threatening calls.

50 GARMENT WORKERS INJURED BY EXPLOSION

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 17.—(AP) —Fifty garment workers were injured and property damaged $1,000,000 today in an explosion which police attributed to sabotage growing out of labor trouble.

The eleven-story garment capital building was shattered by a blast on the fifth floor, shortly after hundreds of men and women workers had entered the building.

Only two victims were seriously hurt. The others were sent home after emergency treatment. Forty-four persons were treated at the police receiving hospital for cuts from flying glass. Wounds of others, whose names were not taken, were dressed at the scene.

Fire flashed through the upper floors immediately after the blast, which also damaged a number of other buildings in the vicinity.

The building has been under police surveillance since a strike was declared by the International Garment Workers union seven weeks ago.

Activities of communist leaders in the strike were reported to the congressional committee investigating communism here last week. Police reports at that time said communists had fomented the strike and then gone to work as strike breakers. Workers and police have clashed several times in the past month.

Police chemists were seeking to analyze traces of a heavier than air gas found between the fifth and sixth floors. They said the gas was similar to gas left by TNT.

The blast occurred at 7:26 a. m., just as employes of the building's two score garment making firms filed in. Elevator shafts were twisted, inner concrete walls blasted and a sheet of flame engulfed the upper floors, flashing through broken windows.

Streets were showered with broken glass from buildings four blocks around, and other nearby manufacturing building suffered large losses in damaged stocks, fixtures and equipment.

Farmer Slain In Home In Charlestown, R. I.

Charles Burdick, 67, Former Member of R. I. House—Motive Was Robbery

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 17. — Charles Burdick, 67, farmer, residing on Shumunoc hill in Charlestown, R. I., and former member of the house of representative in Rhode Island general assembly, and well known Washington county farmer, was murdered at his home this afternoon between 5 and 8 o'clock with robbery as a motive. Indications point and examinations by authorities lead to the belief that the gang consisted of five men. The body was discovered shortly before 6 o'clock by a son-in-law, Charles Plympton, who first thought that Burdick had died from heart failure as the body was seen on the porch of his home. Closer examination showed blood about the head. Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called from Westerly in the absence of Dr. Francis Kenyon.

Trooper John D. Kennedy of the Hope Valley barracks of the Rhode Island state police accompanied Dr. Scanlon to the farm-house home and examination showed that a terrific struggle had ensued, beginning in the interior of the home. The indications were that Mr. Burdick had been operating the cream separator when surprised by his assailants, some of whom he possibly recognized. A revolver was used and two bullets broke his left arm, piercing the wrist and shattering the bone. Apparently he had followed the men and while he lay prone upon the porch the next bullet pierced the left side of his head near the ear, another bullet piercing his back and still another bullet under his left eye and in front of his left ear.

State Police Sergeant Ernest F. Stenhouse, on leave of absence, was summoned from a Westerly theatre and went to the Burdick home about two miles from Wood River junction to take charge of the investigation. Trooper Fraser Blythe of the Terryville barracks, and Florence Harvey and Donald E. Simmons of the Wickford barracks were soon on the scene. Their investigation began immediately and from questioning the family it was found that the daughter, Miss Ethel Burdick, a teacher in the Shumunoc schools, had accompanied her mother to Westerly on a shopping trip and on their return Miss Burdick went to the garage, her mother to the house, where she saw the body on the piazza.

Charles Burdick was born in Charletown, R. I., Aug. 10. 1863, the son of Charles and Sarah Tanner Burdick of Charlestown. Besides his wife, Gertrude, he is survived by two daughters, Ethel and Mrs. Charles Plympton. Mr. Burdick was a member of Charity lodge of Hope Valley and Franklin chapter, R. A. M. He was also a member of the Washington County Agricultural society and very well known throughout the county.

$2,200 Payroll Hold Up In Pawtucket, R.I.

Three Gunmen Held Up Two Men and a Woman Carrying Three Pay[illegible]

PAWTUCKET, [illegible]t. 17.—(AP) —Three gunme[illegible]fternoon held up two men [illegible]oman carrying three payro[illegible]escaping with one payroll [illegible]mately $2,200 after firing [illegible] one of their victims. Th[illegible] fled in an automobile which [illegible] abandoned one-half mile from th[illegible] scene of the hold-up when they leaped to another machine that was awaiting them. In the second car they quickly lost pursuers.

Jennie Mastreantonis, 13, and her sister, Steana, 12, in front of whose home the change of automobiles occurred, wrote down the number of the second machine "because we thought there was something wrong," they told the police.

With this information, police said, the second car was traced to the ownership of Henry Walsh of Providence (75 Abbot street), but he could not be found when Inspectors Brown and Wadsworth of the Pawtucket police, with Providence officers, went to the house. Mrs. Walsh said she knew nothing of her husband's whereabouts but, after questioning, she was taken to Pawtucket police headquarters for further examination.

The first machine used by the gunmen, police discovered, was stolen in Pawtucket several months ago. It bore Massachusetts registration plates which were stolen early today from an automobile owned by an Attleboro, Mass. man.

One witness to the hold-up told the police a woman was in the gunmen's car but police think the man was mistaken in the light of statements from other witnesses.

LEFT ARM OF GANGSTER DIAMOND IS PARALYZED

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.— (AP)— The gunmen who did their best to "rub out" Jack "Legs" Diamond in the Hotel Monticello last Sunday not only poured four bullets into his frail frame but gave him a terrific beating as well, doctors disclosed today.

X-ray photographs showed his collarbone was broken and three ribs crushed. Those familiar with gang methods said the assailants, after shooting the racketeer down, probably took plenty of time to "give him the boot." Physicians said they apparently aimed their kicks better than their bullets.

An examination today also disclosed that one of the bullets paralyzed Diamond's left arm, which probably will be useless the rest of his life.

N. E. W. S.

The earliest newspaper always printed a sign at the top of the first page of every issue depicting the points of the compass. The letter N for north was placed at the top. Below it appeared a "plus" sign. At the right, E for east. At the left, W, for west, while below the S indicated south. Later the "plus" sign was dropped and the letters " N. E. W. S. " appeared, implying that the information printed came from the four corners of the globe. And so we got the word "News," meaning the very latest information on any subject.

The advertising columns are "News" as much as the editorial columns. Advertising is packed with news. News of the latest styles, of a new food, of an improved household utensil, of an auto, of trips and so on. Advertising has become "news" and people depend on advertisements for accurate information about things they wish to know.

Reading advertising is a profitable habit. It saves time, it saves money. Read the advertising columns the same as you do the other columns of the newspaper, for the latest and best in merchandise. The advertising columns of The Bulletin keep you posted.

Asserting he is "sufficiently satisfied with the result" of the presentation of views, the republican nominee announces he will continue "the remainder of the campaign according to my own plans."

The exchange began a week ago when Dr. Cross gave to the newspapers an open letter to Lieut. Gov. Rogers, inviting him to debate questions which he specified. After several days, Lieut. Gov. Rogers, without having received a personal copy of the Cross letter, replied, and this was followed by a further answer from Dr. Cross, given out in two installments.

BRAZILIAN GOVT. CALLED UPON TO GIVE UP STRUGGLE

Revolutionaries Claim Military Victories in Four Directions From Rie De Janeiro—Calling Upon the Federal Government to Surrender, the Rebel Chieftain Declared That the Insurgents Would Not Be Responsible For the Fate of Those to Blame For the Useless Shedding of Blood

PORTO ALGERIE, RIO GRANDE DO SUL, Brazil, Oct. 17—(AP)—With Brazilian revolutionaries claiming military victories in four directions from the federal capital, the Rebel General Miguel Costa today called upon the Rio De Janeiro government to give up the struggle.

General Costa announced the capture of the city of Itarare, in the hotly contested Sao Paulo-Parana sector, and at the same time addressed a message to all Brazilians predicting victory and insisting on the resignation of the government.

(The capture of Itarare, important rail-head on the line leading to the city of Sao Paulo, is disrupted by federal sources. These say the revolutionaries were repulsed there and lost 300 prisoners.)

The rebel chieftain, asserting that the federals had been demoralized in half a dozen encounters, warned that if the government should insist upon opposing the revolution, the insurgents would not be responsible for the fate of those to blame for the useless shedding of blood. He proposed that the minister of war send observers to the main battle area in military planes, there to witness the resources of the rebels. Promising that they would not be harmed, he intimated that they thus would see the futility of opposition and would return to the capital advising surrender.

In addition to claiming the capture of Itarare, the revolutionists assert that they have made the following gains on three other fronts:

North—Army of more than 10,000 men has captured Aracaju, capital of the small state of Sergipe, with little resistance and with a welcome by the population. Now moving southward into Bahia preparatory for a drive upon Rio De Janeiro.

South—Federals repulsed in efforts to land troops along the Santa Catharina coast, where they desire to relieve a government garrison at Florianopolis—the only place they still hold in the for south—and to form for an attack on the rear of the rebels now trying for Sao Paulo. A contingent which attempted to land from the destroyer Parana at Imbituba, a small port south of Florianopolis, was beaten back by revolutionists under Colonel Luis Gomez.

Minas Geraes—Eleventh infantry regiment surrendered to attacking rebels, as did the 110th infantry, the latter giving up the important city of Sao Joao D'El-rey.

AMERICAN WARSHIP IS STEAMING TOWARD BRAZIL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—(AP)—For the first time in two years an American warship was steaming tonight toward a Latin American republic to protect, if necessary, American lives which might be endangered in revolutionary activities.

Ordered several days ago to Trinidad from Guatanamo, the cruiser Pensacola started down towards the Brazilian coast today on instructions from Washington. The cruiser's orders are to touch at three principal ports, Para, Pernambuco and Bahia. It was estimated she would reach Bahia Tuesday.

NO PEACE NEGOTIATIONS WITH REVOLUTIONARIES

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 17—(AP)— Federal sources declared tonight that the Brazilian government had not entered peace negotiations with the revolutionaries and would not consider any proposal for separation of the country.

It was added that neigther would consideration be given to any plan for changes in the legally elected government.

This presumably was in answer to General Miguel Costa, commander of the rebel vanguard on the Sao-Paulo-Parana front, who is reported to have advised the government to give up.

He urged negotiations beginning with a visit of government observers to the battle area for a view of the strong revolutionary resources, believing that they thus would see the uselessness of further opopsition.

The government today announced the capture of Itarare, an important railway center in Sao Paulo just above the Parana frontier. The rebels made a serious attack on the city yesterday, arriving in the combat zone by trains and continually bringing up reinforcements, but the federal artillery is said to have thrown them into panic and caused them to flee.

Government airplanes followed the trains as they hastily pulled back into Parana, bombing them and causing huge rebel losses. Three hundred prisoners were taken, 200 of them being brought from Sao Paulo this morning.

(The captuure of Itarare is also claimed in rebel quarters).

SOUTHERN BRAZILIANS AGAINST FEDERAL REGIME

PORTO ALGERE, RIO GRANDE DO SUL, Brazil, Oct. 17—(AP)—From Santa Anna Do Livramento to Porto Alegre—across the lower extremity of this great southern state which gave birth to the Brazilian revolution—all classes of southern Brazilians appear eager to join the fight against the federal regime of President Washington Luis.

Santa Anna, a city of the Uruguayan frontier, today has no young men. They departed for the front at the inception of the revolutionary movement.

Colonel Francisco Flores Da Cunha, the highest authority in the district declared he has decided not to accept new volunteers because the revolutionary army has more now than it needs to defeat the federal army.

Santa Anna, like most cities along the railroad line, maintains an air of peace and quiet, and the only thing worthy of notice is the lack of police, who are on duty at the front. Order is maintained for the time being by mounted volunteers.

But Santa Maria, another city of the railroad, is a notable exception to the general quiet prevailing. Here is the most important junction of the Rio Grande Do Sul railroad system where the lines from Uruguay, Santa Anna, Guaranhy, Rio Grande and Porto Alegre connect with the only line going to the state of Santa Catharina.

Santa Maria thus has become a sort of concentration camp, with all the hotel, streets, and parks being filled with constantly arriving soldiers who are awaiting their turn to go to the front.

PREDICT GERMAN GOVT. WILL WIN VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

BERLIN, Oct. 17—(AP)—The government gave its enemies in the reichstag today a chance to loose the floodgates of their pent up feelings and for many hours the fascists, notably laid down the policies they wanted the republic to pursue for the solution of its pressing economic problems.

A fascist spokesman read into the record of parliament the views and predictiono which Adolf Hitler uttered a few weeks ago during the course of a trial at Leipsic in which three reichswehr officers were accused, as fascists, of subversive propaganda in the army.

The speaker was Gregor Strasser, and he propounded to a reichstag already thrown into confusion by hecklers, the "legal" revolutionary threats with which Hitler had caused nervousness throughout Europe.

It was the first time since dissolution of the previous reichstag on July 18 that the opposition parties, particularly the left and right, had opportunity to air their grievances and make acmpaign speeches for the folks at home. Yet, when all was said and done, it became clear to discerning observers that the government had a good chance of defeating non-confidence motions which have been proposed from four quarters.

J. T. HEFLIN, JR., FINED; DRUNK AND DISORDERLY

ATLANTA, Oct. 17.—(AP)—J. Thomas Heflin, Jr., son of the senior United States senator from Alabama, was fined $10 and costs in police court here today on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

He was released from jail a few hours later when his fine was paid.

Heflin was arrested in a downtown hotel shortly after midnight and, failing to furnish bond, spent the rest of the night in jail. He was arraigned this morning and entered a plea of guilty.

Police did not send him to the city stockade, where prisoners are assigned to work, since they had been advised that relatives from Heflin's home town, Lafayette, Ala., were en route here to pay the fine and costs, amounting to $12.

His arrest was made on complaint of a hotel detective who told officers the young man was creating a disturbance and was under the influence of liquor. Heflin was taken to the police station and admitted his identity, after first giving the name of "J. Thomas" of Atlanta.

ANDEAN SLOPE OF CHILE SHAKEN BY EARTHQUAKE

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 17.—(AP)—A violent earthquake which apparently shook the entire Andean slope of Chile this morning caused at least one death and a score of injuries.

Apparently the temblor caused widespread damage to buildings, and it is believed that the casualty list may grow when all communities are heard from.

The one death reported was that of a woman, a hospital patient who left her bed in panic and died as she attempted to flee outdoors with others. Another woman at the same place suffered a broken leg, and six others were slightly injured.

Much material damage was wrought in the town of Llai Llai, hardly a house escaping some injury. The post office was nearly destroyed, large stores were damaged. A main street was closed by the falling of a masonry wall, and several houses were obliterated.

COURT FINDS STONE NOT GUILTY OF CAUSING FATAL ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 17—James A. Stone, of Newport, R. I., defendant in the case brought by Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, charging the reckless operation of an automobile on the Boston Post road on Sept. 15th last in such manner as to cause the death of Miss Bessie Goldsmith of Philadelphia, Pa., was dismissed on Friday afternoon by Judge Oliver H. Williams. Trial of the case took practically all day of the regular third district court session and the courtroom was nearly filled with witnesses and spectators. Stone had pleaded not guilty to the charge when arraigned soon after the fatal accident and was held in $2,500 bail. The accident occurred near the filling station of Paul Pierce, east of Dunn's Corners, the machine operated by Stone colliding with a car in which Miss Goldsmith was a passenger. The machine in which she was riding, operated by Miss Anina Pape of Germantown, Pa., was turning out from the highway to the entrance of the filling station when the crash occurred.

Dr. M. H. Scanlon testified as to the injuries sustained by the victim of the accident. He said that Miss Goldsmith's skull was fractured, she received internal injuries and suffered a hemorrhage. Both bones of the left leg were broken and she had numerous scalp wounds and a fractured pelvis.

Engineer A. L. Leon, who made measurements at the scene of the accident, testified as to the location of the cars after the accident and geographical location of the filling station and Woody Hill road and as to the grade. The tire marks of the Stone car showed for a distance of 67 feet and after the cars collided, the Stone car must have travelled 19 feet, he said. The collision occurred 10 feet east of the westerly line of the Woody Hill road or within the area of the intersection of that road with the Post road.

During the noon hour Judge Williams went to the scene of the accident for a view.

At 1.30 p. m. the court session was resumed and the defendant took the stand in his own defense, stating that he had been operating his car at between 30 and 35 miles per hour as it had recently had new bearings installed in New York. In the morning session of court other state's witnesses beside Dr. Scanlon and Engineer Leon were Mrs. Marion Green Rathbun whose car was passed by the Stone taxi with its load of sailors bound to New York and Wilbert Green, driver of a Rhode Island State Board of Public Roads Federal truck behind which Miss Pape was testified to have been following when she pulled out to pass it, and the crash occurred about 10 feet east of the westerly line of the Woody Hill dirt road, the Ford having been pivoted on its rear wheels some 10 feet distant when the cars came together. Driver Stone testified that he saw the approaching car driven by Miss Pape pull out to the left of the center line and back to the right and then to have swung out in his path again when only about thirteen feet distant. Other witnesses were Westerly Police Patrolman George L. Madison, who for the state testified in the afternoon session in rebuttal that Mr. Stone had at the time of the accident only spoke of the Ford car's pulling out into his path but once. For the defense Thomas Valentine Robinson, 203 Broadway, Newport, R. I., the driver of a second Newport taxi with load of sailors, testified as to the average speed from the Saunderstown Ferry.

At the morning court session George E. Perkins, 17, of Richmond, charged by State Officer Kennedy with failure to reduce auto speed at a highway intersection at Charlestown, R. I., on Oct. 11, and represented by Attorney C. E. Roche, plead not guilty and a week's continuance was granted with bond, $150.

Samuel H. Mazal of New London, on pleading nolo to a charge of unreasonable auto driving speed on Nooseneck Hill road, Oct. 2nd, and represented by Attorney Henry Harris, was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs.

WESTERLY

About 11.40 a. m. Friday, Albert Furcola, two-year-old son of Mrs. Marietta Furcola 32 Pierce street, was struck by a Ford truck, operated by George L. Murano of Tower street, near the junction of Pearl and Pierce streets. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called to treat the boy and had him taken in his automobile to the Westerly hospital where examination showed that his right leg was broken between the knee and hip. He was also suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and his lips so badly cut he bled profusely. The boy was in an unconscious condition and thought to be seriously injured.

Police Officer Frank E. Knight was called to the scene to investigate and found that the driver had only seen the small boy standing on the sidewalk and did not know that he had been struck by his rear left fender as he was proceeding along Pierce street in a westerly direction.

Real Estate Transfer

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfer:

Oct. 16. Alexander C. Thompson to Thomas and Katherine Burrill a certain lot or parcel of land off East avenue, bounded northerly by Edgewood avenue, easterly by land of Michael and Jennie E. Brown and southerly and westerly by other lands of the grantor.

There is a bare possibility that the reported unsafe condition of the Pawcatuck river bridge in Westerly at Broad street has reached the ears of dogdom. On Thursday night just as a brand new truck of A. E. Rockford, bound from Dorchester, Mass., to New Haven, New York and Miami, Fla., was about to cross the bridge, the three-months-old pup chained in the rear body jumped through the side boards and was held suspended by the collar and came in contact with the wheel. The dog emitted loud barks which quickly attracted the attention of some hundred spectators and the dog's predicament was made known to the occupants of the driver's cab. A young woman occupant immediately jumped out and gathered the dog in the rear. The dog jumped through the side of the truck just as it was rolling upon the bridge and some bystanders remarked that the dog was probably fearful of crossing the structure, despite the intention of the driver. The dog was taken to Dr. Robinson, who found no bones broken but a hind leg muscle badly sprained. The party later proceeded to New Haven for the night.

DANIELSON

ROBERT SAUNDERS RECOVERING AFTER HEART ATTACK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 17. — Robert Saunders, aged resident of South Killingly and who is a familiar figure on the streets here, was resting in comparative comfort today after being stricken with a heart attack last night. Mr. Saunders evidently had been trying to make his way from the small cottage he has been occupying at South Killingly to the store of Stephen Douglas, a short distance up the hill on the state road, when he collapsed. Some time later he was found there, helpless, and was assisted into a car and taken to Percy Bliven's place of business. In response to a telephone message, First Selectman Charles A. Tillinghast hurried over there with Dr. F. P. Todd. After a time Mr. Saunders revived sufficiently to allow of his being removed to the home of his nephew, Claude Moran, at East Killingly.

Mr. Saunders, now more than 80 years of age, was a picturesque figure well over a generation ago. He was a famous long distance runner in his younger years, and it is a matter of record that, on a bet, he raced a horse from this town over the dirt roads of those earlier years to Providence, and beat the animal by a considerable margin. Mr. Saunders has been in failing health for several years and has been getting about with difficulty for more than a year, following strokes he has suffered.

Mr. Jones gave another address, Making the Poultry Industry Pay, using as a basis account book records which have been kept on Connecticut farms. Can the Cost of Production be Reduced More Rapidly by Breeding than by Management? was a subject discussed in various of its phases by T. W. Moore of Central Village and A. E. Anthony of Mansfield.

PUTNAM

MUCH SPECULATION AS TO NEW FIRE DEPARTMENT CHIEF

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 17—There is considerable speculation throughout the city at the present relative to the forthcoming selection by the common council of a successor to Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston, whose untimely death occurred two weeks ago in Fall River, Mass.

Inasmuch as the appointment of a new head of the department is a responsibility to be discharged solely by the council, the naming of Deputy Chief Alphonse Dumas as successor to the late Chief Thurston at this time is by no means a foregone conclusion. Members of the council invested with the duty of appointing a new fire chief are reticent about the whole matter and aldermen of the fire committee have no statements to make regarding the possible settlement of the chief engineer situation.

At the present time Deputy Chief Dumas is the only aspiring candidate for promotion and his long term of years in the department together with his excellent record as an official, established while in his present capacity, warrant the statement, that he is justly deserving of the promotion to the vacancy created two weeks ago by the sad death of Chief Thurston.

Although the council has not fixed the next month's council meeting as a date for the naming of Chief Thurston's successor, it is anticipated that the action in all probability will be taken on that date, which is November 4.

JEB WHITE, FOXHOUND OF J. LAMBERT IS HIGH SCORER IN FIELD TRIALS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 17—At 6 o'clock this morning a pack numbering 42 hounds was cast in the semi-final trials of all-age class event in the competitive races being held at Nightingale farm on Ragged hill in Pomfret, under the auspices of the Brunswick Fox club of Barre. The high scorer in today's trials was Jeb White, the prize specimen, owned by Jack Lambert of Leominster, Mass. T. Edward Cannelly, after tabulating the judges returns said tonight that credits were awarded Mr. Lambert entry as follows: 50 points for speed and driving; 20 points for trailing and 20 points for the dog's high calibre hunting.

Conditions for the trials were excellent today and have been since the heavy rain of Wednesday morning. Summoned into starting formation by Master of Hounds Bassett the clubmen unleashed the restless pack at 6 o'clock and within a few minutes after the start the hounds led by Jeb White picked up the scent and had throughout the long chase over hills and through dales kept "redlegs" on the go. On one occasion the dogs nearly overtook the fleet fox, but lost him when he cantered gracefully through a wide crevice in a ledge and disappeared into a clump of brush in a field beyond. The baying hounds picked up the trail in short order and were soon after the animal whose wits saved him from a horrible death. The pack continued the chase relentlessly until late this afternoon when the dogs were called in by judges who announced that they had completed their observation for the day.

Several foxes were sighted during the course of the trials and on several occasions the pack was divided when younger dogs picked up intersecting trails and began driving on them. Today's hunt proved to be the most exciting of any runs made this week as entries were all hounds of the champion class. Previous experience in field action was obvious as backtracking and other elusive tactics of the foxes were not in the least effective in throwing the dogs off trails. Scent followed led the dogs through far more open country than has been traversed on any other day this week.

Secretary Cannelly said tonight that the races will come to a close Saturday with the final all-age meet and the awarding of trophies which will be presented to the owners of winning dogs Saturday afternoon at ceremonies to be held at about 3 o'clock at the Putnam Inn. Approximately 25 dogs will be entered in the final races, the winner of the event to receive the Hitchcock challenge cup which is the most coverted and sought-after trophy of the prize list. The winner will also be awarded a permanent silver loving cup and an additional award of a certificate of championship, a gift of the American Kennel club.

Mrs. John Wetherbee, of Wolf Den, brought out many good points in a paper, "Grange Purposes Educationally." William Norton, of Highland, gave some good readings. A sketch, "We Have No Trains Today," by three members from Wolf Den, was a clever bit of satire. Vocal numbers were a duet by Mrs. Gallup and Miss Bennett of Wolf Den accompanied with skill by Mrs. Davis; Mrs. Gallup gave a vocal solo. Deputy John Wetherbee, of Abington, spoke in a complimentary way of the standing of Brooklyn grange. A committee, Mrs. Ingalls, Mrs. Leavens and Mrs. Witter served refreshments at the close of one of the pleasantest meetings of the year. Mrs. Coolidge, lecturer of Highland grange, and Miss Bennett, assistant lecturer of Wolf Den, were complimented on the excellent program.

Rev. and Mrs. Thomas B. Payne have closed their home here and will be in Boston for the winter.

Miss Harriett Hall has closed her home, "Three Acres," and has returned to her Providence home for the winter months.

Rev. Mr. Appleton, of Hartford, was the minister at the Congregational church Sunday last. Those who heard him, spoke most highly of his sermon.

Rev. Philip J. Cleveland, of New Haven, will be the speaker at the Congregational, Sunday morning, Oct. 19th. Mr. Cleveland is a young man of great promise. It is understood that Mr. Cleveland is a possible candidate.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown, of Greenwich, Conn., were in town Wednesday. Mr. Brown was employed by the late Dr. Samuel Bradford while in town.

Mrs. Mary J. Hunt visited her mother, Mrs. Henry Warren, in Providence, Wednesday and Thursday.

Going to East Glastonbury

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Edmonston have learned with deep regret of their departure from this town, to East Glastonbury. Mr. Edmonston was until recently in the employ of the Assawaga company as assistant designer.

Mrs. Orrin Alvord, Mrs. Charles Weeks, Mrs. Frank Burnett, Mrs. N. Lorne Greig, Miss Cora Cogswell, Mrs William Swainson, Mrs. Arthur Bruton, Mrs. William Douglas, and Mrs. Herman Steinbough represented the local church at the fall meeting of the Council of Congregational Women of this state, held at the United church, Norwich, Thursday.

The meeting of the Men's club will be held at the Congregational church, Monday evening.

The breaking of the long drought was a welcome happening, although the rainfall here was rather less than in other localities.

HIVE HAD QUEER TENANT— GOT IN AND HAD TO REMAIN

Last fall, Frank Geer, who lives a couple of miles above the town, purchased a half dozen colonies of certified Italian bees, which, with a plentiful supply of honey, were housed for the winter in a row of new hives near the house. When the warm days of early summer came, all the hives showed signs of activity except one. Mr. Geer thought that hive might be a bit slower than the rest, but upon looking a week later found still no signs of life. Removing the top, there was disclosed a sight the like of which probably never has been known before. The sole occupant of the hive was a very fat and sleek mouse. At the bottom, near the exit there were three quarts of bee remains, which included their heads and abdomen shells. During the winter, the mouse had crawled in at the little hole through which the bees come and go. While the insects were cold and dormant, the mouse had eaten them all but a single bee, which was found in a comb cell alive. The marauder had grown so fat that his exit was impossible by the aperature whence he came. After destroying the inmates of the hive the rodent was living high on the several pounds of honey, which had been stored for winter food.

Fred H. Gilbert always keeps his eye on the gun, with business before pleasure. General supervisor of construction on the board of voluntary bridge engineers, he hesitated about taking an automobile trip through the south. Following the assurance from other members of the board that a sharp watch would be kept, he finally tore himself away. Mr. Gilbert and his family were registered at The New Willard, Washington, D. C., Thursday and will be the guests of the Traymore in Atlantic City, N. J., for a few days.

Boys And Dog Get Fox

William Dearnley, 15, in company with another lad, was engaged in husking corn in the field on his father's farm at Bishop's. Billie has a wonderful little dog that only waits for something to move, then he puts after it. Thursday, Mr. Dog and the two boys were in for a surprise and then some, as out from under one of the stacks of corn butts there popped a big red fox. Mr. Reynard legged it for a nearby wood lot, but with no start, the dog was too smart for the flying red tail, and pounced upon him. That fox turned on its back and gave his canine captor something serious to think about. Billie thinks the game might have escaped only that he and his chum came over the top of the wall just in time. The taxidermist who will mount the specimen says the capture should have taken place a month later, as the fur is not yet prime.

TO CONFER 6TH DEGREE TONIGHT AT NEWENT GRANGE

This (Saturday) evening at 7:30, at Community hall in Newent, the officers of the State grange, with Worthy Master Louis J. Tolles, of Southington, will confer the sixth degree on a class made up of candidates from all over eastern Connecticut. In receiving this advanced degree, the members of the class will be receiving the required credentials to attend the National grange convention to be held in Rochester, N. Y. The state officials, numbering about 50, who will be in attendance at the degree work of the evening, are to be entertained by the members of Lisbon grange.

Rev. Fred Bunker, of Wilton, Conn., will give his stereoptican lecture, Scenes from the Life of Christ, at the Newent Community hall Sunday evening at 7:30. Mr. Bunker is a world traveler, has visited the Holy Land, and with several years of residence in Africa. This lecture is the second of a series.

FUNERAL

Armand Bryant

Funeral services for Armand Bryant were held at St. Mary's church Friday morning. Solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. McCabe with Rev. John Quinn of Wauregan, deacon, and Rev. Nicholas Caron, sub-deacon. The music of the mass was sung by Mrs. Noel Garand, the offertory being O Meritum Passionis. The waiting hymn was Beau Ciel. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Lisbon. The bearers were Isadore Couture, Woodrow Wilson, Leon Mecteau, Roger Vachon, Andrew Mecteau and Theodore Morey. Rev. Fr. McCabe conducted the committal service. There were beautiful flowers. Hourigan Bros were in charge of the arrangements. Relatives were present from Pawtucket, Hartford, New Britain, Boston, Glasgo and Norwich.

The mission study class, which meets Monday evenings, is to be postponed next week until Tuesday evening.

RAIDING THE FARMS

Orchards with fruit on the trees, piled upon the ground or bagged, offer a temptation to motorists which some are unable to resist.

Potato patches with the tubers in the ground or dug and drying are the object of close attention by those who are not averse to helping themselves without an invitation.

In fact, it makes little difference what it is that is spied in the country by the highway visitors, if there is something about it that appeals there is not much hesitation on the part of many to appropriate it for their own use or to sell. The fact that products of a farm are over a wall, close to a house or even under cultivation, does not interrupt those who make up their minds to get them without purchase or asking.

How great the loss of the farmers is every season through those who raid the orchards, gardens and woodlands would be hard to figure, but residents in the country have their troubles in protecting themselves against the depredations of unwelcome visitors. Even though it is grossly unjust to the owners, the fact, nevertheless, remains that it is so. It is only one of the problems which the farmer has to face but it is probably as annoying as any of the others.

In these days when motor vehicles are to be had and good roads bring the farming land much closer to the cities, it is not difficult to arrive, raid and depart before the farmer has any inkling of what is going on. He may not find it out for several days and then his only chance of detecting the guilty is to keep watch of his property, and that is not the easiest thing for owners of large farms.

But with this practice of raiding the farms one wonders what might be thought by such raiders if, while they are engaged in stripping orchards and harvesting crops, those whose property is being taken should get a chance and actually remove the tires from the raiders' car, take away a wheel or two, parts of the engine and anything else about the machine which looked desirable. That would, of course, be highway robbery, but the farmer might feel justified in regarding it as a mild dose of their own medicine.

NO SYMPATHY WITH REVOLTS

Whenever a revolt develops in any republic in the western hemisphere, the question arises as to what means are available to combat it. Naturally there are certain preparations, if the government is alert, but there may be handicaps imposed by the revolution leaders through such defections as they have been able to influence. It, therefore, may be a case where the government must look for increased supplies and additional munitions in order to defend itself.

This government has the right to say whether it will sell guns and ammunition to any other country. It takes the position that it should not stand in the way of preventing friendly governments from obtaining means of self-defense. It has taken the position in the past, and continues to do so, that there should not be a shutting off of the avenues through which a friendly nation can defend itself.

It was, therefore, only in accord with past policies and expectations when the secretary of state announced that this country would not stand in the way of munitions being acquired in this country by Brazil. As yet the secretary has not indicated what his attitude would be if the Brazilian rebels sought to purchase arms and ammunition in this country. In view of the declaration which insures Brazil the chance to purchase munitions here if it desires, it is to be assumed that shipments of arms to the rebels would be embargoed. That step hasn't been taken. It doesn't appear that any such effort has been made and, for that reason, no ground exists for action.

Brazil isn't as close as Mexico but with the latter the United States has indicated its determination to support a constitutional government and one that is endeavoring to meet its obligations rather than to lend encouragement to any revolutionary faction. It hasn't even taken the attitude of giving both full opportunities but has favored a friendly and established government rather than those attempting to destroy it.

What the future holds in store in Brazil remains to be seen. Further action may or may not be necessary by this government but as the situation exists today this country adheres to its established policy.

WAITING FOR THE FACTS

The new British air minister has issued orders halting all work on the R-100, the dirigible which visited Canada this summer and the sister ship of the R-101, which crashed in France.

Reports have it that, before the disaster in France, plans were made for adding a new section to the R-100 the same as was done with the R-101, for the purpose of increasing the capacity of gas and, therefore, the lifting ability of the dirigible. The same reports inferred that this was to be done with the intention of using helium gas instead of hydrogen, the additional bag permitting the extra amount of helium that would be required in order to equal the lifting ability of the hydrogen.

Helium is safer but a greater quantity of it is required to lift a certain weight than with hydrogen. Helium also is more expensive than hydrogen.

In stopping the changes in the R-100, the purpose of the air ministry is to await the outcome of the inquiry concerning the sister ship. While it seems clear that nothing should be allowed to stand in the way of getting the protecting benefit of helium, the wisdom of waiting until the report on the disaster is completed seems wise. Naturally there is a desire to know whether there was any structural weakness, whether the change which had been made by increasing the length of the R-101 had anything to do with the crashing, and possibly whether the proposed increase in the length of the R-100 is adequate, in view of the fact that there seemed to be difficulty in gaining altitude when the R-101 crashed.

The dirigible disaster is bound to have its effects upon British aeronautics. It is not to be supposed that it means the end of dirigibles. There are lessons in that distressing affair which are going to be utilized for future protection. Just how extensive they are and what they are will be revealed by the investigation. It is safe to say that more consideration will be given to the use of helium, and it is shown, if it wasn't known before, that no obstacle stands in the way of the British or other nations getting the non-inflammable gas. Though the lifting power of helium is about 10 per cent less than hydrogen, its contribution to safety cannot be overlooked.

SUSPENDING HUNTING SEASON

No one will question the wisdom of the action that was taken by governors in several states in suspending the hunting season as a means of protecting the woodlands against fire.

It doesn't necessarily mean that all the forest fires can be laid at the door of the hunters. It is a matter of record that forest fires occur before the hunting season opens, but it is evident from past experiences that with fewer people in the woods and fields there is reduced the chance of starting needless fires. If the number of people tramping through the dry leaves and underbrush is kept to the very minimum there will be fewer dropping matches, fewer smokers, fewer throwing aside burning smoking material, fewer kindling fires intentionally and otherwise. And every suspension of the hunting season should inspire greater care when lifted.

Hunters have been responsible for many fires. They have not done so maliciously and probably only a small part of them who have caused fires realized what they had done. But if they are not permitted in the woods, not permitted to hunt, they cannot be charged with causing the fires. That reasoning is logical and can be appreciated by the fellow who may be anxious to hunt, and who can understand that the blackened fields and woodlands also means the destruction of game as well as property.

The coming of the rain removes the fire hazard temporarily. It can be regarded as providing an adequate reason in certain states, at least, for the lifting of any embargo on hunting. Action in that direction is bound to be dependent upon the amount of rainfall, since the deluge in Massachusetts cannot be expected to have the same soaking effect upon states where the rainfall was light.

Thus the lifting or continuance of the ban must be dependent upon conditions and none should be more willing to comply therewith than the hunters themselves.

NOT A GOOD IMPRESSION

The inquiry that is being made into the purchase of judgeships in New York city is featured by strange developments.

Just at present interest is centered about Judge Bertini, an appointee of Governor Roosevelt. Judge Bertini was called before the grand jury, which apparently wanted to inquire concerning his appointment and preliminaries leading up to it. It is a natural inference that it had some ground for so doing. Judge Bertini responded but he declined to waive immunity. He displayed the same attitude as the Tammany officials. The refusal to testify before the grand jury was in direct contradiction to what the judge had declared he would do. It created the impression that there was reason for refusing to waive immunity, reason that reflected on him.

Now he has come forth with a public statement in which he declares that he did not buy his appointment, that he did not pay for his nomination or selection. He maintains that reports concerning him are not true.

But what must impress the people of New York seriously is why a judge who is willing to make such denials in a statement of his own against such charges as have been made against him is not willing to go before the grand jury and answer such inquiries as the grand jury may want to put to him.

What doesn't make a good impression is the contempt which he, as a judge, shows for the grand jury and the effort to get at the bottom of rotten conditions in New York city. He doesn't help the situation any by such a statement as he makes by continuing to defy the grand jury and the efforts which the governor sanctioned to get at the facts. That he has made a long statement gives no assurance that he has even touched upon what the grand jury wants to ask him.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Backgammon is back. But are backs back?

The one great trouble with Indian summer is that it is so confused with every mild day in October that it isn't recognized when it really arrives.

If there is a new lamp that will furnish as good tan as can be obtained at the beaches, what chance will there be to display that new bathing suit?

Considering the many prominent persons who cannot be found, the port of missing men must have experienced a considerable gain in population.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

In view of what often happens weatherwise, one is inclined to question the existence of any scientific principle that can be relied upon as determining just what the weather is going to be three days ahead or even more than 36 hours ahead. If it was ever true that "in dry seasons all signs fail," it is certainly true at the present writing. The newspapers seemed quite sure that on a certain recent date this section of New England would be blessed with refreshing showers, and it must be admitted that weather conditions emphatically pointed that way. The wind was strong penetrating in the northeast. The clouds were heavy and hung low. There was a peculiar chill that found thin places in our clothing. Everything for 12 hours and more pointed to a storm that was about to break the long drought. We waited long and anxiously, but the expected did not happen, and on the day when these words were written not a drop of rain had fallen.

The above paragraph suggests to our minds the audacity of the almanac makers in the days of our youth. The reference is to a single publication that was found in almost every home in the country in years gone by. I refer to the "Old Farmer's Almanac" that predicted with amazing effrontery that on this that or the other day there would be such and such weather. Now as this country of ours is very extensive there would naturally be good sized areas where some of these predictions would take place with strict accuracy; while at other places it would not fit at all. But if it were summer time it was perfectly safe to say "expect thunder showers," and in many places of course thunder showers would come. These almanac makers by keeping a strict account of general weather conditions over several decades could easily work out a scheme that would somewhere be true all the time.

That we are living in an age of wonders—compared with preceding ages no well-informed mind will deny. Ever since modern science came into vogue, the human mind has been on the alert to discover new facts in relation to this old world of ours, and to send them everywhere. As new ideas have come to the human mind as the result of probing into nature's secrets, co-extensively have machines been devised to assist in making these new things known. Think, for instance, what the telescope means to the astronomer; and the microscope to the biologist. But quite lately the man of science has been exploring a comparatively new field and that is the floor of the ocean. It is not as commonly thought years ago as "one vast area of mud" with here and there the wreck of a sunken steamer, but it contains among other rare things flora of rare beauty.

In view of the many things done by science in the last few years has led some enthusiasts to claim that the word "impossible" will have to be taken out of the dictionary because in the process of time nothing along scientific lines will be impossible. This may be exaggerated and yet in view of what science has done in the last two decades who will venture to say dogmatically that it will not prove true? At present it seems incredible that at any time some sort of an instrument will be devised for visiting the moon! What would the majority of people have said one hundred years ago that the region of the South pole would not only be visited but marked out as to its shape just as true as that of Brazil. In view of what science has done along these lines we ought to be careful how we use that word "impossible."

There was a saying, once quite familiar, but which the rising generation very seldom, if ever, hears, and that was: "Many a mickle makes a muckle," and was generally applied to the saving of money, although "filthy lucre" had no copyright on the expression. If we translate the expression into English it simply means that if there is care in looking after the pennies, the dollars will look after themselves. The pennies are the fundamental things and the saving of them of course means that in time the dollars will pile up. But this is one of those expressions that must not be squeezed until it squeals. Even the originator of the expression would not claim that this process of saving pennies would be likely to create very many bloated millionaires, and yet if this simple habit of putting away pennies in some safe place in the course of a year would bring amazement to the most skeptical. Many can vouch for this from experience.

It seems to the writer that here is a principle that has a very moral application. In fact it has been many times tried and with perfectly astounding results. Now many people in a quiet way in the past, and, as I sincerely believe in the present even more so, are very quietly carrying out this resolution: "I will not let a single day go by without, in a quiet way, doing some good to someone." Now such a resolution does not imply giving a million dollars to some great university or to a missionary society—and God bless such noble benefactors—but it does mean bringing a smile to the sad face of some little child; a little thing as we look at it, but perhaps big as God looks at it. Let us suppose that every Christian the world over did as little as that every day in the year, and year after year, what a spiritual "muckle" it would make! One reason why the great spiritual temple does not topple is that so many in a quiet way are doing that very thing!

Of course it would take a mighty big pile of spiritual "muckle" to renovate this old world of sin and sorrow, and certainly it would not be accomplished in a single generation. There is, however, no serious question as to the spiritual renovation of humanity if for one single year, every one of God's children would make the following resolutions: "For the next 12 months, I will say no disparaging word about anybody from mere gossip; I will try to discover the good side of people rather than the bad; I will not give heed to any story of wrong unless I am satisfied that it is true; I will be on the outlook for somebody who is down or is falling and will help him to rise; I will make it a point to see good in other people, rather than bad; I will make The Golden Rule one of the guides of my life; I will try to use as much leniency towards others faults as I hope my Saviour will use toward my own.

When it comes to a clear question whether we ought as citizens to respect the Constitution and be law abiding, or whether we should insist upon our own personal desires that run counter to the spirit and practice of good government, it is a great pleasure to know that the rank and file of our people stand for square for law and order. Quite recently we have had a very heartening illustration of this. Last week 70,000 of the boys who played an important part in the World war held a reunion in Boston. In numbers it was the biggest parade that Boston ever had. As we all know there were communists who tried to make a counter demonstration but were quickly suppressed by the police. It was gratifying to see how unanimous and emphatic the Legion was to show its abhorrance of communistic beliefs and demands. It is a great pleasure to see what a positive stand the America Federation of Labor has taken in regard to the adoption and spread of communism.

MUCH MORE RAIN NEEDED TO MAKE UP WATER SHORTAGE DATING FROM JUNE, 1929

Whether the rainfall, which broke the dry spell this week, marks the close of the long drouth hereabout, or is only an intermission in its continuance, cannot now be foretold. At any rate, months of heavy precipitation are needed to counterbalance the effects of the water shortage. The story of this drouth is only partially revealed in the statement of local officials that for 22 consecutive days previous not a single drop of rain had fallen on Norwich. The scarcity of precipitation has continued now since June, 1929, and in recent months has become increasingly serious. Brief attestation of this fact is seen in The Bulletin headlines of Sept. 4 and Oct. 9, respectively:

AUGUST RAINFALL SHOWS

SEPTEMBER RAINFALL HERE
MADE NEW LOW RECORD

Even so, the earlier stages of the drouth were serious enough. On May 24, 1930, The Bulletin said:

Shortage Began in June, 1929

"Perhaps few people realize the extent of the water shortage which really had its beginning in June, 1929. Every rainfall station in Connecticut showed a total annual rainfall below the normal in 1929.

"As an example of the 1929-1930 drouth in Connecticut compared with past records, an examination of records over the past 62 years for the vicinity of Hartford shows that only in the years 1924-1925 was the rainfall from June to April inclusive less than 1929-1930. The total rainfall in this recent eleven month period was only 29.13 inches as against a normal rainfall of 41.32 inches.

"The fact that a drouth of such long duration has occurred tends naturally to affect those water supplies which are dependent on long time storage in reservoirs as well as those places where water supply in dry summer and fall months is secured from ground water storage. Short drouths may not affect supplies of this character. Water supply officials are able to forestall shortages to some extent by careful manipulation of drafts upon their reservoirs, if several reservoirs are available. For example, in Hartford, despite the drouth, Nepaug reservoir was filled on April 21, 1930, after being severely taxed by drawdowns in the fall and winter of 1929."

How Local Supplies Have Dwindled

Fluctuations of water stored in local reservoirs during the past 12 months are revealed in the following figures:

From The Bulletin of Oct. 23, 1929:

"At the present time Fairview reservoir is down about four feet from full pond and Stony Brook reservoir is down from 16 1-2 to 17 feet from full pond. Deep River reservoir needs but eight inches more raise to have the water running over the spillway at the dam.

For seven months thereafter the reservoirs gained steadily. On May 19, 1930, Fairview reservoir was reported to be actually six inches above full pond, Stony Brook three feet down and Deep River at full pond. Then a steady recession occurred, till at present Fairview is about 40 inches down, Stony Brook 15 feet below full pond and Deep River nearly four feet below.

However, there is no danger that the present shortage of precipitation will be as serious in its effects as was the drouth of 1910-11, when it was found necessary to pump from Mohegan lake and Trading Cove brook and preparations were made to pump even from the Yantic river. The reason why Norwich will be saved from the necessity of falling back on these contaminated sources is that since then Deep River reservoir was opened, adding 380,000,000 gallons to the 450,000,000 gallons capacity of Fairview and the equal capacity of Stony Brook.

Consumption Is Quadrupled

In 1910, when Norwich suffered its worst water famine, the daily consumption was about 1,000,000 gallons a day. It is now about 4,000,000 gallons a day; but the enlargement of the reservoir system is counted on to more than take care of the increased use.

On May 19, 1930, Edmund A. Hindle, cashier of the local water department, stated, "If not one drop of rain fell for one whole year, Norwich would have enough water from its present water supply."

Only this week Charles A. Hagberg, president of the board of water commissioners, again emphasized the security which Norwich now enjoys from the perils of drouth by saying, "There is no shortage of water, nor is there any danger of a shortage." Nevertheless he is asking the public to conserve the supply by refraining from the use of reservoir water in sprinkling lawns.

New London's reservoir capacity is about a quarter-billion gallons less than that of Norwich. There matters are much more serious, as is shown by the following article which appeared in the New London Day on Oct. 1:

New London Reservoirs Way Down

"That this city is undergoing one of the driest spells in its history is shown in a report submitted by City Engineer Watters to City Manager Holt concerning the city's water supply. In the report Mr. Watters points out that while there is no need for great alarm, the situation does warrant thoughtfulness and the curbing of any waste of water.

"As a result of the report, City Manager Holt today requested that the people of New London refrain from using a garden hose until further notice as a means of cutting down the daily consumption of water.

"Mr. Watters reports that there is now 11 feet and six inches of water in Lake Konomoc, or 527,000,000 gallons in storage; that there are 90,000,000 gallons of water in storage in Barnes reservoir and 100,000.00 gallons in storage in Bogue brook, making a total of 717,000,000 gallons in storage in all of the reservoirs.

"The report shows that Lake Konomoc is now four inches lower than at the lowest point last year and that Barnes reservoir and Bogue brook are correspondingly lower.

"A table shows that the water in Lake Konomoc dropped seven inches in the first 29 days of September and will fall at an increased rate unless there is sufficient rain to offset the consumption and evaporation.

"Only Half Inch of Rain

"During the past month there has only been little more than half an inch of rain as compared with the average rainfall for September over a period of 54 years of 3.44 inches of precipitation

"It is also pointed out by Mr. Watters that during a dry spell more water is used than under normal conditions and hence, the consumption of water for the past four months has been greater than the consumption for the corresponding months of last year. A table submitted shows that in September of this year the average daily consumption was 2,780,000 gallons which represents an increase of 8,000,000 gallons for the month over the water used for September last year. About the same increase was noted for August of this year over August of last year.

"Lot of Rain Needed

"Mr. Watters also points out that due to the lack of rainfall there is very little water running into the reservoirs as is indicated by the dryness of the country in general, resulting in many wells going dry and many farmers being required to cart water from long distances.

"With the present supply of water sufficient to last for about four months it is not expected that any drastic orders concerning the use of water will be necessary for the immediate future but it is indicated by Mr. Watters that unless the water supply is replenished soon there will be cause for alarm. Due to the present dryness of the ground it is felt that considerable rain will be necessary to make any showing in increasing the supply of water in the reservoirs."

That Norwich is not now in the plight in which New London finds itself is due to the fact that the new Deep River water supply was put into full and permanent service for the first time only last spring. The Bulletin of March 11, 1930, announces the addition of the new reservoir to the local system as follows:

Deep River Water Brought In

"Following an analysis of the water at Deep River reservoir by the state department of health, the local water department has been given permission to use this supply for drinking and other purposes. The city consumption per day is 4,000,000 gallons, one half of which is now furnished by Deep River reservoir and the remainder by Stony Brook and Fairview reservoirs.

"The city has been using the Deep River supply for several weeks and during that time the water department has not received a single complaint from its patrons. The water at Deep River, it was found by the health department's analysis, is as fine as at the other two reservoirs which furnish water to the city."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17— When Calvin Coolidge prepared those little typewritten slips for the press out in the Black Hills so long ago, setting out that famous "I-do-not-choose" phrase of mystery as to his 1928 intentions, he must have had a lot of sardonic amusement out of his performance.

Being what he was, a political veteran, he must have been prepared for what followed and for the purported utter puzzlement of all hands as to whether it meant his withdrawal from any claim to the 1928 nomination.

Watching Mr. Coolidge at subsequent white house press conferences, the Bystander used to believe he detected a queer twinkle in the Coolidge eye whenever the subject was mentioned again.

Significant?

That of course was a famous presidential utterance. Is it possible that a seemingly haphazard back platform remark by President Hoover is no less significant?

It was made to a self announced 100 per cent Hooverite at a southern railroad station.

Perhaps the enthusiast was a Hoovercrat, the name coined in 1928 for southern democrats who went Hoover. And Mr. Hoover's reply was to suggest that the enthusiast confirm a good habit.

What habit? Why, voting for Hoover, of course. The political writers had no difficulty reading that into the exchange.

And that casual-seeming bit of dialog which Mr. Hoover may conceivably have intended merely as airy persiflage, a sort of presidential wisecrack, got more press and political attention than any of the Hoover speeches prepared with such care.

Such is the pitiless publicity surrounding any presidential utterance.

Like Approval

The theory, of course, was that Mr. Hoover had honored that chance booster by disclosing to him Mr. Hoover's intention to run for reelection in 1932. That is something Mr. Hoover has not otherwise announced as yet.

It is equally taken for granted by almost everybody that he will endeavor to succeed himself.

Looking over happenings of the last two years, it would be rather easy to find items which might make Mr. Hoover desirous of shaking the heavy responsibilities of his high office off his shoulders when his present term ends.

But presidents never feel that way, apparently. They all want another whack. And often the only discernible reason is that they desire to have their first administrations approved.

Actually, probably a great many presidents would have been happy to quit at the end of four years but for that. It is no cinch job.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Black Pussy Is Upset

When you're convinced it will not pay
To fight, 'tis time to run away.
—Black Pussy.

Jimmy Skunk was standing in the moonlight just outside Black Pussy's round doorway— her new doorway into the shed back of farmer Brown's house. Jimmy Skunk was grinning. His nose told him that somewhere inside that shed was a saucer of milk; also, a plate of liver. Jimmy knew well enough that they were not put there for him. He guessed that they were put there for Black Pussy the Cat, and that either Black Pussy was not hungry, or else she was not at home. Jimmy poked his head inside and sniffed.

"That smells good," said Jimmy to himself. "That's just the dinner I am looking for. I think I'll go in and help myself. I won't wait to be invited."

So Jimmy went right in through the round doorway and simply followed his nose. His nose took him right straight to the plate with the liver on it. Jimmy fairly chuckled as he set his teeth in the first piece of liver. He didn't bother to even look around to see if Blacky Pussy was anywhere about. The truth is, he didn't care whether she was or not.

Now, Black Pussy was there. She was curled up in a basket with a soft cushion in it. It was her own special basket. It was only a few feet away from that plate of silver and saucer of milk. Black Pussy wasn't hungry. If she had been, there would have been no liver and milk there. Nevertheless, she felt that that liver and milk were hers. So, when she was awakened by a slight noise and discovered what she at first thought was another cat—a black-and-white cat—eating her liver, she was filled with immediate and very great anger.

Black Pussy bounced out of her basket with her back arched, her tail swollen, her eyes brazing with anger. She would teach this strange cat a lesson never to be forgotten! She started to growl way down as deep in her throat as she could. "Get out of here!" she growled, and dug her claws into the floor.

Black Pussy bounced out of her basket with her back arched, her tail swollen

At the sound of that growl, the strange cat paused in his eating and slowly lifted a great bushy tail. That great bushy tail spread out and gradually covered the stranger's back. Did you ever see a toy balloon collapse when a pin was stuck in it? Black Pussy collapsed in just the same way. Her back went down; her tail went down; all the hair that had been standing on end went down. She tried to shrink away. She had recognized Jimmy Skunk.

Jimmy took two steps forward. Black Pussy bounded to the far corner of the shed. There she crouched, shivering with fear. Jimmy Skunk just gave one look at Black Pussy and then went on eating. When he had finished the liver, he drank the milk. Then he began to investigate the shed. He found Black Pussy's basket. It contained a most comfortable looking bed. Jimmy decided to try it. He curled up in it and went to sleep.

As for Blacky Pussy, she saw her chance to get out. She was the most upset cat that ever lived. She made straight for the barn, and there she hid in the darkest corner she could find, while Jimmy Skunk peacefully slept in the bed that was her very own.

YOUR HEALTH

Convulsions And Epilepsy—Continued

By George W. Swift, M. D., Seattle.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Based upon the facts stated yesterday, a rational treatment has now been developed which offers probably the best hope for the future. The first step taken by the physician in treatment of any epilepsy is to ascertain what factors are involved in the individual case. This is done by means of a new method of diagnosis given to the profession by a man named Dandy, and it is called encephalography. It is a harmless procedure and gives positive findings by means of X-ray. By this method, air is used to replace the fluid in the cranial cavity and the brain shows on the X-ray as though outlined in air. The air reveals also changes in the venous channels and as the X-ray itself reveals the shape of the skull, all three factors are usually demonstrated in one test. The treatment is based upon the findings in the individual case.

In all cases certain fundamental principles are observed: the amount of water taken in by the patient in twenty-four hours should in no instance exceed twenty or twenty-four ounces. Certain foods, particularly carbohydrates, which have a tendency to lock the fluid in the individual cells of the body, are also kept out of the diet. The diet must contain vitamins to carry on the normal function of the body, as well as proteins to furnish sufficient fuel to keep up the body metabolism.

The medical profession hopes in a short time to demonstrate conclusively that epilepsy is not the dread inherited disease, as believed in the past, but that the proper regulation of the water intake, associated with proper diet will control these cases.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

How to Work For Souls

Successful work for the ingathering of souls has four characteristics. In the first place it is patient. The severest trial of faith in all Christian labor is to toil a great while with little or no result. "Rather slow work this," said a friend to Mr. Moody, when he had started a little prayer meeting in a mission chapel. "So it is," he replied; "but if you want to kindle a fire you must put together a few splinters, blow them into a blaze, and then you may pile on the wood after wood." His plan succeeded, for after a half dozen persons had become warmed by the Holy Spirit the flame spread among glorious ingathering of converts.

The next qualification for a soul winner is to be painstaking. Jesus Christ made a long journey into the coast of Tyre and Sidon, and we do not read that He accomplished anything there except the great blessing which He brought to one Syrophonician woman and her suffering daughter, that paid Him for the journey. No effort was too great for Him to win a soul. If Christians would exercise their ingenuity and set themselves resolutely to work, just as many a business man does to win customers, how great would be the results. Look out for opportunities; if they do not come to you, make them.

Perseverance is the next qualification; for all good work may come to nothing if given up when half done. There is a lot of half-finished lying about in our spiritual workshops. "Why do you tell that boy the same thing twenty times?" Because, replied Susannah Wesley, "the other nineteen times will go for nothing unless the twentieth time makes an impression. God's is wonderfully persevering. It is more than likely that He may have been at work many a time on the heart of Saul between the day when he took part in Stephen's martyrdom and that decisive day on the road to Damascus, never give up a soul. But no patience and painstaking perseverance will avail without fervent importunate prayer. The Salvation Army make a great deal of what they call "knee drill," and we of the "regular" army may well imitate them in this. However, difficult the effort to bring a soul to Christ, prayer enlists the divine power, and then victory follows. From the apostles, day to our day, the men and women who bring in the big sheaves have been diligent in prayer. Have we attained these four P's? Then you will get one of the sweetest joys of heaven in advance. God will give you souls as your great reward.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Glastonbury Knitting Company, Glastonbury.

In 1855, Franklin Lewis started a small knitting mill for the manufacture of wool underwear in the Eagleville section of Glastonbury.

Austin Dunham, of Hartford, then a partner in the firm of Kellogg & Dunham, wool dealers on State St., was president of the Eagle mills, and aided in establishing the new venture. The difficulties experienced during the first decade of its existence, covering as it did the Civil war years, is a repetition of the struggles of most new industries of that period, and called for reorganization and new capital from time to time.

In 1858 Matthew M. Merriman of Hartford supplied additional financial assistance and became president of the company.

By 1864 the new company had made sufficient progress to purchase the plant it had occupied for nine years.

Edward Holt of Manayunk, Penn., bought the company in December, 1868, and operated it until his death in 1873. His estate disposed of the property to Henry C. Yale of Philadelphia. Under the management of Mr. Yale the company prospered. Additional equipment was added and the business greatly expanded.

In 1882, Addison L. Clark, owner of a knitting mill at Manchester, Green, bought the Glastonbury Knitting company from Henry C. Yale. He reorganized it by taking in various members of Scott Brothers of New York, who were then selling agents for the product.

Mr. Clark sold his Manchester Green plant to the new company and it has since been known as Glastonbury Knitting company, Plant No. 3.

Soon after the company acquired the old Eagle mills just below its property on Salmon Brook, from Hilliard & Clark of Buckland, and converted it from a weaving to a knitting mill.

In 1887 the name of the village was changed from Eagleville to Addison in honor of Addison L. Clark, and a post office established.

After the death of Hewitt Coburn, successor to Addison L. Clark, in 1926, and Walter S. Coburn in 1928, the business was purchased by a group of Hartford men.

Since its organization in 1855 the Glastonbury Knitting company has specialized in the manufacture of men's high grade wool underwear, both two piece and union suits.

Beginning with the selection of the raw wool, it has conducted every process of manufacture from carding and spinning the yarn, knitting and finishing the merchandise and directed the distribution of its good through the leading dry goods jobbers throughout the United States. Its reputation for quality and service has been unsurpassed and has made Glastonbury the leader in its field.

In 1929, equipment was installed for the manufacture of knitted cloth for heavy overcoats in twills, herringbones and fleeces and lighter fabrics for top coats and sport wear.

In 1930, an extensive line of tailored coat sweaters made from fulled, knitted cloth has been added to the list of products of G. K. manufacture.

The satisfactory working conditions that have existed generally through three quarters of a century has given to the company the accumulated skill of interested and faithful employees, and they in turn have shared in the prosperity of the company.

Sales rooms are maintained at 93 Worth St., New York city, which is the center of the knit goods business for the country.

The officers of the company are: Leon P. Broadhurst, president; E. Stanley Klein, vice president; Martin K. Pasco, vice president; Theodore E. Behnke, secretary and treasurer; Albert L. Taylor, assistant treasurer.

Wild Grapes in Vermont

In June of each and every year
The wild grape has a season
To sweeten up the Summer air
With scent beyond all reason;
Along the elm-arched country roads
It binds the trees and brambles;
With vine and leaves and modest bloom
It's careless where it rambles.

The city friend who's with you says,
You have to when you smell it,
"Just what's that incense in the air
So strong no flood could quell it?"
Incense it is—Vermont's own brand—
From her own wayside altars;
Each year it has that potent strength
To raise the heart that falters.

The grape has sprays of whitish green
Vermont-like in their beauty;
Where handsome is as handsome does
They seem to know their duty;
And so they just perfume the air
They're pretty but not showy,
A lace-like modest bloom of green
With something sort of "blowy."

Then later on the leaves grow large,
And somehow quick as thinking
The grapes are there and soon we find
'Tis Autumn air we're drinking;
The fruit is then a pleasant blue,
(The leaves are getting thinner)
We hold it choice; 'twill be we know
Some cold bird's only dinner.

But here and now we take our fill,
We only hope that Heaven,
Instead of all those streets of gold,
Will have, somehow, for leaven
These country roadsides of Vermont
With frost grape on the fences
With arching elms and blackberry stars
And we will have our senses.
—Rutland Herald.

True Goldenness

I found some copper coins and thought them fine,
And carefully I hid them all away;
But when I took them out they did not shine—
Illusions all—their brightness gone with day.
A lovely image then of golden hue;
I worshiped what proved only polished brass.
By morning it was tarnished by the dew,
And I a wond'ring and a foolish lass.
Then shimm'ring silver pieces bright and new—
They dulled with use; the lustre did not wear.
I asked, "Can nothing then be pure and true?
"Are all nights long and black and all days bare?"
When suddenly my life in sun-gold grew * * *
Kind goods had brought true goldenness—'twas You.

"Well, mum," he said at length, "after careful consideration, I've come to the conclusion as the biscuit goes to the laughing hyena."

"Well, mum, he only has a sleep once a month, an' he only has a drink once a year, so what he's got to laugh about is a mystery to me!"—London Answers.

TRUCK AND TROLLEY GET STUCK TOGETHER

Norwich had an unusual traffic jam about the middle of Friday afternoon when a trolley car and truck became wedged together on Main street about midway in the block between Shetucket and Water streets. The truck was a Maryland machine and when it tried to pass a trolley car it met, the truck body proved so wide that the two vehicles became wedged together. To get them apart they had to be backed in opposite directions and then a spot was found where the street was wide enough for them to past.

BAPTISTS ELECT MERIDEN PASTOR FOR STATE CONVENTION PRESIDENT

Election of officers, the address by Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt of this city, who was concluding his second term as president, and the annual sermon by Professor William Lyon Phelps of Yale were special features of the morning session of the 107th annual meeting of the Connecticut Baptist state convention which was held in the First Baptist church at New London.

Officers Elected

The nominating committee report, made by Richard W. Mansfield of New London, was accepted and officers were elected as follows:

President—Rev. B. N. Timble Meriden, First Vice President—Dr. M. C. Burt, Stafford. Second Vice President—Mrs. Allen W. Brown, West Hartford. Secretary—Rev. Elbert E. Gates, Hartford. Treasurer—Hartford National Bank & Trust Co.

At the morning session at which Dr. M. C. Burt of Stratford presided, words of welcome were expressed by Lieut. Governor Ernest E. Rogers and Rev. J. J. Allen, pastor of the entertaining church.

President Pitt's Address

The annual address by Rev. Dr. Pitt was given as follows;

The work of the year has moved forward along practically the same lines as in previous years. The one new departure was a cooperative effort in the field of evangelism with Rhode Island. Dr. Sull who was our leader in this field has returned to Ohio and Rhode Island has decided to combine evangelism with religious education under the leadership of one man. This we think is a wise step and we would recommend similar action here in Connecticut.

Missionary Contributions

The giving of our churches for missions at home and across the seas surpassed that of the previous years. Receipts ahead of last year. This is remarkable when you think of the industrial conditions. It bears out the statement that "it is not hard times but hard hearts that keeps the missionary treasury empty."

Fight on Temperance

In regard to the temperance fight in our state there is little that can be said since neither political party took a stand that would gladden the hearts of the best people in the state. The chief thing to be thankful for lies in what has not been done. The real fight is likely to come in the legislature this winter when an attempt will be made to repeal the state enforcement act. We hope that when that time comes the leaders who saw to it that no repeal plank was placed in their platform will respect the position of the drys as much after election as before. The fight is on throughout the nation and the next two years are likely to witness as severe a battle as any yet seen in the hundred years of crusading since the struggle began. Has not the hour struck for all good men and women of every creed and party to unite under the slogan, They Shall Not Pass? I am glad to make the words of a distinguished Roman Catholic, P. H. Callahan of Kentucky, the vehicle of my own thought and purpose.

"The use of intoxicating liquors was born in the long ago, and it is only natural that the battle for its elimination should be a hard one. But the sun will never set again on a sodden American, reeling under the influence of alcohol. To that consummation we should all pledge ourselves. We have tried temperance societies and state and local regulation without success. We are not going to turn back, in spite of the anti-prohibition propagandists who have always predicted that the law could not be enforced and with whom the wish is the father to the thought. Nor are we going to permit the bootleggers and their friends to run the government of the United States. It has conquered its enemies from without; it will not surrender to its enemies from within."

Industrial Conditions

Our devotion to one cause, however, must not blind us to others. We are all aware of the industrial conditions throughout the state and the nation. Many people are out of work, many more are on short time. This coming winter is likely to bring real suffering to many a family. I am heartily in favor of maintaining our standard of giving to missions abroad, but that is not enough for this hour. What about the people who are in need at home?

I have not the wisdom to say what the state should do but I am confident that a great deal more could be done than is being done by the people of the churches to provide work for our own who desire to work, thus saving them and their families from suffering and from pauperization. I am pleading not for charity but for an opportunity to work and be independent. A society that is piling up its millions in the savings banks and at the same time is finding it necessary to double its dole to the poor is still far from the Kingdom of God.

Peace of World

The peace of the world is the concern of all the followers of Christ. Chief Justice Hughes declares that "the distinctive task of this generation is building the machinery of peace." We are grateful for what was accomplished in the London naval pact, especially for the better understanding between Great Britain and the United States. The chief disappointment of the conference was the way in which the Kellogg pact was forgotten or ignored. If this should continue some future generation may find that great pact as the Hebrews found Deuteronomy buried in the temple long ago. In the coming months President Hoover will need all the help the friends of peace can furnish in bringing the United States into the world court. It is hoped that we shall do all in our power through our senators and in every other way possible to help make this court a bit of world machinery in the interest of peace.

The Missionary Way

This reference to world peace naturally causes us to think of world missions. "For the real alternative to the military way is the missionary way." Even a high military authority charged with the defense of the Peshawar district in India testified that Theodore Pennell, traveling unarmed with his medicine chest about the Indian northwestern frontier, was worth more than a couple of British regiments to the peace of India. The love of God released through men like that, men like Livingstone in Africa and C. F. Andrews in India, is our chief hope for the peace of the world.

This is one good reason for continuing our missionary labors in all nations. It is not the chief reason, however, and with reference to that I wish to close. The chief reason lies in the very nature of God and of Christ and of our religion. God so loved that He gave, etc. Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ. The apostle felt that he was a debtor to all men to share with all the best that had come to him.

Annual Sermon

Following the election of officers the annual sermon was delivered by Professor Phelps, whose topic was Religion in the Home.

In substance Professor Phelps said:

Just as the foundation of modern civilization is the family, so it is also the foundation of the Christian religion. The Christian religion started with a family—Joseph, Mary and Jesus. This is the most famous family in the history of the world, and has been a tremendous force in the production of works of art as well as of the religious life. And as the foundation of the Christian religion is the family, so the Christian conception of God is also that of the family, the father, son, and the Holy Spirit. These are not three Gods, but are three manifestations of one God. About the infinite God we know very little, but about His manifestations in Jesus Christ, we know a great deal. Furthermore, the evidence of the Holy Spirit is seen every day, both in individuals and in communities.

In addition to all these things, the most sacred thing on earth, apart from religion itself, is the human family, husband and wife and children. This is a universal sentiment, family love, and it is sacred. For members of the same family to quarrel about money or about anything else is not only terrible, but it is in a way blasphemous. And finally we believe that all persons all over the world who say the Lord's prayer belong to one family, and that some time this family will be united, never to separate again.

MAKES PARADE CERTAIN FOR ARMISTICE DAY

At a meeting of Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, Friday evening, the Armistice day parade committee, Dr. Thomas O'Neil, Harry Lathrop and John Bennett, reported progress on the plans. The meeting voted that in view of the large number of replies received from local organizations invited to participate, that the parade will be held Armistice day morning at 10 o'clock.

Announcement was made that Captain Meredith Lee will be the parade marshal. It was also announced that the invocation at the exercises at Chelsea parade will be given by Rev. A. H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church. The speaker of the day will be Rev. John J. Reilly of St. Patrick's church. Through the cooperation of Herbert J. Ferguson and Earl Taggart, there will be four amplifiers at Chelsea Parade so that the programme can be heard from all points. It is hoped that the organizations which will participate in the procession will provide bands or drum corps to head their delegations.

The post has received a picture of the Norwich delegation, carrying the large banner presented by the Norwich chamber of commerce, in the National American Legion parade in Boston early this month.

BOY SCOUT PILGRIMAGE ON ROOSEVELT'S BIRTHDAY

One week from today, on Saturday, October 25, thousands of Boy Scouts in all parts of the United States will celebrate the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, who during his life-time was chief scout citizen. According to the Norwich scout headquarters it is planned that a patrol of uniformed scouts from this council make the pilgrimage. Scouts wishing to make the trip should turn in their applications to scout headquarters Monday. If the scouts go they will have to leave Norwich early Saturday morning to get to Stamford by 10 to take the boat. Due to the length of the journey it is planned to remain overnight in Stamford and a letter received Friday from the Stamford council states that Scoutmaster Harold Carpenter of Troop 2 will make such arrangements for the scouts.

Cuts Fine Dahlias

From the 80 or more hills of dahlias in the garden at 146 Laurel Hill avenue, long the pride of her uncle, the late Patrolman John Irish, Miss Iola Belle Roath has been cutting some handsome blooms this week. Among the big and perfect specimens are Jersey beauty, a delicate rose pink; Waterman Wilcox, a rich maroon; Pride of California, orchid and lavender; Tryphenie, shell pink; Constance, light buff with orange center; Dr. Tevis, magenta; Aurora borealis, shades of magenta with white rays; millionaire, delicate orchid; champagne, light buff, and others. The size of the blooms is remarkable, in a dry year when the hills could not be watered.

Annual Series of Union Meetings

The joint committee of ministers and the Y. M. C. A. workers have been very fortunate in securing the very popular Dr. Charles E. Jefferson of New York city to deliver the addresses in the annual series this season. Instead of holding these meetings in the spring, it was thought best this season to arrange them for the fall, consequently the series will be held on November 16 to 21 inclusive.

It will be remembered that Dr. Jefferson gave the series of addresses a few years ago, and no series through the years had quite the influence upon the people of Norwich as these did, so that the return of Dr. Jefferson will be very acceptable.

ANSWERS OPPONENTS OF YANTIC RIVER CHANGE

James Mahoney and other property owners abutting on the west branch of the Yantic river are opposing the application of the Edward Chappell company for federal permission to construct a wharf, which it is claimed would narrow the channel to 40 feet. In a letter to the chamber of commerce committee from Edwin W. Higgins, counsel for Mr. Mahoney, James C. E. Leach and other opponents of the Chappell petition, the attorney inquired what the attitude of the chamber of commerce would be and stated that it seemed to his clients that public convenience and necessity do not warrant the proposed narrowing of the channel that serious results may follow through freshet periods, and that it is a step backward.

Christopher M. Gallup, who was chairman of the chamber of commerce committee, which received Attorney Higgins' letter, has answered it as follows:

"Your inquiry of Tuesday arrives just as I am completing my term as chairman of the chamber of commerce committee on the Thames river deepening. It is being referred to the new committee for consideration in due course.

"With such reference goes a reminder that the chamber of commerce is on record as favoring the development of terminal facilities in Norwich commensurate with the 18 foot channel nearing completion, such facilities being of great probable benefit to the community.

"After looking into the Yantic river situation with some care, I am convinced that the impartial army engineers could readily formulate a plan for treating all the riparian owners equitably.

"Personally and quite unofficially therefore, I consider the public and militant disagreement of said owners as unfortunate for Norwich. It seems quite likely to postpone any improvement of the Yantic river indefinitely; but perhaps, after all, that is the real objective your clients have been seeking."

Moving Picture Service at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

The second half of the impressive moving picture titled "Noah's Ark," which pleased the audience that saw the first half last Sunday, will be shown tomorrow in the big gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. at 4 o'clock. This uplifting and interesting production is one of the finest of the high class picture features, and those who see it will doubtless greatly appreciate the splendid lesson it teaches. It is not the Bible narrative of Noah's Ark, but parts of the narrative are brought in as the Chaplain endeavors to help and encourage the troubled folks he is dealing with.

The lesson of the picture is one of courage, friendship and real inspiration. The adult public is cordially invited and youth fifteen and over will be admitted. Parents may bring boys and girls down to eleven, but those under fifteen must have parents or guardians with them. Waldo Newbury will furnish timely music for the occasion.

Thieves Entered Through Window

Complaint was lodged Friday with the local police that four cartons of cigarettes and two large packages of candy were stolen from the Connecticut Popcorn Co. 82 Water street, sometime Thursday night. A rear window in the store was forced. Some of the stock in the store was upset.

FITCH HIGH MAKES FIRST APPEARANCE AT ACADEMY CAMPUS THIS AFTERNOON

Robert Fitch of Groton, the newest but not the worst high school football team in Eastern Connecticut, faces the Academy this afternoon at the campus and has high hopes of giving the Wildcats a very busy afternoon. While the respective sizes of the two schools or merits of their teams points to nothing but an N. F. A. victory, the boroughites hope to make matters close and give the Red and Whiters no kind of an easy afternoon.

After their 28 to 0 setback from Harding last Saturday, the Academy is in no gentle mood, however, and is only waiting for the whistle to take it out on someone. That defeat broke a four-game winning streak compiled by the Academy over parts of two seasons, the last two games in 1929 and the first two this year and they want to start another one today with a bang.

Coach Whitney will probably start the following lineup today: Sheridan and Fitzgerald at ends, Crowell and Cote at tackles, Capt. Stevens and Goldberg at guards, Abugie at center, Kictorac quarterback, Golembeskie, fullback and Geer, Cotter and Stockwell dividing time at the halfback posts.

Today's game does not count in the conference standing but it brings together a member of the Class A division, in the Academy in strength Fitch played Bulkeley, a Class A member a couple of weeks ago and was beaten, 19 to 6 and this game will also offer some means of comparison of the strength of the two old rivals this year. In its other two games, Fitch has beaten Killingly and tied Plainfield.

EDDIE KANE BOXING MANAGER IS DEAD

PETOSKEY, Mich., Oct. 17—(AP)—Eddie Kane, for nearly a quarter of a century a prominent figure in the world of sports, died in a hospital here tonight after a five days' illness with pneumonia.

Although only 42 years old, he had packed into his career a full quota of that reflected glory that comes to the men behind sport spectacles. Most of his managerial career was allied with the boxing arena, with Mike and Tommy Gibbons and Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion, his most famous proteges. He broke with Mandell after the bout of last summer in which Al Singer won the title.

Before invading the boxing game, Kane had managed Jake Schaeffer and Willie Hoppe, two of the most colorful and most successful exponents of professional billiards.

Kane gained national notice several years ago when he matched Tom Gibbons to fight Jack Dempsey in Shelby, Mont., for the world's heavyweight championship. Gibbons agreed to accept a percentage of the receipts but they were not sufficient to pay the amount of money guaranteed the champion and Gibbons fought Dempsey for nothing.

Kane's reply to criticism was characteristic of him. "We did not fail our friends," he said, "friendship means much more than money."

He visited Tom and Mike Gibbons in St. Paul last week and contracted a cold on a motor trip back to his summer home on Burt lake at Topinabee, Mich., which developed into pneumonia.

He is survived by his father, Frank Kane, of Washington, D. C., and a son, William, 20 years old, of Chicago.

Funeral arrangements have not been made but burial probably will be in Washington, D. C., where he was born.

MAYS POUNDS OUT EASY VICTORY OVER PILKINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 17—Bobby Mays, Connecticut lightweight champion, pounded and jabbed out an easy ten round victory over Jackie Pilkington of Meriden in the main bout at the Thames Arena here tonight. Mays took every round with the exception of the first which went to Pilkington by virtue of his aggressive infighting. Pilkington tried hard in every round but Mays' left-handed style of boxing put him at a sad disadvantage. Mays drove Pilkington to his knees twice during the bout.

Joe Russo of Westerly got revenge over Johnny Woods of New York by taking a clean cut decision in a bout that was lacking in interest. In a previous bout at Taftville Woods won by a wide margin.

Sid Taylor upheld the honor of the Coast Guard when he took the verdict in a fast six round bout with Johnny Mack of New Haven. Taylor took practically every round from the New Haven mauler.

Artie Weinberg of New York stopped Tony Lizzio of Westerly in the third round of a scheduled six round preliminary. Weinberg proved too clever and too hard for the Westerly youth.

In the opener Carmen Knapp of New Haven took a four-round decision from Jimmy Kearns of New London.

HELEN WILLS TO REMAIN IN CALIFORNIA TO REST

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, women's tennis champion, today affirmed her intention of remaining in California for the next few months and playing only exhibition tennis.

She set at rest published reports she had intended playing in matches in South America, saying she had received an invitation too late to accept.

"I understand reservations were made for me on a steamer," she said, "but they were made without my knowledge pending my acceptance or declining of the invitation."

Mrs. Moody is to play an exhibition match in Stockton, Calif., next week.

MAY E. GRATTAN SETS NEW WORLD'S MARK

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 17—(AP)—May E. Grattan, world's champion pacing mare, set a new world's record for pacing on a half mile track today by running a heat at the state fair races in 2:01. She was driven by C. Earl Pittman, of Trenton, N. J.

May E. Grattan set the world's record for pacing mares on half mile tracks when she ran a heat at Reading, Pa., several weeks ago in 2:01 1-4.

The races at the state fair are sanctioned by the National Trotting association and fair officials said the record would be official.

OCKFORDS CLASH WITH MILFORD A. C. SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 17—The Ockfords, who are providing fans of New London county with their only semi-pro football this season, take on another Massachusetts eleven Sunday at Mercer field in the Milford A. C. of Milford. The Ockfords have one victory and two ties as their record so far this season and expect a stern tussle with the Bay Staters.

SUAREZ BEATS KAPLAN IN MEDIOCRE BOUT

By EDWARD J. NEIL

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)— Justo Suarez, South America's bid for lightweight fame and glory, passed another hurdle tonight along the road to a championship match with Al Singer. The aggressive Argentine won the decision from Louis Kid Kaplan after ten rounds of desultory milling but the show failed to please a crowd of 11,000 in Madison Square Garden.

The short-armed Kaplan, once the featherweight champ and for years a sturdy, crowd-pleasing lightweight, made a gallant fight, pressing the black-thatched South American in the early rounds as no one else has been able to do in four previous matches here. He baffled Suarez by sticking to him like a bumble-bee, annoying him with his bobbing and weaving and short, "sneak" punches that usually collided with Justo's short ribs or long chin.

For three rounds the little Meriden buzzsaw handled the situation perfectly but he could not keep the pace from then on. To save his waning strength, he could fight only in spurts and in between times. Kaplan held and clinched until the crowd hooted and whistled in disgust. But tired as he became, Kaplan still was smart enough to evade most of Suarez's heftiest wallops, making the South American miss scores of punches by bobbing low, and his manner of warfare added little to Justo's appearance as a fighter.

The battle was waged almost entirely at close quarters, a tiresome sort of milling that appealed little to the crowd. Once Kaplan had shot his major bolt by winning the first two rounds handily and holding Suarez even in the third, he clowned and annoyed the Argentine but accomplished little more. Suarez won the third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh rounds with a strenuous attack that left Kaplan bleeding freely from an old cut on the bridge of the nose. Kaplan won the eighth with a desperate rally and held his own in the ninth, but the younger, stronger Suarez came on to take the final round handily.

Suarez weighed 137 1-2 pounds; Kaplan, 135.

Bell Defeats Pena

Archie Bell, New York bantamweight, won the decision over Johnny Pena of Spain in an eight round return engagement that served as a semi-final to the Suarez-Kaplan match in Madison Square Garden tonight. Bell proved too smart and fast for the Spaniard and piled up a wide margin in points. There were no knockdowns. Bell weighed 120 1-2; Pena, 121 1-4. Their first match here was a draw.

Koli Kola, crack Porto Rican featherweight, lost his first fight in the United States to Jimmy Slavin of New York in an eight rounder. Slavin won on a technical knockout in the fifth round. There were no knockdowns but Koli Kola was helpless on his feet when the referee stepped in. Slavin weighed 129 1-4; Kola 128 1-2.

Johnny La Boa, 128 1-4, Waterbury, Conn., outpointed Paolo Villa, 130 1-2, New York, in one four rounder, and Tommy Palacio, 112 3-4, New Castle, Pa., outpointed Al Ragone, 115 1-2, New York, in another.

MISS COLLETT TO MEET MISS VAN WIE IN FINALS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Defending titleholder and four times winner of the crown, Miss Glenna Collett, New York city, will meet Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, in tomorrow's 36-hole finals of the 1930 women's national amateur golf championship.

Shooting the superb match play golf that has made her the foremost woman player in the country, Miss Collett defeated Miss Helen Hicks, Inwood, N. Y., 5 and 3, today in the semi-finals. The defending champion stepped out to win the first three holes and maintained her lead throughout. She was two up at the turn, shooting a 38, one under par, to 42 for her 19-year-old opponent.

Miss Van Wie took the measure of Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City medalist, 2 and 1, in a fiercely fought match. Mrs. Hill made a spectacular but futile rally on the closing holes.

Four down at the 13th, Mrs. Hill won back the next two holes but her rival coasted in to win with halves on the 16th and 17th. Neither Miss Van Wie nor Mrs. Hill played the golf they are capable of today. The former had a 41 for the first nine while Mrs. Hill posted a poor 44.

It will be the second meeting in the finals of Miss Collett and Miss Van Wie. Miss Collett defeated the Chicagoan, 13 and 12, in 1928.

FRIEDMAN AIDS STEVENS IN POLISHING YALE TEAM

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Coach Mal Stevens during a light workout today in which he was assisted by Benny Friedman, former Michigan star, wound up his preparations for tomorrow's football game with Brown by juggling Yale's backfield material around some more.

With two quarterbacks, McLennan and Heim, on the injured list, Stevens is expected to start Wiener, fourth ranking signal caller. The rest of the starting backfield will include Beane, Taylor and Muhlfeld.

There is a likelihood that Stevens may decide at the last minute to break a two-year precedent tomorrow by starting Albie Booth's group of ball carriers rather than taking a chance on Wiener. Booth's backfield today included Austen, Dunn and Crowley.

Flygare will start at left end for Lindenberg, who is also on the injured list.

During the greater part of today's workout, Friedman, who has made periodical visits to the Yale camp this season, showed the squad something about the forward pass. A short signal drill completed the practice.

Tomorrow's game, the 35th encounter between these rivals is expected to be played before a record Yale-Brown crowd. The contest is scheduled for 2 p. m.

LOTT BEATS HAWK IN GREENBRIER FINALS

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 17.—(AP)—George M. Lott, Jr., Davis cup player of Chicago, defeated Dr. P. M. Hawk, New York, in the finals of the Greenbrier Autumn tennis tournament, here today, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Mrs. P. M. Hawk, New York, and Mrs. Barbara Duffy, Cleveland, defeated Miss Florence LeBoutillier, New York, and Miss Lee Anderson, Chicago, in the women's doubles finals, 6-2, 6-2.

Mrs. Hawk and Mrs. Duffy will meet in the final match of the women's singles tomorrow.

Oh, what a thrill it is to hear the deep baying of the hounds in pursuit of a fast fleeing fox.

Yes, it may be a thrill to the dyed-in-the-wool fox hunter but to us of the uninitiated it is just a coupla dogs howling in the woods.

And besides what good is a fox after 50 or 60 dogs have sunk their teeth in it. Why, it looks like a porous plaster and would not even make one of those choker pieces.

They tell me that to the winner of the hunt goes the brush. The brush you know is the tail of the fox. Now what could a person do with a tail of a fox?

But up in Pomfret during the past week there have been nearly a hundred men and women who think that chasing after a dog which is chasing after a fox is the acme of sport.

And talk about rivalry between the owners of the hounds. Why two people have been known to cut each other dead just because one made the remark that the other's hounds couldn't follow a fox if they were tied to him.

And brag about their hounds. Say, these fox hunters make you fishermen look like kindergarteners in the art of telling fairy tales. If there's any medals to be given out they oughta go to the fox hunter.

Here's one I heard a fox hunter telling another fox hunter about his dog: "Say," said the first fox hunter, "you know that black and white and tan hound I got from the south last season? Well, he's just about the fastest hound on four legs that I ever saw. I'll tell you what he did the other day. I was giving him a little workout in the woods when we started a fox, it was a red fox, too, (Red foxes are supposed to be faster than any other color fox.) Well, this hound of mine started after him and around and around they went with my hound so close to the fox that I had to call him off because the fox's tail was continually getting in the hound's throat and I was afraid it would choke the dog."

"Yeah? That's pretty good, but you know that dog of mine? Well, I was out one day and we started a red fox, too. The hound put after the fox and the fox streaked it for his hole in the ledges. Well, that dog of mine seemed to know what the fox was going to do so he just put on a burst of speed and passed the fox. When the dog got to the hole he turned around and backed into the hole. Well, when the fox ran into the hole he ran right into the dog's arms and it was all over for Mr. Fox."

Some dogs, what?

KOZAK BATTLES TURNESA IN METRO PRO FINALS

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Walter Kozak, 21-year-old defending champion from Douglaston, N. Y., and Joe Turnesa, veteran Elmsford player, again fought their way into the finals of the Metropolitan Professional Golfers' association championship tournament today. They will meet in the 36-hole final tomorrow over the Dedney Farms Country club course.

Kozak and Turnesa fought it out for the coveted title last year, with the youthful pro from Douglaston winning 3 and 1. Of the two Kozak had the much harder time getting into the final round. He was forced to go the full route of 18 holes before eliminating Alex Watson, of Yonkers, 2 up in the semi-final match, while Turnesa turned back Gene Sarazen, a semi-finalist last year, four and three.

Watson fought the champion stroke for stroke during the first nine holes, both touring the outward nine in 38, but Kozak held a one-hole advantage at the turn. Watson never was able to pull up even, coming home in 38 to Kozak's 37.

Turnesa held a two-hole lead over Sarazen as they made the turn and then finished the match on the 15th green.

Kozak-Watson's cards:

Kozak—Out	545 434 364—38
Watson—Out ...	543 444 455—38
Kozak—In	343 454 554—37—75
Watson—In	443 445 455—38—76

FOGARTY NOT TO START AGAINST YALE

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Bob Chase, sophomore, will start at right halfback in place of Captain Fogarty in the Yale game tomorrow at New Haven, it was announced by Coach Tuss McLaughry at the close of practice for the Brown squad here today. Chase has starred in the three games played by the team to date and was largely responsible for the touchdown scored by Brown that enabled the Bears to defeat Princeton, last Saturday. No other changes are to be made and the rest of the team will be the same that started against Princeton.

The practice session today consisted of a long signal drill. A squad of 50 men will make the trip to New Haven, tomorrow morning, on a special train. The starting lineup will be:

Schneider at center; Gillies and Mackesey, guards; Schein and Richardson, tackles; Johnson and Ferrebee, ends; Gurll, quarterback; Chase and Gilmartin, halfbacks; Rotelli, fullback.

HARVARD-ARMY SHARES INTEREST WITH NOTRE DAME-CARNEGIE TILT

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The tramp of Army on the march against Harvard and the surge of the Tartan array of Carnegie Tech into the camp of Notre Dame at South Bend caught the imagination of the east today as the fourth Saturday of the pigskin season brought major elevens face to face.

Intersectional clashes colored with the promise of sensational play and duels of ancient foes stud tomorrow's gridiron card all along the eastern seaboard.

Harvard's sensational sophomores now have grown to juniors and are slightly favored to turn back a veteran "Kaydet" line and yearling backfield that is playing a western style of football newly adopted at West Point. Army cannot call upon the fleet Red Cagle and burly Hertz Murrell but has a surprise package for Harvard in a new ball-toting trio, Cy Letzelter, Ed Herb and Ken Fields.

Joining Carnegie on the mid-western front, Pennsylvania's hidden ball magicians carry the eastern fight to Wisconsin at Madison, while another sturdy Colgate squad invades East Lansing for a go at Michigan State. New York university, another squad relying on sophomore ball carriers, plays the role of defenders against a comparatively weak Missouri team in the Yankee stadium.

Meanwhile Yale, already beaten by Georgia but always more and more dangerous as the campaign rolls along, trots into the bowl at New Haven to face a powerful Brown eleven that defeated Princeton last Saturday. With little Albie Booth slated for a full performance, the Elis seem to have an edge on the Brunonians.

Princeton's Tigers entertain the rising might of Cornell with less than an even chance of victory. Columbia, harassed by lack of numbers but presenting a strong first team headed by one crack back, Ralph ("Wabbles") Hewitt, tackles the high scoring Dartmouth Indians in their stronghold in the Hanover hills.

One of the fiercest duels of the day is scheduled at Syracuse, where Pittsburgh and the Orange host of Vic Hanson clash in a struggle that brings together two exceptionally strong elevens. Fordham seeks its second victory of the week against Holy Cross at Worcester after downing Boston college Monday by the margin of a field goal. Navy, recovering from the Notre Dame defeat, faces Duke at Annapolis, Md.

Lafayette against Penn State, Temple against Washington and Jefferson, Villanova against Boston college, Lehigh against Gettysburg, furnish the high lights of the day's campaign in Pennsylvania, while Georgetown seeks revenge for last season's defeat in a return battle with Western Maryland at Baltimore. University of Maryland has minor opposition in St. Johns of Maryland at College Park, Md. Rutgers and Johns Hopkins tangle at Brunswick, N. J.

The smaller colleges of New England carry on their major offensive in engagements such as Williams-Hobart, Bowdoin-Tufts, Rhode Island-Bates, Amherst-Worcester Poly, Boston university-Middlebury, Springfield-Lebanon Valley, Colby-Lowell Tech, Vermont-Union, New Hampshire-Maine.

FAST SOCCER GAME AT MARTIN FIELD ON SUNDAY

A torrid game is expected to be played at the J. B. Martin grounds Sunday afternoon, when the J. B. Martin and Plainfield teams, tied for first place in the Eastern Connecticut Soccer league, attempt to break the deadlock. The Taftville team, composed of some of the best players in this section of the state, is confident that it will gain undisputed possession of first place, while the upstate boys are equally confident that they can do the trick.

The Taftville manager will choose his team from the following players: Jarvis, McDonald, Labenski, Roehead, Erickson, Houston, Rick, Orcutt, Headen, Edmonds, Thompson (capt.), Archibald, Seidel, Alexander and Lynas. The kickoff will be at 2:30 o'clock.

WESTERLY BEATS BULKELEY BY POINT AFTER TOUCHDOWN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 17.—Westerly High, Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island conference champs, took another step in the direction of retention of their title this afternoon at Mercer field when they shaded Bulkeley 7 to 6 in one of the hardest fought games of the high school campaign. Bulkeley had scored in the first quarter and with a six-point margin, looked fairly safe, but, as in the Windham game last week, Westerly staged an uphill fight and Stenhouse went over for a touchdown and rushed for the precious extra point in the third quarter.

Westerly also took a close decision over Bulkeley in the cross-country run held between the two halves, coming out ahead by 26 to 27. Bulkeley placed the first two men, but Westerly piled up enough others in the important places to take the decision home with them.

HORWEEN INTIMATES HE WILL QUIT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The warning that Arnold Horween would retire from Harvard football at the end of the current college season, first voiced last fall when he signed a year's contract, was repeated here today when the Crimson coach described his 1930 varsity eleven as the "last Harvard team that I will send against the Army."

Horween, who has met with more than average success as commander of the Harvard football forces, was prepared to retire last fall, but he consented to return for another season only upon the urgent request of his friend and admirer, William J. Bingham, director of Harvard athletics.

WINDHAM AND STONINGTON IN GRID CLASH TODAY

H. W. Peters, vice-president in charge of distribution of Packard Motors, said that retail deliveries in September were 24 per cent ahead of August and deliveries in the first ten days of October indicate the current month will be equally as good and probably better than September.

F. D. Saylor, president of Canada Dry Gingerale, said the close of the company's fiscal year on Sept. 30 indicates that the sales for the last 12 months are only 2 per cent less than for the previous year. He added that profit for the year probably will be within 4 or 5 per cent of the preceding year.

With the posting for transfer of the New York Stock exchange membership of Van N. Cartmell, member of the firm of Hale, Waters & Co., the firm will automatically retire as a member of the exchange on consummation of the sale. The firm has been a member of the exchange only since last April, when Mr. Cartmell purchased his seat, and firm members state that their exchange business has been only a small proportion of total business. The firm plans to continue in the investment banking field, maintaining their branches and personnel intact.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Divergent trends marked the course of bonds today.

Foreign bonds, particularly Latin-Americans, shot upward under the influence of a strong demand that has shown no diminution throughout the week.

It was a different story with domestic bonds. U. S. governments were very firm, making further progress toward duplicating their highs of the year, but among corporation issues the preponderance of changes was on the downside. While their movement is influenced principally by conditions in the money market, bonds reflect to some degree any sharp reaction in shares. They did today, particularly railroad issues.

While highest grade issues fluctuated narrowly, second and third grade bonds sold off rather sharply, and stock privilege bonds lost ground. Activity was about the same as previous days of the week, total sales exceeding $11,000,000.

Most of the changes in railroad bonds were on the downside and as a group they showed the effect of selling more than utilities. Chicago & Northwestern bonds were weak, dropping 1 to 2 points, with the exception of the thinly traded issues. Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s, Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s, Erie 5s of 1967, Missouri Pacific 5s of 1977, and General 4s, St. Louis Southwestern 5s and Wabash 5s, declined about a point each. Chesapeake & Ohio 5s, Delaware & Hudson 4s, and New York Central 3 1-2s, however, were somewhat improved.

SPARK FROM PICK-AX IGNITES GAS BURNING NEW LONDON MAN IN TRENCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 17.—Arturo Pacci, 40, of 21 Smith street, employed as a laborer by the Connecticut Power Co. is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital tonight, suffering from injuries sustained in a peculiar manner. Pacci was at work in a trench on Montauk avenue, near the bridge which spans the tracks of the New Haven railroad. The power company has been engaged in making repairs on the avenue for several days and while Pacci was doing excavating work and wielding a pick-ax, the sharp point of the implement hit a stone which produced a spark. A leak existed in the main and the spark caused the gas fumes to ignite, so that Pacci sustained severe burns and lacerations of the head, face and arms. The ignition of the fumes also caused an explosion and with it the entire trench became a mass of flames, causing the ignited fumes to leap high into the air, some of the flames shooting up fully 30 feet. When Pacci was rescued from the trench and was found to be injured he was taken to the hospital, but a short distance away. In the meantime employes of the power company utilized the earth taken from the excavation, which they threw back into the opening, smothering the flames, besides covering the opening in the pipes where the gas was being emitted.

CHAMPION OF YOUNG WIFE GETS HIMSELF INTO TROUBLE

Anthony Skripsky and John Yurlchik, both residing on John street, were arrested tonight by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Dennis Murphy, charged with breach of the peace. Both were released upon furnishing a surety on their respective bonds of $100 and will be in the police court tomorrow. Skripsky, it is claimed, went to the residence of another Polander and there attempted familiarities with the wife of another occupant of the house, a woman about 25. Yurlchik went to the rescue of the young wife and a fight was precipitated in which Skripsky was administered a severe beating. While the fight was in progress the police were notified and the pair of battlers was arrested.

The only other arrest made tonight was that of a man found intoxicated on Union street and who was locked up by Patrolman Harold Goldberg. The offender will be in the police court tomorrow.

To Memorialize Dead

The local council of the Knights of Columbus has requested a memorial mass in St. Mary's Star of the Sea church Saturday morning for departed members of that council, inviting their relatives and friends to attend the service.

There was no session of the city court today, not a single arrest having been made during the past 36 hours.

The state police have been requested to be on the lookout for Elvyn Stoppord, 17, who ran away from his home, 266 East street, Woonsocket, R. I., yesterday. The boy is described as being about five feet, seven inches in height, has blue eyes and brown hair. He wore a black cap and shoes and brown suit.

A thief entered the Thompson Automobile company sales station, 289 Bank street last night, but so far as could be determined the crook did not obtain money or automobile accessories, for a check-up failed to reveal that cash or stock had been removed. It is believed that the crook was scared away shortly after he obtained entrance to the building by smashing a window on the north side.

ASSESSOR F. C. BURROWS' RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 17.—The personnel in the municipal building is to be cut down. At a meeting of the city council, sitting as a committee to discuss budget matters last night it was decided to accept the resignation of Assessor Frederick C. Burrows and to place him on the retired list. The retirement will become effective within a fortnight, it is understood, and Mr. Burrows will receive an annual pension of $1500, which amount is one-half his present salary. By the retirement of Mr. Burrows the business of the office of assessor will be handled in the future by Tax Collector J. Hull Manwaring and his force of assistants. The approval of the resignation will also bring about changes in the location of two offices in the building, for it was decided to transfer the office of the water and sewer department from the second floor to the offices on the first floor now occupied by the tax collector and assessor and the latter departments will go to the second floor offices to be vacated by the water and sewer departments. Mr. Burrows has been in the employ of the city about 30 years. The councilors also discussed the probability of the retirement of Lieutenant of Police James C. Sullivan and Patrolmen James McKenna and Walter Rehn. However, no definite action was taken, for the councilors decided to delay taking any action on the retirement of the officers until such time as a recommendation to do so was received from City Manager William A. Holt. Lieut. Sullivan has been a member of the department about 40 years. Patrolman McKenna has been absent from duty several weeks because of a diseased hip-bone and will continue to be incapacitated indefinitely. Patrolman Rehn is performing patrol duty daily, but has been a member of the department many years.

The councilors also decided to abolish the office of director of recreation and his assistants. The director is Robert C. Rice, who was employed only during the summer months and at an annual salary of $666.66.

RIDE AFTER DANCE RESULTS IN ARTHUR JOSEPH'S DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 17—Arthur Joseph, about 27, of 88 Bank street, was fatally injured and Harry Hicks, of Moore avenue and Charles Nathan, about 30, of 88 Bank street, all negroes were injured the last named probably fatally hurt, when the automobile in which they were riding early today was wrecked near South Glastonbury on the Hartford turnpike. Two other occupants of the car, both colored, one a negress, sustained only slight injuries. Joseph died from a fractured skull at Hartford hospital, and Hicks and Nathan are patients at the institution, the former suffering from a fractured arm and the latter from internal injuries. He has been placed on the critical list. The accident is being investigated by Sheriff Enders of Glastonbury.

The negroes and their female companion attended a dance here Thursday night and while in a State street restaurant at 3:30 o'clock this morning decided to go to Hartford. The five entered Hick's Essex coach and the trip to Hartford was started. Hicks was driving and he operated the car at a fast rate of speed. When the auto was traveling close to 50 miles an hour near South Glastonbury, Hicks lost control of the steering wheel. The machine left the highway and turned over several times with the occupants prisoners in the front and rear. When passing autoists went to the assistance of the New Londoners it was evident that Joseph and Nathan were seriously injured and the two men together with Hicks were hurried to the Hartford hospital. Joseph lingered but a short time.

ORDER OF BLACK SHIRTS DENIED CHARTER IN GA.

ATLANTA, Oct. 17.— (AP) — The American fascisti order of black shirts, which petitioned for incorporation in Georgia and listed among its purposes the promotion of "white supremacy," was denied a charter in Fulton county superior court today.

Judge G. H. Howard, in denying the charter, said some acting members of the order apparently misunderstood the term "white supremacy" and had petitioned for a charter authorizing "both legal and illegal acts."

The American fascisti order of black shirts, which was chartered at Orlando, Fla., and which intervened in Fulton county to oppose the charter for the Georgia order, was enjoined from operating in Fulton county.

ROGERS DECLARES COUNTRY ROADS WILL BE IMPROVED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WATERFORD, Oct. 17—Lieutenant Governor Ernest E. Rogers appeared tonight as the speaker in a rally in the town where he was born and declared that the problem of making rural roads passable will be worked out by the republican party to the satisfaction of the citizens of Connecticut.

Tonight's meeting, presided over by Thomas A. Woodworth, town chairman, was for members of the republican town committee, party workers and their friends.

His address in part follows:

"The question of rural roads is one which has created considerable interest in this campaign. I should like to outline for you a brief history of our highway development, because it has a decided bearing on the present pledge of the republican party to tackle the problem of the dirt roads.

"Many years ago when the old highway commission was in existence, there was little or no system about road building. All over the state there would be small stretches of paved roads, most of them in central areas in the towns, beginning almost anywhere, ending almost anywhere and connecting with nowhere. When Commissioner James H. MacDonald, a stalwart republican, conceived the idea of joining up these various disconnected portions of roadway into a continuous whole in one place and another, towns objected to the cost and the problem required considerable careful development. Mr. MacDonald at that time finally succeeded in starting what is now our trunk line system of highways. Various roads were connected and from centers of population, highways were built. It is needless for me in this brief presentation to describe minutely the present-day developments because you all know them.

"Obviously it was fundamental that we should construct our present modern concrete highways between the larger centers of population. Obviously we should provide service to the grestest number of people. It is interesting to note that since our present highway commissioner, John A. MacDonald, has been in office we have developed what is beyond question the finest roadway system in the country. Our trunk line roads today are so well constructed that even though additional mileage is added to the system each year the general maintenance costs vary very little from year to year. We will build not only more roads but better constructed roads each year.

"Having developed our trunk line system to its proper state, three years ago the republican administration in Connecticut believed in the immediate development of the secondary or state-aid roads. A million dollars a year was appropriated for this purpose. The amount of money spent for state aid roads last year was far more than double this amount. The state-aid road appropriation is self accumulating and there is no question in my mind but that next year we shall probably spend about $3,000,000 under this item.

"Now we are in a position to not only consider substantial appropriations for rural road work but our platform pledges us to this. Actual and tangible plans will be worked out in the coming legislature and by the highway department.

"The problem of making rural roads passable to main arteries of traffic throughout the year and the connecting of these roads with present state-aid and trunk line highways will be worked out to the satisfaction of our citizens and, due to our 'pay-as-you-go' policy will carry with it no burden whatever upon any taxpayer in the state, because as we have done in the past, we will pay for this work as it is done.

"The development of our present highways has brought attractive homes and substantial improvements along these roadways and added to the permanent wealth and the value of the taxable property in the state. With the history of republican achievement in highway construction and with the present country-wide reputation of our present highway department and its executives, we need have no fear of the development of the rural road problem. I am sure Connecticut is satisfied that the republican administration which will be elected on November 4th will do this job to the satisfaction of everybody concerned."

Other speakers were Sheriff George H. Bradford, Curtis Brown of Colchester, 20th district candidate for senator, Stanley Morgan, Waterford candidate for representative and Col. W. Ellery Allyn, former representative.

An investigation by the United States bureau of standards, to provide a safe basis for building chimneys, indicates that a designer is safe if he calculates a wind pressure of twenty pounds a square foot based on a wind speed of 100 miles an hour.

FLOOD OF SALES SENT PRICES LOWER IN LAST HOUR OF THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Large wedges of selling orders driven into the shaky stock market today split 2 to 6 points from quotations on active shares and broke the general price level to the lowest of the year.

After drifting quietly lower through the forenoon and early afternoon, the market was hit heavily by liquidation in the last hour, when a million shares changed hands, bringing the total turnover to 2,650,160 shares. The late selling appeared to include large offerings by the supposedly pacified bears, for it reached its peak in the last quarter hour of the session, an interval in which bears are frequently active.

Closing prices were the lowest and scores of issues, including General Electric, General Motors, New York Central, Sears Roebuck, American Water Works, International Harvester and Westinghouse Electric, went to new minimums.

Throughout the five hours the tone was decisively heavy and rallying tendencies were negligible, although the day's news contained little that could be interpreted unfavorably. Reports from brokerage houses that insurance companies, among other large holders, were liquidating investment rails, together with further reports of price cutting in the mid-continent oil field and a general lack of interest in the buying side of the market, hardly had a stabilizing effect on sentiment, however, and whatever short selling there was met little opposition.

Stocks moved against the trend of the commodities. Wheat closed about half a cent higher in sympathy with the steadiness of Liverpool. Corn's advances were similar, reflecting bullish weather reports and smaller receipts, while cotton ended a quiet day 1 point higher to 1 lower.

The weekly business reviews were unable to report much indication of a change in either direction. Dun's said the instability of commodity prices continued to have "much influence in maintaining industry in a rather neutral position," although it also stated that although trade movements were still somewhat uncertain, "there is less hesitancy in a number of branches."

The announcement that the white house, where several prominent figures in industry have been recent visitors, saw indications of a business revival bore out some of the week's statistical disclosures.

In the absence of a sustained demand from commerce, money rates are easing. Day loans were offered at 1 1-2 per cent outside the stock exchange, which held its own quotation at 2 per cent. Prospects of rather large gold imports in the near future point to continued easiness in money here.

Weakness in stocks was distributed without partiality, although the utilities showed the largest average break, just over 8 points in 20 stocks. The composite for the general market slumped 5.7 to 136.3 against the previous 1930 low of 140.

Allied Chemical's loss of 16 3-4 was the most spectacular, but many prominent shares lost 6, among them Atchison, R. H. Macy, Eastman Kodak, Jenney, Ingersoll Rand, Colorado Fuel, Westinghouse and American Water Works. There were 4 to 5-point declines in U. S. Steel, which closed a point above the year's low, Union Carbide, Case, International Harvester, Johns-Manville, Loew's, Standard Gas & Electric, Consolidated Gas, Vanadium, American Can and Gillette. General Motors broke 1 3-4 to 33 5-8 and General Electric 2 1-2 to 51 3-8. Stocks losing 2 to 3 also included Standard Oil of N. J., New York Central, Bethlehem Steel, Montgomery Ward, Radio and Sears Roebuck.

Foreign exchanges were again firm, with small changes in the leading European currencies.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The curb market crumpled under light but persistent selling pressure today, which, reaching a climax in the last hour, drove many shares down 1 to 5 points or more to new lows. Trading was dull until late in the session, and total sales aggregated only 575,100 shares.

Electric Bond & Share was actively sold, dropping nearly 5 points to 52, a new low for the year, and only 2 points above the low of last November. This active issue has frequently been a favorite bear target. American Gas & Electric dropped more than 4 to a new low at 93. American & Foreign Power warrants lost 3, and shares losing a point or two included American Super Power, American Light & Traction, Middle West Utilities and United Light A. Insull Utility Investment and International Super Power, however, each gained about a point in a few sales.

Oils were depressed by further weakness in crude oil price. Gulf and Vacuum declined about 3 to new lows, although the latter recovered slightly. Humble sagged about a point to a new minimum, and Cities Service lost as much. In the natural gas group, Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line sagged below 10 for the first time. In the mining issues, Newmont dropped 3, and Mayflower, an investment trust with extensive mining stock holdings, 2 points, to new lows.

Some of the less active industrials broke sharply. Aluminum Co. dropped 11 1-2 to a new bottom at 160 1-2. Driver Harris tumbled 7 to a new low at 35.

Atlas Plywood, Bigelow-Hartford Carpet and Cooper Bessemer were other issues penetrating new low ground. Pratt & Lambert, however, closed 2 points higher, and U. S. Playing Card mounted 5. Noma Electric gained a point. Investment trusts were largely under pressure, although Shenandoah gained a point in a moderate turnover. Prince & Whitely issues again reacted, losing most of the previous day's gains.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct 17.—(AP)—Increasing evidence of acutely adverse conditions for huge amounts of unthreshed wheat in Canada did much to turn grain prices upward here today. There were also indications of rapidly mounting use of U. S. wheat as feed for livestock. Illinois reports said farmers who had wheat stored in elevators were hauling it back to farms to meet livestock requirements.

Both wheat and corn after rising about 2c a bushel over the day's bottom level, closed unsettled, with wheat 1-4a7-8c higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed at 5-8a1 1-4c net gain, oats varying from 1-4c decline to 1-4c advance, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 20c.

The provisions market sagged under scattered selling, despite upturns in hog values.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES.

HEPATICA: Letter sent as requested.

MRS. J. M. C.: Letter sent as requested.

MELKSHAM: Many thanks. They are most attractive.

GET BOOKS TO READ AGAIN AND AGAIN.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Every Saturday as I read our page I think of many things I would like to write, not the least among them being thanks for so many helps and so much of entertainment in the splendid letters we have had. I have enjoyed the trips described both hereabouts and abroad and as I do not have the opportunity to "trip it" much these descriptions of scenery, building and so farth, have been a real joy to me. Also I was glad to see so much about antiques and curios. I must not forget to express my appreciation to Pernickety and Sister Rhody for the generous packet of seeds which I trust will provide me with many blossoms in due time. I wonder who these sisters really are. I guess they live only a few miles north of me.

Last evening I brought home from church some beautiful pink dahlia blossoms from the garden of Auntie Jane. Jack Frost has been lenient with us this year. It seems wonderful that plants could furnish such an abundance of bloom when they have had so little water to drink.

I attended the meeting of Club No. 2 at the B. M. in September and of Club No. 5 in October and had a very enjoyable time but missed seeing a few special friends I had hoped to see there.

I am reading for the third time the three volumes of the Life and Work of Susan B. Anthony by Ida H. Harper. Originally there were but two volumes but a third was added. It seems to me that of all the hundreds of books I have read these are the most satisfying. Some women hesitate to start volume one because there are two volumes to follow but I assure you when you are once nicely started on the first volume your only regret will be that there are not four or five more instead of only two. This is a work that should be much more widely read than it has been for it is the story of the evolution of the status of women and I can promise you that if you carefully read these three volumes you will be overflowing with worthwhile information when they are completed and fired with enthusiasm for improving life's opportunities as you never were before. You will exclaim with the poet, "Let us then be up and doing!" I do hope I may get a report later from some of you on this work. I think it is in most libraries, too often I fear in some dark corner and too seldom on a display shelf. I had it from the Otis library in Norwich and also from the library here in Plainfield.

Do any of you read the Forum Magazine? The Century and the Forum are now one but the Forum is the one it seems to me. There are articles in this monthly that will cause your gray matter to increase and help you to keep abreast of truth which is some job. Our reading room here formerly had the Century but not the Forum so it was a great day for me when the former was absorbed in the latter.

In an article in a club paper which I read recently on the proper use of leisure time I was much impressed by this thought. We can not always be judged by the work we do to gain our livelihood as it frequently happens we are compelled to do labor which we cordially dislike but our avocations, that is, what we do in our leisure hours, how we play then, what we read then, what sort of companions we choose then show what we really are. A few weeks ago while browsing about in a bookstore I was surprised to see what splendid offerings in books there are now for only one dollar. Many of us can afford to buy very few even at that low price so one should be careful to buy wisely. It seems to me that book lovers who must count their pennies should never buy the kind of books which one enjoys reading once and only once but only those which one wants to read again and again, to pick up for a few minutes every now and then and which one finds fascinating at whatever page he happens to turn to. The first kind of book a poor person cannot afford to buy but on the other hand he cannot afford not to buy a few of this latter kind. Those letters about making useful things of castoffs were certainly stimulating to the natural ability for such work that lies in most of us. If dormant, such letters help to enliven it and translate it into action. With a cordial welcome to newcomers, sympathy to those enduring illness or any special sorrow and greetings to you all.

OUR SUNDAY DRIVE.

Dear Sisters and Editor: Thought I would write to the Corner page. Last Sunday after going to early church I packed lunch and we took "Aunt Betty" and husband for a long ride. Went over the new Pendleton Hill road to Voluntown, out through Plainfield to Danielson, around by Hampton we stopped and had our dinner on a large flat rock, by having an electric cooker we had a nice warm dinner. We stopped at Clarks Corner to call on our cousin at North Windham and took the new road to Windham Center. There we made a wrong turn, taking an oiled road. After a couple of miles we came to a dirt road, rode up hill and down dale, found curves for several miles and came out at Scotland. There we turned to the right and after going five miles we were out of gas. Husband hailed a car to ask about a gas station. The next I saw he was getting in the car and off he went. He was gone and gone. Our friend said, I guess he has eloped with those ladies; there were four of them. After a half hour he came back with the garage man with gas and oil. He had to go back ten miles as the gas station on this road believes in keeping part of the Sabbath. It happened that the ladies and garage man were grangers. We arrived home at 6 p. m., tired and happy. As Stepelia says, the woods and hillsides are grand. They will look just as glorious in the springtime when they are coming to life with leaves and blossoms, the handiwork of God but never twice alike.

Through the courtesy of Milky Way, Sumac, Dorothy Bradford and myself attended New London county Pomona grange meeting today at Norwich Town.

Necia: Sorry, too, about the last. Never mind, it will come out right. Ha! Ha!

E. L. M.: A while back you asked about my name, if it was a family name. No, it is not. My Uncle Delos named me for a lady friend of his whom he would have married if he had lived.

I have enjoyed reading about the different sisters' gardens. Mine has done very good, not having had any water. I don't know how any flowers have lived this year. Weeds have thrived just as if they had plenty of water.

Whirlwind: Hub says, Hello.

BEERS (Club No. 6)

AN ENJOYED RECEPTION.

Dear Social Corner Friends: It looks as if the dry weather has dried up pens and pencils. I am just going to pray for rain, not that our well is dry, but there are so many that have to carry water for their cattle, and I really think they drink more in a dry time.

I went to a reception on the home coming of the minister and wife of the Methodist church. He had been away since June and came back the middle of September. He was visiting holy lands. His wife stayed in England visiting her sister. It was very interesting to hear him tell of the different places. He brought home 200 postcard views and a few larger pictures, also many other things, including some beautiful cameo pins, tapestry runners with the pictures of camels with people either riding or walking beside them, a beautiful silk table cover, some squares that look like napkins woven fine in colors, and many other things. He also dressed so we could see how the shieks dress. He first put on a long coat with colors of red, yellow and brown stripes and over this he put on a thin light green silk coat with gold. It looked as if it was stamped on it some way—anyway it was pretty. Over his head he put a square to match the coat and had it come down on his forehead, with a ring over his head to hold it on, and a girdle around him. He said most of them wore white on their heads. I had a very pleasant evening. He gave his wife a fine silver chain with beautiful green beads on it.

I have enjoyed reading Susanna's letters this summer. Oh! the minister's wife said in England it rained so hard she had to carry a rain coat nearly every time she went on the streets. It has been very rainy there all summer.

A year ago we had a Buffalo writer for our Corner and she told us what each letter stood for and got a dollar prize. I wonder what has become of her.

ROSALIND.

BEING AN ARMY NURSE.

Dear Social Corner: A letter came to me from one of the members asking me to write about my experiences as a Red Cross nurse on duty during the World war. Most of the Red Cross nurses served in the army nurse corps, as upon appointment by the Red Cross one becomes a reserve for the army and navy nursing corps. I happened to prefer the army and army it was.

I was ordered to report for duty to U. S. Army Base hospital No. 1, Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas. I remained there 17 months. I had quite a lot of night duty and that was pretty hard, especially during the epidemic of influenza. Also T. B. and most of the illnesses one can mention.

Our hospital carried about 4,000 beds but during the epidemic probably had 18,000 beds and about 140 graduate nurses. Those of you who have sat beside the dying in the still quiet hours of the night can realise what it meant. I had one brother overseas in the U. S. army and the thought that was constant in my memory was: I shall do my best for our boys for were it my own dear brother I would want some nurse to do all that was possible for him. And I gladly did for some mother's son all that I could.

It takes a strong heart and much sacrifice to see death each day and night but I have never regretted one hour of the time I gave to my buddies and country and to the service of Uncle Sam.

I have been ill since that time from contracting T. B., and its complications have been many. I have been in New Orleans, La., Oteen, N. C., San Francisco, Calif.; Muskogee, Okla., Washington, D. C., San Antonio, Texas, in government hospitals, but it seems the war is not over for me. The bed gets quite discouraging at times and time hangs heavy on my hands. I spend most of my time reading and doing some sewing. If any of the readers have books they would care to send me or anything to help pass time away I would greatly appreciate it. There are many who have forgotten us disabled veterans now. But there has been a time when many told me how wonderful it was to be a nurse during the war. It has its glory but its sorrows too. I enjoy letters and the last years read much for I spend most of the time in bed, hoping to be better some time, though it seems most impossible. Hoping to hear from many readers of the Social Corner.

ADULT EDUCATION

Dear Social Corner Friends: When I saw the page only half filled last week I thought that I must hunt around for a worthwhile idea to contribute next time. I shouldn't wonder if many felt the same way, so we shall have an over-flowing page this week.

One of the very interesting statements I came across recently was the announcement of Dr. Herbert Socenson of the University of Minnesota, after a series of experiments that our learning power up to 50 is as good or better than at 15, and we are living in a time marked by adult education. In middle life we are ready to admit many mistakes and the need of learning more. A college acquaintance told me the biggest thing she learned at college was how little she knew. We realize the same thing when beset by our childrens' continued questioning's of "What?" and "Why?" and as we are called upon to act as teachers for the young we are obliged to grasp and own the truths we are to teach as we never have before.

Our farm bureau extension services all over our country are conducting a wonderful series of adult education in home-making and beautifying, renovating old furniture and arranging our homes conveniently and well to fit our means, proper foods and clothing we can plan or make ourselves, rug and lamp-shade making and many similar worthwhile articles.

I find that the grange also helps to educate us in better living and helps us to broaden our social side with new acquaintances and interests, growing often into deep friendships and community service.

Another thing we do and should study constantly is our duty and relationship as American citizens in promoting good government. The women's leagues have some very inspiring talks and demonstrations in local government and we as women can feel we are helping to build up the best in our nation. Closely allied with this is our W. C. T. U. and Red Cross work that accomplishes so much. Just recently another line of thought has come through mental hygiene as presented by state workers and clinics. It seems to me the developing of wonderful possibilities, although still in its infancy as a social science.

A psychiatrist in speaking here last year said in closing that to be mentally balanced and calm we must have a definite faith. And today we seem to be seeking reasonable and personal faith that is workable for a life adjusted to eternity. I have read recently more along those lines than fiction. And I find many others reading with decided interest such authors as Stanley Jones and Harry Tosdick. We may not agree with them all in every particular but they can help us in our thinking and certain ones appeal strongest to each of us. These help us to find life broadening into eternal possibilities and wonders as we grow older instead of narrowing into a limited old age. Let us study to keep young in spirit as we see many who do.

I was delightful with Marjorie's letter. I shall never forget nor lose her words to me when I needed them.

Last Rose of Summer: Did you change your name? I wrote your war nurse. Best wishes to all.

STILL SOMETHING TO DO IN GARDEN.

Dear Social Corner: Rain! Were we not all glad to have this long drought broken at last? Now the wells and streams will be filling up again and what a relief that will be for many of us. Our brook has been dry but there is still plenty of water in the spring from which our supply is piped. And now too, the menace of forest fires is lessened. We were a bit anxious Monday evening when there was a fire in the woods not far from here. As there was no wind the fire was conquered before it had spread enough to do any great damage. The rain has also been a great help to some new seeded fields for they have grown green over night.

When I made my daily visit to the garden yesterday I found it thickly carpeted with yellow and brown linden leaves. Between the drought and the frost there were not enough flowers left to make a bouquet of any one kind. But I picked what there were and made a mixed bouquet.

The fall nursery catalogues are full of advice about planting perennials and shrubs at this time of the year. It has been much too dry for such work and I have not ordered anything. In my clean-up campaign I found some seedlings and now is a good time to transplant them. There is some phlox that needs moving too. Oh, if I am ambitious enough, I can find plenty to do in my garden yet. The iris borders are waiting for their semi-annual application of bone meal and the tulip bulbs must be set out this month.

A year ago today I was not writing letters nor reading them. That blank day seems far away now and how thankful I am that the episode is over. At the time it seemed a hard step to take but my code has always been to make up my mind to do a thing, and then snap into it and get it over with. This applies to daily tasks like dish washing as well as t more important things.

Sumac: Someone who was at Slocum one Friday evening recently wants me to inquire if you were there.

Betsy Bobbet: Although the hardy white agertum is called thoroughwort in the catalogues, it is not like our wild kind. I do not know what the blue variety looks like for the plant that I bought last fall failed to grow.

Pernickety: I suppose you will mention the rain in your letter for you and I seem to write on the same topics. You wrote about frosts the same week that I did and another time our common topic was digging gladioli. Have you unpacked your suitcase and unboxed that typewriter?

SISTER RHODY.

WHAT THE HARVEST YIELDED

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: As this is harvest time, I want to tell you about my garden. I cannot give any account of summer vegetables that have been canned, eaten or given away, but this fall, I have gathered 18 winter Hubbard squashes, 6 cauliflower, 2 peach basket of pop corn, 12 ox heart cabbages and have as many more red Danish ones still in the ground, and about 4 quarts of onions. Last year I had none of these kind of vegetables in my garden, so have enjoyed them the more.

Also have gathered half a peach basket of beets, a good supply of dried beans for baking and three peach baskets of carrots and only have them a fourth gathered. Have always said I never had carrots enough, am sure to have enough this winter. Shall leave parsnips in ground until spring.

While digging carrots I found one about an inch and a half in diameter around which a second carrot had grown. The second carrot had entirely circled the big carrot once and was half around again in one place, the second carrot was about as thick and as wide as lingerie tape.

Wish others would write of freaks of nature they find or see. Have enjoyed the beautiful fall foliage here at

WOODSIDE.

USING OLD STOCKINGS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I wonder if you find use for old stockings. I find them very useful for dusters also for holders. I cut them on the back seam then press them and cut them round seven inches across. I pad them with underwear, stitch them across and around the edge and then bind them. They sell like hot cakes. I sell them for ten cents a piece. I have sold many dollars worth to earn money for the American Legion. Try it.

With best wishes to all the Corner members.

LEGION, (Club 4).

The extra large supply of undersized and imperfect fruit this year is an invitation to the housewife to make jelly, jam and conserve, an Ohio nutrition specialist points out.

A VISIT TO POMONA

Dear Sisters and Editor: It was so nice Sunday that we again went to "the point." It was just perfect there, only the water seemed a bit cold. No colder, though, than some days last summer. I just hated to come home. I wasn't sure we were going so didn't make sandwiches but when A brought the truck over I immediately wrapped up a pan of beans in many thicknesses of newspaper so they would keep hot and put them in a basket with dishes, silver, bread, butter, apples, raisins, bottles of coffee and cocoa (some basket?), loaded in tent and clothes and went. I just get homesick when Sunday comes and we can't go down there.

I have been crowing about having plenty of water, but alas, you don't miss it until the well runs dry. We have cleaned it out and opened up the vein and so we have nearly a foot of water for which we are very thankful. I am sending my clothes to the laundry and today a washing machine agent came to the door. If he knows when he is well off he had better lay off washing machines until it rains some. It rained some tonight but we don't know how long it will last. One paper said it was 30 years since we had had such a drought as we are having now.

Through the kindness of Milky Way, Dorothy Bradford, Beers and myself attended New London County Pomona grange at Norwich. A finished my dress just in time to wear it as usual and we started from home around 10:15. It was just gorgeous driving along through the autumn foliage. Close to us along the road was yellow and red mostly. Maples, oaks, sumac were just a riot of color. Farther away, on the hill the colors blended together and the only way I can express it is to say it was just beautiful. Some of the maples were green, yellow and red all on one tree. An oak was shaded from green on one side to red on the other. At one place a row of maples was colored alternately red and yellow. The poison ivy and sumac have leaves red on one side and yellow on the other. Beware of it. (I'm not that kind of sumac). As we neared Norwich the air grew very smoky and we heard later there were two fires farther north and they had no water to fight it. It will be very fortunate if we get through until it rains without a repetition of the terrible fires we had in the spring. We arrived at the Grange hall (after turning around by Aunty No. 1's house) the same time Soma did and got in just in time to get dinner tickets before the meeting began. The usual routine business and conferring of degrees took place during the morning then a recess was declared and we went to the dining room for dinner.

And what a dinner! I ate and ate and ate. I only hope no one was watching me. I didn't eat any breakfast but I made up for it and then some. Baked ham, mashed potatoes, turnip, cabbage salad, freshest of rolls, pickles, apple sauce, coffee, I guess that was all. I didn't know if we could move or not but after awhile we managed to get started up stairs and the afternoon session began. A reading with encore by a member of Franklin grange was exceptionally good. A member of Norwich grange was it Miss Russell? sang Swinging in a Hammock, and Memories. I was hoping she would sing Around the Corner. Rhode Island State Master J. Curtis Hopkins was the speaker of the afternoon. Mr. Hopkins is working hard to put before the members of R. I. granges the necessity of upholding the grange policies of prohibition and to stand back of the 18th amendment when the referendum comes up in November. Mrs. Hopkins was there too and she always leaves a thought in a few lines of poetry when speaking. Another reading by the Franklin member and these were character sketches in dialect, was very much enjoyed as was another song by Miss Russell. Mrs. Ida Richardson led some songs heard at lecturer's conference and the lecturer gave a brief report of her trip to Durham.

A recess was declared until 8:00 o'clock when the evening session would begin. Fifth and sixth degrees are being worked everywhere now getting ready for National grange in Rochester, N. Y. It was very cloudy when we came out but on arriving home the sky was a brilliant red. Washington County Pomona met the same day but it was so far away we decided to go to Norwich instead.

Sister Rhody: Well, whose husband did it hit?

It seems most too bad to see so few letters as there were last week. I know some of the sisters must have gone to Durham and could write something about it.

Lady Lou: Saw you on the street the other day but didn't have a chance to speak to you.

I think some one should start another discussion. Remember what nice long letters we had about short skirts and face powder.

By Jingo: You started something once. Why not try again? Remember how they all jumped on your neck. Never mind that, though, but just give us all something to write about.

Don't all start arguing at once though.

SUMAC (No. 5).

USING LEFT OVER BREAD

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I was much interested in Irva Lynn's letter regarding the ideas and work of fixing up her guest room, which was between the attic and the cellar. I am sure she feels repaid for the results of paint, paper, varnish and cretonne. Those who regard "a penny saved worth two earned," would no doubt like to see what our sister accomplished and perhaps receive ideas that would help us along. We do all know that a little paint, varnish, paper and pretty figured cretonne go a long way in satisfactory changes. But we cannot attain "something for nothing," we must cooperate work and time. This may not only apply to brighten up and make all our rooms attractive, but include the contents of the pantry. I have heard some house wives say they did not know what to do with the left over bread, so threw it away. I can truly say that problem has never bothered me. In the first place I do not buy much surplus quantity at each time, but a plenty. Bread is called the staff of life, so if served in the various ways, (before it becomes spoiled), it certainly will be good and wholesome. Toasted bread is always good with the cup of coffee at breakfast, and if the bread be a day or two old, then all the better. French toast is very nice; also perhaps some do not serve this often, but it will use up the left over bread. Beat up one or two eggs, according to the desired quantity, and a little milk, dip small or half slices of bread into this and fry in well-greased frying pan till both sides are merely brown. If bread crusts that are left over are not too stale, they can be broken in pieces and added to the meat steaw. Take the little odds and ends of bread, put them through the food chopper, lay them on a flat pan and place them in a hot oven when thoroughly heated and crispy, remove from oven and after getting cold, put into glass fruit jars and they will come in handy to mix in with soups, the same as rice, or macaroni. Sometimes if your hash is a little short in quantity for the breakfast dish, soak up a few pieces of stale bread and add to it. By stale bread I do not mean only that which has become dry and still clean. In the hot weather we cannot keep bread very many days without mould or spoiling, but we can avoid having too much quantity on hand, and prevent the waste. Those who still have a few left over tomatoes that are ripening, stew them up and mix in the little pieces of left over bread and with generous seasoning of butter, salt and pepper (if you like) will make a good side dish at any meal. The meat and the salmon loaf require the bread mixture, which does not need to be strictly fresh.

I believe in giving bread to feed the little wild birds, when the season is hard for them to obtain food. I believe it our duty and should be a pleasure to share with these deserving little creatures, when they come to our doorstep or window sill. This is not a waste, if the quantity is limited to their need.

Beautiful days of autumn we are having this month of October, those who have their health and privileges to enjoy this season, should be most grateful. Best wishes to all.

JENNIE, (Club 1).

LIFE IN THE COUNTRY

Dear Social Corner: What has happened to all the writers? It was a very small page Saturday and I miss the interesting letters. We surely do have some fine writers.

Haven't we had wonderful weather! The flowers have lasted so long, and now comes the chrysanthemum. I have a rose bush called the thousand beauties which has now three clusters of pink roses in bloom and several buds. It seems strange to see them so late in the season, but how happy we are to see them now when all the others are gone by. The leaves are falling fast this morning and how beautiful the trees are.

I have a pet lamb which is very interesting to me. Every morning when she is let out of the barn she comes down to the kitchen door and calls ma, ma, until I give her a piece of bread and pet her a little. Then she seems satisfied and goes grazing all day and before time to put her up she has a frolic, plays with the kittens and cats and it is as good as a show just to watch her. That is one of the beauties of living in the country, one never gets lonesome when you are interested in the animals. Here's hoping we will have rain enough to fill all wells and springs. It will make that much less work for the farmers who have to carry water for their animals.

Hope we will have a full page this week.

STEBELIA.

MESSAGES TO FRIENDS

Dear Social Corner Members: I have commenced a letter to the Corner but being a trifle "under the weather" I shall have to put off finishing it for a time. But I wish to send the following messages to friends:

Hepatica: I was glad to receive your letter. I hope to be able to answer it soon. I enjoy writing to you, I feel that I am having a pleasant visit with a friend. So I look forward to the time when I can begin your letter.

Betsy Bobbet: I wish I could tell you in a few words the pleasure your letter with its small packet containing promise of much beauty—the beautiful blue that I love—gave me. The flowers we knew in childhood have a specially warm spot in our hearts, and therefore the larkspur will fill a spot in my garden where I can oftenest see it, if circumstances of health, etc., will permit. I think anyone who was interested in my letter on decorations for fall and winter will understand that in making the flag on the plate of moss, the red stripes are made of the red berries from the black alder (not the "red berries of the blackberries,"—rather an amusing typographical error), the white stripes of bay berries, which, contrasted with the red, appear white enough to produce the right effect. The blue berries of the cedar make the blue field and bay berries the white stars. In printing, a part of this was left out.

When I made this one February, I had the figure 12 at the top for Lincoln's birthday and the figure 22 under the flag for Washington's birthday. I may have put in the month also, as it was some years ago, I do not remember. Numbers and words are easily formed on the green moss with the small gray berries, but of course it takes time and careful handling to do it neatly.

May October be a happy month for all.

ATTENDS LEGION CONVENTION

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: I have been running all over the New England states lately, but must tell you of the "Big Time" at Boston. To be sure the radio and newspapers have given you all first hand information on it, but after all truely no one can get the same thrill that comes with seeing the mass of colors flying from the floats. Each in turn was just fine and when it comes to music just let me tell you that those boys of today and the girls were just wonderful. Their costumes were fine and it sure would be hard to say which were the best. We were visiting just out of Boston, so had to run in to the city Monday to get the tickets, which had long been engaged, for the seats. The day was filled with parades and joke cars and at night the 40 and 8 celebration was great fun. All were like boys, turning the city upside down. The evening air demonstration was wonderful, just breath holding. If I could only express the beauty, but hope someone will do so for me. It was wonderful.

I have always felt that I could never get enough music, but let me tell you for one day even I had enough. We got to our seats at 9.30 and stayed in our little corner until 5.30 and the big parade was still carrying on. I had to leave early as we had other appointments for the evening. The cars were crowded, yet at every stop more seemed to squeeze in any everyone seemd so good natured. I had heard that the people in Boston were cold but I did not find it so. All were glad to help a stranger to find a location. To me I'll always praise Boston for its open heart to all the visitors and it was great to be able to feel we all were welcome.

Someone wished to know how to make old fashioned Johnny cake, so will gladly enclose some. Hope I will be forgiven for running on, but will try to be more brief next time. Hoping all are well and doing fine.

Johnny cake: Have teakettle boiling hard, take 3 cups of corn meal and put in mixing bowl, add 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon soda. Now pour on and keep stirring the hot water, there is the succes sof same until nearly thin enough to fry, add a tablespoon of molasses and one of milk. Fry on hot griddle.

GREEN HOLLOW, (Club 4).

FINDING WHO OUR FRIENDS ARE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I have not written to our department in some time owing to illness during the summer months. However, as I am feeling some better again, will have a little chat with you all by pen and paper while sitting alone this evening. I am broadcasting them to you through our Social Corner page and first I want to extend a message of sincere thanks to every member who so kindly remembered me during my recent illness with their friendly calls, also for flowers and fruits, while others sent cards and remembered me in various ways such as by telephone messages and the many little dainties to tempt the appetite. It would be almost impossible to write to each one personally as I have received so much of your kind attention, so please accept my deepest appreciation through this letter. Methinks we have to be sick to find who our friends are. I have certainly gleaned much good in this way during the summer months and now perhaps my little message may help to make others more thankful for their health and strength to get about and do things and go out now and again and enjoy the outdoor life while many others are denied these pleasures by illness or some other of the many ills of life. We do not all share the same burdens but I think we all have some trials, yet if can learn to be patient and try to see the sunny side of life we shall surely "Come Smiling Through."

Now the beautiful summer time is over and gone as all others have gone before. How fast the days grow shorter. We have to pull on the lights a couple of hours earlier than we did a few weeks ago. October moves a red flag across the roadways, the branches that have been touched by the finger of the autumn frost has its signals of crimson, the end of the year is coming. These blazing banners of October tells us it is time to get ready for the change which is coming on the morrow. If we have been dreaming and idling away the past months in our vacations, or sickness, or whatever means of pleasant pastimes with arms filled with summer flowers and the goldenrod of September we are reminded now by the new color that is coming in the trees, flowers and grass it is time to house our winter plants and blossoms and gather in the delicious things nature has been providing for our creature comforts while the sun was warm and the air soft and inviting and the world was so beautiful. A friend tells me she always spends her vacation in October as she thinks it the loveliest month of the year. I am almost inclined to agree with her yet when I remember June days with everything fresh and beautiful, birds and butterflies awing and newness of life everywhere, then I am tempted to renounce my allegiance to the glory of autumn or at least to divide it, for surely June is as lovely in its way as October. Somehow it seems a reminder of youth, forward looking, ready for whatever lies ahead, while October represents the march of a conqueror who has won his spurs under banners of crimson and gold. So let us learn to keep our thoughts in line with the beauty and freshness of the day and not let gloom mar its charm. Oh, I know the poet sings of "melancholy days" but we can name them jolly days if we will make them so, for autumn is a glad time, the time of harvest for which we have been working and waiting, and while it is natural enough that the falling leaf and fading flower should bring touch of sadness we need not let it stay and become a full grown gloom but feel rather these are the days when we drink deep draughts of the real wine of life—and feel as we did long years ago when we went with the boys and girls on a nutting expedition. Then no tree was too hard to climb, no nuts too high to gather. So if we feel a sense of regret as we near the closing of the year we have the glad assurance of another summer yet to be. Each season in its own way is beautiful and best.

Connie: It grieves me to hear of your sorrow in the loss of your sister. I know too well from past experience whereof I write and indeed I think there are very few of us who have reached years of maturity and have not been called upon to pass through the deep waters to bear a grief that makes the world seem empty and cheerless.

I read a poem not long ago: "Tell Your Troubles to the Winds." That will do for trivial troubles but as in my case, as well as many others, the parting of loved ones who have kept step with you through the years, when all you have in the world has been taken from you and you are left to walk alone, I do not think telling it to the winds would be any consolation. I have found consolation and proved the value of friendship which seems the next best thing when it is true and not merely in name.

Dorothy Bradford: Those beautiful asters kept fresh and bright for nearly two weeks by careful attention and giving them a new drink with an aspirin every morning and that lovely basket of goodies, "Oh, Boy!"

Reba: If those good fat legs—only they are not as fat as they used-to-was—would bare me safely to that grape vine you would not have as many as you once had. My, but that was some treat!

Idaleane: Did you grow those gladioli on the brick walls? Well, wherever you raised them, they certainly were the finest ever. Thank you.

With best wishes to the sick and shut-ins.

ZUKLIEKA (Club No. 6)

IMPROVEMENT

Dear Corner Friends: If things do not run on smoothly and easily, don't find fault, but just get busy and adjust them. Introduce a better system at once.

If the responsibility of the dinners and entertainment fall too heavily on a few, perhaps the same few each time, adopt the plan of a volunteer committee in addition to the regular committee.

This sub-committee could be chosen by the regular one and with the understanding always that they are to assist the regular committee in any part of the work, according to the needs of that particular time.

Surely everyone could take their turn at helping as assistant.

And why not use the roll-call some during the entertainment hour, with the understanding that everyone comes prepared to help out a little, it would be easy for each one to have a selection or quotation or song or something for the response to name; and the roll could be used for a longer or shorter time as the regular program failed to fill out the afternoon. This would prevent the disappointment and failure of the prepared program when actors failed to be present as they had promised to be and expected to be.

The summer picnics were some anxiety, too, but probably there were others willing to help or have one at their home, too many wait to be asked to help and no one can know that they are willing and anxious to do their part and so it is not brought about. A sub-committee on places could properly find out who is situated to help each season.

And don't forget the cordial welcome to each one whether helper or provider now or not.

It may have happened that some of the past-helpers and past-providers did not meet with the sympathetic understanding they should have had after they had become so feeble that just to go without any care was almost too much for them. And how we are missing them now that they are gone and we realize that never again can we have them with us.

So make it a happy restful occasion for everyone, and we shall be glad later to think that we did this for them.

IMPROVEMENT.

READING FOR ENJOYMENT AND KNOWLEDGE

Dear Social Corner Friends: Do you remember way back yonder—as much as six months ago—when I wrote my first letter for this page? If you do, maybe you will also remember that I asked one of you to heave a flower pot at my head if I proved to be too boresome with all my tales of posies. As yet, no one has thrown that article at me (unless my skull is too thick to feel the impact) but nevertheless I am going to stop telling you about my Paradise—Purgatory for a little while.

You see, there isn't anything very interesting about a sleepy garden. By and by when we are tucking the plants into their winter beds and telling them good-night for the winter, we can discuss coverings and all that sort of thing. But just now they are cross and sulky like many children who are too tired to stay up and yet too obstinate to go to bed.

A bookcase is a weighty object—but—if you grow tired of my letters in the next few weeks you may throw one of them at me. For I am going to write about the things I read. There, now my secret is out!

People who read (there are lots who don't), do so for a wide variety of reasons. I read for two; first, enjoyment; second, to learn. Therefore I read a great many more things than I would if I read for just one reason. The best books are those which combine the two qualities of being instructive and furnishing that which keeps a reader interested.

I suppose that "With The Indians" by James Willard Schultz was written for boys between the ages of 12 and 18 to read but it is a book which almost any one would enjoy reading if they are at all interested in out-door life. A white boy and his Blackfoot Indian friend are lost in the mountains while on a hunting expedition. They are robbed of all their possessions by a band of unfriendly Indians and are then cut by a snow storm from reaching their own tribe. Although unaccustomed to the territory they set to work as best they can to make a shelter, to find food, and to make fire. They encounter many difficulties but succeed in living through the winter and when the snows melt and spring comes again to the mountains, they find their way back to the plains and to their own people.

Have you read "Shephards" by Marie Conway Oemler? I thought it was lots of fun. It's all about the family in the rectory and it is told very cleverly in the words of one of the rectory children. All of the characters are engaging but I must confess an admiration of Lucy Viola, "woman as big as a fire horse.... who could imitate a circus steam piano to the very life." I went around for several days yoodle doodle but all my efforts were in vain. I succeeded in getting hoarse and the rest of the family made threats.... The children weren't goody-good as one might expect rectory children to be and their conversations are as natural as they are intriguing. Oh, I almost forgot—there was a very proper little boy in the book but he got just what was coming to him when he was tarred, and bunred at the stake, Indian fashion. And when the Bishop came the children entertained him and gave him refreshments—ginger cookies with raisins in them, and syrup and water. The bishop, fortunately, was like most of the other characters in the book—a good sport.

PERNICKETY

IS THERE AN INK DROUGHT?

Dear Social Corner Members: There were so few letters in Saturday's paper I am wondering if ink is drying up as well as water. How serious that condition is! We have plenty at present, but it can't hold out forever. Sunday we went down to Washington then up to Oneco over Ekonk Hill to Beach pond and nearly all the brooks were dried up and the earth dried in great cracks. The pond was also very low. I don't know where I got the idea, but I thought the good road went all the way from Oneco to Voluntown, but found it did not. I think there were about ten miles of real country road. Had no idea which was Rural Aunty's house or Ma of Greene Gables, but think I know which one she will soon be moving into. Is it sort of slate or lead color with a new addition on barn that is probably to be a milk room?

The foliage was beautiful and no frost, but colors are more vivid than if there had been one.

DORINDA: Think you are some sport. I recently passed you at Lebanon green out driving; also saw where you were visiting not so far from me. Wish you had looked me up. We went over the new road to Columbia. Isn't it nice?

Rose Lee: I enjoyed the chat with you.

Rebecca: Was in the cemetery at Pendleton Hill recently. The genaniums were beautiful; nicest I have seen.

Of course you all read that Club 6 is to have the October meeting Tuesday the 21st at Grange hall at at North Stonington. Now, all come who can so Ravena will feel encouraged about carrying on the work.

Laurel: We know you will plan a nice dinner and if every one brings something good it will be a nice one. Hope to see many from the other clubs.

Milky Way: The fall meant a broken rib, but did not have to lay off from work. Tell R. to watch her step.

Catnip: I do hope you are better.

Olga: Shall all look for your crowd Tuesday; also Chauffeur, Black-Eyed Susie and Mayfare.

A TEN DAYS' TRIP.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Some one said they would like to hear about the "ten days' trip we took in August. We left home the 25th of August on a very foggy morning: think was the thickest fog of the season. We crossed the ferry at Yonkers, had a good view of the Palisades, then down through Hackensack and Newark, where we stopped for a few minutes, then through Princeton, which is a very pretty college town and next Trenton where we crossed the Delaware river. After a ride of 225 miles we stayed in a very good cabin near Longhorne. The next morning we started for Philadelphia. What a lovely road! I can't begin to describe its width nor its beauty with parks in between, but those who have driven over it will always remember it. We didn't go right into the city but took a detour and then we were in Fairmount park. It was a nice drive through there. Then we thought we must go through some of the stores and then start for Maryland, spending the second night in Elkton. The next day we went to Cherry Hill to see some friends and had a fine dinner served in good old Maryland style. While there we saw hom mushrooms are grown, which was very interesting. After driving through a bit of backwood country we got back on the main road again and soon crossed the Susquehanna river into Havre de Grace. This is a long single bridge a lower and upper road. We stayed in Havre de Grace for the night and the next morning went to Bel Air and passed a place where they were canning tomatoes. Our next stop was Baltimore, where we visited some friends and then on to Washington, D. C., where we stayed three days.

We visited the capitol, white house, Pan-American, Lincoln memorial and the museum. Didn't go up in the monument as so many were waiting in line. The Pan-American Union building ranks as one of the most beautiful public buildings in the world. The Lincoln memorial, is form a Greek temple of pure marble, is in Potomac park. The statue of Lincoln is in the center of the memorial while in smaller halls at each side of center space appear the inaugural and Gettysburg address. Surrounding the walk encasing the memorial is a collanade of 36 columns for each state in the union at the time of Lincoln's death. We also visited the tomb of Woodrow Wilson in Bethlehem chapel of the new cathedral which is not finished. Admiral Dewey is also in a tomb directly acros from Wilson's. The peace cross near here was erected to commemorate the conclusion of the Spanish-American war and to celebrate the founding of the National Cathedral. Open air services are held each Sunday by the cross. We went to the Congressional library in the evening. It is a beautiful building, the grand stair hall being the most magnificant entrance hall in the world. It is of Italian marble. Throughout the building and walls and ceiling are inscribed quotations.

The next day we went to Mount Vernon. The mansion occupies a beautiful site overlooking the Potomac river. There is a beautiful garden of old-fashioned flowers with boxwood round each bed. The sun dial was given by citizens of Rhode Island to replace the original. From the mansion a path leads down a slope past the old tomb to the plain brick structure which is the tomb of George Washington and his wife. Nearby are monuments to the memory of some of his family. On our way back we went to Arlington, saw the tomb of the unknown soldier, overlooking the capital of the nation he died to save. Also saw the anchor and mast of the battleship Maine rescued from the bottom ofHavana harbor. We went to the Zoological park. As it was getting dark could not see many of the animals, but saw the gorilla which is two years old, and the second one in captivity.

Left Washington Aug. 31, for Fredericksburg and then Culpepper. We saw the monument where Stonewall Jackson was wounded by his own men, May 2, 1863, dying a few days later. Everything was very dry down this way and not many trees along the road. We passed over many narrow bridges, went over mountains, saw the Blue Ridge, (a blue haze over them is why they are called the Blue Ridge), spent the night in Luray, Va. We had heard so much about the caverns thought we must see them, so the next morning found us on the way to them after partaking of a regular southern breakfast. The Luray caverns were discovered in 1878 and it takes one and a half-hours to walk through, a mile and three-quarters long. It was wonderful and well worth seeing.

Then we start on our way again over Massanut mountain to Newmarket, from here we start north for Gettysburg which is best known as the scene of the chief battle and crisis of the Civil war. There are more than 400 monuments in the field, these have been erected with great care and designs executed in bronze, marble and granite. Had a drink of water from Spangleis spring which furnished water for the wounded of both armies. After viewing the battlefield we left for Lancaster. In this part of Pennsylvania are many houses built of stone, also some barns, and a lot of brick houses. We saw quite a few women going shopping in the afternoon carrying large market baskets. Our next stop was in Bethlehem, Pa., where we had supper and stayed over night. The next morning it really was raining but stopped before we got to Easton. From here we took the road to the Delaware Water Gap. It was beautiful scenery all the way. Mountains rise 1600 feet from the road on either side, and the river below. After lunch we started for Port Jervis, Newburgh and the Storm King highway. This highway is carved out of the granite side of the lofty Storm King mountain. More than 400 feet below its elevation is the Hudson river. It is considered the most expensive road in the world, down past West Point to Bear Mountain bridge where there is a wonderful scenery everywhere you look. After crossing the bridge we went up to Poughkeepsie where we spent the night. We never saw so many peach and apple orchards as there are from Poughkeepsie to Troy, miles and miles of them. From Troy we went over the new Taconic trail which connects Petersburg, N. Y., and Williamstown, Mass. Then we started over the lovely Mohawk trail to Greenfield where we had supper. Then thought we would start for home making 287 miles the last day.

In the ten days we rode 1447 miles without any trouble at all and all the family, well and happy, had a wonderful trip. We are now looking forward to another trip next year.

Kind greetings to the sick and shut-ins.

THE ROMANCE OF A YOUNG GIRL WHO READ FAIRY TALES

NO ONE but Joanne Marshall, reared in the environment of such vast wealth and yet so intensely desirous of mothering and being mothered, would have thought up just the scheme that now disported itself in her curly head. She skipped about the room and sang a little song. She tugged at the woolly ear of a stuffed terrier and overturned a huge doll which instantly set up a howl: "Mama, ma-ma."

Suddenly an easy tear stole down the corner of her face and slipped itself into her laughing mouth. It was so—so hard to be sad and happy at one and the same time.

She pounced upon her slipper chair, grasped for a bit of paper that had been so completely dog-eared and read for the tenth time her mother's letter.

"My sweet baby girl." Joanne made a disreputable face at herself in the glass. She was aware that "my sweet baby girl" meant that mother had found another "beau" and "my sweet baby girl" must under no circumstances act her age. She must be so—so young that mamma might appear as capricious as her grayless bob.

"Joannie—my sweet little baby must prepare herself for an awful shock. Mamma's coming home to stay—coming home with such a wonderful man! A great big blue-eyed man, Joannie, and his little boy, such a darling youngster, Bruce.

"A playmate for my little dear! Isn't mamma thoughtful! Do fix up a room nice for Bruce, dear. And do—do remember all those things I've told you—please, sweet—about calling me 'mamman,' after the French, you know. And do kiss me as often as you like, of course; but be sure to do it at breakfast time and before you leave the house, and at night, surely. I do—I can't stress it too strongly—I do want my Georgie to know and feel that I'm young and beautiful in spite of the fact I have a growing daughter. Remember to please—your maman."

A growing daughter! Joanne scoffed! She was 19! And how impishly she was doing exactly as her mother wanted! Dressed quaintly in an imported frock of crepe de chine, made expressly for the demure miss of 12; pastel blue half-socks, strapped patent-leather shoes and a lustrous bow atop her crisp curls, she was a saucy picture of color and perversity.

Nothing to do now but await the arrival of maman, Georgie and little Bruce. She imagined Bruce with Fauntleroy curls—a nasty tease to his fingertips. But anyway, taking all in all—this was maman's fourth husband—she had never yet had a playmate brought home to her. Dogs, ponies, a boat and a governess, once, but never a playmate!

What would she do with him? she wondered. For maman would forget that Joanne had somehow grown up without a brother, a sister or anything that would have helped her remember her childhood. A school here, a tutoress there, friends galore—but never, oh! never a real close companion.

She inspected the room she had fixed for him. She had been lavishly indulgent.

Bruce must be about 14, she told herself; and a boy of 14, brought up like she had been, would have missed all those things any ordinary boy of 14 would want. Fishing rods, a .22 rifle, books stacked up in one corner, skates and a bicycle!

She was excited! She hoped Bruce would like her. She certainly was going to like him and try to be a real good pal to him. She wouldn't have to sit around playing bridge all day or drive like mad for a thrill. This would be something real; some one that perhaps, if he were very good, she might share a secret with.

She heard the gates open down at the foot of the driveway, heard James shift into second and start up the hill toward the house. For they lived on a large estate and the house settled itself amid tall cedars and spreading oaks.

She peeked out the window just a second or two and then waited breathlessly at the top of the stairs for her mother to call.

"GEORGIE, dear," her mother's sweet cooing. For a moment Joanne's heart stood still. Maman was using the same, the very same tone of voice to Georgie, too! That meant that Georgie wouldn't last. There was not that—that hush of expectancy Joanne always remembered when her mother spoke to her own father, so many, many years ago.

"Georgie, dear, you'll love Joannie. And, Bruce, I want you to love her too. Joannie, we're here. Hurry!"

She straddled the banister and slid down. She did want Georgie to feel that maman was so young! Away she went, right down to the bottom and into Bruce's strong arms!

"Joanne" Her mother's voice rose angrily. "What does this mean?"

"Why, maman!" Joanne was so sorry. She looked upward, but her eyes had to travel too far, much too far to reach the eyes of a boy of 14. Brown eyes danced and laughed back at her; and then his voice, rich and full, burst forth in a hearty laugh.

"You—you're not—Bruce?" Joanne stood up, straightened out her little skirt and joined in her mother's horror.

"You bet I am, Joannie." He tweaked her nose playfully and pinched her cheek.

She was furious. She could have killed him. His laughter was turning the tables. "You're just big boy, Bruce—too big!"

She turned her back and faced her mother. "Maman, I'm so glad you're here to stay. And this is Mr. Kincaid?" She held out her little hand and he bowed profoundly above it.

"Your stepfather, Joanne. You'd better change your masquerade, Joannie, and let George see what a beautiful young girl you can be. These children's parties are so odious, George."

"Tut, tut, Beth. Youngsters will have their fun, you know." He smiled sheepishly into her entrancing eyes.

Still playing her little game, she tugged at her mother's soft hand. "I'll go now, maman, if you please. See you soon." She made her curtsey, the one she had practiced up in her room, and turned away.

Bruce detained her momentarily. "You're such a little girl, Joannie—too little!"

"Oh!" She stamped her fot hard. It made no sound upon the rug. Her curls flew about her face angrily. "Oh!" she whispered for him alone, "I hate you!"

"Don't, Joannie," he grinned in good humor, "for I'm supposed to fall in love with you, head over heels, on the instant, and I'm so afraid I won't!"

"That's the only smart thing you've said, Bruce; I welcome it."

SHE matured so fast it almost took his breath away. But Bruce had composure. "Your welcome forces me to stay on with the guv'nor." He teetered back on his heels and watched her stamp up the stairs.

Joanne made it a point to select for dinner a frock as sophisticated as its label designated: Paris. She carmined rather heavily and hunted until she found a long jade cigarette holder. She'd show everybody that a girl of 19 could look either way she chose—childishly sweet or intelligently charming.

But she really shouldn't be angry with Bruce, she counseled. He did the only natural thing when he laughed at her. Heavens only knew what grand stories her mother had been telling him. He'd probably been led to expect a graceful little lady in her teens and he'd discovered a babe in arms.

It was incongruous. And as she loked at herself now, it was even more incongruous. She went back to a simple frock of slate blue, long sleeves and a tiny edge of lace resting against her throat. She rubbed the paint from her lips and powdered her face again. "No use in making him believe the impossible. I might be a swell-lookin' kid, but I'm not such a success as a sophisticate."

She heard a chuckle, then a long laugh, echo through the house. She listened intently and thought she caught the snap of a rifle, the furious ringing of a bell. And then his laugh again. Unmistakably his laugh.

Her hands went up to her face to shut out the flush of crimson. His room! She had forgotten! All those utterly childish things for a boy of 14! And how he laughed! She didn't know now whether she'd ever speak to him again. She ordered her dinner served in her room and sent Mathilde with a note to her mother. No venturing out of her rom tonight. No telling what heathenish tricks he'd be up to.

Just as she decided to end her reading and go to sleep, she heard the sliding of paper under her door. She got up and dashed across the room and then turned the bed lamp's full glare upon the white square of envelope.

"Please read what's inside."

Perhaps she would—perhaps she wouldn't. It lay there staring at her from the rose satin quilt. But it wasn't long before she flipped it open. Her eyes grew angry—then gentle—a smile. She read it again:

"Dear Too Little:

"Please don't be mad at me. At best, I'm just that boy you had planned all these things for. Want to go fishing with me at sunrise—couldn't you manage just this once? I'd like to tell you that you unknowingly punctured the heel of Achilles. The thrill of the out-of-doors, the feel of a rifle! Well—suppose I tell you something about it. A walk in those inviting woods beyond your house—

"I wouldn't be surprised if there were a stunning brook and a glorious swimming hole back in there. It wouldn't surprise me at all to hear myself yelp at the first quail I saw—or to shout joyously should I glimpse a wood violet. Doesn't this note of honest confession make an apology seem absurd to you? Please come—with a basket of lunch under your arm. TOO BIG."

She answered, a line or so; sealed the note and slipped out quietly.

"The woods are my closest friends. I'll introduce you to them in the morning—and if luck is with us you'll find your violets. J."

Sunrise found them in back of the house on the road leading into the grove of tall eucalyptus and Atlas cedars.

"It was bully of you to come, Joanne," he smiled. "To make myself seem consistent, I ought to tell you something about my life. Where do you want me to begin?"

"From here, Bruce. It isn't necessary to explain yourself when you're out in the open, and especially when you're with me. One always acts real when one gets out like this. Somehow, wood life makes all the glitter of worldliness seem pitiful."

"My, but you're a philosopher, aren't you? And you're beastly hard to make a judgment of! What are you made of, child?"

"Whims!" She laughed away her soberness. "Nothing but whims, Bruce. See there—a robin! And look! At your very feet! A violet!"

"Gad! This is entrancing. It's like remembering a melody. You're casting a spell, Joanne. I've got you now!" He called laughing. "You're a witch."

"Perhaps! Yes, I believe you're right. For the things I'll show you today are all those things that are held in secret until I come. No one else can break the spell." She stood there in the sunlight, her brown hair flying about in golden wisps, her eyes contesting with the violets. "Only I can coax the little things that are here to perform for us. Come along, Too Big, and you'll see things for yourself!"

He stood there charmed. Nothing else he wanted to remember, nothing else he wanted to compare with this odd, gay creature before him. He nearly imagined all those things she said. He thought he saw black shining beetles with red under their wings stand on their hind legs and march along the morning sunlight. He thought he saw robins make quaint worship to their queen. He imagined the flowers had plenty to say about this gentle creature who understood them so well.

A hardened old traveler like himself needed this freshness. It was something like taking a sun cure. That was it; only, of course, it went much deeper than that. And there were no people to stare at you.

Joanne touched his arm. "You haven't gone through the Looking Glass yet, Too Big," she admonished.

"Oh, but I'm afraid I have. In fact, I'm certain that I've fallen through completely. It's an experience!"

"No, it isn't!" she averred. "It's a way of escape from all the bridge that was ever played, from all the mad chatter that was ever spoken, from all the silly, meaningless, futile acts we do every day—back there! I get so—so weary of wisecracking, so there's this!"

"I'm beginning to see, Joanne." He halted and faced her seriously. "It's like being the dummy, hours without end, and finally getting to play a really good hand, you wake up, get interested and see the fine points of the game. Actually relish displaying the fine points."

"Yes, it's something like that. Only, of course, nothing's dull and there's no game. There are no tricks and no honors. We get a glimpse, just an inkling, of how all these little creatures live, these insignificant little things that crawl and sing; and we marvel that they were made insignificant!"

AFTER that they walked along silently. They found the brook and had lunch in a spot where it didn't ripple. Where the long, sweeping leaves of the willow tree broke the spell of absolute quiet, they sat until dusk, each wondering about the other, each dreading to turn toward the house.

It seemed right, to Joanne, that some one else should be there with her, some one to talk to if she wanted, some one she felt understood.

And to Bruce it was short of a miracle that he could be so entranced for one whole day; that his chatterbox mind could be shut off as completely as a leaky faucet. He hadn't yet determined whether it was the girl beside him or the complete solitude of the wood that had made him forget he was Brure Kincaid, who had made love to every pretty girl he saw, who had found "nothing to do" insufferable.

"You know," Joanne's words filtered through, "I'm just about to let you in on a secret. Something I've never told any one before! Of course," she smiled, "Maman knows, but she isn't particularly interested."

"A secret?" He looked at her disparagingly. "You have a secret?"

"You won't believe it, but it's so. There's a place yonder, not far, where we can make tea and have some muffins. There's a log fire ready to be lighted."

"More of your witchery?" He stood up, stretched himself and helped her to her feet. "I don't believe it—and yet I could believe the impossible today."

"Seeing is believing. It's my stronghold, Bruce. A prison, if you will, from where I never need to escape. A house in the woods! Mine. I had it built last summer. It really is lovely and there are the things I've never had before, things ridiculous to everyone but me."

"If you don't stop, Joanne, I shall hear the Queen of Hearts say, 'Off with your head!'"

"You might very well. I've heard her say it a thousand times." She stopped short and looked him full in the face. "You don't think I'm absurd, do you?"

"Joanne, I couldn't think anything about you but that you're delightful."

"Well, then, come along. I'm frightfully hungry and ever since my house was built I've been aching to show it to somebody."

The house was simple enough, a rambling structure of redwood. Bare, almost of furniture; nothing garish, nothing useless, a tabe by the fireplace, low, easy chairs and the niche of books which she called her library. There was no lock upon the heavy oaken door. They just pushed it open and walked in.

Lamps hung from the ceiling in just the right places. Cyclamen and daisies brimmed from an amber bowl on top of the mantel. The place had an air of life to it; contented, full-blooded life, as though it were never empty.

Joanne made tea in her miniature kitchen; Bruce lighted the fire and helped her brown the muffins.

"I think," he said earnestly, "this is the first time in my life that I've been utterly lazy and enjoyed it."

"But you've not been, really." She picked up a muffin and buttered it. "You've been frightfully busy all day. You'll be dead tired when you get back. See if you're not."

"What do you mean, dead tired?"

"You've been thinking this whole day. Think about yourself, about your useless program. You've racked your brain trying to figure out a way of becoming necessary and worth while."

"How did you know that " he asked, startled.

"Because it's happened so many times to me I always go back dead tired."

They began putting the thin, lustrous blue cups and saucers upon the table. The muffins were tempting upon a square-shaped amber plate. Bruce gave a quick smile when he saw the firelight dancing on the table. He felt completely at home.

"You know"— he broke the silence after a long while— "the guv'nor and Lady Beth aren't hitting it off very well?"

She sat down her cup and her muffin. "Yes, I know. But let's not bring that in here Bruce. That's what this house was built for—to forget all those things I've broken the charm, somehow, or you wouldn't have mentioned Maman or Georgie." She smiled wanly and then caught hold of herself. "Finish your tea—I'll read you something, one of my favorites. Would you like to hear 't?"

What a queer, sad, little thing she was, he thought. Always trying to shut away the cruel and the bitter. "If you've another charm, Joanne, work it."

"It's 'Hansel and Gretel.' You know it, don't you? No? Bruce! You ought to be ashamed of yourself!" She brought the book down and opened it upon her lap. "Well—once upon a time * * *"

Finally she read softly: "All care was at an end, and they lived together in peace and happiness forever after."

IN the days that followed maman wouldn't hear of their going off together all the day. "You simply must take him to see your friends, Joannie. Don't be so possessive. He must meet Mona."

Of course, back in the house, the spell was broken. Joanne became simply "Joannie" and Bruce the dashing cavalier. They drove over to Mona's.

And Mona, the seductive creature that she was, cast a completely different spell over Bruce.

In the days that followed Joanne looked longingly at the woods, alone. If her heart was sad there was no show of it. A fairy spell, she contended herself, is easily broken! And the Bruce she had known in the time he had sauntered through that woodland with her was nowhere to be found!

"Out with Mona," her mother would say, with a sly wink. "Skating with Mona, darling; thoughtful of you to give Bruce skates! You'd best hunt up your old friends. Bruce is just like his father." It sounded so comforting, coming softly as it did from maman's pretty mouth, but Joanne was not to be comforted.

The next time in the woods alone, she tried to conjure up the spirit that was Bruce. That laughing, eager spirit, so completely charmed! She looked in vain for violets and remembered that they, too, had gone. Gone until another year. She finally owned up to herself that she had made a place in her heart for him. But wasn't it that he was too—too big for the place she had made! His face, his hair, his eyes were lingering with her.

What was it Mona had that she lacked? A pretty mouth? A startling, disarming smile? An intimate tone? Did men need these things? "But I—I'm ——" she cried wildly, "I'm such a child! Too—too little!" She lay down, sobbing.

"Joanne! Joanne!"

SHE jumped to her feet at the sound of his voice. Radiance came instantly to hide the streak of tears. She cupped her hands to her mouth. "I'm here. Here! By the brook."

He found her then. A shaft of sunlight played upon her. Strangely, suddenly, he found her to be beautiful, desirable. He caught her in his arms, pressed his lips close upon here. "Joanne!" His breath felt hot upon her cheek. It frightened her. "Joanne! You're half-angel and half-woman. Tell me that you love me."

She struggled. She felt like a tiny bird caught in a treacherous cruel hand. "Bruce! Oh! Bruce, what have you done?"

He looked at her peculiarly, cringed inwardly at what he saw. Pleading, tender little creature who couldn't understand why he had hurt her so. And a moment before she had come running into his outstretched arms, smiling, laughing—as happy as a lark!

He felt awkward. "What have I done, Joanne?" he begged her, and reluctantly set her free.

"Our love was meant to be so different, Bruce, so utterly different from all the others. Precious, sweet and lasting. Ecstasy, like—listen! You hear it all around you. Birds in the air, winds in the trees, water spilling about in the sunshine. Didn't you understand? Oh, you've broken the spell." She turned and walked a short distance away.

He stood there staring ahead, hoping that she might turn back. He laughed then, bitterly, at himself. Too big! Fool! He had lost in that one moment a life-time of blessedness. Not good enough for her—good enough for Mona; just about good enough for Mona.

They all met at the dinner table: Maman, Georgie, Joanne and Bruce. The atmosphere was strained, frightful.

Maman began her usual tirade against Georgie. "I get so weary of your pranks, George. Can't you leave the girls alone? A young girl's darling, ha!"

Joanne pushed back her chair grudgingly. "Must we have this every night for dinner, mother? It's so tasteless after a while."

"Don't worry, Joanne," George comforted her, "this is the last time you or I will hear it. I'm leaving in the morning and Bruce is going with me. We weren't made to be tied down like this, eh, Bruce?"

"I don't know about you, guv'nor, but you'll be going along alone. I'm staying until Joanne sends me away." He looked toward her pleadingly.

But Joanne tossed her napkin upon the table and stood up. There was just a brief moment of hesitation, the color came into her face and a gleam of tears in her eyes. "You'd best go along then, Bruce. I'm not asking you to stay."

Her hands hung helplessly at her sides, her body sagged in complete despair. "Love comes only once—once in a million years. Some one for a time is happy; but it's such a short time." She turned toward her mother. "I remember so well your being that happy—and trying so hard to grasp it again. You see, it falls to come the second time and we waste years."

HER mother's eyes widened and then dimmed. Joanne had understood, then. Her little baby—grown so wise! She stretched forth her hand, but Joanne had already left.

Down the hall Bruce followed.

"Joanne, won't you listen? You're such a good sport," he begged.

He watched her go up the stairs slowly. He couldn't help remembering that other time when she had stamped her foot at him and her curls flew angrily about her face.

In the morning Joanne, sitting in her chair drawn up to the window, looked out upon the driveway and saw Bruce and his father leave. Saw the bags tossed into the tonneau of the car. Heard James shift his gears and start down the hill toward the road.

She got to her feet, slipped down the stairs to the front door. There she stopped, thought over what was in her mind and then smiled peculiarly. "Well—why not! It fits in so prefectly."

She went back into the kitchen, reached up into the cupboard for a handful of corn and went out the door. All along the way she dropped the full golden kernels. To find the way back—the storybook said; and what happened? She smiled again—a lost, utterly forsaken smile. The birds came, didn't they? That last kernel she dropped at the doorway of her little house.

And Bruce, seeking once again what he had lost, came upon that little trail of golden corn. Remembering, he gathered each one into his hand and slipped it into his pockets.

The last kernel he picked up at the doorway of her little house. There was no lock upon its heavy oaken door. He pushed it open and laid the corn at her feet!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

A million youngsters in America today would gladly trade places with Junior Durkin.

Not because he is in motion pictures, for hundreds of other boys have shared this honor, or because he happens to have acquired some money in his own name, for there are thousands of boys who are infinitely more wealthy than he.

But, because he happens to be galloping along on a fast pony, is chased by real Indians, swings a lariat around actual cows, sits down to eat with hardened cowboys and, in short, is to all purposes a "sure enough" cowboy.

Durkin plays the part of "Old Timer," a youth of the early west, in "The Santa Fe Trail," Paramount's talking film edition of the Hal G. Evarts' novel, "Spanish Acres," and the principal offering at Warner's Broadway theatre starting today.

Like all boys Durkin has cherished the same dream of being a cowboy. Born in the east far away from the cow country, Durkin has lived his life around the stage. Before he was three, he was acting. Since that time, he has appeared in numerous plays, one being the successful performance of "Courage" for 42 weeks on Broadway.

Palace Theatre.

Approximately 50 featured players are to be found in the cast of "Up the River," the great comedy drama that comes to the Palace theatre for a four-day run starting tomorrow. Seldom in the history of motion pictures has such a varied and huge roll of players been used in any one comedy. This is one of the biggest hits that the Palace has ever had the privilege to present to its patrons.

All through the picture "Up the River" is funny in theme. It has moment after moment of uproarious comedy. Almost a thousand extras add to the scope of the film, so that it is not only one of the comedy masterpieces of the screen but is a play of tremendous breadth and power.

Warren Hymer, Humphrey Bogart, William Collier, Sr., and Joan (Cherie) Lawes have other featured roles. Joan is now nationally famous not only as the daughter of Sing Sing's noted warden, but as a little actress in her own right. This sunny, bright-haired child completely won the heart of Hollywood when her parents permitted her to go west for the filming of the photoplay "Up the River."

The plot of "Up the River" is much too good to give away, but there is no harm in saying that it involves a team of burglars and jail breakers whose chief purpose in life is to help along the romance of two of their very good friends. One can't help roaring with laughter at the various situations that arise.

Today for the last times the Palace presents Joe E. Brown and Joan Bennett in "Maybe It's Love," and "The Squealer," with Jack Holt, Dorothy Revier, Matt Moore and the inimitable Zasu Pitts.

Heifetz to Open Concert Series.

The hope and desire of many enthusiasts and regular supporters of the Slater Hall Concerts, that Norwich and vicinity might have a musical course this winter, will be turned to assurance with the announcement from the committee that the very fine winter's program as planned, with four monthly concerts, will open on Friday, Nov. 7th. At that time the world-famed Jascha Heifetz, master violinist, will for the first time, play in Norwich and it is most encouraging and pleasing to the management to find the very great interest being shown and the eager anticipation with which his coming is being awaited on the part of music lovers of all ages and various musical backgrounds. Norwich is, indeed fortunate in being able to secure this great artist whose playing is considered as nearly perfect as that of any other living violinist and whose stage extends around the world.

Three other lovely concerts are also of much interest, the second being by one of the leading tenors of the Metropolitan Opera company, George Meader, on Friday, Dec. 5th. The third, on Wednesday, Jan. 14th, will be by the New York String Quartette and on Friday, Feb. 6th, Katharine Meisle, leading contralto of the Chicago Opera company, will give the final number of the series.

Although the course is definitely announced, many more subscriptions to the course are needed for its financing and further pledges may be sent to Mr. Archibald Mitchell, 4th, or Miss Ruth A. Hamilton. Announcement regarding the seat sale will be sent out to all subscribers. See advertisement.

REV. FR. TIMMINS GIFTED IN JOURNALISTIC FIELD

Rev. James P. Timmins, who has been transferred from chaplain of St. Agnes' home, West Hartford, to St. Joseph's academy, West Hartford, and as administrator of St. Mary's Newington, was a native of Jewett City, but his family took up residence in Norwich, when he was still in childhood. His preliminary education was received in the public schools and at Norwich Free Academy. He made his college course at St. John's, Brooklyn, N. Y., proceeding thence to St. Bernard's seminary, Rochester, N. Y., for his philosophy and divinity courses. His ordination took place at the cathedral in Hartford on October 20, 1918, the Rt. Rev. Ordinary of the diocese being the ordaining prelate. Father Timmins' only curacy was spent at St. James' church, South Manchester, where he remained for almost ten years. In September, 1928, he was appointed associate editor of the Catholic Transcript and chaplain of St. Agnes' home, West Hartford. Prior to his connection with the Transcript staff he had contributed under various pen names several short stories and poems to the columns of that paper. His new post in which he will combine pastoral administration with journalistic labors offers him abundant opportunity for the employment of his tireless energies and fine talents.

Mrs. Elisabeth Pedrick, of Prospect street, left recently with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Allen to spend the winter months at their home in St. Petersburg, Florida. They are motoring down and had reached Washington, D. C., this week.

The Women's guild of St. Andrew's Episcopal church held a very successful food sale Friday afternoon at the Pitcher and Service store, on Central avenue. The ladies in charge of the sale were Mrs. William A. Taft, Mrs. William Winterbottom and Mrs. Charles C. Perry.

John McClafferty, of Southbridge, is spending the week end at his home on Hickory street.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Third Baptist church held an executive meeting Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock, in the vestry of the church, with 15 members present. Following the business meeting a supper was served with the following menu: Escalloped potatoes, meat loaf, peas, relish, rolls, Jello, cake and coffee. Miss Dorothy Conklin presided over the meeting. A social hour was enjoyed. Sunday evening, at 6:30 o'clock, the Christian Endeavor society will hold the regular meeting with William A. Lund as the leader.

A surprise party was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ericson of 41 Convent avenue, in honor of their daughter, Miss Gladys Ericson on her birthday. The house was very prettily decorated in autumn colors of black and orange and Halloween place cards marked each guest's place at the table with a large birthday cake in the center. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Oscar Ericson, assisted by Miss Ella Ericson. A number of vocal selections were rendered by Miss Ruth Ericson, with Miss Gladys Ericson accompanying at the piano. Guests were present from Providence and Hartford. Dancing also was enjoyed. The party broke up at a late hour, all present wishing Miss Ericson many more pleasant and happy birthdays.

BUSINESS CONFIDENCE WEEK RALLY PLANNED FOR MONDAY MORNING

Following a late afternoon meeting Friday of a committee from the Norwich Lions club and the Norwich Retail Merchants bureau, a partial list of speakers for a Business Confidence Week rally to be held Monday morning was announced. Dr. Kopland K. Mar[illegible] of the Lions club, chairman of the committee on speakers, announced that addresses will be given by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, Harold D. Larrabee of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., C. Edward Smith of the Cranston Co., and Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church. An effort is being made to secure as one of the speakers, Aurin E. Payson of the American Thermos Bottle Co.

The joint meeting, called at 4.30 o'clock in the rooms of the Norwich chamber of commerce, heartily endorsed the Better Business Week or Business Confidence Week idea which is sponsored by the Norwich Lions club. The movement is an international one, as it includes similar programmes throughout towns and cities in the United States and Canada.

Lions' Club President Speaks

Keep A-Going, was the subject of a timely address given at the meeting by Louis M. Crandall, president of the Norwich Lions club. Mr. Crandall said:

"Will it ever stop raining!" someone complained. A cheerful person responded, "I never knew but one rain that never stopped." "And when was that?" asked the first somebody. The cheerful one replied, "This one."

Of course that rain stopped, and we have had several long rains since then and they, too, have stopped. During the summer certain sections of the country wanted long rains; they have come and stopped. Rains will come and rains will stop.

This seems to be the answer to our present problem of good and slow business. As a whole we have more good business days than the other kind. Our cities and communities are growing; our two great nations, the United States and Canada, are growing. This cannot be stopped, which means the individual who goes after business is going to get what he goes after—good business for himself. However, the howler, the gloom prophet, the mud thrower, will get what is coming to him too.

This is proved by what has taken place in the past when the real estate boom subsided in certain sections of the country and those engaged in that particular business were seriously hurt. Other businesses kept on as though nothing had happened, and nothing did happen to them. The country as a whole was not affected.

Then came the stock market crash. Now, what would have been the results if everybody had gone along as though nothing had happened? Do you know that there are certain cities in the United States that just kept on as though there was no real estate depression or stock market crash, and went along as if nothing had happened? And nothing did happen to them. Let me quote from a letter from A. J. Glover, president of the Lions club, Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin, to Lions International:

"The optimistic program you suggest for this month for prosperity meetings is undoubtedly a good thing in certain sections of the country, but we scarcely think it would be worth our effort to put on a program of this character at Fort Atkinson. The people of Fort Atkinson scarcely know the meaning of the word 'depression.' In the twenty-five years that I have been living here I do not remember a time when a considerable number of men were out of work for any length of time; and in recent years, to have sufficient labor to keep our industries going, surplus labor for neighboring towns has been employed. We are a city of 6,000, and there has been built this summer about fifty new homes."

This city has kept on going. Then again you have met men during the last thirty days that have made the statement to you that they have had the biggest year that they have ever had, or that September was the biggest month that they have ever had. These men have kept on going.

Most anything can happen to a man if he will let it happen to him; most anything can happen to a city if the people of that city will let it be done; and most anything can happen to a country if the people of that country will let it happen. Each and everyone is interested in seeing that business is good; each and everyone is interested in prosperity; therefore, it is their business to see that it is good.

Someone coined the phrase "we must keep a-going to keep a-going." Let us make it our business to start going and then keep a-going.

Mr. Crandall also made reference to a statement issued by the American Federation of Labor to the effect that September showed a greater improvement in employment than any September for three years. We are coming back, the labor statement said.

For Monday Meeting

Charles V. James, president of the chamber of commerce, was authorized to name a committee of ten, with himself as chairman, to make arrangements for the Business Confidence rally, which will be held at the Wauregan hotel, Monday morning at 8.30 o'clock. A statement was issued after the meeting, requesting all merchants in Norwich to forego opening their stores until 9 o'clock, in order that they and their employes may attend the rally, which is also open to the general public.

Large signs reading, "Those Who Can, Make Work For Others," and "Buy Now What You Can Afford," are to appear on trolley cars and in store windows, etc. President James of the chamber of commerce will preside at the rally.

MOTHER WILL ASSUME CARE OF HER CHILD

On her promise to take care of her six months old child, a boy, Mrs. Katherine Gauthier Cummings, arrested on an abandonment charge, was allowed her freedom when she was presented in the city court Friday morning. The charge was nolled, and Selectman William S. Murray, who had charge of the infant since it was abandoned in his office Wednesday afternoon, turned the care of the child over to the mother.

Mrs. Nellie Edwards, 564 North Main street, found the infant in the entry at her home, last Saturday night. Wednesday Mrs. Edwards took the infant to the selectmen's office, left him on Selectman Murray's desk and made a hurried exit from the office and courthouse. After learning the particulars in the case Selectman Murray placed the baby in the care of Mrs. Annie M. McDonald of 77 Smith avenue. Mrs. Cummings was located in New Haven and arrested Thursday for the local police. She was brought to this city by Officer Clifford Crary of the local police department and kept at police headquarters overnight. Mrs. Edwards and her son, John Edwards, a local chauffeur were among the witnesses when the case was called in court Friday morning. It is understood that Mrs. Cummings is to keep the child with her in New Haven.

FORM WOMAN'S AUXILIARY OF MASTER PLUMBERS

M. Treadway, president of the New London chapter and state trustee; Mrs. Miller of Norwalk, Mrs. Rock of Bridgeport, Mrs. Kennedy of New London and Mrs. McDonald, also of New London.

Organization of the local chapter was completed and the following officers were elected: Mrs. Harold Dahl, president; Mrs. Elmer E. Johnson, vice-president; and Mrs. Patrick McMahon, secretary-treasurer. After the business of the day had been completed the visitors departed from the chapter's meeting place in the Wauregan hotel well pleased with the success of the conference in getting the Norwich chapter organized.

The dredging plant, engaged in deepening the Thames river channel to 18 feet, is now at work in the vicinity of the Richmond Radiator plant on Thames street. The channel has been dredged from Allyn's Point almost to the local harbor. Several weeks more will be required to complete the river project, which calls for a 200-foot wide channel in the local harbor.

NORWICH TOWN

RURAL ASSN. PLANNING HALLOWEEN CELEBRATION

Arrangements are under way for a big Halloween celebration in Norwich Town, under the auspices of Norwich Rural association, Willard P. Haugh, president. A meeting of the executive committee was held Thursday evening at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Edwin V. Ross, of East Town street. Other members of this committee present were: Mr. and Mrs. Willard P. Haugh, Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Clark, and Russell Waldo, treasurer of the association. Made 500-Mile Trip

Mrs. Charles F. Geer, of 76 West Town street, and a party of friends, returned recently from an enjoyable motor trip of nearly 500 miles through several of the New England states and New York state, covering the entire route in two days. After leaving Norwich early the morning of the first day, while motoring through Connecticut, the route was over Southington mountain, to Peekskill and Bear mountains, and over the Storm King highway in New York state. The tourists declare the beauty of the autumn foliage and the scenery of the Hudson at this time is something that cannot be appreciated until one has been over the trail. Proceeding to Hudson, N. Y., the new bridge about a mile long over the Hudson river was crossed, while en route to Great Barrington, Mass., the next objective. This bridge is constructed of reinforced concrete, and like the Bear Mountain bridge, tourists are obliged to pay toll when crossing it. From Great Barrington the concluding part of the first day's journey was upon reaching Pittsfield, where an overnight stop was made at tourists' headquarters. Leaving the following morning at 8:30, the homeward route was by way of Lenox over Jacob's Ladder, around Hair Pin curve to Westfield, through West Springfield, Springfield to Monson, Palmer and as far as Southbridge, where a stop was made for dinner. Continuing as far as Putnam from Southbridge, the tourists visited Providence, Narragansett Pier, Charlestown and Westerly in Rhode Island, arriving back in Norwich over the Norwich-Westerly highway about 6 o'clock of the second day.

Mrs. Geer and friends were so enthused over this journey, plans are now being formulated for a trip to Cape Cod.

Light refreshments and a social hour brought the afternoon to a close.

The members of the Wequonnoc school orchestra met Thursday afternoon at the school for rehearsal and instruction.

Miss Catherine Hasler of 34 Providence street left Monday to spend several weeks in New Orleans, La., with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown and family.

With a large attendance the regular business meeting of the members of St. Veronica's society was held Wednesday evening at their rooms on Providence street. Miss Helen Breault the president presided.

While the rains this week have done nothing much towards swelling the streams about the town, farmers felt relieved to see their woodland thoroughly wet down by the storm, thus reducing the risk of forest fires. The rain beat off most of the leaves from the village trees and made automobile driving slippery on the state roads. Great quantities of leaves came down on North B street completely covering the cartracks and making it difficult for trolleys to climb the hill.

Savage Brothers of Bolduc lane have a flock of 50 Rhode Island Reds which are entered in the Home Laying contest sponsored by the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. From October 1st to 15th, the flock has a record of 520 eggs.

JAIL SENTENCE IMPOSED FOR FATAL SHOOTING

Three jail sentences and one commitment to the reformatory at Cheshire were meted out by Judge Christopher L. Avery to four defendants brought in on bench warrants at a special criminal session of the superior court in New London Friday morning.

Stephen Kubisky, 20, sailor in the navy, who accidentally shot and fatally wounded Marie Rosabelle Wood of 277 Laurel Hill avenue, in this city, on Sept. 6, 1930, pleaded guilty to a charge of involuntary manslaughter and was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Public Defender Perkins stated that while the accused was guilty of gross negligence in fooling with a gun he had suffered much from the death of the girl, and that the parents of the girl were satisfied that he had been punished enough. According to statements of State Attorney A. M. Brown the sailor was pointing the gun toward the girl in a playful mood and pulled the trigger as he moved the gun, expecting that the bullet would go clear of the girl. He had been using the gun with a brother of the girl in shooting at a tin can in the girl's yard.

Joseph Cieciorka, alias Sutowski, pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy and was sentenced to a year in jail. It was stated by State Attorney Brown that Cieciorka left his wife and seven children in Holyoke and came to New London and married again there May 23, 1927. The Holyoke authorities have a warrant for his arrest on a charge of non-support, which is to be served on him when he completes the sentence meted out today.

Raymond H. Briggs, 17-year-old orphan of North Stonington, was committed to the reformatory at Cheshire after pleading guilty to a charge of indecent assault on a four-year-old child.

Simon Escudeor, 20, former sailor in the navy, pleaded guilty to a charge of statutory burglary and was sentenced to six months in jail. He was bound over from the New London police court on a charge of breaking and entering the store of Charles H. Kimball, Sept. 27, 1930.

MERCHANTS BUREAU OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Niagara Hose Co., one of the old time volunteer fire companies of the city, fifty years ago elected John Looby foreman. P. H. Thute was elected first assistant. The same week the American Missionary association held its 34th annual meeting in this city. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of October, 1880, are as follows:

Monday, Oct. 11, 1880—The figures 329 on Capt. Kidd's chest, in the possession of William M. Williams, still remains a mystery to antiquarians. The supposition that it was the amount of gold in the trunk has proved erroneous in examining its contents, as the sum was much larger. The latest theory is that it means a part of the tecumdirgodurangidum of the O. D. Ones X.

Mr. L. G. Sutliff of the firm of D. N. Bennett & Co., of this city, who died suddenly on Thursday night, as the result of a chronic complaint of many years duration, was a native of Johnson, O., where he was born June 23d, 1845.

Travelers to the Yantic cemetery take advantage of the new branch of the horse railroad.

The chestnut trees had larger congregations than the preachers, yesterday.

The Rev. E. M. Taylor of the East Main street M. E. church, who is delivering a series of lectures upon the young men of the Bible, gave a masterly discourse last evening, upon the character of Absalom, favorite son of David and the fast young man of the Old Testament.

Tuesday, Oct. 12, 1880—Mr. Henry has been invited by General Walker letin, but for nearly six years connected with the New York Tribune, Peckham, No. 294 West Main street, to collect the statistics relating to the shipping interests of the United States for the census of 1880.

Should the weather prove favorable, the parade this evening promises to be one of the largest and most interesting of the campaign. Two flags are to be raised in Greeneville, and the Garfield Rockets will turn out and greatly add to the brilliancy of the occasion by their pyrotechnical volleys.

Niagara Hose Co., No. 2, at their annual election chose the following officers for the ensuing year; Foreman, John Looby; first assistant, P. H. Thute; second assistant, F. N. Ranger; clerk, Charles S. Ebberts.

Wednesday, October 13, 1880—The 34th annual meeting of the American Missionary association was called to order at the Broadway church at 3 p. m. by G. D. Pike of the executive committee and opened with appropriate devotional exercises, led by Rev. Dr. Langley of Boston.

Yesterday, Mr. Joseph P. Abel of Brooklyn, N. Y., was married to Miss Ida M. Peckham of this city. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's father, Benjamin Peckham, No. 294 West Main street, by the Rev. Wm. S. Palmer, assisted by the Rev. George R. Spink, of Pawtucket, R. I.

Thursday, Oct. 14, 1880—Miss Lizzie Dill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lemual Dill, residing on Union street in this city, was married to Mr. Louis Mabrey at their residence last evening. The nuptials were solemnized by the Rev. Dr. Arms. There was a large and happy company present to witness the ceremony. The newly wedded pair leave the city today for the west.

The greenbackers of this town will hold their first grand rally in the city hall next Saturday evening. The Hon. H. C. Baldwin, candidate for governor, will address the meeting.

Friday, Oct. 15, 1880—The community learned with profound surprise and regret, yesterday morning, of the death of Mrs. Gen. Williams, after a brief illness. Mrs. Williams was the founder of the Peck library, in memory of her father, at the time of the establishment of the Free Academy, over 20 years ago. Mrs. Williams was the younger daughter of the late Bela Peck and was born in Norwich, March 17, 1795.

Go to Breed hall this evening and listen to that eloquent speaker, Gen. Joseph R. Hawley. You will surely be repaid for your trouble. The Garfield and Arthur veterans will escort the speaker to the hall.

PLANNING TO BOTTLE UP THE BRAZILIAN WARSHIPS

Revolutionary Government is Preparing to Mine the Channel Between Santa Catharina Island and the Mainland—Warships Have Been Harassing the Coastline of the States Held by the Rebels—Government Reports a Severe Defeat For the Insurgents in the State of Minas Geraes

PORTO ALEGRE, Rio Grande Do Sul, Brazil, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The revolutionary government is planning to mine the channel between Santa Catharine island and the mainland and thus bottle up the federal warships which have been harassing the coastline of the rebel states of Rio Grande Do Sul, Santa Catharina and Parana.

This was announced today by Osvaldo Aranha, president pro tempore of the state of Rio Grande Do Sul.

The warships, operating from the harbor of Florianapolis, island capital of the state of Santa Catharina, have been hampering rebel operations in the north. The federal government has held Florianapolis since the beginning of the revolution three weeks ago.

The revolutionary government has complained frequently of bombardments at Imbituba, and elsewhere along the coast, contending that there are no defenses at such places and that the bombardments are needless.

An official announcement today said the fourteenth regiment of cazadores, or scouts, sent from Florianapolis across the channel to Biguaesu, had revolted and joined in the revolution.

In an exchange of telegrams with Captain Juarez Tavora, leading the revolution in the northern part of Brazil, Captain Juarez Tavora said he was advancing down the coast from Sergipe toward Sao Salvador or Bahia, and meeting with little resistance.

Rebel quarters today claimed further advance along the Parana-Sao Paulo frontier, where, at Itarare several sanguinary battles have been fought with status of the engagement undetermined, due to rival claims of victory.

Revolutionary sources said Arturo Bernardes had left the triangle section of western Minas Geraes and had invaded the state of Goyaz, capturing the city of Crystalino Formoza.

An intercepted radio message said President Washington Luis had decreed martial law in the cities of Rio De Janeiro and Sao Paulo. There was no confirmation, but dispatches yesterday told of a meeting extraordinary of the president, members of the cabinet and municipal officials.

VICTORY REPORTED BY BRAZILIAN FED. TROOPS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 19.—(AP)—An official government communique today said federal forces had inflicted a severe defeat upon rebels operating in the state of Minas Geraes, near the town of Cambuquira. Rebel losses were said to be heavy.

The communique adding that complete calm prevailed in Rio De Janeiro said government forces were unmoved along the Parana-Sao Paulo frontier and that airplanes had been sent into interior Parana to drop bombs on the rebels.

The government has set aside the Sala Capella, or chapel, and another section of the house of correction as quarters for political prisoners imprisoned here because of revolutionary activity. This will segregate them from ordinary prisoners.

President Washington Luis has named an interventor for the state of Espirito Santo, just north of Rio De Janeiro. Jose Armando Ribaira has been given the post, and will leave shortly for the capital. Reason for the move was not determined.

Rebel sources in Pernambuco yesterday claimed that the insurgent movement had spread to the state of Espiroto Santo. A rebel army from Pernambuco is advancing upon Bahia, and control of Espirito Santo would give them an opportunity to attack from the rear the federals under General Santa Cruz defending Bahia.

INCREASE OF EMPLOYMENT NOTED IN NEW ENGLAND

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The New England council reported today that data obtained from trade associations, chambers of commerce and other sources indicated slight increases in business and employment during October, as compared with September.

"The volume of business, the report said, "as reflected by bank debits to individual accounts shows an upward trend in leading New England cities for the first two weeks of October."

Of unemployment, it said:

"Labor barometer figures compiled by the western Massachusetts branch of the National Metal Trade association, showed increased employment of approximately 200, on Oct. 1 over Sept. 1.

"The reports of the Rhode Island state free employment office state that 216 manufacturing firms and 33 building concerns reporting have 2.5 per cent more employes at the end of September than at the end of August and 3.3 per cent more than at the end of July. Thirteen of the construction concerns had 10.1 per cent more employed during September than in August and 26.4 per cent more than September, 1929.

"Figures compiled by the manufacturers of Bridgeport, Conn., on 31 factories show an average increase of three factory hours per week in the month of September or 7,000 man hours per week."

TO QUESTION TRIO ABOUT DISAPPEARANCE OF 15 GIRLS

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—A raid yesterday on an upstate roadhouse led today to the arrest here of two men and a woman who were questioned by detectives in the belief they may throw some light on the disappearance of 15 Bronx school girls.

Entering a roadhouse in Rockhill, near Monticello, Sullivan county, state troopers said they found a 15-year-old girl. Questioned, she said she and a girl friend accepted a ride June 19 from a motorist who took them from New York to the roadhouse. A few days later, she said, the other girl was taken to a Harlem apartment.

Detectives went to the apartment, where they said they found the second girl, who is 14. They arrested James Green, 25, a Porto Rican, and his wife. On information obtained from them they went to a hotel and arrested Talev Boucari, an Arabian magician. All were charged with abduction. Detectives said they learned Boucari owns a roadster similar to the one in which the first girl said she and her companion were driven to Rockhill.

FISHERMAN BLUENOSE STRUCK HIDDEN REEFS

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Old man jinx, known to every member of the Canadian fisherman Bluenose, came within the width of a hair of ending the salt banker's career yesterday, as it strove bravely to overcome the Thebaud in the last lap of the Lipton cup series race, it became known today.

From the reluctant lips of Captain Angus Walters and members of his crew came a story of flirting with disaster in those last few miles.

Three times it was admitted the Bluenose bumped on the hidden reefs of Round Rock shoal. Each time destruction of the sturdy fisherman was a matter of a very small fraction of an inch.

Captain Walters said nothing of his close escapes when the Bluenose reached the finish line for the simple reason he feared his rivals on Thebaud and the public in general would think he was offering an alibi for his defeat.

Incidentally, too, he did not want to have any reflections cast on the seamanship of any of the three Gloucester skippers who were aboard the Bluenose at the time, one of whom was handling the wheel.

Not until today did the story of the Bluenose's narrow escape from disaster become known.

Captain Angus said he would not "haul out" here to make repairs unless a proposed race to Halifax with the victorious Thebaud became a reality. In that event, he said, he will have his ship checked up. It is feared the keel may have been damaged by contact with the rocks. Should the race with the Thebaud fall through, he said, he will take his ship back to Lunenberg, N. S., for repairs.

There will be no race, he made it plain, unless there is a suitable cash prize offered. Inasmuch as members of both crews are working men and can use prize money better than trophies, those who want the race will have to talk in terms of currency.

New Record Flight England To Australia

Com. Kingsford Smith Betters Previous Record by Almost Six Days—Time 9 Days, 23 1-2 Hours

PORT DARWIN, Australia, Oct. 19—(AP)—Swooping down from the skies from across the Timor sea, Wing Commander Charles Kingsford Smith today established a new record for flights between England and the Australian continent, and beat his friendly rival, Flight Lieutenant C. W. Hill, who left England four days earlier, to Australian soil.

The new mark established at his landing is 9 days, 23½ hours, considerably better than the previous record of 15½ days, established in February, 1928, by Bert Hinkler. Kingsford-Smith, who has made successful trans-Pacific and tras-Atlantic flights, left Heston airdrome at 5:30 a. m. Thursday, Oct. 9, and landed here at 2 p. m. today (5 a. m. g. m. t. or last midnight, est), after the over-water hop from Timor.

Behind him on the island of Timor he left Flight Lieutenant Hill, who yesterday morning, on the verge of breaking Hinkler's record by a day himself, wrecked his plane on a beach between Keopang and Atapoepoe, Timor. He himself escaped uninjured, but his mishap allowed Kingsford-Smith to overtake him and reach Australia first.

"Smithy," as Australia knows the airman, was tanned and healthy looking as he descended from his plane.

This despite the fact that he had been through one of the most gruelling flights in the history of aviation, and against his doctor's advice. He had two operations and two bouts with influenza in the few weeks preceding his start from Heston, Middlesex.

Upon landing he asked for a cigarette. He refused whiskey and soda, explaining that "I prefer flying on water."

Describing the last lap of his flight over the dangerous Timor sea, Kingsford-Smith said it was the best he had ever made and that he had averaged 110 miles per hour.

He expressed regret at the accident to Flight Lieutenant Hill, who, he said, "put up a splendid fight." He was loud in praise of the 125 horse power single engined Avro "Avian" plane which brought him safely across 10,000 miles of plains, mountains, jungle and sea.

Kingsford-Smith left today for Sydney, his home, where his fiancee, Miss Mary Powell, whom he had hoped to marry shortly after his westward flight across the Atlantic, is awaiting him.

The Australian ace, flying in his airplane "Southern Cross, Jr.," sped away above the wild desert country of the northern territory of South Australia on what may be the last of his great long distance flights. He is said to have given a promise to his fiancee that he would abandon such attempts after his marriage.

Half an hour after he had left for Sydney, Captain R. F. Matthews, who also had flown from London to Australia, followed him into the air.

HELD IN CONNECTION WITH SLAYING OF FOSTER CHILD

DENVER, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, wife of a city detective, Leo O'Loughlin, whose daughter's body was found in the lake of a Denver park Friday, was arrested today in connection with the slaying of the child. The girl, Leona, 10, was her stepchild. No specific charge was lodged against the woman.

The foster mother was arrested at the home of a sister, Mary Belle Shannon, and taken to police headquarters where she was closeted with the captain of detectives, Albert T. Clark.

The girl was last seen alive Tuesday and her father, who is ill, reported her missing Wednesday afternoon. After making the report, he went home, ill from poisoning said by the family to have been from food. The illness grew more pronounced and he was removed to a hospital, where an analysis of the contents of his stomach is under way.

Lacerations on the girl's head and arm were caused by violence before she apparently was thrown into the lake, police said.

A blood-stained rag and wisps of the child's tom-o-shanter were found in the pocket of a car in a garage at the O'Loughlin home yesterday. George Bostwick, deputy coroner, announced that the stains on the rag had been caused by blood. Toxologists are analyzing the child's viscera for possible traces of poison.

Two Airplane Pilots Killed During Race

Accident Due to Collision of the Planes as They Turned the First Marker [illegible] at Trenton, N. J.

TRENTON, N. [illegible]—(AP)—Two airmen crashed [illegible] death today after their p[illegible]lided during a free-for-all [illegible] closing event of the All-Ea[illegible]tates air meet at Mercer a[illegible]

The [illegible] Richard W. Mackie of Valley [illegible] N. Y., and George Zinn of Ryd[illegible], were among a score of contestan[illegible] in the final race of a two-day meet. They collided as they rounded the first pylon and their deaths were witnessed by thousands of spectators.

Zinn's ship clipped that of Mackie and both fell, bursting into flames. Mackie was thrown clear of his plane, but Zinn died in his cockpit. Whether he succumbed to flames or the fall was not determined.

Zinn, formerly an owner of the Rainbow Flying field at Washington's Crossing, represented Trenton in the transcontinental air race in 1928. Mackie also was a skilled pilot.

REPLY OF MANCHURIA TO THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT

MOSCOW, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Newspapers today published the reply of the Mukden (Manchurian) government to a recent note sent by the soviet government demanding that the anti-soviet activities of the white Russian organizations in Manchuria be suppressed.

The Chinese authorities denied they had been inactive in proceeding against the white Russians, saying they had taken all the necessary measures outlined in the Khabarovsk procotol by which they were to attempt to abolish the white Russian societies, and terminate their activities against the soviets.

Commenting on the Mukden note, Izvestia declared it could not be accepted as satisfactory because the assertions of the Chinese authorities were contradictory to concrete facts mentioned in the soviet's notes.

PERSIA NOW ENCOURAGING ARCHAEOLOGICAL RESEARCH

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—American archaeologists will be among the first to probe the secrets of the buried cities of Persia, to which all foreign excavators soon are to be admitted for the first time.

A new Persian law reverses that country's former policy of discouraging archaeological research. The law recently was passed by the council of ministers and is considered certain to pass the Persian parliament, Professor Arthur Upham Pope, director of the American Institute for Persian Art and Archaeology, said.

The institute announced today it plans to sponsor expeditions from a number of American museums to excavate on the sites of such ancient Persian cities as Istakhr, Ray, Shapur and Pasargadae.

HOW POLITICAL PARTIES ARE ACTING ON DRY LAW

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said in a statement tonight that the sentiment of the voters for repeal of prohibition would be "vigorously expressed" in the November 4 election.

"It is a startling step ahead in the fight against the dry law that political parties in 18 of the 48 states go on record either for outright repeal, referenda on the question or demanding states rights," he said.

"Equally encouraging is the fact that in only 12 states were law enforcement planks adopted. Seven additional states found it prudent to ignore the question altogether in their platforms."

BODY OF SLAIN WOMAN FOUND IN HOUSE AFIRE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The body of Mrs. John Furtado, 31, who apparently had been slain, was found in the Furtado home today by firemen called to extinguish a blaze there. In the same room her husband was found with his hands tied behind his back and suffering from burns.

Mrs. Furtado's body bore cuts and bruises but there was no indication, police said, that blows had caused her death. An autopsy was ordered. Furtado was taken to a hospital where a police guard was posted pending an investigation.

Questioning of the couple's five-year-old daughter and neighbors revealed there had been a domestic quarrel in the home during the night.

COUPLE INJURED WHEN TALLYHO HORSES RAN AWAY

WARRENTON, Va., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Robert C. Winmill, New York broker, and Mrs. Winmill were injured here today when horses drawing a tallyho ran away. Both are in a hospital.

TWO MEN AND A YOUTH DROWNED WHEN DORY CAPSIZED OFF FAIRFIELD BEACH

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Two men and an 18-year-old boy lost their lives in Long Island sound this morning, when their outboard motorboat capsized off Fairfield beach. Although a fourth, Harry Schmidt, 28, of 3755 Willet avenue, Bronx, N. Y., swam two hours, through the rough water to summon aid, two motorboats sent out from yacht clubs found the overturned boat, but the victims George Schmidt, 30, of Central Park avenue, Yonkers, a brother of the survivor; Harry Eifler, 18, cousin of the Schmidt brothers, of 761 East 219th street, and Walter Reilly, 20, of Pelham parway, all of New York.

The four men had put on a fishing trip from Fairfield, in a 16-foot dory. Two miles off shore the motor stalled. Tossed about by the wind, the small boat rapidly filled with water, faster than the four men could bail it out and an effort to lighten the craft by throwing the motor over the side proved futile.

The men had started to disrobe when a sudden gust wind overturned the small craft.

Reilly and Eifler were both poor swimmers and George Schmidt, although able to swim himself, stayed to help them hold onto the sides of the boat. Harry Schmidt started to shore for aid.

He swam for two hours against the high winds and heavy seas while his companions struggled to hold onto the slippery sides of the dory.

Schmidt broke into a cottage where he found trousers and a sweater. Exhausted by his efforts, he stumbled into another cottage farther up the beach from where Fairfield police were notified.

Charles "Chick" Sales, humorist, saw the overturned boat about the time the general alarm was broadcast, and telephoned a warning to a yacht club in Bridgeport.

GOVERNMENT TAX RECEIPTS SHOW $62,471,504 DECREASE

For the First Quarter of the Present Fiscal Year as Compared With the Same Period Last Year—The Greater Part of the Decrease in Tax Collections Was Due to the Drop in Income Taxes—Tobacco Was the Only General Sub-Division That Showed an Increase

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—A decrease of $62,471,504 in government tax receipts in the first quarter of the present fiscal year as compared with the same period last year was announced today by the internal revenue bureau.

From July 1 to September 30 the government income from all tax sources was $708,363,707, as compared with $770,335,212 in the first three months of the last fiscal year.

The major part of the decrease occurred last month when the tax collections dropped $48,847,552 from $593,983,224 for September, 1929.

Only six of the 36 classes of taxes showed increases and they were minor items. Income taxes registered the greatest drop, being $55,740,192 less than collections in the first three months last year.

Corporation tax collections declined $14,055,350, and individual income tax receipts decreased $41,684,842. The total income tax receipts from July 1 to September 30 was $553,725,824, composed of $302,675,618 corporation taxes and $251,050,206 individual.

The six classes that showed increases included taxes on rectifiers, retail and wholesale liquor dealers, manufacturers of stills, etc., case stamps for distilled spirits bottled in bond, and brewers, retail and wholesale dealers in malt liquors. The increases in these divisions totalled only $274.

The tobacco tax was the only general subdivision that showed an increase and this was due to a jump in the manufacture of cigarettes and cigarette papers. Cigarettes paid $97,881,500 for the first quarter, compared with $96,020,214 last year. Cigarette papers paid $413,373 this quarter as against $376,096 a year ago. The total tobacco tax, however, was only $9,450 more in the first quarter of this year due to decreases in large and small cigars, large cigarettes, snuff and chewing and smoking tobacco.

Documentary stamp taxes, which advanced during the stock market boom, dropped away $7,936,343, showing a decrease from $24,606,136 in the first quarter of last year to $16,642,835 this year. Of this decrease $3,607,556 occurred last month as compared to September, 1929.

Taxes on bonds of indebtedness, capital stock issues, etc., and on capital stock sales or transfers, which had increased during the stock market boom, dropped off $1,350,770 and $5,314,147, respectively. The playing card tax declined from $954,584 in the first three months of the last fiscal year to $827,701.

Miscellaneous taxes dropped from $3,330,402 for the first quarter of the last year to $1,369,138 for the same period this year.

The greater part of the decrease in tax collections was due to the drop in income taxes collected last month as compared to those received in September last year. The collections this September were $497,288,740 as compared to $542,065,837 last year.

Among the major tax items only those on the transfer of estates of decedents showed an increase, advancing from $9,549,128 in the first three months last year to $13,318,336 this year.

BROKERAGE FIRM LOSSES DEPEND ON MARKET TREND

HARTFORD, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Losses in the bankrupt brokerage firm of Fuller, Richter, Aldrich and company, of Hartford, will depend altogether on the future reactions of the stock market, Attorney Thomas J. Spellacy, temporary receiver for the defunct company, said tonight.

Forced selling or sales at low levels of the securities which make up the assets of the company would increase the liabilities, whereas a substantial recovery from the present slump in the financial world would tend to minimize the losses, Mr. Spellacy explained.

The "frozen" assets of the company consist chiefly of American Phoenix stock, securities which were not easily marketable after the market crashed, Mr. Spellacy asserted.

Any hopes which investors might have held that the company would continue to operate under the receivership were blasted by Mr. Spellacy when he announced that the bankruptcy proceedings instituted by the creditors would definitely suspend all operations.

EARTHQUAKE TREMORS FELT IN LOUISIANA

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 19—(AP)—Distinct earthquake tremors today shook thirteen or more towns and cities of southeastern Louisiana, including New Orleans, but no damage of any consequence was reported.

The only human injury reported occured in Morgan city, when worshipers in the Catholic church scratched and bruised one another in a rush from the church when they thought they saw the walls rock. Only a few were hurt and those only slightly.

The earthquake occurred about 6:15 a. m., literally shaking some residents of New Orleans and surrounding regions out of their beds.

In Plaguemines, La., about 85 miles northwest of New Orleans, the quake shook the glass from street lights.

Nuns of the historic Urusuline convent here told of feeling the earth tremble distinctly while they were at early morning worship.

In Covington, the night telephone exchange operator said the switchboard at which she was seated rocked violently, and she was nearly thrown from her chair.

FARMER BURNED TO DEATH WITH THREE OF FAMILY

PARSONS, Kans., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Ed Kennedy, 36, Big Island farmer, and three members of his family were burned to death last night in a fire caused by an explosion of kerosene sprayed into a heating sove. The farm home was destroyed.

The victims, besides Kennedy, were Marvin Kennedy, his 6-year-old son, and Edna Tyler, 11, and Harold Tyler, 4, his stepchildren.

Mrs. Kennedy, 40, was in a dangerous conditions in a Parsons hospital tonight. Charles Tyler, 16, eldest child in the family of seven children, who was burned critically in a futile attempt to rescue his sister, Edna, and the youngest child, Bernard Kennedy, six weeks old, also were in the hospital.

Edward Kennedy, 9, and Mary Ellen Kennedy, 4, were uninjured. Kennedy, whose efforts to kindle the smouldering fire resulted in the blast, rescued one child, and re-entered the home to save another when he was trapped.

CATSKILL AND ADIRONDACK FORESTS RE-OPENED TO PUBLIC

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Governor Roosevelt re-opened the Catskill and Adirondack forests today, after a five-day closed period because of the danger from fire due to the prolonged drought.

Snow in the north and rain in the south broke the fire hazard and Conservation Commissioner Alexander MacDonald recommended the executive action, taken by Mr. Roosevelt at Binghamton, where he was on his campaign tour.

The forests were closed on the eve of the deer hunting season and tomorrow hosts of hunters were expected to be picketing the forest trails.

REICHSTAG SUSTAINED BRUENING GOVERNMENT

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Sustained by a reichstag majority that astounded political observers, the coalition government of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening today prepared to push through the reichsrat its concrete program of financial reforms.

As the reichstag has already given a vote of confidence to the ministry, a safe majority for the measures is forecast in the reichsrat, which is the state council.

Then they can be brought before the reichstag when it re-assembles on Dec. 3, with the added authority of approval by the reichsrat.

The margin of 82 votes given to Chancellor Bruening has, in the opinion of many observers, put a new complexion on German politics.

When the elections of Sept. 14 produced an unprecedented increase of extremism in parliament, giving the fascists on the right 107 instead of 12 seats and the communists on the left 77 instead of 54, the future appeared to be hopeless for the cabinet.

Nobody then dreamed that at the crucial moment the chancellor's foreign policy and his drastic financial program would ever be supported by a majority as high as 82.

Over 400 attended the adjourned town meeting held in the Warren Memorial hall Friday evening. This meeting, which was to have been held on the afternoon of the town election, had been adjourned in order that people employed during the day might attend the meeting which was held at 7:30 in the evening. The matter of the budget as prepared by the selectmen and town school committee was freely and frankly discussed. J. H. Valentine thought the budget should be cut 25 per cent. Michael Roberts of West Stafford thought a cut of 5 per cent would be sufficient and Patrick J. Murray offered a motion that the budget be cut two and a half per cent. C. P. Bradway of West Stafford felt that the town officials were too extravagant in spending the taxpayers' money and showed the comparison of town and school expenses between the years 1917 and 1929. The selectmen's budget, amounting to $95,970 with a deficiency of about $4000 and the budget of the town school committee amounting to $38,604.40 were adopted, on motion of Raymond Neri, seconded by Claude B. FIVE GIVEN GRILLING BY POLICE IN CONNECTION WITH BURDICK MURDER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 19—Baffled are Rhode Island and Washington county police authorities in solving the identity of the murderer of former Rhode Island State Senator Charles Burdick, 67, found dead on Friday night on the porch of his Shumucknoc Hill farmhouse home in Charlestown, R. I. In all there have been five suspects who have been given a thorough examination by Sergt. Ernest F. Stenhouse of the Hope Valley barracks and Lieut. H. L. Siteman of the Wickford barracks. On Saturday afternoon Sheriff Frederick T. Mitchell of Westerly, a long-time personal friend of the slain man, also visited the Burdick home to question the members of the family and to offer all the assistance at his command in discovering the guilty party or parties.

The first released of the suspects were two Finlander residents of the section of Charlestown in which Mr. Burdick resided. On Saturday footprints were followed both going and coming from a house about a mile distant from the Burdick farm, but the young man whose shoes fitted the footprints was able to furnish almost a complete alibi by his presence in a mill and at a store at the time the deed was committed between 4 and 6 p. m. Friday. Also released on Sunday afternoon from detention at the Westerly police station were two colored woodchoppers who were taken into custody by Westerly police and who at one time were employed by Mr. Burdick.

At the Westerly hospital an ex-ray was taken of Mr. Burdick's body and later an autopsy was performed. It showed five bullets were fired into his body. Medical Examiner Scanlon announced the shot in the chest probably caused death.

Police investigating the murder are of the opinion that it was committed by someone familiar with the habits of Mr. Burdick. Investigation has revealed that only one pocket, that in which he kept his money, was turned inside out, and about $50 taken.

POETRY

Crusaders

God of the ages, in whose hands
Man's destiny still lies,
Lead us slow groping through the dark,
To where Faith's bright sunrise
Floods all the soul and leaves no room
For fear or doubt or gloom.
Let us emerge purged clean and pure,
From love of self made free,
With joyous eyes turned toward the light
That shines on us from Thee.
Let us, O Master Jesus, walk
Henceforth where Thou dost lead,
With open heart and eager mind
To serve the world's great need;
Let this, our age, God's kingdom bring
The hearts of men to sway,
Till the whole world new values knows,
As untruth falls away.

God of ages, our eyes unbind,
Let us Thy purpose see;
Let us with zeal lift high the torch
Set in our hands by Thee,
And may its light, like dawn of day,
Reach to the farthest place,
Where'er Thy children languish, Lord,
For Thy pure healing grace.

—By Gertrude B. Walker, in Boston Transcript.

West Room

There is always charm in a south room
Where the warm noon sun will stay;
But oh! for a breezy west room
With light at the end of the day.

One can bear the rainstorm
And the noontide blare and heat,
If only, at the sunset,
The light fall pure and sweet.

The west room looks on the mountains
Veiled in a silver mist;
The west room looks on the mountains
In pearl and amethyst;

The west room looks on the mountains
Mauve under moonbeams' play;
And the west room looks on the mountains
Rosy in a new day!

Tom—Why the old horse, father?

Father—Wear out the old ones first—that's my motto!

A red-headed boy once applied for a position in a messenger office. The manager after hiring him sent him on an errand. Half an hour later the manager was called to the 'phone.

"Have you got a red-headed boy working for you?"

"Yes."

"Well, this is the janitor at the Oakland apartments, where your boy came to deliver a message. He insisted on coming in the front way and was so persistent that I was forced to draw a gun."

"Good heavens! You didn't shoot him, did you?"

"No, but I want my gun back," said the janitor.—Arcanum Bulletin.

DANIELSON

MERCURY GETS AS LOW AS 31 AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 19.—Winter hit Danielson this morning, rushing in with its punishing cold stuff like an amateur boxer trying to knock the ears off an opponent with a first rush. And just for that the average seasoned New Englander hereabouts laughed at the thrust and casually remarked, "You don't mean it!" However, a temperature of 31 degrees no later than this in October has its significance.

Most of those who have been boasting about having roses and other flowers in bloom the past week end were not heard from, as to this matter, today. The flowers are out.

It really was cold about town this morning, and the fact was complained about by a shivering multitude that had been basking in a temperature as high as 74 degrees Saturday afternoon.

MRS. ELLEN LaBELLE DIES SUDDENLY AT HER HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 19.—Ellen LaBelle, 72, mother of Selectman John Z. LaBelle and of Joseph LaBelle among others of her children resident in Killingly, died suddenly late Friday night at her home in Ballouville, where she had been a resident for many years. Mrs. LaBelle had been ill during the past week, but her condition was not regarded as serious. Her passing came as a shock to the members of her family and many friends.

Mrs. LaBelle, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Buguers, was born in Canada. She was the widow of George LaBelle, dead a number of years ago.

Mrs. LaBelle leaves seven children, John Z., Alixe, George and Delor, all of the Ballouville section of the town; Joseph, resident here and member of the firm of LaBelle and Page; Mrs. Herbert Caron, also of Danielson, and Ezis, who has been in northern Alaska for many years.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Mary Pakulis

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Pakulis was held from her home in Brooklyn Saturday morning, with services at the Sacred Heart church in Wauregan at 9 o'clock. The officers of the mass were Rev. J. H. Quinn, the pastor; Rev. Philip Massicotte, pastor of All Hallows' church at Moosup, and Rev. Henry Chagnon, assistant at All Hallows'. Relatives and friends, representative of many communities, were in attendance at the service. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery, Rev. Fr. Quinn conducting the committal service. The bearers were Joseph Dapsis, John Dapsis, Frank Tukis, Paul Kane, Stanley Lupis and Rene Cote. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Robert "Bob" Saunders, a long distance runner of more than a generation back, isn't racing horses from here to Providence anymore, as he did of old, but he is making everyone who thinks he is about to pass out of the picture look terrifically foolish because of their worrying about him.

Last Thursday evening, Bob collapsed with a heart attack and fell at the side of the state highway over at South Killingly. Passers of the way rescued him, took him to Percy Bliven's place of business, summoned a doctor and brought him out of a very bad slump. He appeared to be a total loss for a time. He agreed to be taken to the home of his nephew, Claude Moran, at East Killingly.

All of this was duly mentioned in this column last Saturday morning. And within a few minutes after many a person had read the account and expressed sympathy, Mr. Bob was casually making his way, with aid of his crutches, through the business section of this community—far from being a dead one, and proud of it.

Mr. Saunders is well over 80 years of age. Physically handicapped as he is, he has more ambition than the average man of 40. Up to a very short time ago he was about with his horse and wagon, working long hours every day, and doing a good job of whatever he undertook.

He is an old-time picturesque figure that this town has known for time out of memory of the average person.

Hunters hereabouts slept on their arms tonight. That is, they slept with either a right or a left arm curled beneath a recumbent head — with a shotgun beside them. A shotgun still rates an arm. The answer to all this nonsense is that the annual open season for hunting certain protected game birds opens tomorrow (Monday) morning. It so happens that only a minority of all the people hereabouts are interested in this matter. Many as the hunters are, they are a minority. But don't attempt to tell them so Monday morning. They have awaited long for the day. They are to be a mighty host on Monday. And the tales they will tell when they return. And the excuses for this and that! A bit of poison for many of the boys who step out in the morning with dog and gun is that the supervision over hunters hereabouts is much more rigid than formerly was the case. The state fish and game commission has seen to that, not only in eastern Windham county, but throughout the state.

This means that any hunter may be prepared to be checked up at any time as to whether or not he is obeying the law. Most of the hunters will not be at all alarmed about this information. It is mentioned only in the protective interest of those who like to get away with a few things that the law frowns upon these later days, and punishes those who infringe.

Wallace Jewett, Hampton democrat who has managed to be preferred any number of times for political preference in a normally republican town, has so much to say that rates "horse sense" with the average human being that has heard him that he is becoming what the footballers would describe as a triple threat against those who oppose his program, valiantly backed throughout the state, for better rural roads. Mr. Jewett talked at the democratic rally here in Danielson on this particular subject on a recent evening. He "stole" the show. He had something to say: he said it, and the audience just yelped in joy at hearing something of importance discussed from a refreshing viewpoint. And just for that Mr. Jewett has been invited to go over to New Haven and talk at what rates a big meeting, and the understanding is he is going to do.

All of which means a treat for a whole lot more people than heard Mr. Jewett in Danielson.

State officers of the Danielson barracks, following regular routine of patrols and checking, accumulated a few cases having to do with violations of the motor vehicle laws during the course of the week end. Nothing serious is listed.

Nevertheless, Anthony P. Mederos of Goodyear will be in court here Monday to answer to a charge of operating a motor vehicle without having a license to do so.

Alfred Mendes of Wareham, Mass., a driver picked up over in Brooklyn, will have to answer to a charge of driving without a license. George H. Holkmien of Canterbury has a court appearance to make, on a charge of considerable seriousness, as the result of the machine he was operating being in contact with a pole in Plainfield.

George Kuktela of the western section of Wauregan and Adrian Barry, of the same community, also have been ordered to appear in court as the result of an accident in which cars they were operating figured.

"Beat Yale!" Many a person ducked rushing Rhode Island cars, bearing that legend Saturday morning, as a steady stream of traffic sifted through, New Haven bound. Those signs represented a superiorty complex that didn't mean a thing. There were unverified reports of Brown men walking home today. Local Brown men refused to admit it.

The first ice of the season, hereabouts, intrigued the interest of people who allege they like cold weather, just before the sun came up this morning. It was cold, for October. Low temperature report: 28 degrees.

Sunday, Nov. 16, is to be observed as Federation day. Ministers of the Congregational, Methodist and Baptist churches, making up the federation here, are to speak at a morning service.

More rain over the week end — plenty of it. Yet, out in the country the word is that the break in the drought has done but little to relieve the shortage of water. Dry wells remain dry, brooks just trickle along. The answer: More rain!

Announcement is made here that a mass meeting in the interest of law observance is to be held in the Bushnell Memorial at Hartford next Sunday. The list of speakers includes Dr. Graham Taylor and Prof. Joseph B. Egan.

One minute out of the business section! An apartment of four rooms to rent. Kitchen has coal and gas ranges for use of tenant; newly renovated; bath; many other conveniences; garage if desired. Apply E. A. Sullivan, 37 Academy St.—adv.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Woodworth, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Barnett were among those who were at Cambridge Saturday to see the Harvard-Army game. Pardon—the information this particular Sunday afternoon is that it was the Army-Harvard game.

LAMBERT'S DOG WINS ANNUAL FIELD TRIALS OF BRUNSWICK FOX CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 19.—The 1930 fox hound field trials of the Brunswick Fox Hound club were brought to a close Saturday afternoon with the end of the final heat of the all-age race, staged at Spring Hill farm in Pomfret. Jeb White, the pack-leading hound of Jack Lambert of Leominster, Mass., was adjudged winner of this event when his superior driving tactics netted him a sufficient number of points to clinch the Hitchcock trophy, a blue ribboned silver loving cup for permanent keeping and a champion certificate of the American Kennel club. Owners of other high-scoring dogs were also presented with awards at presentation ceremonies which took place at the Putnam Inn at 3 o'clock.

The majority of clubmen attending the trials left for their homes last night and this morning old Reynard cantered over the usual trials, resting assured that his appearance would no more elicit the chase of the rambling packs of champion hounds, who have pursued him in ruthless and relentless fashion during the past week.

Saturday's run was not a keenly contested one. More than 20 dogs survived the semi-final heat the previous day, but Jeb White's highly developed qualities of agility and versatility in driving, hunting and trailing placed him so far into the lead in the way of point winning, that it was obvious the competing entries could not overcome the high lead he had already polled. Several foxes were put to rout during the course of the run, which led through several miles of open country, but all were successful in eluding the pack when the recall was sent in by Master of Hounds Bassett.

Before departing from the city last night, Dr. F. L. Rounds of Middleboro, Mass., president of the club, said the 1930 trials were a great success and the probability is that the dogmen will return to Putnam and Pomfret for the running of next year's trials. President Rounds said that the Brunswick club left Barre, former scene of the annual events, by a unanimous vote of the members, after several had taken upon themselves the responsibility to investigate the new hunting grounds. The club, he said, was surprised to find that Pomfret's open country contained area sufficient to place all of Barre's hunting territory between one of the hills. The proximity of the kennels to the Putnam Inn, residence of the huntsmen during their stay, was only one of the many features of which the club head spoke in terms of high praise. The cooperation of the county game officials, the excellent state roads, abundance of fox and deer and the hospitable spirit of the public toward the visiting hunters were all subjects for which the departing huntsmen and dog lovers were especially grateful.

C. E. WEEKS IS ELECTED COMMANDER OF LEGION POST

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 19.—At a meeting of the Anslem Mayotte post No. 13, American Legion, held Friday evening in the Masonic club rooms on South Main street, Carl E. Weeks of Franklin street was elected commander for the ensuing year. Mr. Weeks will succeed Commander Arthur C. Keith, who retires from office next month. The post members were unanimous in the choice of Mr. Weeks for commander. He is a charter member of the organization and since its institution shortly after the end of the war has been active in its cause.

Mr. Weeks was born in Putnam and has lived here all of his life, with the exception of the time he spent in the army while soldiering at Fortress Monroe in Virginia during the war. He is widely known and devotes much time to his other fraternal affiliations which are with the Israel Putnam lodge, I. O. O. F., Mizpah Rebekah lodge of this city, Quinebaug lodge, A. F. & A. M., Putnam, and with the Ancient Mystic Order of Samaritans of Willimantic.

Other officers who were elected were: James J. Charron, vice-commander; Leon M. Farrin, second vice-commander; James J. Charron, adjutant; Harry Gifford, sergeant-at-arms. The executive committee is headed by Brig. Gen. J. M. Carson of Pomfret, with the following members: Major F. M. Goodridge, M. D., and Charles Swain of Pomfret, Leon M. Farrin and Benjamin Simmons of Putnam.

Commander-elect Weeks said today that installation exercises will be held at the Putnam Inn on the night of Nov. 4, preceded by a banquet, at which the state American Legion commander will be the principal guest.

A number of local people are seeking the appointment of the board of selectmen, to manage the affairs of the town almshouse for the ensuing year. First Selectman Edward F. Girard said Friday that several applications have been received by the board from persons seeking to be named to this important town post. The matter will probably be acted upon at the next board meeting.

Almshouse Manager Hill and Mrs. Hill have been in charge of the farm for the past several years and have operated the town charge successfully and in a manner which has met the entire satisfaction of the selectmen of past years. The re-appointment of Mr. and Mrs. Hill is not definite and the possibility of them not being selected to carry on the work exists in the fact that the board of selectmen is now contolled by a democratic majority. Whatever the prospects are, the matter is a subject of considerable speculation at the present.

The apparatus at the central fire station answered a four-call alarm at 9:20 o'clock this morning for a chimney fire in a tenement house on Powhatton street. Firemen under the direction of Acting Chief Alphonse Dumas quickly extinguished the blaze without loss.

An electrical storm Friday evening caused little damage to property in the immediate vicinity of Putnam, a check-up revealed today. Telephone service, which usually suffers during lightning storms, escaped unscathed.

The annual autumn hop of the seniors of Tourtellotte Memorial high school was held Friday evening at the Community house in North Grosvenordale, a large number of local high school students being in attendance.

Mrs. Eugene Laparle of Lee street was called to Fall River, Saturday, to care for her sister, Mrs. Rose Grant, who is seriously ill.

William Croke of Mechanics street returned to his home today, after spending a week with relatives in Boston.

As far as could be learned this afternoon there will be no students from this city enrolled in the officers' training school of the state police department, which opens Monday morning at the barracks in Ridgefield.

MEETING OF 361 GRANGERS HELD WITH NEWENT GRANGE

At the grange meeting held at Community hall, Newent, Saturday evening, 361 grangers from all over the state were present. Worthy Master Lewis J. Tolles, of Southington, State Steward Charles Adams of Groton, State Overseer Frank Pete with all the other state officers except two, and all the district deputies except two, were present. A class of 134 candidates was given the 6th degree. The candidates included 18 from Lisbon grange and 5 from Pachaug. Most of the granges east of the Connecticut river furnished their quota of the record class. The meeting at Lisbon was the last of three state meetings, which in their degree conferences have qualified and equipped with credentials 302 members of Connecticut granges, to attend the national convention to be held in Rochester, N. Y., during November. Besides the 134 at Newent, 79 at the Newington, and 89 at the New Milford meetings, were advanced to the sixth degree. The social program given in connection with the business features of the meeting contributed much to the evening's enjoyment. Deputy Frank Mell, who is also the master of the entertaining order, read a number of humorous selections. The singing of Pep songs, led by the state lecturer, Mrs. Curtis Green, was joined in with great gusto. Worthy Master Tolles spoke on the always important rural road question, and Mr. Sherwood gave interesting facts and descriptions touching the coming state grange pilgrimage to Rochester. The state officers were entertained at supper by the Newent grange. During the work and entertainment of the evening the whole company of 361 sampled red MacIntosh apples from Lisbon orchards, with coffee and sandwiches of the attractive sort that always originate in the community kitchen.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Aricultural seeds are moving more rapidly than last year and at higher prices. The United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics estimates that 75 to 85 per cent of the white clover crop, 30 to 50 per cent of the red clover crop and 30 to 50 per cent of alsike had been sold up to September 23. On the corresponding date last year the percentage estimates were only about half these amounts for the same seeds.

White clover is selling $7.00 to $9.00 per hundred pounds higher this year than last, red about $4.50 higher and alsike $3.40 above a year ago. European reports indicate that the seed crop outlook there is also poor.

Alfalfa is an exception, it being estimated that the general crop is 10 per cent larger than last year. Production of certified Grimm alfalfa seed is expected to be 20 per cent greater. Prices to growers in the important alfalfa seed growing sections averaged 10 per cent lower than last year.

The land is being posted as a public hunting tract and constitutes the first regulated shooting grounds in this county.

One portion of the tract consists of a wide stretch crossing on Montville to the east of New London city reservoir and extending to the Walnut Hill section of East Lyme. The land extends south to Quaker Hill and the Cobanzie section in Waterford.

WALTER KEEFE'S CAR, NEW LONDON, SNAPS OFF POLE, COP IS JOLTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19.— Walter Keefe, of Warren street, was arrested Saturday night, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law and will be in court tomorrow. Keefe was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $200. Keefe was driving his Chevrolet on Truman street last night and at the corner of Hempstead street lost control of the steering wheel. The car climbed the curbing and crashed against a telephone pole. The pole snapped off close to the curb. In falling, the pole caused high-powered wires to be pulled from their fastenings, the pole lying across the street. An automobile driven by Patrolman William Riordan, who was driving to police headquarters to report on duty, first came in contact with the wiring. The contact caused a vivid flash. Riordan, not realizing what had occurred, had not reduced the speed of the auto. At the flash, Riordan reduced speed but in another instant the car hit the pole, causing the driver to be thrown against the top of the auto and slightly injuring his head. Keefe sustained lacerations and after he had been taken to Lawrence Memorial hospital and the injuries were dressed he was taken to police headquarters and later was released. A force of employes of the telephone company set the pole back in position.

Mrs. Helen Francis, of Mystic, was arrested by Patrolman Clarence Wells this afternoon, charged with violation of the city's parking laws in parking her car on Pearl street. She was released with a warning.

The state police this afternoon requested the New London police to be on the lookout for a Chevrolet roadster bearing Connecticut markers C—4379 and requested that the driver, Kenneth R. Browning, 18, of Norwich, be arrested, for the father of the youth desired that action taken. The automobile or the driver, however, was not located.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Dundore, from Paoli, Pa., have arrived at Lighthouse inn for a fortnight's stay.

When the graduate class of the Joseph Lawrence School of Nursing held an enjoyable dance at Lighthouse Inn Friday night with about 75 in attendance, the affair was arranged by Miss Corinne Kelley, assisted by Bernice Hopkins, Alice Onuparik, Julia Pennella and Helen McDonald. Miss Irene Wilson, principal of the training school, and Miss Henrietta Altman, instructor, were the guests of honor.

A three-corner collision of automobiles occurred in Montville Saturday night and while the three cars were damaged slightly, none of their occupants sustained injury. Neither were any arrests made.

The Windham county committee to raise funds for the proposed Windham hall at Connecticut college was entertained at luncheon at the college Friday afternoon by President Katharine Blunt who thanked the committee for all it had accomplished for Connecticut college. This includes not only the $52,069.86 in the bank, but two buildings for the college, Knowlton hall and Fanning hall. It was through the interest aroused by the Windham county committee that David Hale Fanning bequeathed $200,000 to the college and that Charles Clark Knowlton erected Knowlton house. Originally, these benefactors were interested in the Windham hall project but the need for a new dormitory and an administration building for the college was so great that the Windham committee yielded its original plans and allowed its funds to go where they were most needed. After the luncheon, the committee met in Fanning hall to discuss plans for future work.

RAID SANTI DIMARCO'S GAMBLING AND POOL ROOM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19.—A squad of police, consisting of Sergeant John Courtney, Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell and Patrolmen Arthur Powell and John Sullivan this afternoon raided the pool room conducted at 655 Bank street by Santi DiMarco. They arrested DiMarco, charged with conducting a gambling resort and maintaining a pool room on Sunday. He was liberated upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $200 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow. In the building when the raiders entered were: Frederico Barbuto, 18 West Colt street; John Logioco, 77 Belden street; Nathan Devona, 64 Belden street; Tony Salamanca, 34 Spring street; Joseph Longo, 41 Shaw street; Frank Maralana, 33 Grand street; Tony Gerage, 10 Hebron street; Benjamin Roberts, 173 Shaw street; Jack Alfierra, 39 Jefferson avenue; Sebastian Muscarella, 62 West Colt street and Anton LaFemina, 310 Montauk avenue. They were arrested on charges of frequenting a gambling resort and were ordered to present themselves in court tomorrow, although they were not required to post the customary bond of $50 to assure their appearance.

William Woodbridge, of Detroit, was arrested at the union station Saturday night by Special Agent Frank Farina, charged with train riding. Woodbridge was locked up at police headquarters and will be presented in court Monday.

Anthony Skripsky and John Yurichik, both of John street, were in the police court Saturday, charged with breach of the peace. Judge Daniel M. Cronin ordered a nolle in each case, as the offense the men were guilty of committing did not constitute a serious violation of the law. Skripsky went to the apartment of another occupant of the house, a young married couple, Friday night and when Yurichik, who has a room in the building, observed Skripsky, the latter was believed to be forcing his attentions on the young wife. Yurichik and Skripsky then participated in a fight in which the latter was considerably battered about the head. Both men were arrested by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Dennis Murphy.

Joseph and Mary Zalinski, husband and wife, residing on Winthrop street, were charged with breach of the peace and intoxication but all charges were nolled. Zalinski and his wife were arrested Sept. 7, when they staged a drinking party in their home, the result being a fight which caused the police to be summoned.

The continued case of John Piscatella, 17, of 164 Norwood avenue, was disposed of by a nolle, the youth being charged with statutory burglary. Piscatella, who was arrested a week ago after the commission of a series of thefts including the stealing of metal from the city's storehouse on Jefferson avenue Thursday, was returned to the state reform school at Meriden, for he was on parole from the school, having been committed about two years ago for his continued thieving.

The only other case presented was that of a hospital cook, charged with intoxication. He was fined $10, but execution of the sentence was suspended upon the promise of the man to return to his employment.

Mrs. Emily C. Speirs has returned to her home on Mohegan avenue, having visited in New York and Brooklyn for ten days. CARELESS BUSINESS MEN MAKING WORK FOR POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19.—The carelessness of merchants, or some of their employes, is causing the police no end of trouble and that there were not several robberies within the past 72 hours was due wholly to good fortune. About 5 o'clock Saturday morning Patrolmen William and Edward Riordan were standing at the corner of Huntington and Federal streets when they heard an unusual sound, indicating the closing of a door in the vicinity of the Thompson-Chevrolet station, 64 Huntington street. The officers went to the station and found the entrance open also a window on the north side, but a search of the building did not result in finding any thief. The search, however, did reveal the safe open in the office and in it was $800 and a number of negotiable checks. An employe of the building was summoned and in the meantime an inspection of the door and window by the officers did not show that either entrance had been forced. When the employe arrived and an examination of the safe and stock was made it was evident that nothing had been stolen. Again early today Patrolman George Perkins found the main entrance open, which condition of the building resulted in an employe being summoned to secure it.

Patrolman Clyde Murphy discovered the rear entrance of the Bruce Electrical company, 116-120 Bank street, open early Saturday morning, but in this instance an attempt had been made to rob the store. The thief after forcing the entrance and obtaining admittance to the cellar, climbed a flight of stairs leading to the main store, but a substantial door prevented him from getting inside.

Saturday night Patrolman George Perkins discovered the entrance of the automobile sales station of the Loughlin Motor Co., Bank street unlocked and Patrolman Clyde Murphy found the entrance of the electrical store of A. L. Turisi, Bank street, unfastened. The officers secured the doors.

Placide Drouin, a lodger at 119 Golden street, reported to the police Saturday night that earlier in the day his room was entered by a thief and that a pair of trousers was stolen.

Morris Elionsky, proprietor of a Bank street shoe store, reported the theft of a pair of shoes from a display counter.

CONFIDENCE WEEK

In the effort back of Confidence week, now with us, there is opportunity for right thinking, sane weighing of facts and consistent cooperation. It is a time for optimism and not pessimism, political or otherwise.

Out in Sikeston, Mo., the Standard recently pointed out that "at this particular writing it seems to be the thing to do to throw away the booster's horn and pick up and use hammers. Everybody's knocking, and possibly for very good reasons. Granted, a drought exists. Granted also that free and easy money is going to be scarce this fall—perhaps. Finally, positions do not exist and jobs are increasingly harder to get and to hold. So much for the hammer.

"If we were in business and we had a horn to blow, we would take a deep breath over the fact that several thousands of dollars is being expended on Highway 61 between Sikeston and Benton. This will now materially assist in solving our district and local unemployment problem.

"To the west we would look and give another blast over the fact that the Little River drainage people are investing about $80,000 in maintenance work. The money, will, of course, originate in the district, but it is being respent by the district in the district. Eighty thousand dollars will keep quite a force of men employed.

"New Madrid county started to cut timberland underbrush from the lower end of Wolf Hold ditch east and south of Sikeston. Part of the government flood relief work will traverse that section, releasing funds to workmen. Eventually the drainage district will have under construction a $150,000 project.

"There are whisperings of a brand new, highly important state highway deal, and each week we hope that the contract will be let for the new federal building in Sikeston.

"The city of Sikeston will spend in the neighborhood of $150,000 on its municipal light plant. A nice contract and one which will give employment to many.

"If we are yet disposed to blow the horn, we might recall that the International Shoe factory is still operating five days a week, giving employment to some 550 to 600 men and women."

Sikeston isn't the only community which can look the situation in the face and see similar and favorable conditions. It doesn't mean that everything is as rosy as it ought to be, but the psychological effect of stressing the favorable rather than the unfavorable cannot be overlooked.

PARADES

Street conditions are not what they used to be. This is apparent in the small as well as the large cities and it is inevitable that present-day experiences in dealing with congested conditions should call for changes that will meet the objections.

Boston has recently had two important demonstrations when brilliant and long parades were staged. There had been action on the part of the authorities in advance for the purpose of restricting such parades to a certain district, and the limitations were complied with, but it was made clear by the great crowds that filled the streets and sidewalks what a situation would have been created had a serious fire broken out in the buildings on those crowded thoroughfares. There was plenty of jamming and crushing as it was, but it would have been a much different story had those people been thrown into a frenzy by a fire from which they might try to flee or to which they might endeavor to go. Likewise, the handicap that would be faced by the fire-fighters under such conditions would be serious.

In years gone by it was customary to use the business center for any large parades by civic organizations or on circus day. The circus parade has been crowded out, though not entirely disappeared, but even then the jam of motor vehicles and the confusion to traffic indicate the wisdom of keeping it away from busy and much-used streets.

When Boston sees the opportunity to prevent a serious disaster by keeping big parades in other than business districts it does a wise thing in acting, and it is not solely cities of the size of Boston that must come to the same conclusion, if and when conditions exist which warrant it.

DRIVING LESSONS

Motorists, who have done much driving, have long since come to the conclusion that it is an excellent idea to keep on the right side of the road, especially at points where it is impossible to see ahead for any great distance and when rounding curves. There is never any telling what is coming from the other direction and those who try to cut corners are too often the cause of serious and fatal accidents.

Keeping on the right side of the road should overcome any danger of a collision with a machine going in the other direction, provided the other fellow is driving as carefully. But there are times when curves should be taken not only on the right side but with such speed that the car may be fully controlled in case something blocks the path.

What lies ahead around a corner is a mystery. It is all well enough to infer that the coast is clear, that the right of way is yours and nothing should be feared. It is all well enough to take such a view as far as right of way is concerned but it doesn't do much good if there is speeding around a curve and there looms the rear end of a stalled truck, a muddy place is directly ahead or a quantity of wet leaves lurk there to aid a skidding rear end. There is never any telling what may be found around the corner. However much it might be expected that warnings would be given of dangerous conditions and obstructions, such is not always the case. Even though someone should provide a signal but fails, it doesn't prevent the collision, the skidding or the overturning of the car, which may be accompanied by death.

Distressing accidents are occurring almost every day which point to the need of exercising greater care when driving automobiles. They point out conditions which have been encountered with deplorable results and each one carries a warning that should have its bearing upon the manner in which other drivers negotiate similar situations. They teach lessons in the use of highways which should result in greater care, but from the records there is too little evidence that they do.

CANADIAN ROADS

In the list of places considered when vacation plans are being made and a new place to go is being sought, the several provinces of Canada figure conspicuously. The idea of going to another country, of seeing the attractions to the north and experiencing the pleasure of finding out whether the claims of others are well founded always makes a strong appeal.

According to figures which have been furnished by the province of New Brunswick, there were over 15,000 more persons going into that part of Canada with 60-day permits than there were last year, up to the last of August. Naturally the province looks upon the gain with satisfaction and sees in it an answer to the publicity that it has been putting out and a recognition of its attractions.

If it is found that there has been much the same kind of an increase in the other provinces there would be no surprise. It has gotten to be the fad to visit Canada and this is due to a large extent to the good impression that the neighbor to the north has made upon visiting Americans.

But, in addition to that, the good roads which are to be found in all sections of Canada also offer an inducement. Canada has some of the best roads, but not all of them are cement or even tar-bound macadam. In the various provinces there will be found a large mileage of gravel roads, which are getting constant attention during the summer season and which offer good facilities for the motorists to get to the many points of interest.

If Canada waited until it could provide hard-surfaced roads for its visitors it would not be drawing as many from this side of the border. It is steadily adding to its mileage of such roads but, in the meantime, it is building and maintaining gravel roads which motorists do not hesitate to take. Though they are not dust free or as speedy as the other type, they come under the heading of good roads without exaggeration and they are extensively used. They lend encouragement to motorists to cross the border and see what Canada looks like. They not only encourage the visitors but they aid the residents, for Canada, to a large extent, still finds the horse a desirable means of transportation.

ARIZONA BALKS

Even though the authority to go ahead with the work on the Boulder dam project has been given, Arizona is not satisfied and intends to carry its objections to the United States supreme court.

There are seven states involved in this legislation. They are directly concerned because the erection of the dam involves their interests in flood control, irrigation or electric power development. During all the time that legislation was being sought there was difficulty in getting an understanding among the seven states and even after the appropriation of $165,000,000 was authorized it was necessary to get six of the seven to approve an arrangement for sharing the benefits of the project before anything could be done.

All agreed to the plan but Arizona. That state claims that the obstructing of the flow of the river southward into Mexico has deprived it of its sovereign rights and that even though it is not in a position to benefit from the project as some of the other states are it objects to the distribution of benefits.

Arizona doesn't appear to be trying to block the construction work. It hasn't taken action to prevent contracts being let and fulfilled, although it was unsuccessful in trying to get the supreme court to rule on the point of having all in a group of states bound by the action of a majority of them. Arizona is not satisfied with its allotment of benefits. It refused to sign with California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming and maintains that it will not get what it claims it should have and ought not to be forced to accept what is apportioned to it.

NORTH STONINGTON OWES WHEELER SCHOOL TO SON WHO BECAME AN IRONMASTER

Last Saturday's Bulletin reported the annual exercises in observance of Wheeler School Founders' day, held the evening before. The story of the school and its founder is summarized in past issues of the Bulletin as follows:

The edition of Nov. 17, 1899, reported that the school corporation was organized.

On Saturday, Sept. 15, 1906, the Bulletin contained the subjoined notice of the founder's death:

Henry Dwight Wheeler

The death of Henry Dwight Wheeler occurred in New York on Thursday at the age of 77. He was the only surviving member of the family of Major Dudley R. Wheeler, and has devoted his active years to business and judging by the success which attended his enterprises he inherited his father's remarkable ability. He was largely interested in pig iron furnaces, being well known in that line, and director in several such concerns. He was born June 22, 1829, in North Stonington, the son of Dudley R. and Sarah Browning Wheeler.

Mr. Wheeler resided in New York city, but spent as much time as possible in North Stonington. To the town he gave the Wheeler school and library and also gave them the town house. The entire expense of maintaining the school devolved upon him and it is expected that he made provisions for its endowment. It is a chartered institution and one of the objects of much interest in North Stonington. It is classed among the best preparatory schools in the state.

Mr. Wheeler was never married.

Will Leaves $100,000 To School

From the Bulletin of Oct. 20, 1906:

Through the beneficence of Henry Dwight Wheeler the town of North Stonington has through its high school, library and Wheeler cemetery, largely benefited. Mr. Wheeler, who died in New York recently, was a prosperous and wealthy merchant of that city, but retained a legal residence in North Stonington, the old home of his family, and he spent much of his time there during the late years of his life. His will was filed for probate with Judge Snyder of the North Stonington court on October 11. Thomas B. Hewitt and George B. Foster of New York are named in the will as executors and it is expected will accept the trust.

North Stonington already had a reminder of Mr. Wheeler in the Wheeler high school and library, a fine building with handsome grounds, located near the trolley line from Norwich to Westerly, and to this institution a bequest of $100,000 outright is made, and the residue of the estate after payment of other legacies is also given to the institutions.

The will makes a bequest of $3,000 to an old and faithful family servant. It gives $20,000 to the Congregational church of North Stonington, $60,000 to the selectmen of the town for care of Wheeler cemetery, $20,000 to a grand nephew by name of Bixby, living at Norwich, New York; and to Mrs. Louisa Bixby, a niece, parcels of land in several western states.

Estate Was $355,000

How Mr. Wheeler's fortune inventoried is told in The Bulletin of Feb. 25, 1907:

Henry W. Tibbits and George A. Pendleton, appraisers of the estate of Henry Dwight Wheeler, have filed an inventory of the assets of the estate with Judge of Probate Snyder of North Stonington. The total amount was a few dollars less than $355,000, which includes the Wheeler school and library at North Stonington, on which the appraisers put a valuation of $50,000. In addition to the building above Mr. Wheeler left $100,000 to the school and library.

Mr. Wheeler passed the most of his life in New York, but retained his residence in North Stonington. He never married. The real estate amounted to about $300,000, while the remainder was invested largely in high-class stocks and bonds, New York bank stocks, coal, iron and gas stocks of a high grade. The people of North Stonington will receive a large benefit from his bequests.

Further particulars regarding the inventory of Mr. Wheeler's estate are given in The Bulletin of Feb. 27, 1907:

It was the personal and not the real estate owned by the late Henry Dwight Wheeler, which amounted to about $300,000. The bonds, stocks, etc., amounted to about $295,000, while the real estate figured about $60,000, making the total $355,000.

School Wins Suit

The validity of Mr. Wheeler's bequest to the school which he founded was tested in the courts, with results described in The Bulletin of May 26, 1909:

In the case of Thomas B. Hewitt and others against the Wheeler school and library, et. al., no error was found, the opinion being by Chief Justice Baldwin.

Mr. Hewitt and others are executors of the will of Henry Dwight Wheeler, who was born in North Stonington and later went to New York and became wealthy. He built the Wheeler high school in North Stonington and endowed it with $100,000 and when he made his will in 1901 he left the school the sum of $100,000 and the residue of his estate. He died Sept. 13, 1906.

His niece, Louise Newton Bixby, of Brooklyn, objected to the will on the novel grounds that the school could not take over so large an amount of money when its charter said it can only hold a fund of $100,000. In his will Mr. Wheeler said if the school could not take the money under its charter he ordered that the legislature be asked to amend the charter and this was done in accordance with his will.

If there as a period in which the executors had to hold the funds for the school to be made capable of taking over the money, then the income was to be paid to the churches named in the will.

Mr. Wheeler left $279,000 besides what he endowed the school with originally and $129,000 may go to the school.

The supreme court sustains Judge Ralph Wheeler in his decision regarding the case, which is in favor of the plaintiffs.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—Searching for a democratic equivalent to the "Hoover Achievements" campaign pamphlet put out by the republican national committee, the Bystander encountered a special tabulation of certain senate votes which seemed to fill the bill.

It is not the "yea-and-nay" vote record on tariff schedules with which both parties have provided themselves by way of campaign thunder. It is, however, put up in the same form as extracts from the Congressional Record, slugged at the stoy "not printed at government expense."

And it seems to be somebody's idea of "issues" democratic spell-binders might make in their stump campaigning.

Leading" Roll Calls

Obviously this is intended for the senatorial campaigns. The issues it raises are unemployment, over-riding the Hoover veto on Spanish-American war veterans' legation, the Vare case, the case of Frank L. Smith, the Borah resolution to confine tariff legislation to agricultural schedules; the final senate vote on farm debenture during the tariff row; the sugar rate in the tariff, and the final tariff vote on the conference report.

By way of good measure the vote denying Judge Parker a seat on the supreme bench is included. An attached sheet of "suggestions to speakers," however, says this was only to meet "the great demand for copies of the vote on this particular nomination."

Irregularities

So there you have it, a democratic summing up of issues with which to meet the "Hoover Achievements" booklet. The argument implied is that the regular republicans, from Allen to Watson, were wrong in every vote.

Yet there are some odd things to be noted. There seem to be only two of these politically critical votes on which the democrats themselves did not have backsliders who voted with the G. O. P. old-guard.

Take the unemployment vote by which the Wagner bill was taken up in the senate, 37 to 32. Four democrats voted "nay." Seven democrats voted against the Borah tariff resolution; six voted to release the conferees on the debenture matter.

Nine voted for the sugar rate raise. Five voted for the final tariff conference report. There were ten democrats voting for Parker's confirmation.

Obviously using these votes as party campaign material is a bit hard on the off-the-reservation democrats in each case.

But there is this to be recalled. Ransdell of Louisiana figures six times in that democratic "wrong" column, and what has happened to him? Blease of South Carolina is there twice, and he's out. Maybe that is significant.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Anti Der Tag

Mr. Editor:—Perhaps the tariff is not the question but judging by the inspiration giving rise to "Anti France", I am led to believe that it has some bearing on the subject. In principal I believe our tariff protection is justified, but I also realize that there is another point of view.

Let us stand on continental Europe and gaze westward, and with European eyes, view the great American tariff wall. Europe in debt, multitudes jobless, America the creditor, America the great European market, the market that must supply the principal profits, whereby the means of paying the debt must be derived.

Without readjustment the tariff stands as an impassable economic barrier to certain European products, the production of which means food and shelter to the producers. Isn't this a case of simple human reaction rather than base ingratitude, say of France?

Reverse the process, and I venture to predict some very interesting howls in the land located between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, even though, at the present time we do not depend on export trade.

In other words, a great deal depends on the point of view. Let's not take the Frenchman too serious, even though the poor devil let his human weakness get the best of him during a time when grub was high and profits scant.

God knows that the American soldier received little enough, yet he was the highest paid fighting man in the world, and perhaps the poor messieurs need was great, so there-for the graduated scale, or an income tax as it might be regarded.

What the poor Frenchman may have received wasn't a thought, compared to what the American soldier's stay-at-home flag waving compatriots took away from him, direct or indirectly.

A truth is spoken: "Where there is justice between nations there will be no wars." When British justice went sadly amiss about the year 1775, and American men were standing to arms, dying of starvation, disease and wounds, without clothing or arms, dying for an almost dying cause, "liberty," we must remember that two classes of soldiers came to America from continental Europe, one to help us and the other to destroy us.

Frenchmen came to help us, clothes from France covered some of our faithful soldiers, arms from France strengthened their hands and soldiers of France fought shoulder to shoulder with us in our hour of greatest need. If our revolutionary grandfathers could be here today, could it be possible that they would be forgetting France? Thank God their sons did not forget.

With justice there would be no wars: What justice was given Serbia, and where was justice and right when Belgium fell reeling and bleeding? Might makes right, necessity justifies any repudiation of honor, such was the doctrine blasted across the world in 1914.

France chose a strange place, "within a few miles of Paris," to begin her conquest of Germany. Why were the Uhlans on the Marne? The sinking of the Lusitania was not the direct cause of American entrance into the World war, although it may well have been.

Prior to April 2, 1917, 17 American ships, "not foreign," had been attacked by German U boats, on the high seas, in direct violation of American rights and in direct violation of German promises to respect our rights. Then, and then only did the United States declare a state of war existing with Germany.

For the same reason we fought Great Britain in 1812, and for the same reason we will fight again, any nation. Without justice there will be war! America helped France to drive out the Germany army, not to conquer Germany.

The German nation was conquered prior to 1914, by the German war-lords, her people were helpless. We have had our Caesars, Kaisers and Napoleons, we have Mussolini, and we don't want any Hitlers; there have been enough of them and then some.

The common people of Germany have suffered. They will probably never receive justice, for if they were able to hang all the insane pre-1914 leaders of Germany and Austria, they could not bring back the flower of its manhood.

But speaking of justice, let one's gaze be focused on that once shell-torn, blood-soaked strip of Belgium, France, Italy, Poland and Russia with its thousands and thousands bereaved mothers and widows, and disabled and dead.

Justice! Can't you hear those terrible 42 centimetre siege guns roaring justice against the forts of Leige? The common people of the world hold most things in common, friendship, love, suffering and weaknesses too, such as accepting too readily the doctrines of the silver tongued demagogue.

Let us cease waiting for Der Tag, for they drank their toast and found the bottom filled with dregs. With justice toward all there should be no wars, beside, after a sober thought, the cranberries might taste awfully bitter.

Norwich 100 Years Ago

From
THE NORWICH COURIER

One hundred years ago this week, The Norwich Courier, forerunner of The Norwich Morning Bulletin and published weekly by J. Dunham, gave to its readers news of the "latest in fall fashions." Although the modern fashion procession and window display contest were unheard of in those far off days, the Norwich merchant of a century ago was stocking up with new lines of drygoods and bonnets for the fair sex and the newest in hats for the gentlemen.

In the issue of The Courier of October 20, 1830, William A. Buckingham takes occasion to inform the public that he had just returned from New York and was "opening a large assortment of fresh dry goods," which he offered "at a small advance from cost." A number of similar announcements appear in the four page newspaper.

"Competition is the Life of Business" reads a stage coach and steamboat advertisement in the same issue. The fare from Norwich to New York was $1.50 on this particular line and stages left Kinney's hotel, Tuesdays and Fridays for the steamboat, known to the traveling public as "Victory."

The steamboat Fanny, another line running between Norwich and New York, carried passengers at a $3 rate, "meals extra" and sailed from Norwich Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Joseph Hyde, in the same issue of the hundred year old newspaper, announced the opening of the Steam Boat Hotel, "In Shetucket street, near the steamboat wharf, for the accommodation of travelers." His announcement further stated that "A faithful and experienced person" was "employed in the stable connected with the above house."

Backus and Norton had just received 20 barrels of "Troy ale, manufactured by Read, Armstrong and Co., and warranted equal to any in the country."

Among other well known Norwich names appearing in the issue are Gilbert and Ripley who had 2,000 gallons of Fall strained sperm oil for sale and Henry H. Roath, who according to his announcement, had just returned from New York with "a handsome supply of parlor, cooking and box stoves."

Thomas Robinson and Miss Harriet M. Tyler, daughter of Col. Samuel Tyler, were married in this city, that month and year, by Rev. Mr. Paddock.

The paper published a lengthy letter by James Madison, fourth president of the United States, in which he discussed the Constitution of the United States. He says in the letter; "It was formed by the states, that is by the people in each of the states, acting in their highest sovereign capacity and formed consequently by the same authority which formed the state constitution."

CHILD TRAINING

Practice What You Preach

Cora M. Silvius

This is what thirteen-year-old Ella confided to me while I was nursing her through a slight illness. I am passing it on with the hope that it will help some other mother to understand her thirteen-year-old daughter.

"You see, Mother thinks I should learn to be courteous but she rarely says 'please' or 'thank you' to Father or me. Of course she is gracious and lovely to strangers, but she seems to think that we do not count. And she is always talking about getting a divorce when things don't go to suit her. I know she is only in fun but I wish she wouldn't do it.

"She calls Father 'Old Beans' or some such name. She tells him that he is stupid and old-fashioned — he isn't one bit. I know it hurts his feelings sometimes. Why does she do the things that annoy us, I wonder?

"Besides, how can I remember to be polite always when Mother is not polite at home? But she thinks I should be.

"And then about cheating — she says it is alright to 'put things across the other fellow' when you are playing cards. But she wants me to be square in school and about other things. Why isn't she?

"She wants me to be neat, too, fresh and clean. But she puts powder on her own face when she should wash it; then she laughs because she can fool people so easily. Why doesn't she do what she wants me to do?

A great many people are talking about us — I mean about the girls of today. They say we are disrespectful, discourteous, that we know too much, and a great many other things. My goodness, how can we help it? We hear all sorts of scandal talked over by our mothers. Really, Mother tells some of the awfulest things about her friends! Sometimes I think she doesn't love anyone.

"I can't confide in her at all. Things I did tell her she repeated and caused trouble among the girls I go with. Besides, she treats me as though I were a small child and didn't know anything. If she does a thing, why isn't it right for me to do it?

"I wish I had a mother who would tell me the truth about things. I need advice. But if I ask Mother anything she laughs at me and calls me her 'grownup baby.' She will not help me one bit. I like Father, and sometimes I wish he could spank Mother. She thinks she is so 'up to date' but I wish she would be a pal to us."

Out of the fulness of my heart and my experience I answered the questions which bothered little Ella. Some day, provided nothing pulls her down she will be a splendid woman. But it will not be because her mother has made her so. Why is it that some mothers cannot see, cannot understand?

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jimmy Skunk Returns Early

When you've been trying to be good,
How sad to be misunderstood.
—Black Pussy.

It was just before daylight that Jimmy Skunk yawned, stretched, wondered for a moment where he was, remembered, and then crept out of Black Pussy's comfortable bed in Farmer Brown's shed. He first went over to the two dishes where the liver and milk had been the night before. He found nothing there and then walked out through the little round doorway which had been provided for Black Pussy. Once outside, Jimmy shuffled along home. He was feeling very comfortable and in good humor.

It was some time after daylight, in fact, it was after breakfast time, that Black Pussy ventured out from her hiding place in the barn and went to the kitchen door and begged to be admitted. She took great pains to keep away from the shed as much as possible. Once in the kitchen, she rubbed against Mother Brown and meowed, teasing for breakfast. Mother Brown went to the back shed and looked out. An empty plate and an empty saucer were there.

"You don't need anything to eat," she said. "A cat who could get away with all that liver and milk that I left out there for you last night, certainly cannot be hungry now."

"Meow!" said Black Pussy, and kept right on teasing. However, she teased in vain. Mother Brown simply wouldn't give her any more food, explaining that she didn't want to overfeed her and so make her sick.

Poor, Black Pussy! She really was hungry. Of course, there was no way for Mother Brown to know that any one else had eaten up that good meal that she had placed out in that shed the night before. She knew that Bowser the Hound had been out in his little house, chained, lest he take it into his head to go hunting Reddy Fox. She knew that Flip the Terrier had been shut up in the kitchen all night. The liver and milk were gone, so, of course, Black Pussy must have eaten them. Finally Black Pussy gave up teasing and went out to the barn to try to catch a mouse. She wasn't at all a happy cat.

Now, Jimmy Skunk is one of those who believes in making the most of opportunities. He believes in getting the thing that he can get easiest. Late that afternoon, just about the time jolly, round, red Mr. Sun was getting ready to go to bed behind the Purple Hills, Jimmy awoke. As usual, the first thing he thought of as his stomach, I mean by that, that the first thing he thought of was something to eat. He remembered the feast he had had the night before up in the shed at Farmer Brown's house.

"Perhaps," said Jimmy to himself, "there'll be another feast there. It is a lot easier to get a dinner like that than it is to go hunt for it. I believe I'll go up there early. Somebody else might get that dinner before I do."

So it was just dusk when Jimmy Skunk ambled across the yard to Black Pussy's hole in the shed. It just happened that no one saw him. He walked right through without hesitating. The door from the kitchen was open. There were very pleasant odors coming from it. Had not Jimmy already been hungry, the smell of those good things would have made him hungry. But there was no plate of liver and no saucer of milk out in that shed. Jimmy was disappointed. He was very much disappointed. He was undecided just what to do. Finally he decided to wait a while and see what would happen.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Cosetry Incorporated, South Norwalk.

On January 1, 1880, the late Emile H. Roth and Julius Goldschmidt formed the partnership of Roth & Goldschmidt. Up to that time Mr. Roth had been a partner in the firm of Joseph Beckel & Co., importers of corsets, and had traveled extensively in the United States in the interest of the distribution of the goods. Mr. Goldschmidt had been in the glove importing business.

They started manufacturing corsets in a very small way at South Norwalk, where they rented a small frame building with sales room and office at No. 16 Walker street, New York city.

The domestic corset industry at that time was in its infancy, and with the exception of two or three prominent domestic manufacturers, all corsets were imported from Europe, principally France, Belgium and Germany.

The firm of Roth & Goldschmidt started with a very limited capital, and the difficulties encountered in finding a market in this country were also insurmountable. But the good popular quality of the merchandise which they produced, together with upright business methods and the good will of every dealer with whom they came in contact, finally made the business prosper so that in 1884 they moved from the wooden factory, which they had rented, to their own four-story brick building.

On January 1, 1897 the firm became the R. & G. Corset company with the two founders as principal stockholders together with W. A. Marble as vice president. Mr. Marble had been with the firm since 1884, having severed his connection with the Worcester Corset company, which was one of the two or three prominent firms mentioned above.

In 1900, because of ill health, Mr. Roth retired from active participation in the business. Mr. Goldschmidt also retired from great activity in the busines sand spent most of his time abroad, residing at present in Hamburg, Germany. Mr. Marble then became general manager until 1926, when he also retired.

About a year ago the business consolidated with the Olmstead corporation (formerly of Springfield, Mass.) under the trade name of Cosetry Incorporated.

The present officers of the company are: O. B. Olmstead, chairman of the board; W. E. Marble, president; Manfred M. Goldschmidt, vice president; Wallace L. Gladding, treasurer; Edwin A. Frank, secretary

TWO WOMEN HURT WHEN AUTOMOBILE WENT OVER 40 FOOT EMBANKMENT

Two Lisbon women were painfully injured shortly after 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when the Ford coupe in which they were riding crashed through a fence and went down a 40-foot embankment, near Round Hill, on the Norwich-Jewett City highway. The women were Mrs. Sherman Waters and her sister, Mrs. Minnie Hobart. They were brought to the W. W. Backus hospital in this city, where they were attended. At the hospital, Sunday, it was stated that their injuries are not serious.

Mrs. Waters and Mrs. Hobart were riding toward Jewett City in the former's coupe, with Mrs. Waters at the wheel. She told Constable Aubrey Potter of Lisbon, who checked up on the wreck, that a south-bound automobile hooked into her mudguard and forced her light machine off the road. Crashing through the fence, the car turned over several times and landed on its side, nearly onto the railroad track, some 40 feet below. The state highway was filled with the many cars that go to make up the Saturday afternoon traffic. Some of these drivers rushed to the aid of the two women, Mrs. Waters being pinned under the wrecked car and Mrs. Hobart having been thrown through the door.

Others sent a hurry call to the Backus hospital and to Constable Potter. Both of the women, who are past middle age, were rushed to the Backus hospital, where it was found that Mrs. Waters had a bad scalp wound, a broken thumb and injury to her knee and back. Mrs. Hobart, who now is making her home with her sister, sustained a broken arm, bad scalp wounds and injury to the wrist of the other arm. The officer was not able to establish a clue of any sort, relative to the machine that caused the accident. Both women are very well known in Lisbon, also in Jewett City, where Mrs. Waters is a member and active worker in the Congregational church.

Franklin G. Waters and John and Fred Whalley went to the scene of the wreck early Sunday morning and were able to recover several articles, among them Mrs. Waters' pocketbook. The car was hauled up the steep bank Sunday.

NORTON MEMORIAL OPENING ON ACADEMY ANNIVERSARY

The informal opening of the Norton Memorial gymnasium which has been set for Tuesday evening is to take place on the 74th anniversary of the Norwich Free Academy, as the school was opened on Oct. 21, 1856.

This new gymnasium building, which will serve for both the boys and the girls, meets a need which has long existed in the development of the school. The building has been erected on the westerly side of the campus grounds, between Slater Memorial hall and the residence of Principal H. A. Tirrell. The exterior is of brick with limestone trimmings and the inside finish of the gymnasium proper is of glazed brick. The general dimensions of the building are 150 feet by 75 feet. The front is to be occupied by the girls' department and rear by the boys' department.

As one enters the front of the building on the right is the corrective gymnasium for the girls and also leading off of that a storage room for storing temporary bleachers. On the left of the main corridor are stairs leading to the floor above; also offices for the instructor and assistants. On the floor above is the girls' shower room with 40 individual compartments; also a room for the gymnasium suits, etc.

Passing through the main corridor the large gymnasium is entered. This room has an overall dimension of 95 by 72 feet and is arranged so that bleachers may be put on either side. The main gymnasium is divided by a folding partition, 22 feet high, which makes the large room into two gymnasiums, one for the boys and one for the girls, each room being 47 by 60 feet. The boys' department faces on the athletic field and on the main floor contains a corrective gymnasium with office for the instructor and assistant, and over this department is the shower room and locker room.

To Initiate Candidates.

Several candidates are to be initiated this (Monday) evening at a meeting of Wauregan lodge, No. 6, Knights of Pythias. A special program has been arranged, and a social with refreshments will follow.

NORTON MEMORIAL GYMNASIUM

YANTIC CHANNEL PROJECT STIRS UP CONTROVERSY

Persons interested in Yantic river channel project, where the Edward Chappell company has petitioned for the right to extend docks, are making public letters which have been written to show their points of view.

Reply By Attorney Higgins.

In reply to a letter written by Christopher M. Gallup, retiring chairman of the chamber of commerce Thames river deepening committee, which was published Saturday in The Bulletin, the following is made public by Attorney Edwin W. Higgins, counsel for several who are opposing the Chappell company petition:

Your last paragraph in your letter to me of date October 16th is both unkind and untrue and is indeed unworthy of you.

A North Stonington citizen if he is to presume to dictate or sit in judgment on Norwich's needs and to determine Norwich policies should at least be informed, impartial and courteous.

Terminal facilities were not considered either at the recent hearing or at the time the 18 feet channell was adopted.

From the local papers announcing the new committee of the local chamber of commerce it would seem that the Thames river improvement committee was not appointed. Edward Chappell & company's attorney is now president of the chamber of commerce.

The formulation of any plan by the engineers must be predicated on a survey. That is all that was asked for at the recent hearing and all that is asked for now and it was the understanding of all present at that hearing that the chamber of commerce through your committee favored this survey.

Mayor Robbins Letters

Mayor Robbins has replied to the letter sent him by Attorney Higgins and also has sent a letter to Major Taylor of the district engineers office, war department at Providence, R. I. The mayor's letters follow:

Major Charles J. Taylor,
District Engineer, Room 419, New Federal Bldg.
Providence, Rhode Island.

My dear Major:

Norwich's interest in the proposed extension of the Edward Chappell company's wharf centers upon the relation such an addition may have to navigation.

It would seem that this question is primarily contingent upon the determination of the project for deepening the river in this vicinity. If this channel is to be improved nothing which will prevent the resultant increased use to all adjacent properties should be permitted. If, on the other hand, this channel is not to be dredged the effect of such an addition to the present limited use of the river at this point should be carefully considered.

The main question of whether or not the proposed extension, after making further allowances for the room taken by a vessel moored to it, will constitute an obstruction to navigation, is one which your office is best fitted to answer.

Lee Roy Robbins,
Mayor.

October 17, 1930

Hon. Edwin W. Higgins,

My dear Mr. Higgins:

Replying to your letter of October 14 relative to the proposed extension of the Edward Chappell company's wharf.

My view's upon this matter are expressed in my letter to Major Taylor (relative to the communication which I received from his office) a copy of which I inclose to answer more fully your communication.

The federal authorities, as you know, are extremely zealous in their efforts to keep all navigable water open and free from obstruction. Under the circumstances I believe the city's interest in this matter will be amply safe-guarded by the U. S. District engineer.

Lee R. Robbins

Statement by Mr. Mahoney

The following statement was made Sunday night by James O. Mahoney, president of the Mahoney Coal company;

"The stand taken by Christopher Gallup of North Stonington in his letter printed in the Norwich Bulletin on October 18, relative to the narrowing of the westerly channel of the Yantic River, is very misleading in that it is likely to convey the impression that the Mahoney Coal company is opposing the development of local waterways. As a matter of fact, the Mahoney Coal company is very much in favor of deepening both of the Yantic channels as far as the West Side bridges, and went on record as being in favor of such improvement at the hearing conducted in this city about a month ago by Major Taylor of the U. S. Army Engineers.

"It will be recalled that the Edward Chappell company, now petitioning for permission to narrow the Yantic channel, thereby increasing its holdings on Central wharf by several thousand square feet, did not at that time lend any encouragement to the deepening project which was then under consideration.

"It must be clear to the public that the deepening of the Yantic channels and the granting permission to narrow the westerly Yantic channel are two distinct propositions. The former would be of great value to the community and to all property owners who have riparian rights on either channel. It extends the benefits that derive from the deepening of the Thames river, and is clearly the logical culmination of the Thames river deepening project. It appears to be a proposition thoroughly in harmony with the public interest.

"The latter involves granting special privilege to one party to the consequent embarrassment of other parties having right to free and ready access to the docks on the side of the channel to the west of the large holdings of the Edward Chappell company. On this sorry planet, at least, barges and other vessels are not in the habit of playing leap-frog; and our local traffic officers are performing far more efficient service on Main street than they would if stationed on tubs in the Thames and Yantic.

"I contend, and I am not alone in my position, that the narrowing of the Yantic channel is not consistent with the public good, that it would grant virtual monopoly of the Yantic river channel to one company, and that it is no more warranted than the giving to any Main street property owner permission to extend his building to the car tracks.

"I protest against the granting of the petition of the Edward Chappell company in the belief that the property owners on the Thames street side of the Yantic have very definite water rights. I believe in treating all property owners and business men with even-handed justice, and I do not favor any project which in effect would tend to any public good, or the good of any number of citizens, to any single private interest.

"However, the deepening of all of our local channels is a matter on which all public spirited citizens may find common ground of agreement. That improvement is favored by the chamber of commerce and a considerable number of local citizens at the hearing held a month ago; I was represented by attorney at that time as favoring the project, and my position in that regard remains unchanged."

PICTURE SERVICE HELD AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

Every seat was taken in the large gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at the second of the picture services of the season. The meeting was opened with prayer and several songs were sung with the words on the screen. Waldo Newbury played the piano.

The very impressive second half of the moving picture feature, "Noah's Ark," was shown with very good results. The large audience broke into applause on several occasions when the heroes of the picture story won the victories over evil and wrong.

During the service, Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk, and spoke in part as follows: "We read in the Bible these words, 'Be kind one to another.' We could read on the face of the good chaplain great kindness, as he sought to minister unto those in trouble in the great war. The old world never needed kindness as it does today, and we all have abundant opportunity to be kind. Youth does not always show proper kindness to the older people. Sons and daughters often fail to show the kind spirit in the home life to the parents, and alas, at times parents fail to show the kindness they should to their children. In every relation of life we can find a chance to be kind. The greatest example of kindness was shown by Jesus Christ, 'Who was rich but for our sakes became poor, that we through His poverty might be rich.' He went all the way to the cross to show divine kidness to us all. Let us all cultivate the spirit of kindness and thereby we shall contribute our share of happiness to our day and generation."

STATE BAPTISTS URGE 18TH AMENDMENT ENFORCEMENT

A resolution urging the legislature and state officials of Connecticut to support unreservedly the efforts of the federal government to secure the observance of the 18th amendment and permit no weakening of the Connecticut enforcement code, was adopted by the Connecticut Baptist convention at the session which was held at the First Baptist church in New London, Saturday morning in the last day of the three days' convention which has been held there.

The 1931 convention will be held at the First Baptist church at Bridgeport. The preacher will be Rev. J. N. Lackey of Hartford and the alternate will be D. C. MacIntosh of Yale. The exact date of the convention was not set but it will be some time during the week of Oct. 15.

The resolution on prohibition was one of several which were adopted at Saturday morning's meeting.

Another resolution commended the work of the committee on evangelism and decided that the work of recruiting and training of disciples of the Lord be emphasized as an absolute necessity for the promotion of the cause of Christ.

A resolution for the relief in some measure of the unemployment situation urges that aid be given fellow Baptists to procure work among the constituents of the various churches.

It was also resolved that every effort be exerted to remedy internal and external evils which end to break the American home.

Cites Changes In Rural Life.

Rev. Edwin E. Sundt, director of rural work, spoke on the Spiritual Implications of Our Present Rural Life. He reviewed the tremendous changes of rural life since 1900, such as, machinery, telephones and electrical appliances, the automobile, radio and improved highways. These have procured a revolution in the life of rural peoples. Even greater changes have occurred in the realm of improved education. He spoke of the marked spirit of unrest and discontent reflected in an alarming increase of divorce, illegitimacy and crime in country communities.

The country church is on the retreat and unable to stem the tide of moral decay. Twenty-five thousand country churches have closed in the past year. Forty per cent. of those remaining will not last a generation. Less than ten per cent. are holding their own and only five per cent. are making progress.

Among the causes for this condition the speaker mentioned, dissension within the churches, narrow theological beliefs and an unwillingness to face the facts. He suggested as a remedy the serious examination of our hearts, our church programs, and our Christian lives.

Afternoon Session.

Dean Thomas Wearing of Rochester, N. Y., was the principal speaker of the afternoon session. His topic was Tremendous Trifles.

Mrs. William E. Chalmers of Philadelphia conducted the conference on church school extension, cradle roll, home department and parent education.

Evening Meetings.

The men's banquet was held at 5.30 o'clock at the Second Congregational church with Prof. C. C. Tillinghast, principal of the Horace Mann school in New York as the speaker.

The young people's banquet was held simultaneously at the First Baptist church with Dean Wearing speaking on The Sharing of Life's Loyalties.

THREE OUTSTANDING EASTERN TEAMS FALL IN SATURDAY'S COLLEGE GAMES

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Echoes of the first general clash of the mighty this season rang out along the eastern line today and left the dazed pigskin faithful marvelling at the might of a new Army team and muttering over the wreckage of three bright eastern hopes, sank without a trace in the mid-west.

Army rose from a maze of doubts and misgivings to batter down a fine Harvard team 6 to 0 yesterday and fling a warning to the nation that new coaching, new backs and a new attack have more than replaced the menacing spell "Red" Cagle wove almost singlehanded over the cadet foes of the past few seasons. But the pride in Army was overshadowed by astonishment at the fate of Carnegie Tech, Pennsylvania and Colgate in three of the biggest intersectional battles of the day.

Granted an even chance for victory, the Tartans of Tech, riding on a wave of confidence and power, stormed into the Notre Dame stronghold at South Bend and took a sound trouncing, 21 to 6. Pennsylvania, with all the mystery of her hidden ball attack sealed into a thoroughly capable eleven, crumpled 27 to 0 before Wisconsin, and Colgate, touted as one of the strongest teams in the east, went down under the onslaught of the little favored Michigan State squad, 14 to 7. To the surprise of the east these high geared attacks scored only two touchdowns in the three games.

The Violets of New York university furnished some intersectional balm by driving back the invaders from Missouri, 38 to 0, with a sophomore attack that smothered the weak efforts of the tame Tigers of the southwest. Duke turned in a decided upset by whipping Navy's faltering array, 18 to 0.

Sharing the eastern glory with Harvard, Yale came back from the Georgia defeat in rousing fashion to beat down Brown, 21 to 0, with little Albie Booth in the starting lineup for the first time in his varsity career and performing with the spectacular flair of a story book hero. Dartmouth shattered Lou Little's new Columbia team, 52 to 0, the most one-sided victory in the history of this rivalry. Pittsburgh overpowered the big Syracuse squad, 14 to 0, and Gil Dobie's rejuvenated Red wave of Cornell rode over the faltering Princeton Tigers, 12 to 7.

But above all the victories and upsets stood the performance of Army, with its tricky double wing back formations borowed from the style of "Pop" Warner on the west coast, its massive line that overpowered the great Harvard forward wall in the critical moments, and a new triumvirate of husky backs in Cy Letzelter, Ed Herb and Ken Fields. The cadet line smothered the crack passing of Barry Wood, the dangerous Crimson laterals, the plunging of Harvard's wealth of fine backs and the big moments in the first period, cleared the way for "Appleknocker" Bowman, quarterback from Tennessee, to dash 14 yards and Herb to spring 16 through the line for the only touchdown of the game.

Yale finally gave Albie Booth, the 144 pound quarter, a chance to test his elusiveness against a fresh team and he answered with a performance that provided a clincher to the arguments over his greatness. The mighty mite scored one touchdown and kicked a field goal, paved the way for another score through his brilliant field dashes behind fine interference, and came back to the game in the fourth quarter to rally a harrassed eleven into scoring nine more points. The only time Brown really stopped him was when he tried once to plunge through a massed defense to the goal line ten yards away in four straight bucks.

Although Lafayette failed to win, the Leopards, beaten by Colgate 41 to 0 the week before, provided another upset in holding Penn State to a scoreless tie. Villanova rallied to turn in a surprising victory over Boston college, 7 to 0 and the husky raiders of Western Maryland whipped Georgetown once more 10 to 0. Temple added more prestige to a growing cause by downing Washington and Jefferson 20 to 7. Fordham continued a string of victories running into the second year with a 6 to 0 conquest of Holy Cross. Maryland had trouble whipping St. Johns (Md.), 21 to 13, but Rutgers licked Johns Hopkins, 33-0.

Up New England way Bowdoin defeated Tufts, 19 to 14, Boston university nosed out Middlebury, 7 to 0, Amherst beat Worcester Tech, 26 to 0. Colby sank Lowell Textile, 19 to 0. New Hampshire stopped Maine, 14 to 6, Rhode Island conquered Bates, 10 to 0, Union bested Vermont, 19 to 7, Wesleyan shut out Rochester, 12 to 0, and Williams swamped Hobart, 65 to 0.

Among the Pennsylvania colleges, Gettysburg beat Lehigh, 14 to 0, Bucknell defeated St. Thomas, 10 to 0, Grove City outpointed Westminster, 19 to 0, Allegheny nosed out Thiel, 6 to 0, and Muhlenburg conquered Dickinson, 7 to 0.

YALE HAS SEVEN FIRST STRINGERS ON INJURED LIST

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 19—(AP)—Despite the fact that three more were hurt in the Brown game, Coach Mal Stevens hopes to have nearly every one of his injured regulars available when Yale faces Army in the bowl next Saturday.

Captain Vincent, tackle; Hare, guard and Flygare, end, were bruised so badly by Brown that they have been ordered to lay off several days, probably not appearing at the practice field until Thursday or Friday.

The Georgia game crippled Chick McLennon, quarterback, and Lindenberg, end, while Charlie Heim, quarterback, was hurt in practice last week. They are mending nicely, however, and it is expected they will play against the cadets.

The incapacitation of McLellan and Heim, forced Stevens to start his brilliant quarterback Albie Booth for the first time in his collegiate football career.

Charlie Snead, halfback, whose hard luck with injuries has aroused much sympathy, still remains in a hospital with an eye infection. It is doubtful even if he will get into the Dartmouth game.

He got a play by play account of the Brown game over the telephone while he lay on his hospital cot.

CHAPMAN TECH WINS HARD GAME FROM PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Oct. 19.—Although bowing in defeat, by a score of 12-6, to Chapman Technical high school of New London, Saturday afternoon Captain Pat Anderson and his stubborn, hard fighting lads of Putnam high school, gave the boys of the Whaling city the strongest dose of opposition they have been forced to contend with this season. The outcome of Saturday's grid tussle completely upset predictions as the New Londoners were expected to completely trample down Coach L. F. Noyes' team by an overwhelming score.

Weakened by the loss of the unruly Reynolds, Putnam's veteran quarterback, the Blue and White backfield was expected to operate in a crude and inefficient manner. But the expected did not come to pass. In fact, Reynolds' absence did not affect the moral of the team in any form whatever, as Russ Ryan, playing his first grid game under the tutelage of Coach Noyes, ably supplanted Reynolds at the signal calling post and contributed much to Putnam's part in staving off the Chapman siege which was conducted incessantly during the playing periods, by the strong and almost inpentrable line that afforded Capt. Anderson's cohorts plenty to think about.

In the last four minutes of play, with the score deadlocked, Captain Mansfield after a tomeout period rallied his spirit broken team and staged the most determined ground gaining attempt seen during the game. Bucko plowed through right guard and followed the play up with an end run, that netted a first down on Putnam's 15 yard line. The subsequent plays brought the ball to within striking distance of the scoring stripe, when Thurber, burly Chapman back, in the center of a wedge hit the scrimmage line, tumbled over the pile and stretched the ball behind the goal posts for the second and winning touchdown. A try kick failed and the game ended in a Chapman win, but not a victory that the New Londoners can boast was easily taken, but rather one that was obtained after every ounce of fighting spirit was squeezed from Captain Patrick Anderson's football "Bric-a-bracs" severely battered frames.

GIANTS SWAMP YELLOW JACKETS WITH EASE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP)—Mixing a sensational overhead attack with a powerful ground game, the New York Giants rode rough shod over the Frankfort Yellow Jackets to get a 53 to 0 decision in a national football league game today.

Fifteen thousand shivering spectators saw the Giants unleash an attack early in the second period that rolled the Jackets back almost at will during the last three quarters of the route. For one period the invaders held the Giants' second string backs scoreless but a pass, Moran to Wilson, netted the New Yorkers their first touchdown, a minute after the second session opened.

STRIBLING SIGNED TO BOX AL FRIEDMAN

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19—(AP)—An agreement was signed here today for a ten round bout between W. L. (Young) Stribling and Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, at the Argonne A. C. in Boston, October 31. Eddie Mack, Argonne promoter flew here today with Stribling and obtained the signature of Al Lippe, manager of Friedman to the agreement. Stribling's manager was said to have previously attached his signature.

Friedman also has been signed for bouts with Ralph Ficucello, of New York, in New Haven, on October 27, and Frankie Wine, in Oklahoma City, November 3.

WINS GOLF MARATHON WITH 96 STROKES

RAWLINS, Wyo., Oct. 19—(AP)—A sagebrush golf tournament—which is just what it sounds like—was held today, and Lester Gopp, of Parco won the first annual marathon with a low score of 96 in a seven mile hit-and-walk contest from Parco to Rawlins.

The winner took seven hours and 45 minutes to complete his play. He drove off from the first tee of the Parco club, and holed out in a pigmy course here.

Three women started but only one, Mrs. W. A. Urban, of Parco, finished. Her score was 244.

Forty four of the 49 entrants finished.

PACKERS STILL UNBEATEN IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 19—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers continued their undefeated march in the National Football league here, today, by trouncing the Minneapolis Red Jackets, 13 to 0. The Packers scored in the first quarter when Llewlleyn went over from the six-yard line after a pass to Nash had put the ball in position. Dunn kicked goal. The other score came by the same method in the fourth quarter, Dunn passing to McCrary and Molenda bucking over from the three yard line. Joesting and Barrager starred for Minneapolis.

ROBERT FITCH HIGH PULLS DAVID AND GOLIATH ACT ON ACADEMY TEAM

Robert Fitch high of Groton came out of the unknown Saturday afternoon at the campus to pin a 6 to 0 defeat on the Academy gridders in the local team's fourth start of the season and their second home game. About 1,200 fans were on hand.

It was the biggest upset of the current scholastic season, this uprising by the small band of Fitch boys, representing a school started only a year ago and with a student enrollment three or four times smaller than N. F. A.'s, which swept the Wildcats to their second straight loss.

The Academy, however, are not without a good alibi—if they wish to claim one—for four of their first-stringers were hors de combat, and one of them is absent for the season, it seems. Les Crowell, first-class tackle, who was the mainspring in the Academy's victory over Bulkeley last year and who had been playing a great game again this season, has left school while Cotter, halfback, Sheridan, end, and Richards are on the injured list. Geer, who played part of the game, is also troubled with a bad ankle.

The lone score of Saturday's listless game came in the first quarter when about eight minutes of the game had elapsed. Burrows going over for the score from four yards out after Fitch had taken the ball on the 20 yard line on an Academy fumble and in a short time had worked it up.

Fitch outplayed the Academy over the majority of the contest. Their off-tackle dashes and trick formations which sent runners around ends gave the Academy plenty of trouble. Fitch was stopped from at least two other scores by a stiffening of the Academy defense inside the 20 yard line.

On the other hand, the Academy never really got going. Frequent fumbles and an inability to take advantage of the breaks robbed the Academy of any chance of putting over any tallies. In the second quarter, especially, Fitch had been forced back to its 15 yard line and was kicking on last down. The boot was a very poor one, going almost straight up in the air and covering not more than ten yards. This looked like a real chance for it would have given the Wildcats the ball around the 25 yard stripe, but the Academy fumbled and Fitch recovered and then got out of danger.

Fitch then marched down the field about 60 yards to the Academy 20 yard line where N. F. A. held and shortly after, the half ended.

In the third quarter Fitch received and gaining but little kicked. The Academy took the ball but could not do much better and the period turned out to be rather uneventful. A few nice runs by Speed Riordan, reserve Academy back, were noteworthy. The period ended with the Academy holding the ball on Fitch's 40 yard stripe.

Fitch intercepted a pass over the center and after three plays kicked to midfield. The Academy kicked back to the Groton school's 35 yard line and Fitch punted back until finally the Academy lost the ball on downs on their own 40 yard line.

Fitch punted over the line after being unable to gain and, with the time dwindling, the Academy resorted to many forwards. One was allowed on an interference which brought the ball to Norwich's 40 yard line, but Fitch took the ball around midfield on downs and shortly after, the game ended, with nothing that looked like a score hanging around.

The Academy is now at the .500 mark, having beaten Chapman Tech and Hartford Bulkeley in the first two games and then lost to Warren Harding and Fitch.

DANIELSON YELLOW JACKETS WIN FROM JEWETT CITY TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 19.—The Danielson Yellow Jackets defeated the Jewett City soccer team in an eastern Connecticut league game here this afternoon by a score of 4 to 1. Due to the cold weather and high wind only a few of the faithful turned out to see the game. The Yellow Jackets had everything their own way up to the last ten minutes of the last half when Jewett City rallied and with fast playing booted one into the net. Danielson scored the first goal when Coughlin, the Jewett City goalie booted a shot made by Barone of Danielson, the ball striking E. Cantara on the head and bouncing back into the net for a score for the Yellow Jackets. The Danielson team played with crippled men as most of the regulars were nursing sore legs received in the Putnam game. Hudson and Cimami were the stars of the game with their passwork. The summary:

Sets New Running Mar.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Jule Ladoumegue, stellar French middle distance runner, today bettered the world record for the one kilometer run, covering the distance in two minutes, 23 2-5 seconds. The old record for one thousand meters was 2:23 4-5 seconds, held by Dr. Otto Peltzer, of Germany. This was the second world record Ladoumegue has lifted in two weeks from Peltzer. On October 5, he ran 1500 meters in 3:49 1-5 to break Peltzer's mark of 3:51.

ROSENBLOOM-BAIN BOUT TOPS THIS WEEK'S CARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, veteran champion of the light heavyweights, offers the principal relief from the nation-wide boxing drought this week by defending his title in Madison Square Garden Wednesday night against Abie Bain, young Newark, N. J., scrapper. Except for this one title-defense, big time boxing has come almost to a standstill throughout the country.

Rosenbloom, who has weathered a large number of fights, is overwhelmingly favored over Bain, who has fought only a few times as a light heavyweight, although he has a fairly long record in other divisions. The Harlem cuffer is expected to have only one difficulty, that of making the 175 pound limit, but he is reported to be close to the mark. The bout is to go the regulation title distance of 15 rounds.

The ten round semi-final brings together Pete Sanstol, Norwegian heavyweight, and Joe Scalfero of New York, who gained a close decision over Sanstol a short time ago.

A pair of heavyweight battles head the week's program in Boston. On Tuesday night Jack Gagnon and Con O'Kelly, both Bostonians, clash over the ten round route with the prospect of the winner meeting another of their townsmen, Jack Sharkey. This fight has been promised but not yet arranged. Thursday, Johnny Risko, Cleveland's bounding baker, takes on Dick Daniels, Minneapolis heavyweight, in another ten rounder.

Tod Morgan, former junior lightweight champion, heads the card on the west coast, meeting Hector MacDonald in a ten round lightweight encounter.

Other bouts on the week's national program include:

Monday — At Philadelphia: Eddie Shea, Chicavo, vs. Johnny Datto, Cleveland, featherweights. Ten rounds.

Tuesday—at Portland, Ore.: Herman Ratzlaff, Minot, S. D., vs. Red Uhlan, Oakland, Cal., middleweights, ten rounds.

At Indianapolis: Harry Dillon, Winnipeg, vs. Chuck Burns, San Antonio, light heavyweights, ten rounds.

Thursday—At Detroit: King Tut, Minneapolis, vs. Billy Boy Townsend, Vancouver, lightweights, ten rounds.

Friday—At Hollywood, Cal.: Dutch Elliott, vs. Al Fay, heavyweights, ten rounds.

At Denver: Young Harry Wills, San Diego, Cal., vs. Charlie Ferica, New Orleans, welterweights, ten rounds.

Saturday—At Cincinnati: Pete Petrosky, Muskegon, Mich., vs. Charley Cobb, San Diego, Ca., welterweights, ten rounds.

GRANGE AND HOLMER STAR AS CHICAGO BEARS WIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.— (AP) —Walt Holmer, former Northwestern fullback, and Red Grange, Illinois' famous Galloping Ghost, today ran wild against the Chicago Cardinals, to give the Bears, Chicago's other entrant in the National Professional Football league, a 32 to 6 victory.

Grange did all his work in the first period, reeling off runs of 35 and 17 yards from scrimmage for touchdowns. Holmer grabbed a 48-yard forward pass from Joe Sternaman in the second period and on the next play traveled 31 yards for a score. He got another in the third period, and jammed over the final one at the start of the last frame from the three-yard mark. The Cards' only tally came in the last period when Ernie Nevers took a 14-yard pass from MacDonald and stepped over the Bear goal.

CROWELL LOST TO ACADEMY GRID TEAM

The withdrawal of Les Crowell from school last week at the Academy marked the third prominent athlete who was scheduled to wear the Red and White this year who will be among the missing.

Crowell, who was tackle on the football team and expected to be the varsity catcher next spring, has Tommy Lynch and Cliff Hamill to complete the trio. Lynch is one of the best young basketball players in eastern Connecticut and had been regarded as the backbone of this year's quintet when he was performing in sensational fashion for the Y Seniors last winter, while Hamill, picked as the best shortstop in the Junior league the past summer, was figured as the leading candidate for Chubby Gibbs' old post.

REFORM SCHOOL SENTENCE HANGS OVER BOYS' HEADS

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19—At the session of the juvenile court Friday afternoon four boys, each aged 15, were sentenced to the state reform school at Meriden, but execution of the sentences was suspended a year and the boys were placed on probation. Still another youth was placed on probation for a year. He was arrested several weeks ago when detected searching for tools in an automobile in the rear of the William B. Waterman auto sales station, Main street. Prior to the arrest of the youth Waterman had suffered the loss of tools stolen from automobiles of the estimated value of $200. The boys who were given suspended sentences formed a gang of four, who made a practice of forcing entrances to buildings and stealing metal for which they were paid cash by junk dealers. The parents of the boys have reimbursed the owners of the metal and Saturday Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer issued a warrant for the arrest of Max Adel, proprietor of a junk shop, 100 Howard street, on a charge of conducting a junk business without having compiled with that section of the city ordinance requiring such proprietor to obtain a license. When Adel is presented in the police court he may also be charged with buying stolen property. The issuance of the warrant was the result of the four boys revealing where they disposed of the metal. A fifth youth and a newsboy, who was detected in the act of looting the residence of Attorney William T. Connor, 290 Montauk avenue, and who confessed to the theft of $200 from the residence of Edward Lathrop, also of Montauk avenue, last August was sentenced to the state reform school, but execution of the sentence was suspended and the boy was placed on probation. The boy is paid $6 weekly for the delivery of his papers and has promised to make restitution by making weekly payments of $5 weekly until the money he stole has been returned to Lathrop. The boy claimed he got the idea of his systematic house-thieving from witnessing motion pictures.

ONE WEEK TO GO IN STORRS EGG LAYING

One more week and the 19th annual laying contest at Storrs will be finished. Meanwhile there is every indication that the final score will exceed by a small margin the record of any previous year.

In the 50th week the total lay for all pens was 2428 eggs or a yield of 34.7 per cent. This is 70 eggs under the previous week's production and 173 eggs less than for the corresponding week last year.

The heavy breeds are outsprinting the Leghorns as they near the finish line. Fisher Poultry Farm's pen of White Wyandottes from Ayton, Ontario, set the pace last week with a score of 50 eggs. R. C. Cobb's pen of Barred Rocks from Littleton, Mass., turned in 47 eggs for the second best weekly score.

Another pen of Barred Rocks entered by Spring Brook Poultry Farm at Wethersfield, Conn., Homestead Farms' pen of Reds from Newtown, Conn., and Hollywood Poultry Farms' pen of Leghorns from Woodinville, Wash., all tied for third place with 44 eggs each. F. S. Chapin's pen of Reds from Longmeadow, Mass., finished in fourth place with a tally of 42 eggs.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes — The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn. 2364, Jack Wrennal, Barton, Nr. Preston, Eng., 2175.

Barred Rocks—R. C. Cobb, Littleton, Mass., 2598, Pratt Experiment Farm, Morton, Pa., 2479. James Dryden, Modesto, Cal., 2344.

White Rocks—E. H. Rucker, Ottumwa, Iowa, 2180. Adam F. Poltl, Hartford, Wis., 1959, Davidson Bros., Upton, Mass., 1898.

FREAK BLIZZARD STRUCK WESTERN NEW YORK STATE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 19.—(AP)—With heavy snow still falling, the freak blizzard that struck western New York yesterday, blanketing some communities and missing others in the same general area, tonight was tightening its grip on the south shore of Lake Erie. Traffic was blocked on highways leading south and west out of Buffalo, but only a few scattering flakes fell in the downtown section of the city. South Buffalo was blanketed with six inches.

The heaviest fall of snow was reported at Angola, where it was four feet on the level. The situation was acute tonight in that vicinity. More than 200 automobiles were stalled on the main road within a mile of the village and the occupants of the machines were cared for by residents. It was estimated that at least 1,000 motorists were stalled between Wanakah and Dunkirk. Jamestown also reported roads blocked by drifts five feet deep in places.

ACTIVITY IN TEXTILES, BUILDING AND LEATHER INDUSTRIES NOTED LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(P)—The prophets of better business were again able to indicate several encouraging signs during the past week, although the signs were difficult to perceive through the cloud of gloom that has arisen since the autumn pickup failed to meet the rosier expectations.

There were further scattered reports of more activity in textiles, building, the leather trades and retail sales of apparel. Retail trade was hampered over large areas by warm weather, and shoe manufacturing was less active in some centers. Some observers, however, found decided encouragement from the fact that the cotton, woolen and leather industries began to show signs of betterment a few months ahead of metal and other heavier trades in the last pronounced depression, that of 1920-21 and felt recent trends on those lines foreshadow general improvement.

Encouraging also was a pronounced pickup in the movement of revenue freight, as reported for the week ended Oct. 4. The total for the week was the second largest of the year. Much of the increase was due to seasonal movement of coal, but miscellaneous freight also showed a marked pickup.

Reports from steel trade circles were in the main rather cheerless. Iron Age estimated that ingot output had fallen from 58 to 56 per cent of capacity. Non-ferrous metals were slow and prices eased. Some copper was offered as low as 9 3-4 cents a pound.

Fresh unsettlement in commodity prices, attributable in a measure to the recent unsettlement in the stock market have tended to hold industry in check. Grain prices moved uncertainly, wheat futures touching new lows early in the week. Furthermore, crude oil and gasoline prices were again under pressure in some localities.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(P)—Deliveries to consumers by General Motors dealers in September totaled 75,805 cars, compared with 86,426 in August and 124,723 in September last year. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors announced today. Sales by General Motors manufacturing divisions in September to dealers in the United States amounted to 69,901 cars, compared with 76,140 in August and 127,220 in September last year. Total sales to dealers, including Canadian sales and overseas shipments, amounted to 146,483 in September last year.

Price reductions averaging 20 percent in aeronautical instruments and equipment were announced today by Pioneer Instrument Co., a division of Bendix Aviation Corp. Charles H. Colvin, president of Pioneer, said the reductions were made possible through installation of new plant equipment, reorganization of manufacturing methods and the recent coordination of its activities with those of Aircraft Control Corp., acquired by Bendix.

One of the largest items of municipal financing scheduled for this week will be the sales of $75,000,000 4 percent corporate stock by the city of New York. This award will be made Tuesday.

Other state and municipal issues coming out this week will be comparatively small, and the total amount is figured at about $103,000,000, compared with about $15,000,000 last week.

Frank H. Anderson, president of American Department Stores Corp., announced that present inventories of the company are 50 percent less than a year ago. He said net profits for the six months ended Aug. 1 were ten times greater than the actual operations in the stores a year ago. "This net profit," he added, "was realized in spite of the very sharp decline in commodity prices, and was only possible because of a rigid control over expenditures."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

A Spanish-born actor who has appeared in numerous New York plays is Luis Alberni, making his feature talking picture debut in "The Santa Fe Trail," Paramount's new cinema translation of Hal G. Evarts' best-selling novel, "Spanish Acres." It is now playing at Warner's Broadway.

Alberni portrays Rosita Moreno's father and the owner of Spanish Acres in this Richard Arlen film.

He joins a cast which also includes Mitzi Green, Eugene Pallette, Junior Durkin, Hooper Atchley, Lee Shumway and others. Otto Brower and Edwin H. Knopf, co-directors of "The Light of Western Stars" and "The Border Legion," directed.

Alberni's Broadway stage career includes character parts in "The Little Teacher" with Mary Ryan, "39 East" with Constance Binney and Henry Hall, "Dear Me" with Grace LaRue and Hale Hamilton, "The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer" with Mary Young, "Smooth As Silk" with Willard Mack, and "What Price Glory" in which he played the original Cognac Pete for two years in New York and Chicago.

Al-Pierre Tabarin

McEnelly's Victor Recording Orchestra which will play at the Al-Pierre Tabarin on Valley street next Tuesday evening, October 21st, is well-known throughout the country. The work of this orchestra is not confined to dance music but includes vocal solos and choruses of musical bits which are said to be rendered in a distinctive manner, defying imitation. Their appearance here is expected to create a great deal of lively interest among the lovers of dancing as well as people who enjoy hearing modern syncopated melodies rendered by a first-class orchestra. Its dance records have been played in thousands of homes. As broadcasting artists over WBZ, this orchestra has also played to vast audiences and its popularity is attested by thousands of letters and telegrams which have been received from radio fans all over the country. In presenting this popular attraction, it is evidently the purpose of the Tabarin management to provide an entertainment of such variety and excellence that those who come to hear or dance to their music will be well repaid. McEnelly's is one of the biggest box office attractions of its kind in the country.

Palace Theatre

There were plenty of laughs at the Palace yesterday where great crowds flocked to see what is considered to be easily one of the finest feature length comedies that the movies have yet produced. Patrons of this popular local playhouse came to see "Up the River," a story with a new slant, and they went away with the feeling that they had had one of the most uproarious evenings that the screen has yet afforded.

"Up the River" is just like that. One moment you are wondering what is possibly going to happen, and the next moment you have broken down into uncontrollable gales of mirth as one of the characters does the funny thing.

"Up the River" has a cast a mile long, almost. There are approximately 50 featured players and nearly a thousand extras. John Ford, who directed the picture, certainly did his work handsomely, sparing neither time, trouble nor expense to make the picture a knockout.

"Up the River" differs from the usual run of comedy pictures because of its comic aspects, Here really is side splitting fun. We have a team of burglars and jail-breakers, remarkable fellows, who have one big purpose in life. They would do anything to further that purpose. What is this purpose? Well, you would never guess. What they want most in life is to help along the love affairs of a couple of their friends, and what they don't do to give this romance a helping hand is not worth talking about.

Lincoln Store's Anniversary

Local business prophets had very tangible evidence of the upswing in local business conditions from the announcement of the Lincoln Stores that Saturday, the opening day of their Seventh Anniversary sale was the biggest day the store had had in its history of three and one half years in Norwich.

Coming as it does at the very opening of Business Confidencec Week it gives Norwich definite proof of what has been known right along by many, that Norwich, through diversified industries, has been remarkably successful in keeping ahead of other communities during the past year.

On Saturday morning it was necessary to close the doors of the Lincoln store for an hour, so tremendous was the rush of Norwich people with good money to spend.

WOODSTOCK

A large audience gathered in Hall Memorial gymnasium Thursday evening to listen to the illustrated lecture by William Webster Ellsworth on "Arnold and Andre." Mr. Ellsworth a former editor of the Century magazine has appeared here several times before taking as his topic characters famous in American history. This lecture was for the benefit of Woodstock Academy Athletic association. Dancing followed the lecture.

Several from here attended the missionary meetings in Norwich, Thursday.

The shortage of water is becoming acute for many farmers as they are obliged to carry water for a considerable distance.

William Webster Ellsworth, while in town, was the guest of Clarence W. Bowen.

Reading Drama "Saul"

Frederick W. Hinrichs of New York and Woodstock has been reading for the past two Sunday nights in the Congregational chapel a drama written by himself entitled, "Saul," founded on the narrative as found in the Book of Samuel. Mr. Hinrichs is a careful Bible student with dramatic ability which he brings into play in reading the drama. The third and last installment is to be given next Sunday evening.

COMMUNION SERVICE AND MEMBERS ADMITTED

An impressive communion service was held at Salem Lutheran church on Hickory street Sunday. The recently organized choir was heard in a simple but appropriate anthem. Six new members were admitted into the membership of the church. Preceding the service, a baptismal service was held when three children were baptized. A large number came forward for communion.

During excavation of a large tomb near the Egyptian sphynx, a skeleton was found with a chain of gold beads in its fingers, and it was suggested that the man may have been a robber, who lost his way in the mazes of the complicated tomb.

BARONESS HIDES HER TITLE TO LEARN NURSING IN U. S.

MARIE VON KLEIST

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19—(AP)—A German baroness has completed nearly three years as a student nurse at Johns Hopkins hospital, with her title known only to a few intimates.

Baroness Marie Dorothea Eugenia Freiin von Kleist is enrolled as Miss Marie von Kleist of Germany. The only hints as to her lineage until recently were those found occasionally on a letter from her father or a package from her mother.

A blonde with curly hair, she told laughingly and with a slight accent of her life and her difficulties in overcoming parental objections to nursing, when the identity became generally known.

"I managed to arrange a trip to the United States in 1926," she explained, "to visit relatives in North Town, a suburb of Buffalo. Afterward I went as far west as Chicago without my parents' permission. My mother was dumfounded when she found out—Chicago has such a bad reputation."

Shortly after this the baroness decided to take up nursing, and planned to enter a New York hospital but her mother overruled this. So she came to Baltimore in the fall of 1927 and enrolled at Johns Hopkins.

"In this country," she said, "nursing is more of a profession than in Europe. I do not know whether I will continue when I graduate. I have never seen my father's new home in Bavaria and am eager to go there for a visit."

Her father, who served through the first two years of the World war as a colonel in the German army on the western front, is Baron Karl Borrmaeus Maria von Kleist.

U. S. WOMEN LEAD IN STYLE, BEAUTY, EXPERT DECLARES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP)—American women now surpass French women in style and beauty as a result of the phenomenal growth of the beauty industry in this country, says Georges Bolchert, one of the first men in the capital to open a "beauty parlor."

Bolchert, now of a concern which caters to exclusive trade in Washington, would fix the annual figure being spent for beautification in the United States at $3,000,000,000 instead of the $1,000,000,000 recently estimated by C. C. Concannnon, chief of the chemical division of the department of commerce.

"Ranking seventh in the country's leading industries where a few years ago it was only the fourteenth, the beauty business has as patrons the shop girl and the woman of millions, the school girl and the grandmother," says Bolchert. "It has made women cleaner, happier, healthier."

All around him were evidences of the suave, scented activities which contribute to the 26,000 tons of skin lotions and the 4,000 tons of face powder used annually by women of this country.

"Women between 30 and 50 are the best patrons," says Bolchert. "The annual bills of some of our patrons come to around $2,000. But the average patron spends about $10 weekly throughout the year."

FEMINIST SEES WOMEN IN HIGH COURT ROBES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP)—Women will be seen soon in the senate and even in the cabinet predicts Maud Wood Park, well known feminist.

She will make no predictions, however, concerning a woman in the white house.

"But I am sure," she says, "that the percentage of public and political women office holders will be much larger in the years to come. I expect to see women fill many positions to which none of their sex has yet been elected or appointed.

"I think the time will come when there will be one or more women on the supreme court bench."

Modern Marquisettes

PARIS, Oct. 19—(AP)—Marquisette lame is the name of a new sheer metal cloth with the fine gold crossbar in the ground.

Paris designers use it for youthful dance dresses of extreme simplicity. Fabric and styles of making it up recall summertime dimities.

The marquisette lame dresses at one house which particularly favors them have gathered skirts, slightly raised waistlines and short puffed sleeves or ruffled shoulders.

Orchid and Crystal

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP)—Orchid and crystal are combined in a striking evening outfit worn by Charlotte Freeman Clark. The dress, of orchid crepe de chine, is caught at the waist with a belt of crystal. The necklace is also of crystal.

WOMEN DOCTORS INCREASE, PRACTICE OFF, IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 19—(AP)—While women physicians find practice slim in Austria, women medical students are increasing annually. This year one-eighth of Vienna university medical students are women.

Few of the 450 women doctors in Vienna have a real practice. Some work as hospital assistants or in dispensaries. Others have become dentists or opticians, or serve as inspectors in icty schools.

Girl high school students have been advised to give up any intention of becoming physicians.

CANNED FOOD STANDARDS TO ASSIST HOUSEWIVES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP)—Housewives will have a choice of two classes of canned foods under the amendment to the federal food and drugs act law enacted by congress, says W. G. Campbell, chief of food and drug administration of the U. S. department of agriculture.

Articles which are wholesome but not standard will henceforth be clearly marked.

Fine Pleats Revived

PARIS, Oct. 19—(AP)—There is a heap of fine pleating on winter clothes of all types. Paris even pretends to pleat wool crepes by stitching them into fine cartridge pleat formations.

Where pleating is impractical fine shirring sometimes is used.

Much of the pleating on afternoon and evening dresses is in fan form. Occasionally whole skirts are fan pleated, but the fan pleated godet is more usual.

Trimming Bands

PARIS, Oct. 19—(AP)—Berets of the same material as trimming bands or coat collars, when they are flat fur, are a well developed phase of winter style.

Angora wool is a favorite fabric for the little cap which sets back on the head. A tunic with a trimming band of angora wool jersey makes a sport combination Paris approves.

Shave lamb, astrakhan and dyed moleskin are used in the same way.

Mother, Son in Politics

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 19—(AP)—Mrs. Horace M. Holden of Athens and her son, Frank, both were named delegates to the state democratic convention. Mrs. Holden represents Clarke county and her son, Fulton county (Atlanta).

Family of Thespians

MELVIN, Iowa, Oct. 19—(AP)—The 11 Keyster brothers and sisters, eight to 28 years old, have their own barn-loft theatrical company. They act, direct and manage their shows. Several of the elder Keysters studied drama at the University of Iowa.

Long Gloves Again

PARIS, Oct. 19—(AP)—Short sleeves and long gloves are put forth for winter in the form of a suit of blue gray wool mixture trimmed with gray caracul and completed by long blue suede gloves.

Black Velvet Tea

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP)—A black velvet tea frock with tight-fitting lines is worn by Miss Laura Manly. It develops into a flare about seven inches from the floor.

Its severity is relieved by a touch of ecru lace whichoutlines the square cut neck.

It's a Woman's WORLD

MARY E. DILLON

Seventh in a family of 12 was Mary Dillon—and many of her problems she had to solve by herself.

Perhaps that helped when she began to face new and strange problems in the business world.

She started as a junior clerk with the Brooklyn Borough Gas company—now she's its president and chairman of the board, the only woman heading a utility.

Her rule for success is mastery of every job.

"There's no sex in brains," she says.

She likes to read, ride, dance and to hear what other people are doing.

In private life she is Mrs. Henry Farber.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Never allow steel knives to soak in hot water, as in most instances it will loosen the handles.

Never put leftover fish in the garbage can during the summer. It attracts cats and flies.

Scrubbing brushes should be well rinsed after they are used, then turned on their sides to dry.

A little vinegar poured into a saucepan in which onions have been fried will remove the odor of onions from the pan.

Use fine needles instead of pins when fastening a paper pattern on fine silk or satin. This will avoid large pin holes in material.

When making cold slaw, or cabbage salad, half of a small onion, shredded fine, mixed through the cabbage, gives a delightful flavor.

Table covers and dresser scarfs embroidered in colors are much prettier and far more serviceable than the glaring white that so many persons seem to prefer.

Salt not only cleanses wicker furniture, but prevents it from turning yellow. Make a strong solution of salt water and wash all the wicker furniture.

Put green bananas and tomatoes in a paper bag and lay them away in a dark place for a few days to ripen. Never place bananas in the ice box.

When washing electric light bulbs care should be taken to wet only the glass part as any water left in the metal section might cause a short circuit.

Icing for cake may be prevented from cracking by adding one teaspoon of cream to each unbeaten egg. Stir all together, then add sugar until the icing is as stiff as desired.

When the oven door is opened, after the oven has been very hot, it often cools too quickly. Instead of doing this, if a pan of cold water is placed in the oven, it will lower the temperature gradually.

The best oven temperatures for baking ham is between 250 degrees and 275 degrees Farenheit. This gives a most delicious ham which slices well. If a glazed appearance is desired use left-over sweetened fruit juice for basting the ham. This also adds to the flavor.

GLASS

Foods cooked in glass are usually served piping hot since they may be carried directly from the stove to the table. The glass pieces not only look attractive, but they save the housewife's time, eliminating the work of transferring foods from one dish to another.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Biting the lips makes them thick and coarse. It is a most disfiguring habit.

Place a Turkish towel or rubber mat on the bottom of the bath tub before drawing water. There will be no danger of slipping when stepping into the tub.

Soft, warmed cocoa butter may be brushed on the eyelashes to make them grow luxuriantly. Brushing the lashes daily makes them curl. Put the cocoa butter on at night.

Warts can be removed by washing the hands in a solution of a liberal quantity of washing soda dissolved in a pan of water. Dry the hands without wiping. Castor oil rubbed on the warts often causes them to dry.

COFFEE SET

A gay little coffee set is of china with a quaint little house in old-fashioned pink on the side. Besides the pot, cups and saucers, one can purchase bottles in graduated sizes and a vase with the same scene upon the side.

TOBACCO POUCH

A convenient tobacco pouch is of dark blue leather, oblong in shape and trimmed with insets of red leather edged with tiny bands of white. The opening is of the slide fastening variety.

You may have wondered whether modernism as it is represented in new furniture is so distinctly different from anything that has ever been done before. When a very modern table takes its design from one of the letters of the alphabet, we become more at ease in our angular quarters. The letter "E" inspires a new magazine table with shelves of varying size.

IN THE PICTURE

Very new and quite in keeping with early American interiors is chromium plated flat silver that has a pewter vet ribbon is a fancy of some dressmakers.

One flower and one fabric shoulder strap is another favored arrangement.

Cloth scarfs in sports materials accompany many daytime costumes. Some are in one collection, these scarfs are bordered with fur.

With sleeves given such varied interpretation, trimmings are more often placed near the elbow than at the wrist. Bandings and circular flounces are given upper arm position.

Sables and fishers are accented as coat trimmings, with the remark that these furs of medium depth seem most appropriate for coats so lavishly collared and bordered with fur.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The Russian or Cossack blouse is a formidable fall entry.

Accenting a high waistline with velthe newest sketches for winter millinery include clever fur hats. Soft, short-haired furs are generally employed for the small fur cap which takes the lines of the beret. Fur trimmings on felt hats are also expected to be good.

NEW VELVET BERETS

between velvet and printed chiffon. So it is not surprising to see very chic new berets of black chiffon velvet which are suggested as the perfect hats to wear with formal afternoon frocks or printed chiffon.

CLEVER FUR HATS

Whether you live in a warm or cold clime you will be apt to dress in fur to the top of your head for some of finish. The simple lines and lack of ornament make these knives, forks, spoons, etc., most satisfactory for modern use.

THREE IN ONE

A large square hassock comes in three sections piled one upon the other. By lifting up one a comfortable low chair is produced. By stretching them all out, one has a comfortable floor couch.

NEW BEADS

Just the thing to wear with sports clothes of the more severe type are necklaces composed of large brown and white beads. These beads are made of polished wood.

BROWN FOR EVENING

A charming evening gown of ivory colored satin has a huge bunch of brown violets placed at the hip. With it are worn mits of openwork brown lace.

LAUNDRY HINTS

If brushing will not remove mud stains from a garment, rub them with a raw potato.

Hang linen on the line so that the weight falls on the warp threads, which are the threads running the long way of the cloth.

Garments stained with milk or cream should be rinsed in cold or lukewarm water before they are laundered.

When pressing silk or silk and woolen material, place a dry cloth in the material, then a damp cloth on dry one. There will then be no spots, as is often the case. In this way no water reaches the material, only steam.

EMBROIDERED FROCK

Just the thing for the tea time hour is a dress of green crepe de chine. The blouse, which is of the tuck-in variety, is embroidered in small multicolored flowers in the Aubusson stitch. The skirt has a snug fitting yoke that is also embroidered but the pleated skirt is not. The effect is most graceful and charming.

BLACK FOR WINTER WEAR

If you've been wondering whether or not black would continue to be good for fall and winter you will be interested to hear of the black frocks in satin and transparent velvet that are scheduled for popularity. Afternoon frocks of these fabrics include jacket frocks and some jacket suits. Many of them are trimmed with beading.

CONCERNING WOMEN

No fewer than six women are practicing law in Ireland.

Upwards of 200 nurses leave England every year to take up work under the colonial governments in remote parts of the empire.

To again marry at the age of 100 is the ambition of Mrs. Helen E. Wellman Banner, of Oneonta, N. Y. She is 92 and has had had two husbands.

Of the 100 "dude" ranches in Montana and Wyoming, 22 are owned by women and practically all the rest have women running the hotel end of the business.

Madame Chiang Kai-shek, the "first lady of China," has taken the lead in an attack to encourage women to use only Chinese grown products.

BLUE SWANS

For nuts or sweets nothing could be more charming on a colorful dining table than graceful swans made of sapphire blue glass.

BLUE CHINTZES

Blue, in all shades from a vivid intense tone to one whose blurred softness gives an enchanting subtlety promises to play an important role in autumn decorations. Particularly lovely are the glazed chintzes with quaint flower pot designs—or small checks and diminutive flowers in bright colors.

GOOD ORDER.

To keep the wringer in good working order, see to it that it is kept perfectly clean. Soap and water should be sufficient to remove ordinary spots and stains. If the wood bearings do not function smoothly remove the screws and rub a little soap onto the surface.

TO REMOVE GAS ODOR.

To remove the odor quickly from clothing that has been cleaned in gasoline, mix about two tablespoons of vinegar with a pint of lukewarm water. Dampen a cloth in this, place over garment, then press just as you would if the clothes had been washed in water. This leaves the clothes free from all odor.

CLEAN WITH FLANNEL.

Finger marks on painted doors should be removed with a soft flannel wrung out in water in which a few drops of ammonia have been mixed, and then rubbed with soap. Having removed the stains the paint should be washed with clear water and thoroughly dried.

FOR FALL DECORATING.

Coin dotted voi'e, is one of many dress fabrics used to advantage in decorating.

Watch turquoise—on all sides we hear of its importance in both bedroom and bathrooms.

Gingham in the deep rich shades is being used by many decorators for upholstery. One pattern is dark blue with deep green and black line plaid.

White net, with accents of bright royal blue, is a smart color scheme for a girl's bedroom.

Toiles de Jouy with pastel backgrounds, instead of natural, are being accepted more and more.

RECEIPES

Individual Apple Pie: Individual apple pies are quickly prepared. Pare and slice a medium sized apple into an individual baking dish. Add about three tablespoons of sugar, a pinch of salt and a dash of cinnamon or a few grains of nutmeg. Dot the apples with butter. Cover with pie crust and bake in a hot oven for five minutes, then reduce the temperature and cook for about 25 minutes. As the pie crust may be kept in the refrigerator for a week or 10 days, it is easily made into pies at any time.

Jelly Doughnuts: Scald one cup of milk, add one-fourth cup of shortening, half a teaspoon of salt and one-third cup of sugar. When cool crumble one compressed yeast cake into the mixture and beat well. Add two well beaten eggs and four cups of bread flour, or enough to make a dough stiff enough to handle. Knead until elastic and set in a cool place to rise for six hours, or overnight. In the morning turn onto a floured board, roll one-fourth inch thick and cut into rounds. On each circle put one teaspoon of currant jelly, orange marmalade, or any sweet thick preserves. Draw up the edges, shape the dough so that the jelly is completely covered, then press the edges together firmly. Leave the balls on the floured board until light and double in bulk. Then fry in deep, hot fat, turning frequently until thoroughly cooked. Drain on absorbent paper, and when cool roll in granulated sugar.

Woman Fliers Plan For '31.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP)—The Eagle Wings Flying club, first organization of women fliers in the capital, expects to have its own entrants for the women's air derby next year.

Same Aldenville (Mass.) firemen clanged their way to a rather delicate assignment for fire equipment, a haircut and a shave, says the Boston Globe. It seems that Ephraim Ducharme wanted a shave and haircut and Alphonse Breault's barber shop was closed. Mr. Ducharme learned that Peter Breault, one of the barbers, was at the Aldenville fire station and he called and asked that he be sent to his shop right away. Meanwhile Ducharme waited at the shop. His message was misunderstood. He asked for a barber and they sent him a fire truck.

INGENUITY MAKES PLAYHOUSE ATTRACTIVE

By HOPE HAMMOND

Keeping youngsters happy at home is largely a matter of giving them a place to call their own, and making it more attractive than any outside place.

Because our house was too small to offer an extra room for use as an indoor playground, we decided to utilize an old woodshed in the back yard.

In its original condition, the shed had one window on each side, while the farther end was a blank wall. In this blank wall we inserted two windows and a door, all stock sizes for the sake of economy.

New shutters for all the windows were made from planks cut out for the new windows. And the planks taken from the door opening provided benches and steps. A new floor had to be laid and a few shingles replaced.

When the carpenter had finished the girls started painting and decorating their playhouse. They painted the shutters, the solid door, the outside, benches and steps a bright blue. By balancing precariously on a step ladder, they painted the trim of the glass door and windows and the new woodwork a pale gray to match the old paint.

With wide brushes they stained the floor with a mixture of linseed oil and walnut stain, matching the color of the old unfinished interior. And with this same mixture they stained the new woodwork around the doors and windows inside.

Next came the furnishing. They resurrected various old stools and chairs, an ancient chest, a shabby table. These they painted, some blue and some green.

For the floor there was a discarded Navajo rug. Curtains were made from cheap bright yellow calico. For the walls there were strips of gay peasant prints. An old cot was turned into a serviceable couch by making a covering of blue denim and piling it high with red and yellow calico cushions.

The woodshed, thus revived, became a lovely corner of the garden and later was attached to the main building for architectural reasons by a whitewashed wall of concrete blocks, with a blue door in it and ivy planted at its base.

WASHINGTON DEBS TO MAKE SOCIAL BOW IN RAGS

©BACHRACH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP)—Surfeited with silks, satins and luxuries Washington debutantes will this year open the social season in rags.

For the first time in its history the Mayflower hotel will open its doors to guests with shoes run down at the heel, tattered blouses and patches on skirts and trousers.

Tired of caviar and ices in the shape of flowers debutantes will eat with relish baked beans and hamburger on the night of October 21 when a novel "tacky ball" will be given.

Debutantes of the several past seasons who style themselves "the girls on the shelf" will give the ball in honor of this year's debs.

The idea has caught the fancy of the younger set. Clothes which ordinarily would be given to charity will deck the debs for their first soiree of the season. They are getting a tremendous "kick" out of the novelty.

Instead of expensive engraved invitations ornamented with crests "bids" this year were written on common brown wrapping paper.

The frocks will make their appearance, however, on October 29 at the first formal debutante ball given by Mrs. William Laird Dunlop.

FORD'S NEW "LOG CABIN" HAS 14 ROOMS, 7 BATHS

MARQUETTE, Mich., Oct. 19—(AP)—A new summer "cottage" has been built at the exclusive Huron Mountain club, near Big Bay on Lake Superior, for Henry Ford.

It is built of faced logs brought from the Ford mills at Pequaming, and it is 108 feet long by 68 feet wide. There are 14 large living rooms, seven baths and four fireplaces. It is provided with servants' quarters, a laundry, and has four screened porches, the largest 42 feet long.

One side of the house faces Lake Superior, and the other looks out on Pine river.

ENTERPRISE AND $3.45 FURNISHED HER HOME

ENTERPRISE, Ala., Oct. 19—(AP)—Maybe the name of her town had nothing to do with it, but Mrs. Lillie Purvis, enterprising farm woman, "feathered her nest" at a cost of $3.45.

She now has a guest room furnished with a suite done in steel gray and rose, and another room is comfortable with two rocking chairs, a library table, a chofforobe and a bed.

All of the furniture Mrs. Purvis made out of discarded lumber, packing boxes and broken pieces of house furnishings thrown away by her neighbors.

The $3.45 was spent for paint, hinges and handles.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Taming the Lion.

Everett had an extraordinary fear of wild animals. At night he refused to make the long journey down the dark corridor to his bedroom for fear that a lion or a tiger would jump out upon him from the doorways as he passed.

Everett was eight, and knew quite well that his fears were silly, and that the existence of a lion on the eighth floor of an apartment house was impossible. That made no difference. He continued to be afraid.

It was not until his father hit upon the scheme of dramatizing fights with wild animals in which Everett played the part now of a successful big game hunter, now of the big game itself, in the reassuring afternoon sunshine of his back yard, that his bed-time fear began to lessen and eventually disappear.

Children often are subject to fears which they know to be absurd and fantastic, but from which they nevertheless are unable to free themselves without help.

Such fears are of course but symbols for other intangible things of which the child is afraid. Curiously enough a child may apparently escape the pressure of these deeper fears through being cured of them in their symbolic form.

This may be done either through helping the child to laugh at himself, or through encouraging him to go through the pantomime of conquering it.

He also may identify himself with the object of his fear. Thus, if he is afraid of a lion, he pretends that he is a lion, and gradually ceases to fear the lions of his fancy.

The imaginative play of children often helps them to conquer fears and to solve emotional conflicts.

FORMER TAFTVILLE MAN IS SWORDFISH STRIKER

In the Oct. 11 issue of a prominent weekly magazine appears an item describing the catch of a nine foot swordfish off Block Island by the crew of Helen M, Capt. Jack Milligan and Wilfred Pollard, the striker, who were accompanied on the trip by a Hartford reporter and Ernest Pollard of Taftville. Wilfred Pollard, who holds the important position of striker on the boat, is also formerly of Taftville. The swordfish, which was sighted by Ernest Pollard, weighed four hundred pounds.

Could Write a Book About It

"Nine years ago after my little girl was born dead, I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about four months. The next year I became the mother of a fine 11 pound baby boy. After he was born, I kept on with the medicine to build me up. Four months ago I was nervous and rundown and suffered from other troubles which I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would relieve so I started taking it and now I feel fine again. Many of my friends could write a book on the good the Vegetable Compound has done them."—*Mrs. W. 265 NEW VOTERS MADE SATURDAY BRINGS FINAL TOTAL TO NEARLY 600

At the Saturday session of the board of registration 265 voters were sworn in, bringing the final total for the two sessions held by the board up to 590. About 60 per cent of the 977 persons whose names appeared on the "to be made" lists, appeared before the board to take the elector's oath. The new voters include 338 men and 252 women. With the exception of one man whose birthday occurs today, (Monday) no more voters can be made this year. Because of the fact that his 21st birthday does not occur until today, this applicant for the elector's oath could not be made Saturday. As his application to be made was received within the time limit, he will be made a voter the day before election day next month. The board of registration completed its session at 8 o'clock Saturday night at the town hall. They were also in session the previous Saturday, October 11th. The last voter made Saturday night was Alessandro Peccini of 29 1-2 Avery street.

NORWICH TOWN

FIRST CHURCH PASTOR BEGINS LOCAL MINISTRY

Rev. Wilfrid M. Wilton, from Cornwall, Conn., began his pastorate at the First Congregational church Sunday morning. The Scripture reading was Matthew XI, 1-20 inclusive. "Christian Ministry" was the theme of the interesting sermon; text, Matt. 11:9-10. But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet. For this is He of whom it is written, Behold I send My messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee.

Rev. Dr. Wilton paid an introductory tribute to the work of those who had preceded him. Dr. Wilton said: "I confess, this morning, to a sense of awe, as I stand before you. For I stand in a pulpit made hallowed by the consecrated labors of my predecessors. And by none, more so than he who has recently vacated this pulpit. I am, therefore, debtor to him and to others.

"I recollect, also, the generations of pious and willing laborers for the Master, who once filled these pews, and who are the invisible witnesses about me this morning. To them, and to you, their lineal and worthy descendants, I am, likewise, a debtor. You seem to bear me a message of your historic background, your present worth, and a future hope.

"What is to be my mission? I am here to blaze no pathways; or to make the lame walk, and the deaf hear. I am here to do the work of the Christian ministry, because you have 'called' me, and because I came, relying on the divine guidance which ultimately superintends every life. May God direct and guide both you and me, in this, our relationship as pastor and people."

ACADEMY STUDENT INSTANTLY KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Richard LeRoy Cormier, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cesime Cormier, of No. 133 West Town street, and second year Norwich Free Academy student, was instantly killed at Northfield, Vt., in an automobile accident, early Saturday afternoon. He received a broken neck. The boy's parents received word of his tragic death about 2:15 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The automobile in which young Cormier was riding was driven by Clarence Lyndes, of Norwich, who with four other young men, made up a party en route to Vermont to spend the week end with relatives of Mr. Lyndes.

When on a very abrupt curve in the highway, Mr. Lyndes' car crashed into a road repairing machine, a front wheel of the Lyndes' car having caught in a rear wheel of the repair machine, causing the Connecticut car to be hurled around and upsetting over a 20-foot embankment. Young Cormier, who was riding in the back seat, was thrown out by the sudden impact and the car toppled over on his body. His neck was broken and his spine injured. He died instantly. Mr. Lyndes and two of the boys were taken to the hospital in Montpelier. It was reported Sunday that their injuries are not as serious as was at first thought. The body of the Cormier boy was brought home, after instructions by the family, who immediately got in communication with the authorities. The body reached Norwich Town Sunday morning just before noon. The party of young men left Friday afternoon for Vermont, where Mr. Lyndes formerly resided, it being their intentions to return to Norwich Sunday evening.

Richard Cormier was a member of the first class graduated in June, 1929, from the Samuel Huntington school, Norwich Town, having delivered an oration during the exercises. He was very fond of the poem "Excelsior," and because of his admiration for the things higher, every member in room eight at that school learned this poem. Young Cormier also put it to vote that "Excelsior" should be the class motto and it carried.

Born in Montville, February 3rd, 1915, he was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Cormier, where the family resided for a time before locating in Norwich. His mother was Jennie Richards. A second year student at Norwich Free Academy, he was a member of Phi Alpha Mu Sigma fraternity, and was also on the Academy football squad. The boy was popular with his teachers both on the Academy faculty and at Samuel Huntington school. He was a devout member of the Sacred Heart parish. Besides his parents he is survived by a brother, George, and two sisters, Misses Rita and Vera Cormier, all of Norwich Town.

All who speak of Richard Cormier have expressed the highest regard for him. It has freely been manifested by teachers and friends that he was a splendid type of young man. Always maintaining integrity, he was most dependable, whether it was church, school, scouts or friends; he was a loyal and trustworthy boy and he will be greatly missed by a large list of admiring friends who have expressed profound sympathy for his bereaved family.

PARK CHURCH MEN TO HEAR NOTABLE SPEAKER

Of Fred B. Smith, LL.D., who is to be the speaker this (Monday) evening at the opening of the season for the Park Church Men's club, someone has said that he is a broadsword, made from New England metal, hammered into shape in the Mississippi valley, tempered in the Spanish-American war, and burnished in the Men and Religion campaign. He is known on both sides of the sea as the great evangelistic leader of men. His splendid physique, his tireless energy, his dominent evangelistic zeal, his knowledge of social problems, his 10,000 calibre voice, his power to grip an audience—these have made him a world power. He was born in Iowa at the end of 1865, his parents having recently come from New England.

Early in his active life he was attracted to Y. M. C. A. work, served in that field in the Spanish-American war and for 15 years afterwards was senior secretary of the religious work department. He was the organizer and promoter of the men and religious forward movement of 1911 and 1912 and is now permanent chairman of the Citizens Committee of One Thousand, which perpetuates the work of the Citizenship Movement, organized in 1923, for the rallying of community forces towards the preservation of law and order with particular reference to the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

DR. WEIZMANN RESIGNS FROM JEWISH PALESTINE AGENCY

Action Taken Following Publication of the Long Expected Declaration of Great Britain's Policy in Palestine—Dr. Weizmann Intimated That the Council of the Jewish Agency and of the Zionist World Congress Might Be Convoked to Take Action Upon the Situation

LONDON, Oct. 20—(AP)—Publication of the long expected British declaration of policy in Palestine tonight provoked the immediate resignation of Dr. Chaim Weizmann as president of the international Zionist organization and of the Jewish agency for Palestine.

Commenting on the declaration, Dr. Weizmann wrote to the colonial secretary, Lord Passfield, that nobody could be more anxious than he to respond to an appeal for further cooperation if there were a basis for it.

He said, however, that he failed to see such a basis, "after a censure has been pronounced by his majesty's government upon our past work, and while decisions rae being taken placing most serious obstacles to it in the future."

To the Associated Press, Mr. Weizmann said "This is but one of a series of obstacles hurled by the Jewish people in planning and building their home, but it is the greatest."

"Coming at this time, the effect of the government report upon both the Arabs and our own people of Palestine and other lands will be bad," he added.

"Times are not the best for raising funds, and the report will have a bad psychological effect. The next congress may go so far as to remove the center of the Zionist movement to the United States."

The "censure" mentioned by Dr. Weizmann in his letter to Lord Passfield was not specified, but a section was widely quoted that read "His majesty's government feel bound, however, to remark that they have received little assistance from either side in healing the breach between Jews and Arabs during the months of tension and unrest which have followed on the disturbances of August, 1929."

Dr. Weizmann's letter intimated that the council of the Jewish agency and of the Zionist world congress might be convoked to take action upon the situation. He said the British government's statement of policy "went a long way toward denying the rights and sterilizing the hopes of the Jewish people regarding the Jewish national home in Palestine."

Referring to the Simpson report and the government's statement, Dr. Weizmann said, "The British government's statement reiterates the policy contained in the white paper of 1922 but it effects profound changes in the policy of 1922 as expressed in eight years of practice and on some material points it differs even from the Simpson report.

"Although the Jewish agency could hardly accept many of the findings of the Simpson report it would nevertheless have been prepared to seek common ground for cooperation, but the government's statement, which has already hardened opinions into decisions, extends no such invitation to the Jewish agency.

"The council of the league of nations at its last session warned the mandatory power against a policy 'aimed at crystallizing the development of the Jewish national home at its present stage of development' and the council's view was accepted without reserve by the accredited representative of the British Empire. But the measures now announced by the government will produce precisely the result against which the league of nations raised its warning voice."

JEWS CRITICISE BRITISH POLICY TOWARD PALESTINE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20—(AP)—A resolution asserting that the policy of Great Britain toward Palestine "constitute a repudiation of the solemn pledge given by the British government to the Jewish people," was adopted today by the American Jewish Congress.

The statement of policy, issued by the British government at London today, was characterized by the resolution as "a violation and breach" of the mandate under which Great Britain governs Palestine.

Great Britain was criticised for failure to establish a Jewish national home in Palestine which the resolution said had been promised.

The congress elected Dr. Stephen S. Wise, of New York, honorary president and Bernard S. Deutsch, of New York, president. Bernard G. Richards, New York, was re-elected executive secretary.

THREE MEN GIVEN UP FOR DROWNED WERE RESCUED

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 20— (AP) —A story of heroism, cold and privation, and of a gallant two-mile swim through the choppy waters of Long Island sound for aid, was revealed today with the safe landing at Fairfield beach of three fishermen who had been given up as lost when their overturned dory was found two miles off Penfield reef.

After clinging for over two hours to the upturned craft, the men, George Schmidt, 30, of Yonkers, and his cousin, Harry Filer, 19, and Walter Reilly, 30, both of New York, were rescued by two men from the Penfield reef lighthouse at noon yesterday. Unable to communicate with the mainland and because of a rough sea, the men were forced to spend the night at the lighthouse while grief-stricken and anxious relatives waited for hours for some indication of their fate.

The rescue was effected by William A. Shackley, second assistant lighthouse keeper, and Eddie T. Pastorini, as a police boat was speeding toward the endangered trio from the mainland.

WORKING MEN ASSURED BY PRESIDENT MACHADO

HAVANA, Oct. 20.—(AP)—President Machado today told a group representing Cuba's 41 labor unions that he would do all in his power to make the lot of the working man as happy as possible.

The delegation, representing 200,000 workers, waited upon the president at the palace at noon, asking his personal co-operation in the fight of labor to secure better working conditions.

The president said that strikes, peacefully conducted, were lawful as a means to an end, but that there must be no disturbance of the peace.

He also assured them he would use his influence to have workingmen now confined on past charges released under bond until the dates of their respective trials, so that their families might not suffer through stopping of income.

The actor died almost blind and in poverty, despite the fact that he was born rich. Theatrical investments, particularly in Buenos Aires, left him virtually penniless.

To support himself he was forced to sell his palace in Madrid and to continue acting. In this he was aided by his son Fernanda and By Maria Guerrero, a niece of his late wife.

EXPLOSION ON OIL BARGE RESULTED IN TWO DEATHS

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 20.—(AP)—A gasoline explosion aboard an oil barge in the Hudson river this morning, resulted in the death of two men and injury to four others. The barge and two tugboats were destroyed in the fire which followed.

The blast was felt throughout Troy and Watervliet, directly opposite. Windows were shattered in many blocks along the waterfronts of both cities. An impenetrable cloud of smoke arose, of such great volume that it was impossible to see the boats for a considerable time. The smoke gave way to the flames, which quickly enveloped the three crafts. Firemen were severely handicapped in rescue efforts.

Fred Des Noyers, 41, who quit his job as a deckhand on the Craig Saturday and went back today to get his belongings, was burned to death. Chris Mattison, Norwegian cook on the Craig, was blown into the river and drowned. Witnesses said both were thrown 50 feet in the air. John Cahill, Troy fireman, was bruised and burned. Three members of the boat's crew were shocked and burned and were removed to hospitals.

Three of those injured were in a critical condition.

One hundred men were riding into the mine on the train, which carried 30 sticks of dynamite and a large supply of dynamite caps.

The dead were George Suchala and Mike Hoschuck.

The train was on the way to the lower levels of the mine, where the men were to start their day's work.

Acute Milk Shortage Confronts Buffalo

More Than 8,000 Gallons in Trucks Stranded on Snow-Blocked Highways

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Buffalo tonight faced an acute [illegible] shortage, cut off from its sour[illegible] supply by the blizzard which [illegible] across western New York [illegible] week-end, leaving shatte[illegible]nications and blocked hig[illegible]n its wake.

More than 8,000 gallons of milk were withdrawn from the city's supply today and remained in trucks stranded on highways piled high with snow drifts.

Late this afternoon the lake shore road between Buffalo and Irving was opened to one-way traffic, to allow hundreds of stranded motorists to reach Buffalo. Crews of workmen from the state and county highway departments and the bus companies were struggling to open the rest of the highway to traffic.

The road to East Aurora and the route to Boston, by way of Hamburg, which was hit heavily by the storm, also were open this afternoon, although travel along them still was difficult.

The New York Telephone Co reported this afternoon that 1,450 telephones in the south section of Buffalo and in suburban communities along Lake Erie were out of commission. The mercury dropped to 29 degrees at 6 a. m., and although it rose to 41 degrees early this afternoon, the temperature was falling rapidly tonight.

Claims Of Federals And Rebels In Brazil

Rainy Season Delayed Large Military Operations Over Week-End

[illegible]ENOS AIRES, Oct. 20.—(AP)—[illegible]patches passing through here from [illegible]e Brazilian war areas today indicated that the coming of the spring rainy season delayed large military operations over the week-end in the main battle sector, that of Sao Paulo-Parana.

Airplanes found taking off and landing difficult; ground troops found the going heavy and apparently rested on the battle lines established last week. One advice from rebel sources was that their "advance" on this front continues, but it was not specific.

The fighting brought about by the revolutionary movement, which began Oct. 3 as a result of dissatisfaction in the southern states over the national elections held last spring, is developing principally in four areas.

These are in Sao Paulo-Parana, where rebel armies are pushing over a 200-mile front to gain the rich metropolis of Sao Paulo; in Minas Geraes, a large state northwest of the federal district which supplies much of Rio De Janeiro's food; in the far northeast, where a revolutionary army is marching south with the hope of capturing Bahia and ultimately driving on to the federal capital, and in the vicinity of Florianopolis, the island capital of Santa Catharina, the only region now held by the federals south of Sao Paulo.

The most recent claims of both sides may be summarized as follows:

Federals assert:

That all positions in the Sao Paulo-Parana sector are being maintained.

That advances are being made in southern Minas Geraes.

That Campos, an important sugar-making center in the state of Rio De Janeiro 137 miles northeast of the federal capital, has never been menaced by rebels from Minas Geraes as reported in revolutionary communiques.

That the federal armies have the most men and the best modern equipment for warfare.

Rebels assert:

That revolutionary advances about Florianopolis have become so hot that the defending federals have withdrawn from the mainland and taken up new defenses on the island holding the city proper. Rebel troops under Generals Waludrozro Lima and Ptolemeo Assis Brazil yesterday morning occupied Estreito, on the mainland opposite Florianopolis, and shut off the city's electric light by capturing the power supply lines.

That Espirito Santo, a seaboard state lying between two loyal states—Bahia to the north and Rio De Janeiro to the south—has been captured, and its capital, Victoria, seized.

That Bahia has been entered from the southwest, with five towns taken by Minas Geraes rebels, while the Pernambuco army of Captain Juarez Tavora is entering the state from the north.

UNEMPLOYMENT TO BE TOPIC OF THE CABINET COM. TODAY

Will Discuss How the Nation Can Cooperate with Local Government and Private Industry in Dealing With Unemployment During the Winter—Secretary Lamont Has Made a Visit to New York to Gather Opinions of Business Leaders on the Outlook

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.— (AP) — Winter's crunching tread shuffled into step with the president's unemployment committee today to bring the first biting freeze of the season to the capital on the same day that the group meets to seek a means of shielding the nation's unemployed from distress during the cold months.

Freezing temperatures were forecast for tonight while the members of the cabinet committee were fixing tomorrow for a meeting to discuss how the nation can cooperate with local government and private industry in dealing with unemployment during the winter.

Secretary Lamont, after a conference with President Hoover, indicated that as chairman of the cabinet committee appointed Saturday, he would summon his associates to a session immediately following the regular cabinet gathering

Secretaries Hyde, Hurley, Wilbur, Davis and Mellon, with the addition of Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, constitute the membership of the president's committee and with one or two exceptions are expected to be on hand.

In advance of the session, Secretary Lamont made a visit to New York to gather opinion of business leaders on the outlook. A number of economic and industrial studies have been made for the president, both by official organizations and by semi-private institutions, such as the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, under whose jurisdiction the business survey system has been kept in operation since last fall.

The results of the inquiry will not be known until the committee assembles tomorrow, but it was intimated the administration contemplated seeking large relief appropriations from congress.

MADRID, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Valeriano Weyler, ranking captain-general of the Spanish army and a picturesque figure who was chiefly remembered for his stern policies in Cuba just before the Spanish-American war, died today. He was 92 years old.

Tonight General Weyler lay in an improvised chapel in the modest Madrid home where he died at 2:55 o'clock this afternoon, surrounded by his children, Fernando, Valeriano, Antonio and Maria; his aides, Commandante Francisco De Los Rios, Lieutenant-Colonel Jose Sicardo Jiminez and others.

Shortly before his death, it was learned tonight, the old warrior added a codicil to his will ordering that he be buried without state honors and with the most modest funeral possible

"In my time I have seen much of the honors of the world," he dictated "and I know they are worth nothing."

OVER 17 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

For Hard Coughs That Call For Super-Help

Creomulsion is made for coughs from colds that hang on. For coughs deep and difficult—coughs where you dare not risk a less effective help.

But careful people use it for coughs which seem milder—use it to do the utmost and be safe. For nobody knows where a cough may lead.

Creomulsion combines seven major helps in one. Some coughs yield best to one help, some to another. Doctors often differ on the best help, for coughs are not alike. So here we combine all the best—to be sure.

Creosote stands first. Here it is blended, emulsified and made palatable. For soothing membranes and combating germs, it is considered the supreme help in this type of cough. But other helps are sometimes needed—pine tar, wild cherry, menthol ipecac and others. Nobody can tell to which help your cough will soonest yield. So experts have combined in Creomulsion all best helps in one. No narcotic, nothing harmful to a child, but a seven-way help to deal with all conditions.

The price is $1.25—a little higher than a lesser help. But your druggist guarantees it. Your money is returned if it fails to bring the quick, complete help you desire. Don't you think it worth that little extra to be sure that you are doing the utmost for a cough?

Today in a justice's court in Brooklyn George Ruktela of Wauregan was fined $100 and costs for operating under the influence. His car figured in an accident over the week end. The head of a police dog shot at South Killingly was to be subjected to tests for rabies at a state laboratory in Hartford today. The animal was shot at South Killingly the past week end by State Officer George Martin after the dog had been acting very queerly. It is regarded as possible that the dog was not afflicted with rabies, but merely suffering from a fit of some sort. Chauncey Ganung, special deputy commissioner of domestic animals, came here from Hartford in connection with the matter. It is understood that the dog did not bite anyone.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, Brooklyn, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona grange, was the leader in the contest for adding new members to the rolls of the Windham County Farmers' association, and a close second to her was Clarence E. Salmon, also of Brooklyn. The county-wide canvas for new members brought in 328 of them, 264 now having their dues paid until July of next year. Killingly produced 23 of these members, this being three less than the quota assigned. Brooklyn, with a quota of 23, shows 29 new members.

It appears that there is opportunity for a great many Danielson people to do some other Danielson people a good turn just now by offering, through some agency, unused and discarded warm clothing, shoes, hats and such things. There is without doubt a great many such articles in homes of Danielson. There are other homes here where gifts like these would be highly appreciated. Each month the Civic federation, through its nursing service, places various contributed articles with persons in need of them.

The Girls' Friendly society of St. Alban's parish has appointed committees to make the necessary arrangements for a parish Hallowe'en party.

THREE SILVER BANDITS WILL BE ARRAIGNED FOR ROBBERY WEDNESDAY

DANIELSON, Oct. 20—Mario Feraioli, Anthony Peters and Joseph Cardoza, three prisoners who have been held here and at Brooklyn a fortnight past, will be brought into the town court Wednesday to answer to a charge of robbery in connection with the holdup of a truck loaded with silver at South Killingly two weeks ago this morning. Their hearing has twice been continued.

These men were arrested at a summer cottage that they were illegally occupying, without knowledge of the owner, at Shawomet Beach, R. I. In the cottage much of the stolen silver was received and nearby, in the grass, three loaded revolvers were picked up.

Since they were held in $10,000 bail each no one of them has been able to raise such an amount. State officers and Providence police have worked on the case steadily since its development. They have built up what appears to be ample evidence for prosecution. In case probable cause is found at the coming hearing for holding them, they will be bound over to the superior court, as the town court does not have final jurisdiction in cases of this nature.

Pigeon Stray Racer

One day last week Frank Geer noticed a strange looking pigeon feeding in the barn yard, along with his flock. By means of a slip-noose on the ground he snared the visitor, to find upon its leg two aluminum bands, together with one of rubber. Noting the name of a Wakefield, Mass., cote, on one ring, Mr. Geer communicated the facts and ring numbers by letter. Monday, a letter came from Wakefield, telling that the bird was of considerable value, was owned by a big shoe manufacturer, and that the bird was a racer, entered in the recent Herkimer homing contest, for class A carriers. Mr. Geer in response to the request of the owners, crated the bird Monday, and returned it by express, telling his friends that he didn't know but what the shoe man, that owned the pigeon would send him two or three pairs of shoes, maybe!

SEVERAL DOGS STRAYED DURING FIELD TRIALS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 20.—Farmers in Woodstock and Pomfret today reported to Landlord E. C. Rogers of the Putnam Inn that they had picked up stray hound dogs that had wandered away from the packs participating in the field trials of the Brunswick Fox club, which ended Saturday with the running of the final heat of the all-age class Mr. Rogers visited each farm and took the dogs into custody to return them to the owners.

Only a few of the entries wandered onto the strange courses and became lost, but the owners expect they will recover their prizes through the alertness of watchful farmers who will coax them to their homes, detaining them until Mr. Rogers at the local hotel has been notified. Most of the dogs entered in the races were valued specimens and owners are anxious for their return.

POETRY

Try This

Frown!
Your mouth will droop, your lips will pout,
Your face and eyes will fall,
Will shut the sky and distance out,
The ground will make a wall
Whose darkened ceiling is as high
As low hung brows above each eye.
Where all you'll see is compassed by
How far your face falls
Down.

Smile!
The corners of your mouth, your face,
Your eyes will rise and view
A larger, brighter sort of place
Where smiles return to you;
And there'll be flowers, roofs and trees,
A sky, and probably a breeze,
A wide world full of thinks like these
About your feet will Pile.

The Traffic Cop

All day long I stand and keep
Windmill arms in motion,
Holding back the traffic waves
Of a human ocean.
Stopping with a warning hand,
Beckoning: "Now go it!"
When the long day's work is done,
I am glad to know it!

I am King, without a crown,
At my busy corner,
If a truckman disobeys,
Woe betide the scorner!
Questions asked get answers brief—
I am not a talker
Though I say things now and then,
Chiding a jay-walker!

Children, and old ladies, too,
I am their defender;
And sometimes to blooming youth
Gallant help I tender.
When night comes I am relieved!
Now, then, do you wonder
If I wave my arms all night?
Well, I don't, by thunder!

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Assawaga Company, Inc, Killingly.

The Assawaga Company, Inc., a corporation formed for the purpose of manufacturing fabrics composed wholly or in part of wool, silk, cotton, flax and other materials, with its office and place of business located at Dayville, in the town of Killingly, was incorporated March 12th, 1903, under the laws of the state of Connecticut, with David Gordon, of Hazardville, as president; Franklin S. Jerome, of Norwich, as secretary and treasurer and Angus Park, of Hanover, as general manager. Adam Reid of Norwich was also elected to the board of directors.

The plant was originally equipped with 66 broad looms together with all other necessary machinery which goes to constitute a woolen mill and has operated successfully since its inception.

In 1918 the entire plant was enlarged, a new weave shed being constructed and 44 additional looms installed, making a total of 110 looms. The carding, spinning and other departments have likewise expanded until at the present time the plant is as modernly equipped as any factory of its kind in the United States. The employees number about 300, both men and women.

The company manufactures men's suitings, top coatings, overcoatings and women's wear, while their operations from 1914 to 1918 were given over almost continuously to the making for war materials for all of the various countries included in the World war as well as for the United States army.

Upon the retirement of Franklin S. Jerome, in 1913, N. Lorne Greig, of Dayville, was appointed treasurer of the company and in 1916 was elected to the office of vice president, continuing to hold both of these offices up to the present time.

Frank W. Bennett, of Dayville, who served as secretary from 1915 until his retirement in 1923, was succeeded by William G. Park of Hanover.

Much of the success of the company is attributed to the late Angus Park who was elected president in 1916 and who acted in that capacity until his death which occurred on September 17th, 1929. Mr. Park was identified with the woolen business almost from boyhood, being recognized as one of the outstanding leaders in the industry. He gained a wide reputation as such through his able management of not only the Assawaga Company, Inc., but of the Angus Park Manufacturing company of East Glastonbury, and the Airlie Mills, Inc., of Hanover. He was succeeded by his son William G. Park, who at the present time is president and general manager as well as being treasurer and general manager of both the Angus Park Manufacturing company and the Airlie Mills, Inc., and vice president of the Thames Bank and Trust company of Norwich.

Other officers of the concern are: N. Lorne Greig, vice president and treasurer, who is also vice president and secretary of the Angus Park Mfg. company, vice president of the Airlie Mills Inc., and a director of the Danielson Trust Co., Danielson. Francis G. Way, secretary, who is also president of the Angus Park Mfg. company and the Airlie Mills, Inc. William W. Gordon and Arthur G. Gordon of Hazardville, Conn., are directors.

No wonder baking is perfect... with Calumet's DOUBLE-ACTION

MAKE THIS TEST—See for yourself how Calumet Baking Powder acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that Calumet specially provides to take place in your mixing bowl.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture reaches the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that Calumet holds in reserve to take place in your oven. Make this test. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure.

CALUMET'S Double-Action makes it easy to bake perfect cakes. Its first action—in the mixing bowl—gets the leavening started. Its second action—in the oven—is a full steady rising that lifts the batter up and holds it until your cake is perfectly baked—high and light, even though you may not be able to regulate your oven temperature perfectly.

Make a pan of Calumet muffins or a cake and you'll soon see why Calumet has become the most popular baking powder in the world!

Only One Level Teaspoon of Calumet to a Cup of Sifted Flour!

That's the usual Calumet proportion. Be sure to follow it even though you may have been using nearly twice as much with other baking powders. You'll be delighted with this economy! And more than delighted with the results Calumet gives you. Perfect texture! Perfect flavor!

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action nor in the amount that should be used. And not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action—Double-Action. Get Calumet at your grocer's today. Notice Calumet comes in full-sized 16 ounce cans.

A NORWICH SUNDAY PAPER

In order to meet changing conditions and to give the people of Norwich and entire eastern Connecticut the opportunity to obtain the news of the world and this end of the state during seven days of the week, The Bulletin company has decided to eliminate the Saturday evening edition of The Norwich Evening Record and issue an edition Sunday morning to be known as The Sunday Morning Record. This will mean an evening edition for The Record five days a week with a Sunday morning edition, commencing November 2.

This may seem like a radical departure from past practices in this part of the country, but it has been done for a considerable time by newspapers in several states in other parts of the United States, where it has been found to meet with general all around satisfaction.

Through the change, the morning and evening editions of The Bulletin company's papers will give a complete seven-day coverage in this part of Connecticut, and an advertising service that will prove to the advantage of business houses in this end of the state in their appeal to the trade that logically belongs in this area.

Through The Sunday Morning Record the purpose is to place on your breakfast table the complete news of the world every day in the week, this being possible through the motor delivery service throughout eastern Connecticut.

The Sunday edition will have the benefit of the complete Associated Press news service, the Central Press news and photo service, the efficient corps of correspondents in the cities and towns of New London, Windham and Tolland counties, the full report of the New York and Hartford stock markets, the latest in sports, a picture service featuring the events of the day and a section devoted to comics in addition to the regular features in news, fiction and comic strips.

The Sunday edition is being issued in the belief that there is a demand for such news and advertising service in a territory where there is a population of 100,000 and of which Norwich has long been the trading center.

ROADSIDE ATTRACTIONS

First it is one state and then it is another that manifests an interest in the curbing of the roadside billboards. It is not a new movement. Quite recently Rhode Island clubs have been working with such an object in view and in New Jersey legislation has been adopted, placing a tax on billboards in order to establish restrictions, and force them at least 100 feet back from the roadside.

Impressed by the desirability of such action, the Pennsylvania Federation of Garden Clubs has included the elimination of billboards as one of the objects for which it is striving and its plan is to get legislation in the Keystone state similar in character to that in New Jersey.

These efforts stand out in conspicuous contrast to the claims which are made by the Outdoor Advertising association. Naturally, this organization is opposed to the efforts to eliminate the billboards, and it claims that "few journeys through the United States offer so much diversity of grandeur that the traveler's eye does not rest with relief upon some work of art after the unutterable boredom offered by nature."

This will prove highly entertaining to those who are striving for safety, and against the shutting off of the scenic attractions and the disfiguring of nature. The restriction of billboards and roadside signs has been in progress for years. Many states have acted quite effectively and there is a growing interest in the effort in those states which have held back to see what the others would do.

We doubt very much whether there is any considerable number in the states which have restricted billboards who are clamoring for the return of the days when they cluttered up the roadsides in all directions, made it impossible to get views at points of vantage and threw needless obstacles in the way of drivers of vehicles. The change, where made, has had its good results. Highway users are clamoring for better landscape views, rather than more billboards, and the beautification of the roadsides, rather than the shutting out of nature.

PUNISHING LYNCHERS

It isn't often that a lynching occurs in the so-called northern states. When it happens in the south there is justification for the demand that those responsible should be brought to trial and penalized for their lawlessness. That being so, it is only what should be expected when the demand is made for the prosecution of those who participate in such an affair in the north. At least, that is the attitude taken by the attorney-general in Indiana, and it will doubtless get general support.

Indiana was recently much disturbed by the hold-up of a couple for robbery, which resulted in the death of the young man and an attack upon the young woman with him. Two Negroes were arrested, charged with the offense, and while they were in charge of the sheriff of Grant county they were seized and hanged by a mob of incensed citizens.

It was a case which was bound to stir the public. The accused were certain to get an early trial and there is no question but what they would have been properly punished under the law. There was no reason for the injection of mob rule, but the grand jury, after considering the case, failed to bring in indictments against the sheriff, for neglect in providing proper protection for the prisoners, and a number who were alleged to have participated in the lynching.

Regardless of the distressing circumstances surrounding the case and the action of the grand jury, the attorney-general is unwilling to permit the matter to be terminated in that manner. What the evidence is concerning the neglect of the sheriff or the men charged with hanging the two accused is not known here but those charged with upholding the laws of that commonwealth cannot be unmindful of their duty. The character of the crime does not give authority to any who wish to become prosecutor, judge, jury and hangman. There is a prescribed course for dealing with such cases and when there are those who persist in disregarding it they have no reason to expect that they are going to be treated in any other manner than others who deliberately and illegally take human life. The purpose of the attorney-general is to respect and uphold the laws of that state. Whether he succeeds in his plan to prosecute doesn't disturb the justice of his course.

COMBATING UNEMPLOYMENT

Through the efforts that were instigated by President Hoover months ago there has been appreciable progress in keeping down the unemployment. Many projects have been undertaken of a federal and state character. Many large corporations have advanced their plans and undertaken developments and expansions in order to help the situation. These efforts have resulted in the putting into circulation of large sums of money that would not otherwise have taken place this year and there are others still in the making, so that there should continue to be a general continuance of the cooperation which was recognized as so necessary and which has been generously given.

The conditions have been of a world rather than a nation-wide character. This country has suffered less than many others. It has been able to counteract difficulties and display an optimism that is always vital under such circumstances.

That there is still opportunity for a continuance of such work is indicated by the appointment of a committee by the president to increase organized efforts through federal and state channels, to provide employment, prevent hunger and give protection against the rigors of cold weather.

The president has, from the first, given serious and effective attention to the situation. He has been instrumental in getting important assistance and through the cabinet heads, who have been named on the special committee, along with the head of the federal reserve system, there should be the needed continuance of the response needed to relieve the situation, which without such leadership might easily display a lack of interest.

There is reason for confidence and none is giving greater strength to it than the president. There is the opportunity for the many to participate and great value is bound to be attached to a general response.

CATCHING THE CRIMINAL

When the motor vehicle was put at the command of the lawless, those who are ready to break and rob, or kill and plunder, the criminal began to operate at a decided advantage. In addition, he was facilitated in his escape by the existence of good roads, and he was not long in taking full advantage of all his aids.

Such a situation called for greater vigilance on the part of the authorities and the introduction of protective devices for guarding payrolls and banking houses. It has taken some time to overcome the handicap which the robbers gained through the automobile and good roads, and it hasn't all been accomplished yet, when we read that thus far this year 50 banks in small cities and country towns have been robbed in the state of Illinois, the epidemic being reported as worse in states to the west.

But progress against such cases is being made in some states and its good results is bound to be influential in others. Michigan, for instance, has adopted a radio system for its state police department and through it bandits in that state were quickly caught. In other states a system of automatic telegraph machines has been established between police departments of cities and between state police barracks for the dissemination of important crime news and the capture of criminals. Connecticut is covering much of the state in this manner.

Through the state police and such means of quick communication, valuable protection is furnished. The large area outside of the cities gets almost as prompt attention as do the city districts and what serves to place police in the path of fleeing criminals, even though they have had a good start, offers a discouragement to crime which cannot fail to have its good effect. States which have established effective handicaps to fleeing criminals set a fine example to the many which have not.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20—They are all gone now, those blue-coated and those grey-coated men, who sat in the congress of the United States, and who for years were known as the "Civil war brigade." They were high in the ranks of political life; they were enemies through the war, but afterwards were only partisan enemies, and were personal friends.

The last to go was Major Stedman of North Carolina, who fought with Lee, and who, had he lived till February, would have passed his 90th birthday. It was just a few weeks ago that the major passed on, as he referred to death. He faded out of the picture months before the end came. Up to a year or two ago this distinguished officer of the army of the south was still active, as if in his prime. Then he suddenly failed—just faded away; then came a shock, and the major "passed on."

Next to Major Stedman in passing out of congress and out of life at the same moment, was Gen. Warren, senator from Wyoming. Fighting with the northern army, Warren won distinction, medals and prestige. But Warren didn't fade out. He kept right on, sturdy till the last. Senator Warren took the lead in debate, managed the passage of bills from the appropriation committee, of which he was chairman, and held his own with the best of them.

Gen. Warren was a native of Massachusetts and was the father-in-law of General Pershing. Warren fought bravely for the north—Stedman for the south, but after the war was over and they met in congress, they became fast and loyal friends, each admiring the other for his ability, bravery and statesmanship.

Within a period of a decade, or thereabouts, several other veterans of Civil war and congressional distinction died. One was that staunch patriot, Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, republican, and just across the center aisle of the senate, sat Captain John Bankhead, democrat, of Alabama, who fought with Lee in the Confederate army. Bankhead was a loyal senator, but created a big sensation one day a few years ago, when he appeared on the floor of the senate wearing his old grey Confederate uniform, which he had donned in honor of the Confederate reunion then being held in Washington. Bankhead went to a reunion conference in the forenoon, wearing the suit, then came to the senate without changing and proudly marched up and down the aisles to the consternation of those who foresaw "waving of the bloody shirt" as a result. But no one took offense and the incident passed unnoticed, except by the press and sly personal references to it when Bankhead wasn't around to listen in.

And there were many others. We could write a column on them and their "specialties," and stirring incidents that marked their congressional careers, when factional debate indicated the sentiment "below the Mason and Dixon line."

But now taps have sounded over the graves of all of them.

The friends of Miss Grace Abbott, director of the children's bureau, are urging President Hoover to appoint her secretary of labor when Secretary Davis retires, if he is elected senator from Pennsylvania, as he expected to be on Nov. 4.

But rumor has it that the president will not name a woman for the cabinet, believing the time is not yet ripe for such a move.

Every one speaks pleasantly of Miss Abbott's personality, but some folks wonder in just what way her care over the children's bureau and of children specifically fits her for dealing with striking miners, trainmen and other complicated situations which require experience on the part of the secretary of labor and confidence in the secretary by the organizations, corporations and individuals involved in such controversies.

Then, too, comes the question, is it well to hurry about putting a woman in the cabinet? It is the same regarding the senate, where the advice and consent of the senate is required to confirm cabinet nominations. Just now there does not seem to be any eagerness on the part of the senate, as a whole, to welcome a woman in the ranks. Perhaps that is due to the attitude maintained by the candidate from Illinois, Mrs. McCormick, who is calling the senate names, and fighting it to the limit, in her battle against the senate committee now investigating her vast primary expenditures, which she admits were close to $500,000. Anyway, that hasn't helped "the woman's cause" and seems to have done it much harm at the present moment, even though it may die out when the McCormick incident fades out.

Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, has a most remarkable record both of home popularity and senate attendance. It would be hard to say which of the two stands on the top rung of his ladder of fame.

He was detained in Washington last summer until the day before his primary; he did not make even one speech for reelection; he had one or more opponents in his own party, yet he beat them out at the primary two to one, getting over 500,000 votes.

Mr. Shepard has been in the senate since 1913 and in that time has been absent from its session only ten days out of a total of 6,000 days; he has missed only 40 quorum calls out of 7,000 and only 15 roll calls out of more than 2,000. In other words he is always on the job in Washington, and instead of finding fault with him for not "campaigning" as some senators have suffered from at the hands of their constituents, Senator Sheppard has struck the right chord in staying put, as his home folks look at it.

Senator Sheppard takes good care of his Texas folks; he never fails to greet them when they come to Washington; and he takes their requests as if he enjoyed them, not as a burden. He doesn't mind how busy he may be otherwise, those home folks come first. Senator Sheppard has a twinkling eye and a happy smile; he likes to wear blue neck-ties that are the color of his eyes, but whether that is a fad, or whether his devoted family sees that his ties match up with his favorite brown suit for wear at the capital, is a secret no one yet has solved.

Everybody in the senate is friendly to Sheppard, though some of the wet senators point out in sorrow he is "the father of the prohibition law."

Washington is a cosmopolitan city. With diplomats from practically every civilized country in the world, it cannot help being very liberal in its views. It is on Sundays that the different customs and observances of foreign countries prevail, and their effect on the capital is most noticeable.

Holidays also show up the foreign customs in a marked manner, when each shows deference to American customs to a degree, but also carry out the home celebrations in the way each is accustomed to observe it.

Sunday affairs all the year round take on foreign airs. Holidays take on a sort of "Old Home week" suggestion, but Sundays are get-to-gether days for all the diplomatic corps. There are public movies, theatres and ball games for every one, but there are also exclusive and strictly by invitation movies and concerts.

Washington is a notable church going city—but as abroad, people attend the morning services, then spend the rest of the day as they see fit. They follow the European customs in making the rest of the day a social or play day, at least so far as the diplomatic circle and many other high society circles go. The latest popular amusement for Sunday evenings is also instructive. It is a private motion picture program, showing countries in wide spread sections of the world. These films are followed by little supper parties, or musicale in cabinet, congregational or diplomatic homes.

The program this winter is said to include motion pictures of Great Britain, the United States, the land of the mid-night sun, Egypt, Japan and many of the small newly formed nations of southern Europe.

NORTON MEMORIAL HALL IS NAMED FOR LARGE BENEFACTOR OF NORWICH ACADEMY

Henry B. Norton, in whose honor Norton Memorial hall is to be dedicated tonight, was a Norwich merchant with large interests in local steamboat lines and manufacturing enterprises. He was one of the original corporators of the Norwich Free Academy. In his will Mr. Norton left large benefactions for various religious, social and welfare institutions of Norwich, to be held in trust till the death of his heirs. He also planned a public library, to come into being under the same circumstances as those which will give effect to his other public bequests.

Was Native Of Branford

Mr. Norton was born in Branford, Conn., May 5, 1807. His father was captain of a packet vessel plying between Branford and New York. In the spring of 1824 Mr. Norton sailed on his father's packet to New York, and thence took the Norwich packet, commanded by Capt. W. W. Coit, for Norwich. Thus he began his residence of almost 70 years in this place.

He found a position as clerk in the store of Willis Gray and company, and three years later, when scarcely 20 years of age, with Joseph Backus assumed the entire charge of the business, under the firm name of Backus & Norton. In 1835, Timothy P. Norton and William M. Converse were admitted to the firm, and in 1846 Mr. Backus retired, and the firm assumed the name of Norton, Converse and company. In 1861, Mr. Converse retired, and the firm became Norton Bros., consisting of Henry, Timothy and William Norton. This copartnership lasted until 1877.

Mr. Norton's business operations covered a wide area. His firm did the largest wholesale grocery business in eastern Connecticut, and their transactions extended far into northern New England. They brought their own cargoes from the West Indies, and they sold more than one cargo of goods to Nantucket.

Mr. Norton's business operations naturally led him into connection with the great transportation lines. He was the first president of the Norwich and New London Steamboat company, organized in 1848, and merged in 1860 into the Norwich and New York Transportation line. He was director in People's line of steamers between New York and Albany.

President of Attawaugan Co.

Mr. Norton was also closely connected with the manufacturing interests of Norwich. In 1863, he became interested in partnership with Lorenzo Blackstone, in the management of the Attawaugan mills, the Totoket mills and he held, at the time of his death, the position of president of the Attawaugan company. He was also a director in the Norwich Bleaching and Calendering company, in the Richmond Stove company and in The Bulletin company.

Mr. Norton was one of the original members and warmest supporters of the Broadway Congregational church.

In 1880, he headed the presidential electoral ticket which gave the vote of Connecticut to Garfield and Arthur.

Among all the public objects of Mr. Norton's interest, probably the Norwich Free Academy occupied the first place in his affection. One of the original 25 corporators, he succeeded Gov. Buckingham as president of the board of trustees in 1875. Again and again he gave his aid in large contributions to the Academy's endowment fund.

Mr. Norton died Oct. 25, 1891.

Made Many Public Bequests

The will under which Mr. Norton's numerous public benefactions are to come into effect was reported as follows in The Bulletin of Saturday, Oct. 31, 1891.

The will of the late Henry B. Norton was probated Friday. All the bequests for public uses are to be held in trust till the decease of the heirs, after which the provisions of his will for charitable and public purposes are to be carried out. The public bequests are as follows:

To the Branford Congregational society $5,000, the interest to be used to keep in repair the Asa Norton and Calvin Frisbie cemetery lots and to promote the comfort of indigent female members of the church.

$50,000 For N. F. A.

To the Norwich Free Academy $50,000, to be known as "The Henry B. Norton fund," to be used for the general purposes of the school. Mr. Norton expresses the wish and hope that no tuition will be charged for the education of the children of the inhabitants of the town of Norwich, as was intended by the founders of the institution.

To the Eliza Huntington Memorial home of Norwich, $5,000.

To the United Workers of the town of Norwich, $5,000, to be used in prosecuting charitable work.

To the Five Points House of Industry of New York city, $1,000.

To the American Seaman's Friend society of New York, $1,000.

Provides For Library

The text of the will providing for a free library and reading room is as follows:

I give and bequeath to my executor, hereinafter named, or to whomever shall be appointed to execute this will, the sum of $200,000 upon trust to hold, take care of, manage and receive the rents, profits and income of the same until he can obtain from the general assembly of this state an act of incorporation by the name hereinafter mentioned, and with such powers as may be necessary and proper to carry into effect the purposes and objects of this bequest, and to convey, transfer and deliver said trust fund with its accumulations to the corporation created by such act as soon as said corporation shall be duly organized.

The name of said corporation shall be "The Norton Free Public Library and Reading Room of Norwich."

The purpose of this bequest is to aid in the establishment of a library and reading room which shall be free for the use of the inhabitants of the town of Norwich, under such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by said corporation; and the privileges of said library and reading room may also be extended to others than the inhabitants of the town, under such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed.

Must Maintain A Lecture Hall

I desire and direct that said corporation, as soon after its organization as may be deemed expedient, shall procure a suitable site in the city of Norwich and erect thereon a building which shall be suitable for the purposes of a library and reading room, and shall also contain a hall suitable for lectures, or literary entertainments.

I direct that my executor hereinafter named, or other person legally appointed to execute this will, together with Chauncey Williams Norton, William Anderson Norton, William Norton Blackstone, William A. Slater, and Gardiner Greene, Jr., and with such other persons as they shall think proper to associate with them, shall be the corporators under said act; and I also desire that said corporation shall have power to elect from time to time any other person or persons to be members of the same.

I further direct that said corporation from the income derived from said fund shall keep the Norton family lot in Yantic cemetery, and also the lot of my brother, Jehiel F. Norton, in Greenwood cemetery in New York, and the monuments thereon, in good and proper preservation and repair, and that said act of incorporation shall contain a provision for that purpose.

All the rest and residue of my estate I direct to be divided into seven equal parts, and I give and bequeath the same as follows, namely:

To the Young Men's Christian association of Norwich two parts.

To the American Congregational mission of the city of New York, one part.

To the American Home Missionary society of New York, two parts.

To the American Missionary society of New York, one part.

To the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions of New York, one part.

Said several bequests are given for the uses and purposes of said associations respectively.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 — Admittedly it is early for speculation as to republican vice presidential aspirants in 1932, but there is speculation, nevertheless.

And the thing you hear most frequently is that Postmaster General Walter Brown has high hopes of being Mr. Hoover's running mate next time.

Whether the political speculators have any actual facts to go upon or not, they have support for the Brown rumor in high quarters.

It is said that no less an authority than Vice President Curtis regards Brown as an active contender for the 1932 nomination.

Not that it worries Curtis very much. The conventions are too far away for that, for one thing. And there is another aspect of all vice presidential nominations with which Curtis is personally familiar, beyond doubt.

They are not made by the conventions. The delegates merely ratify the running mate selected by the presidential nominee and his advisers. Geographical political expediency determines who is to be joined with the head of the ticket.

How It Works

Take Curtis' own case. It was not any particular bond, political or otherwise, between Hoover and Curtis which led to the Kansan's selection at Kansas City.

What did matter was that Mr. Hoover's lieutenants felt that he urgently needed a running mate who would help the ticket in the corn belt. The then senator from Kansas filled that bill of particulars very nicely, so he got the job.

Calvin Coolidge was the same kind of a happenstance in 1920 with Harding of Ohio selected as presidential nominee; Frank Roosevelt got his vice presidential chance that year because he hailed from New York while the ticket head, James Cox, was from Ohio.

In 1924 similar considerations produced Dawes and "Brother Charlie" Bryan. The necessity of attempting conciliation of the south made Joe Robinson running mate of Al Smith. And so it goes, as far back as you look.

Vice presidential nominees are neither born great nor do they achieve greatness. It is thrust upon them by circumstances over which they have no control whatever.

Watching Him

To a veteran like Curtis it must be amusing to see anyone definitely running for a vice presidential nomination.

Yet General Brown is supposed to be doing just that, and all his efforts to overcome the postal deficit and revamp city postoffice methods through the activities of a flying squadron of postal inspectors are viewed with political suspicion by most Washington observers.

YOUR HEALTH

Does The Teaching Of Home Hygiene Pay?

By Lorna D. Harkins, Instructor of Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick, Milwaukee.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Over the telephone one day this summer came the voice of a woman. "Where can I get a course in the care of babies? My youngest child is 25 years of age and I've forgotten how to handle a baby. Anyway I want the latest methods. My daughter has a new baby and the nurse leaves in two weeks. Where can I get some lessons?"

In the smaller communities often it is the family doctor who teaches the practical lessons of home hygiene. In some cities it is the Visiting Nurse association or the Infant Welfare, and in other cities the Department of Health has a special division whose duties are to conduct such classes on the public playgrounds. In this particular instance, the new grandmother attended the courses conducted for children on the playgrounds. These were held every day, morning and afternoon. Bright and early grandma appeared. She sat through the classes with the eight, nine and ten year old girls, learning the new methods of bathing, dressing and feeding the baby. Was she better fitted to go the nearby town and assist her daughter?

Infant care is only one of the phases of a course in home hygiene. The general essentials of preventive medicine are included, such as simple methods in breaking up a beginning cold, and how to prevent that beginning cold. A few of the other studies are "Indications of Sickness, Personal Health, Care of the Communicable Disease Patient, Common Emergencies, First Aid, To give a Bath to a Patient in bed, etc.

Physicians recognize the value of such teaching and are quick to cooperate in every way that they can to make such a course interesting and successful. The nursing profession can always be depended upon to take an active part in any health educational project and this work of teaching home hygiene to young and old alike appeals to them greatly. In our city this course is conducted by the health department and consists of twenty lessons. A book cover is presented to each student on enrollment. All the work is practical and applicable to every day life. The lesson sheets are passed to the students as the course progresses. Any group of twelve or more may take the course free of charge with all necessary equipment furnished.

People today are becoming more and more interested in health matters and there is a great movement on foot to disseminate health information to the public. All health groups have joined hands in this task and it is hoped that these efforts will result in better personal health and longer life for all people.

THE TOWN DOCTOR

(THE DOCTOR OF TOWNS)

SAYS

A Few More Pointed Paragraphs

A pretty good slogan for every merchant today is the old one "Don't pass us BUY" and it would be good advice for every consumer, for right now is the best time for everybody to "buy something."

How IS business anyway — your business? Don't give that old worn out stock answer before you think it over, seriously. When you have thought it out on a fair and square basis, then ask yourself this question: "To what extent am I personally responsible for it?"

The biggest three words in 1930 selling (and everybody is selling you know) are "think, work and adaptability."

Never in the life of anyone under 50 has there been the opportunity to "get going to go get it" that there is right now. The wise ones are already on their way.

The lights that control the traffic of business are green. They may look red to you, but remember there are lots of people who are color blind and don't know it. Take your foot off the brake and step on the gas. Just because the other fellow can't shift gears is no sign that you have to sit there and watch him, telling the world he is a bum driver. Besides that, you're holding up traffic.

Now is the time to get going to go get it. There never was a better time to lay a firm foundation for individual and collective business than right now. When things are at their worst they are bound to get better. When people think times will get better they will get better IF they follow through by acting as they think.

This is a good time of year for merchants to re-read the law of good business which says "Business goes where it is invited, and stays and comes back to the place where it is well treated and served best." You can't expect people to do business with you if you do not ask them to—that is just another way of saying "You can't sell 'em if you don't tell 'em."

The housewife who has her own best interests at heart will do well to adhere to a plan of buying her needs from the stores that give her a "reason why" she should buy from them. Price is one thing, but quality and price is another.

Ask the merchant to give you a real reason why you should buy from him in preference to his competitor. If he cannot tell you, if he DOES NOT tell you, there can hardly be a reason; and without a reason, how can it be a good place for you to trade?

Watch your newspapers. Read the advertisements and see if the merchants give you a real "reason why" you should trade with them—a reason that is to your advantage. If you cannot find an advertisement of the stores where you have been in the habit of buying it may be because those merchants have no reason; or if, having a reason, they are not interested enough in you to lay that reason before you.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Deplores Attack on French

Mr. Editor: As a 100 per cent American not sleeping on Sachem Plains, I wish to express my sincere and hearty thanks to the man who so well defended the French against the unreasonable and unjust attack upon them published in last week's Bulletin. I fail to understand how anyone can write such a letter, or show himself so small-souled because the French, perchance, are anxious to retrieve in a slight degree their terrible losses.

Had we entered the World war as we should have done at least two years earlier, instead of profiteering and becoming the wealthiest nation of the world, thousands of lives and millions upon millions of property would have been saved.

People seem to have forgotten that many of the atrocities of the Revolution were committed by Hessian soldiers hired by a king of German descent, British soldiers being unwilling to fight against their countrymen, and that the fleet, men, supplies, and money furnished by the French helped greatly in winning freedom for the United States. At the present time, also, we have reason to rejoice that the honor of the Belgians and the bravery of the French largely contributed to save our country from being under the control of a German emperor and paying tribute for the expenses of the war.

"After suffering some time from a bad cold my nose became unusually red and sore. I tried various creams and salves without obtaining a bit of relief. I didn't have much confidence that Resinol Ointment would be any better but tried it anyway and all I can say is it worked wonders. My hands also were so chapped they cracked and almost bled. They were in such bad condition I could not hold anything. However, thanks to your Resinol Ointment they are now healed." (Signed) Mrs. Janet Gilmore, Philadelphia, Pa.

AMERICA AT CROSS ROADS, SPEAKER TELLS PARK CHURCH MEN'S CLUB

A gathering of over 200, including clergymen from New London and Windham counties, and members of Park Congregational church and their guests, were present at the opening meeting of the season of the Men's club of the church, at the Hugh H. Osgood Memorial Monday evening, to honor Dr. Fred B. Smith moderator of the National Council of Congregational churches. Dr. Smith, who was the principal speaker and who has just returned from a speaking tour of the United States, traveling as far west as California and Oregon, gave a forceful and interesting address on the topic of "America at the Crossroads."

After an informal reception for Dr. Smith in the chapel, the gathering repaired to the banquet room in the Osgood Memorial, where an appetizing menu, prepared by William A. Lund and assistants, was served. The menu comprised fruit cup, chicken patties, mashed potato, celery and olives, cranberry sauce, peas and carrots, rolls, wafers, ice cream and coffee. During the banquet hour Eben Learned was the song leader for the spirited singing. There were also solo and duet selections by the well known singers, Edward T. Connelly and Michael Farrell, accompanied by Nicholas J. Spellman. They were called upon repeatedly for encores.

Lyle H. Fillmore, who presided at the meeting, called upon Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, D. D., pastor of Park Congregational church, who introduced the speaker, Dr. Smith. Dr. Smith, who has a record of 41 years of public service, told about crossing the Atlantic ocean 74 times and of traveling around the world five times.

"The world is a long, long way from being the kind of world we thought it would be 41 years ago," he said. "I don't say we have failed, but we have fallen short of our expectations. I am afraid there is more hatred in the world than there was 41 years ago. I am afraid there is more unrest and discontent now. There is more poverty, more poor folks are starving now.

"There is power anywhere one looks in the United States," continued the speaker. "There is power in our morale; it is very high compared to the rest of the world. There is power in our expectations." He quoted the statement of a statistician that the area and productivity of the United States is enough to care for 702,000,000 people. "I do not think there is any other country in the world that can say that," he said. "The rest of the world is crowded. Over 2,000,000 in the British Isles present besmeared cards to give them the right to secure salt pork and hardtack to keep life in their bodies."

The speaker asked the audience the question, What do you think America will do with her power? "We have a strangle hold on the rest of the world," he said. "We have a mortgage hold on it. Power does one or two things. It lifts a man up, makes him humble or power makes him debauched. There is no neutrality in the handling of power.

Dr. Smith went on to enumerate a number of danger signs that the United States must reckon with. He said that the United States must beware of the false definition of economics. Unless we correct by some method of education, culture or religion the present popular definition of economics there is trouble ahead for the United States and it is not far away, the speaker warned.

"Respect for law in the United States is at a very low ebb," pointed out the speaker," and we need revival of fidelity for law." Referrring to the 18th amendment Dr. Smith said that no man has a right to violate the Volstead act and call himself a good citizen.

Dr. Smith spoke of the many great and powerful nations in the past that collapsed, such as Rome, Greece, Germany and others, and indicated that the United States will follow in their tracks if it does not beware of the many danger signs. At the conclusion of his address Dr. Smith was accorded a rising vote of thanks.

Arthur Worth, a vice president of the Men's club, introduced the new pastor of the Norwich Town Congregational church, Rev. Wilfrid M. Wilton, who spoke briefly, and Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, presented on behalf of friends a purse of $100 in gold to Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, who on that date had reached 50 years in the ministry. Mayor Lee Roy Robbins also addressed the gathering in an interesting way.

Among the clergymen present were, besides those mentioned, Rev. Mr. Barnum, Groton; Rev. George Clarke, Norwich Town; Rev. G. F. Goodenough, Jewett City; Rev. E. P. Kelly, Ledyard; Rev. Inor Partington, North Stonington; Rev. William C. Prentice, Plainfield; Rev. William J. Reynolds, Lisbon; Rev. John Waldron, Franklin; Rev. Mr. Stevens, Montville; Rev. Dwight C. MRS. CATH. JOHNSON 101 ON FRIDAY OF THIS WEEK

Mrs. Catherine Johnson, who became a member of the Haven family at Abington in July, celebrates her 101st birthday Friday. She was born in Nova Scotia, Oct. 24, 1829. She was never able to attend school but learned to read and to write at Sunday school by writing on the window panes. She was the mother of nine children. Five are living. The eldest, a daughter, is now 79 and lives in Nova Scotia. One daughter, Mrs. Ralph Baker, resides in Pomfret. She also has two sons and a daughter, Mrs. George Baker, in Scituate, R. I.

Mrs. Johnson came to this country about 40 years ago. Her husband died about 30 years ago, at North Scituate, R. I. She has been a resident of Pomfret about ten years.

BUSINESS RALLY SPEAKERS SEE PROSPERITY AHEAD

Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, Harold D. Larrabee, president of the Norwich Rotary club and Aurin E. Payson, president of the American Thermos Bottle Co., were among the speakers at the Better Business Week rally at the Wauregan hotel Monday morning, which was attended by over 250 merchants, their employes and the general public. The meeting marked the opening of the "Better Business Week" programme, sponsored by the Norwich Lions club with the Merchants Bureau, Rotary and Contact clubs cooperating. The consensus of the speakers was "that hard times" had passed around the corner and better times are here.

At the rally, which was held in the ballroom, through the courtesy of the manager, Melvin H. Worth, Charles V. James, president of the Norwich chamber of commerce, presided, and Edward T. Connelly acted as song leader. Better Business slogans were prominently displayed about the walls of the room. In order to allow the employes an opportunity to attend the rally, the proprietors of the stores did not open for business until after 9 o'clock.

Louis M. Crandall, president of the Norwich Lions club, presented by the presiding officer as the first speaker, said that he was happy to see such a large number present at the rally. Mr. Crandall extended thanks to Manager Worth for donating the use of the ballroom for the meeting.

Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, who was the next speaker, said that it was certainly inspiring to see such a large and enthusiastic audience present so early in the morning. The mayor in his brief talk illustrated his point by stating that when he retired last night his pocketbook was in his coat pocket and it was intact this morning. The crux of my remarks, the mayor said, is nothing got out of my pocketbook, but the point is nothing got in.

If I spent $1 in a store and 9,999 others did the same thing, there is $10,000 spent and that amount of merchandise would be passed out to the consumer. One dollar is not much to spend. The storekeeper would naturally have to replenish his stock, with the result that orders would be sent back to the producers. They in turn would have to seek the raw materials, resulting in the mills starting up. This would help out not alone the weaver of goods, but the engineers, firemen and various other agencies necessary.

If business picked up, the merchant would ultimately have to seek more room for expansion. He would probably take the store next to him. This would furnish work for plasterers, masons, plumbers and what not. And so the $10 and those of the 9,999 others passes along until it probably comes back.

Wealth is not accumulated by hording, but it is essential to produce it, Mayor Robbins stated in his closing remarks. He was warmly applauded.

Harold D. Larrabee of the Rotary club and a well known civic worker, who is connected with the Connecticut Light and Power Co. here, stated that like a poorly constructed house in a storm, so did the artificial values come tumbling down. Last year, the speaker said, two plus two made eight, because the next one figured that some sucker would take it at ten. At the present time two plus two makes minus one or one minus. If conditions are as bad as painted, we would all be in the poor house, he said.

To show that business is on the upgrade and conditions are improving, Mr. Larabee quoted statistics taken $10,000 spent and that amount of from the files of his company showing increases in gas and electricity for the first nine months of 1930 as compared with the nine months period of the previous year.

Total sales of electricity were two per cent greater, he said. This was despite the fact that during July, August and September of this year, one large mill in this territory was shut down, resultant in a 10 1-2 per cent power loss for those three months.

Sales of electricity to others, such as to the city of Norwich, boroughs of Groton and Jewett City, Clinton and Essex, were 3.2 per cent greater.

Total number of meters were 4.5 per cent increase. Gas sales were 5.3 per cent greater while electricity sales were 18.7 per cent greater. This was for domestic use.

The corner has been turned and business is on the upgrade. So thinks J. Pierpont Morgan and I think so, too, and that makes it right. We have paid and are now paying for violating the economic law of supply and demand. But it is time to stop paying. This can be done, the speaker said, by buying things we want, usual things in normal quantities. Buy now and buy all you want, Mr. Larrabee said in closing.

"We are on the threshold of literally a golden opportunity," said Aurin E. Payson, president of the American Thermos Bottle Co., "but this opportunity will not present itself for some time to come. There is an opportunity of making good investments", he said.

The present business depression was compared by Mr. Payson to the life of a child with its up and downs. The time to buy is now as prices are close to cost. He challenged anyone in the audience to name one commodity that could not be bought cheaper at the present time as compared with the prices of 18 months ago. Don't think, he said, that you can buy at the bottom always for it can't be done.

The speaker went on to say that bankers, business men and manufacturers are laying the foundation of their future fortunes, which will come at the end of 1930 and 1931 for we are on the threshold of a golden opportunity.

Depressions, slumps and panics as they used to be called in the old days were nothing new to the oldtime business man, said C. Edward Smith of the Cranston Co., in his address. Heretofore it has been mostly concentrated in this country, but this depression has been world wide and has lasted longer. But we are now coming out to brighter and better days, he said.

Mr. Smith described the business situation locally, giving as signs of encouragement the recent starting up of several mills and the expansion of new business. He pointed out that Norwich has not suffered as much as other parts of the state.

Following brief remarks by Mr. James, who urged all to buy, Edwin Hill, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., in the absence of Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, spoke on the subject of "Optimism," in which he said that business is bound to come back.

Dr. Kopland K. Markoff, past president of the Lions' club, was chairman of the committee in charge of the programme.

Mrs. Frederick E. Robinson

At 2 o'clock Monday afternoon funeral services for Mrs. Frederick E. Robinson were held at the funeral parlors of Undertaker C. A. Gager. The service was conducted by Rev. E. J. Norris, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church and Mrs. Olive Potter sang Beautiful Land on High. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery and the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Norris. The bearers were Robert McNeely, Herbert R. Wightman, Frank L. Robinson and Fred E. Burdick. The funeral was attended by many relatives and friends including people from New Haven, New London and Stratford, and the floral forms were numerous and beautiful.

Better a burning kiss than an unburned love letter.

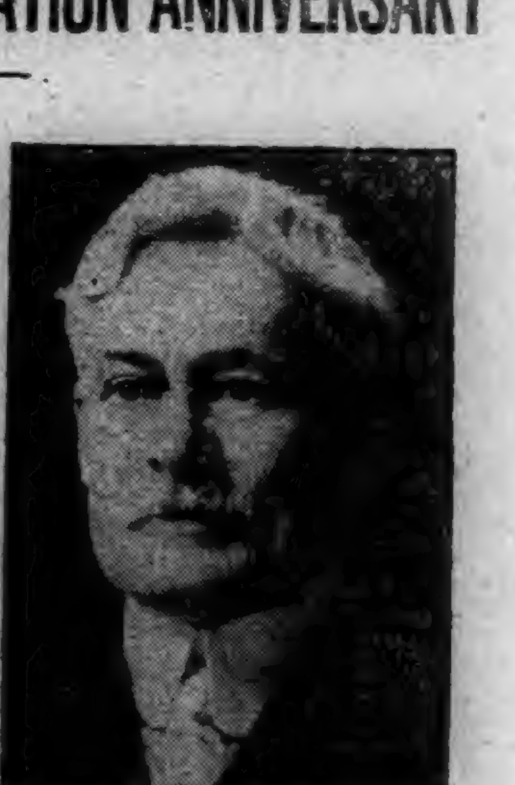
PURSE FOR REV. C. H. RICKETTS ON FIFTIETH ORDINATION ANNIVERSARY

A purse of $100 in gold was presented to Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, Monday evening at the Hugh H. Osgood Memorial building, in recognition of his 50 years of service in the Christian ministry. The presentation, which was a complete surprise to Rev. Mr. Ricketts, was a part of the opening meeting of the season of the Men's club of the Park Congregational church. The purse of gold was a gift of friends of the well known preacher.

The presentation address was made by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, who spoke feelingly of the long service of Rev. Mr. Ricketts. He said that today, Oct. 20, 1930, reminded Rev. Mr. Ricketts of another day, Oct. 20, 1880. Fifty years ago today Rev. Mr. Ricketts was ordained a minister and entered upon his first pastorate in Palmer, Mass.

Rev. Mr. Abbott called upon Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, D.D., pastor of Park Congregational church, to lay the hands of apostolic blessing upon Rev. Mr. Ricketts' head, after which he mentioned that the honored pastor had been with the Greeneville church for the past 32 years. "Your townsmen have learned to love you," said the speaker, "for what you have done, love you for your honor and respect you for your undaunted faith."

In receiving the gift, Rev. Mr. Ricketts said that he was taken completely by surprise at the cordial and friendly appreciation of his years of long service in the ministry. Among other things he said that he had tried to live a straight life, morally, physically and spiritually, and he was going to try to do so until the end of his days. Rev. Mr. Ricketts was warmly applauded at the conclusion of the ceremony.



REV. CHARLES H. RICKETTS

IN WEST THEY WOULD RATHER LOSE TO GOOD TEAM THAN BEAT A POOR ONE

By EDWARD J. NEIL,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Out in the big six conference, where football teams would rather lose to a good eleven than beat a poor one, there are no controversies over the fairness of multitudinous substitutions or the practice of the mighty slaughtering of the weak in early season games.

The problem out that way is man power, according to Gwinn Henry, head coach for the past eight years of Missouri's Tigers, a team that has come east for three straight years to take a licking from New York university. Saturday the rampaging Violets socked one of the weakest elevens Henry has ever had, a team that hasn't won a game or scored a point so far this fall.

"I've got a gang of sophomores, big strong fellows, but they are not the kind of football material you find in the east," he said before the game. "They are an average of two years younger for one thing, and they haven't the football background of the eastern boys coming into college.

"Out in Missouri we can't pick and choose from the prep schools because high school football out there is at a low ebb. High school coaches in that section are poorly paid. Usually they are teachers from some other department getting something extra for handling the football team. They are not up on modern methods. On the other hand, high schools throughout the southwest, particularly in Texas, are very strong and smart.

"It isn't unusual to have a freshman squad at Missouri of 150 boys, and you'd think that turnout would guarantee good teams year after year. But 75 per cent. of the good prospects flunk out before they get to be sophomores and they're all young and inexperienced. A squad of 35 in the east is a far better proposition because most of them will have had smart, high grade prep school coaching."

Henry was somewhat amazed at the idea that there might be any question of sportsmanship involved in the meeting of big and little teams and the unrestrained use of substitutes. That question never comes up in the west country.

"We play seven or eight major games each fall," he said. "The first one usually is a 'practice' game and we call it that and schedule it that way. No one has any idea but that we are going to use all the men we have against a weaker team for the sole purpose of testing the boys and trying out combinations to see what works best. The small college doesn't have to take those games unless they want to. I used 40 men in a game once and still I didn't find out much about them."

Henry believes that over a period of years no one section of the country will prove stronger than another in the development of national champions. The middle-west, he thinks, has had a better average of good teams than any other region. He also is sure that football will be a better game for spectators and teams alike when all colleges stay in their respective classes throughout the season and every game is a major battle.

"Of course," he added, "you've got to develop two teams to do it. But that isn't impossible. The first team in our schedule next fall is Texas. How's that for a 'practice game'?"

HARVARD TO HAVE FULL STRENGTH AGAINST GREEN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Harvard's football outlook for next Saturday's important Dartmouth game brightened considerably today when Head Coach Arnold Horween was advised he would have every member of his varsity squad available. Horween has not had his full strength since the season opened.

Eddie Mays and Charlie Devens, the best lateral combination, will be able to practice Wednesday and the other Crimson cripples, Ogden, regular end, and Talbot, varsity guard, will rejoin the squad tomorrow. Horween excused Captain Ticknor, Crickard and Harding, who were slightly bruised in the Army game, and gave a light workout to the other players. Varsity reserves, those idle during the Army game, were scrimmaged against the freshman team.

The elimination of the Crimson's injured list will not only give Horween his first chance to start his regulars in a game but also insures him five highly valuable backfield substitutes to speed up his running attack against the high scoring Indians.

BARNARD WOULD BAN SACRIFICE FLY RULE

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP)—President E. S. Barnard, of the American league, today said he would seek elimination of the sacrifice fly from the major-minor baseball rules when the joint rule committee meets next December.

Under present rules, any fly ball that advances a runner one or more bases whether intentional or not, is counted as a sacrifice. President Barnard seeks to eliminate it from the rules altogether and count only an intentional bunt, which advances a runner, as a sacrifice.

"The sacrifice fly is one of the most absurd rules in baseball," President Barnard explained. "Almost every time one is hit, it is merely a stroke of luck. The batter gets up and swings and if he is lucky enough to hit a long fly that advances a good runner one base, he is credited with a sacrifice and no time at bat."

For many years, only an intentional bunt was scored as a sacrifice when advancing a runner. Two years ago, the sacrifice rule was "loaded" up to include the sacrifice fly.

HUNGARIAN HORSEMEN ARRIVE FOR HORSE SHOW

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP)—A group of Hungarian army officers, who will compete in the international military jumping contests at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden Nov. 6-12, arrived here today.

Col. Manalotti is in command of the team, which includes Lieut. Schaurek and Lieut. Endoedy, the pick of the Hungarian army. The Hungarian team made the trans-Atlantic crossing with the German team, which landed in Boston to prepare for the show in that city. The German horses are nine of the finest jumpers in the German cavalry and are valued at $150,000.

YALE-ARMY GAME TOPS EASTERN CLASSICS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(AP)— In the great bowl at New Haven this Saturday, Yale and the Army will meet on the gridiron in the thirtieth renewal of a rivalry begun in 1893, and all indications today pointed to a crowd of 75,000 that would fill the vast arena for the first time this season.

The battle this year has all the elements of a football "natural." Both teams are among the contenders for mythical eastern honors, although the Elis bowed to a southern foe, Georgia. Both are traveling at top speed, the Cadets having bowled over Harvard last Saturday while Yale was crushing Brown.

Added to this is the glamorous presence of a young fellow named Albie Booth, a streak in Yale blue, who last year rose to the peak of his meteoric career on the occasion of the Army game and figured in the scoring of all of his team's points as the Bulldog came from behind to win 21 to 13.

Individual feats of football heroism have been many in the 37 years of Yale-Army rivalry, especially in recent seasons. In 1928 the Army scored one of its infrequent victories over Yale, largely by virtue of the all-around excellence of a red-headed half-back, Chris Cagle.

This year the army outfit feels that to stop Booth is to win the game, but on the other hand they believe that if Ed Herb, the star of the Harvard game, is stopped, they will be able to threaten with several other backs including Bowman, Fields and Letzelter. The Army's eggs are not all in one basket, but Yale's chief reliance frankly is placed on Booth, who has been the saving grace of the Elis in every game this year.

The entire corps of cadets will make the trip to the bowl to support Captain "Polly" Humber and his mates with their cheers and give the crowd the thrill of watching the West Pointers put on their big parade before the game.

The record of the past has a decided Yale tinge, the Elis having won 18 games, lost 5 and tied 6.

DARTMOUTH HAS ONLY EVEN CHANCE WITH HARVARD

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 20.—(AP)—An over-confidence that the undefeated Dartmouth football team may have collected, was eliminated here today when four former Green stars returned to help Head Coach Jackson Cannell prime his Indians for Saturday's clash with Harvard at the stadium.

"Wife" Jennings, Frank Dorsey, Jim Robinson and Jim Donnelly, all old time Dartmouth gridiron heroes, described the Crimson's football strength and warned Cannell's players that they have only an even chance for victory, if that.

Cannell put his regulars through a light drill and re-instated Wild Bill McCall, who ran back a Columbia punt for 80 yards, as varsity quarterback. The third varsity eleven went through a long scrimmage with the freshmen and pushed over two speedy touchdowns.

It was definitely learned that Len Clark and Aarnie Frigard, two of the Green's outstanding halfbacks, would be out of the Harvard game. Porter and Foley were also nursing slight injuries but they were expected to be in shape late this week. Indications were that Cannell would be forced to start Ward Donner, a fourth stringer, up to last week, against Harvard at right half or shift one of his quarterbacks.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 20.—(AP)—A delicate operation was performed in a hospital here, today, to save the left eye of Charlie Snead, Yale halfback, who was hurt in practice and had the injury aggravated in the Maryland game two weeks ago.

Dr. Eugene Blake, describing the operation as "serious," said tonight that his patient was responding favorably and that he believed it would be entirely successful.

While no definite announcement has been made, it is believed that the football days of Snead, the only Yale man ever to win three major Y's as a sophomore, are over. He is a senior.

Besides football, he plays baseball and hockey. His home is in Montclair, N. J.

TAFTVILLE VILLAGE LEAGUE GETS GOING THIS WEEK

The Taftville Village Bowling league gets away to the 1930 season on Wednesday of this week. From all appearances it would seem that there will be plenty of keen competition on the village alleys this winter. Each captain claims that he has a team that will surely walk off with the title when the season closes next spring. The teams and the captains are: Petes Radio's, Capt. Dupuis; Taftville garage, Capt. Leo Paradis; Oil Cans, Capt. George Smith; Lisbon, Capt. Bill Brown; Nagle Lunch, Capt. Clarence Nagle; Paint Shop, Capt. Jim Troland; Cardinals, Capt. Joe Lucier; Weller's General Electrics, Capt. Albert Lambert.

M'LAUGHRY SHAKES UP TEAM FOR HOLY CROSS

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The Brown football team came in for a general shakeup today as a result of the poor performance made against Yale, when Coach Tuss McLaughry stated that he had demoted four of the line regulars in Horton, Schneider, Gillies and Schein to the second string eleven. The practice today consisted of 90 minutes of scrimmage in preparation for meeting Holy Cross Saturday. The center position was the only berth filled today when Sherman Wiley, sophomore, was moved up. The other positions are open according to McLaughry and will go to the candidates showing the best in coming scrimmage sessions.

BALDUS DIES IN BOUT WITH HOGAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Carl Baldus, Harlem light heavyweight, collapsed and died in the ring of the new Lenox Sports club here tonight.

Baldus was matched in a four round preliminary bout with Larry Hogan. After fairly even battling for two rounds, Baldus fell to the floor in the third round without being hit. The club physician, Dr. Perry Lichtenstein, pronounced him dead.

R. I. Field Trials

ESCAHEAG, R. I., Oct. 20—(AP)—Miss Ruth Prince, English setter owned and handled by Dr. Wallace F. Vail, of Greenwich, Conn., won the Post subscription stake at the annual Rhode Island Grouse club trials here, today. The runner-up was Ghostone Sue Riley, English setter, owned by Theodore P. Whittemore, of Boston. An abundance of grouse was reported.

Au Revoir.

This is my swan song, as it were. Circumstances have arisen that have caused me to decide to discontinue this column. It is not without a feeling of regret that I make this decision for I have enjoyed these little chats with you folks and I hope that you may have enjoyed them a little, too.

If I have given any of you a laugh, or even a faint smile, I am amply repaid. And if I have offended any of you, I am deeply sorry as everything I have written has been in a spirit of fun. The little slaps I have given some, the pats on the back I have given others, the little stories I have told about people have all been a part of the comraderie I have felt toward you.

It was back in 1925 right after the Yale-Harvard game that I appeared on the sports page with the boy friend and since that time much water has flowed under the bridge, if you know what I mean. I have enjoyed these five years, but like all pleasures there comes the end.

Again I say au revoir,

SUSIE.

Eastern Football Briefs

Princeton—Princeton's football regulars had a day of rest today but the reserves, including a few who played against Cornell, went through a long and hard practice. Langdon Lea and Stan Purnell, out since the Amherst game, were on the field and probably will play against Navy.

West Point, N. Y.—Calisthenics and limbering up exercises composed Army's drill in preparation for the Yale game. There were no serious injuries in the gruelling battle with Harvard although most of the regulars were nursing bruises.

New York—With Fordham's unbeaten eleven next on the program, Chick Meehan wasted no time getting his New York university team down to serious work. A two hour workout was scheduled today with a dummy scrimmage the big feature.

Pittsburgh — Franklin Hood and Jesse Quatse took such a pounding in the Syracuse game that they may not be able to play against Notre Dame. Pitt officials announced a sell-out for Saturday's battle with a crowd of 75,000 confidently expected.

Hamilton, N. Y.—Colgate's reserves went through a perfunctory workout as the regulars were given a holiday to recover from the losing game with Michigan State. Hard work for the Penn State game will start tomorrow.

State College, Pa. — Two changes were made in Penn State's lineup, Bob Snyder returning to a varsity halfback post and Martz to right end, replacing Edwards, hurt in the scoreless tie with Lafayette.

BALTIC BEATS PUTNAM TO TAKE SECOND PLACE

Sunday afternoon at Sayles field, the Baltic S. A. C. soccer team defeated the Putnam team 5 to 3 in an Eastern Connecticut league game to take second place in the loop. The game was fast and cleanly played throughout giving the fans plenty of excitement during the two 45-minute periods. Walker and Mathers did the scoring for Baltic while Fenton, Hethington and Higgins each scored for Putnam. Next week Baltic plays at Putnam. The line-ups:

FOUR INJURED PLAYERS RETURN TO YALE SQUAD

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 20—(AP)—Four of the injured came back to the fold today as Yale began sharpening its football knives for the invasion of the cadets from the banks of the Hudson next Saturday.

Captain Vincent, tackle; Hare, guard, and Flygare, end, weren't so badly bruised in the Brown game as first believed and they were on hand for an hour's blackboard talk and a half hour signal drill. With them came Chich McLennan, quarterback, who was messed up in the Georgia scrap.

The good news that Charlie Heim, another quarterback, injured in practice last week, would be back tomorrow, was tempered with an announcement that Lindenberg, end, whose leg was severely wrenched by the Georgians, will not be available for duty against Army.

Albie Booth, the mainspring of the Eli machine, got a day off today, McLennan running the team from the signal calling post.

There were no scrimmages last week at practice and it's doubtful if there will be any this week. Coach Mal Stevens figures that's the best way of avoiding injuries.

POLISH CITIZENS TO TAKE UP BASKETBALL

The Polish Citizens, champions of the City baseball league the past season, will branch out in basketball the coming campaign and a meeting to form a quintet will be held tonight at Pulaski hall, according to an announcement Monday evening by George Bizinski, who managed the baseball team through its successful season and will also head the basketball outfit.

It is planned to play games at Pulaski hall probably once a week thus giving Norwich its first semi-pro court representative in the last five or six seasons. Candidates will be summoned shortly, it is expected. Manager Bizinski stated last night that his team does not expect to enter the proposed City league.

Henry B. Coxe, 67, widely known retired coal operator, died unexpectedly at his estate in Pennllyn, a suburb of Philadelphia, of a heart attack.

CURCIO'S RING RECORD SHOWS THAT HE WILL BE TOUGH FOE FOR RUSSO

That Joe Russo, Westerly battler is going to have his hands full in one of the eight round star bouts at the Shyma club boxing show on next Friday is evidenced by the impressive record of Johnny Curcio of Providence who is to be his opponent. Curcio is holder of the middleweight title of Rhode Island and there are some good middleweights there, even if it is a small state.

Curico has engaged in 65 bouts and has lost but 10 of them which is quite some achievement. And from his record he has not been fighting setups to boost this record. Appearing on the list of victims are some very well known middleweights. Curcio has whipped Gene Mars, Jackie Horner, Laddie Lee, Tracy Ferguson, Al Bergeron, Bobby Brown and a host of others. Among those who have won decisions over him are Frankie O'Brien, Bob Jeasse and Eddie Adonis, his only knockout being at the hands of O'Brien.

Curcio is a veteran of the ring, well versed in the art of leather pushing. He is a clever boxer and besides that possesses plenty of dynamite in his hands. He is working out at Providence with Caprio who is to meet Jimmy Quinn in another of the star bouts. Curcio's manager writes that he is very confident of being able to take the Westerly boy inside the eight round limit.

Russo has been going strong as was evidenced by his victory last Friday at New London over Johnny Woods of New York. Woods gained a verdict over Russo earlier in the summer but the Westerly boy showed a marked improvement over that bout and won handily.

SHEA KNOCKS OUT DATTO IN FOURTH

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20. —(AP) — Eddie Shea, flashy Chicago battler, moved up a notch tonight in his bid for the featherweight title, by knocking out Johnny Datto, Filipino of Cleveland, in the fourth round of the 10-round main event at the arena. Shea scaled 126 1-2 and Datto 125 1-2.

A sizzling right to the jaw sent Datti down and out less than half a minute after the fourth round began. He lay motionless while the referee counted him out. Shea turned a cartwheel and shook his hands to the fans.

Both battlers, among the hardest hitters in the featherweight class, made it a hammer and tongs affair from the beginning. Shea, the stiffer puncher, kept boring in and battered the Fillipino's body. Dattoy, shifty and clever, tried to box his opponent, but Shea wouldn't let him.

Shea stung the Clevelander with both hands for three rounds and Datto was punch-dizzy and bleeding from the nose and mouth when he went to his corner at the end of the third. Shea also showed marks of battle for Datto's sharp jabs and stinging rights had opened up an old cut over his eye and blood trickled from his nose.

Datto was still a trifle wobby when he came out for the fourth and Shea's rush carried him against the ropes. He fought his way out and they were mixing it up in the center of the ring when Shea shot over a right to the jaw that sent Datto reeling.

Roy Williams, Chicago, a stablemate of Shea, scored a technical knockout over Johnny Alberts, Hazleton, Pa., in the fifth round of a 6-rounder. Williams weighing 164, gave Alberts a weight advantage of 18 rounds but out-boxed and outslugged the Hazleton boy in every round. Alberts was groggy when the referee stopped the uneven battle.

Other 6-round bouts resulted as follows:

Joe Marciente, 129, New York, decision over Johnny Canzoneri, 126, Allentown, Pa.

Gene Moretti, 152, Atlantic City, decision over Tommy West, 154, Philadelphia.

Phil Zwick, 126, Cleveland, was awarded the decision over Eddie Cool, 126, Philadelphia, in the third, when the referee stopped the bout, claiming Cool was not trying.

Tiger Thomas, 169, Leiperville, Pa., technical knockout over George Keysock, 170, Frackville, Pa., in fifth round.

AMHERST CANCELS GAME WITH WESLEYAN TEAM

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The scheduled Wesleyan-Amherst football game here Saturday has been cancelled at the request of Amherst authorities because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis in Middletown, Herbert Connelly, alumni secretary of Wesleyan, said tonight.

Connelly said that the Amherst administration committee met today and decided to request cancellation of the first of the "little three" games.

Several deaths, including one student have resulted from an outbreak of infantile paralysis here. About ten persons are now under treatment in a Middletown hospital.

It is not known whether the cancelled game will be played later in the season. Wesleyan's schedule ends November 15, but the Connecticut Aggie contest, which also was called off because of the disease, will be played after that date.

Word that the game had been called off came as a surprise to Wesleyan students tonight. Preparations had been going forward for fraternity dances after the game.

The Wesleyan football team, which defeated Rochester Saturday, held practice today with the hope of winning over Amherst.

After the death of the Wesleyan student from infantile paralysis approximately 200 students left for their homes, but the majority returned to school last week end.

ZAZZARINO WINS FROM BATTALINO ON A FOUL

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Young Zazzarino of Jersey City won from Bat Battalino of Hartford, featherweight champion, on a foul in the third round of a ten-round non-title bout at the Oakland A. A. here tonight. Zazzarino, at 127 1-2 pounds, was a pound and a half over the class limit. Battalino weighed 126.

It was a fast and furious battle as far as it went, the champion held an edge in the first round but Zazzarino got going in the second and won it by a decisive margin.

They battled away on even terms in the third round until Battalino landed a low left took that disabled Zazzarino. Referee Danny Sullivan stepped in and awarded the fight to the Jersey City boy. The round lasted two minutes, 53 seconds.

A crowd of 7,000 saw the milling.

David Drage, 26, of Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. Elizabeth Converse, 33, of Chevy Chase, Md., were killed when their automobile left the road on a curve near Washington, and struck a tree.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Frank Frederickson, veteran center star, today was released unconditionally by the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Hockey league. The release brings to an end a three-year contract between Frederickson and the Pirates, of whom Frederickson was manager last year.

The Pirate franchise has been transferred to Philadelphia for the coming season. Frederickson was signed as player-manager in 1929.

Martin Beats Champney

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Oct. 20—(AP)—Frankie Martin, 129, of New York, and Pittsfield, won a 10 round decision from Billy Champney, 129, of North Adams, here tonight.

Foreman Kayoes Rose.

CONTACT CLUB HEARS TALK BY LOCAL BANK OFFICER

A talk on Insurance Trusts was given Monday noon at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Contact club by George R. Fellows, trust officer of the Thames Bank and Trust Co. The meeting, with the usual large attendance, was held at the Wauregan hotel. In his talk, Mr. Fellows said:

Insurance trusts are, broadly speaking, of two kinds, the funded trust and the unfunded trust. The funded trust is not so usual as the unfunded, and differs from the unfunded only in the fact that it is a combination of a living trust, with securities deposited with the trustee under such instructions as to investment and uses as the maker of the trust may stipulate, but with the main purpose that the income from such securities shall be used in payment of life insurance on the life of the maker, the proceeds of such insurance to be paid to the trustee on the death of the maker, and held in a trust fund under such instructions as may be contained in the trust agreement.

The unfunded trust does not ordinarily become operative until the death of the maker, at which time the proceeds of his life insurance are paid to the trustee to be held under the conditions of the trust agreement.

The outstanding advantage of an insurance trust, without regard to the purpose for which it may be intended, is this: A much larger estate may be created and safeguarded as to future uses than could be created by the setting aside of a like amount of money as that required for premium, under an ordinary saving plan. Of course, the fund may be enormous in comparison with the amount paid in if the maker is unfortunate enough to "shuffle off this mortal coil" at an early date, and in this case, it is plain that had not such a fund been provided, he would probably have had very little time to create any estate at all to care for his dependents. And again, premiums coming due at stated periods, are very much more likely to be paid than equal amounts are likely to be saved, even though intentions are good, without a definite obligation falling due. Of course, the thought crosses your mind that if you had in hand the sum total paid in premiums, you might make a big "killing" in the stock market, but this is a good time to take second thought on this idea and review the results of such killings, of which you perhaps, or at least many of your friends, were complaisantly thinking a little over a year ago. Contemplate the present fortunes of most of these financiers. Should death come at this time, what sort of estates would be left? If such funds had been used to create an insurance trust—what a different story!

This does not of course mean that all one's suplus should necessarily be used for insurance, as of course a savings program should be part of your plan, old age and other needs of the living must be cared for, and after absolutely essential insurance is arranged, the remaining surplus income should be judiciously divided to create a present estate and after death estate. But insurance can be used to create the present estate as well as the after death estate, as the various forms of maturing insurance may be arranged to terminate at such times during life as you may plan, and be received by the trustee to be used for whatever purpose you may wish—to be invested and the income used to pay premiums, or for such other purpose as may be desired.

There is a growing interest in insuarnce trusts for business purposes, especially in the case of a partnership o closely held corporation, where the death of one of the partners or large stockholders, would materially affect the business. A trust agreement may be formed to purchase from the estate of a deceased partner or stockholder (from the proceeds of insurance) his share in the business at an agreed price, thereby safeguarding his estate against a possible forced sale and assuring the remaining partners or stockholders of the possibility of obtaining the stock and also safeguarding them against the possibility of its being sold by the executor to an outside interest, which might not be desirable, or guarding against the deceased partner's family profiting from the efforts of remaining partners, without contributing to the operation of the company.

An insurance trust can, in fact, be planned to effect almost any desired result that money can obtain. Of course, the most usual purposes are such as assuring an income to one's dependents and safeguarding the principal against inexperienced handling and loss, and providing for the education of children.

It is also much used to protect one's estate, proceeds from insurance being left to a trust for the purpose of purchasing from the estate, securities which, owing to special conditions, it may not be desirable to sell to outsiders or in the open market, but which must be turned into money to pay taxes and furnish other necessary funds.

There might be cited endless special uses to which the insurance trust may be put, but these examples will give a general idea of the broad scope which may be covered.

At the conclusion of his talk, Mr. Fellows was given a rising vote of thanks. The business session was presided over by Ernest O. Rodier, president of the club. The speaker was introduced by John Fitzgerald, chairman of the program committee.

GENERAL WILLIAMS PLANNED SCHOOL FOR NO. STONINGTON

The article in Monday's Bulletin concerning the Wheeler school at North Stonington reminded H. F. Brown of Geer avenue, a former resident of North Stonington that General Williams, would have established a school in North Stonington had he not been disappointed in obtaining the piece of land upon which he had planned to build it.

General Williams had contracted for a certain plot of land in the village of North Stonington. Two of the old time residents of the village living next to the lot decided they didn't want a school so near their homes so they proceeded to purchase a half of the land which General Williams had sought. When General Williams found that part of the lot was sold he gave up the entire project and would not locate the school there. He wanted the entire lot which was approximately where the Wheeler school is now located.

Joe Cronin, young shortstop of the Washington Senators, has been selected by a committee of baseball writers as the most valuable player to his team during the last season.

PERMITS FOR TWO NEW DWELLINGS ARE GRANTED DURING THE PAST WEEK

Two new dwellings will be erected in the city within the next few weeks according to permits granted by Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft during the past week. There were five permits granted and besides the two for the new houses there were three for smaller work.

With the advent of cold weather local builders are rushing work to a stage where the freezing temperatures will not effect the work. According to reports builders have considerable work ahead but the majority being of the smaller job work and very little of the large contract work. During the year there has been only a few large contracts, the outstanding ones being the Norwich inn, the Norton Memorial gymnasium and the new county home, the latter contract going to a Providence building concern.

The work on the county home is progressing rapidly and the building will be complete within a few weeks. The work of grading about the buildings is now being done.

Contractor P. F. Sweeney has completed the brick building for Pappas Bros., at Montville, and the building is now occupied.

Other building operations have been brought well alone during the past week.

The following were the permits granted last week:

To Nicholas Kozak, to erect a frame garage at 103 Golden street. The garage will be 20x30 feet with cement foundation and frame superstructure. The exterior finish will be in composition shingles. The estimated cost is $500.

To Homer J. Monty, to erect a frame house on Asylum street. The house will be 23x26 feet and will contain five rooms and bath. The exterior finish will be in clapboards and shingles with composition shingles on the roof. The interior will have oak floor and hard pine trim while the walls will be in brown mortar with a hard finish. The estimated cost is $8,000.

To Homer J. Monty, contractor, to alter the present frame building at 128 West Main street, owned by William Burdett. The alterations will include a new plate glass front, the removal of several partitions and the rebuilding of the chimney. The estimated cost is $1500.

To Henry G. Montie, to erect a frame dwelling of six rooms and bath on Boswell avenue. The house will be 26x26 feet with cement foundation. The exterior will be finished in clapboards and shingles. The interior will be in hard-finish plaster, oak floors and hard pine trim. The estimated cost is $4500.

To Vito DeCeglie, to build an addition, 6x7 feet, to the brick garage at 242 Franklin street. The estimated cost is $40.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were five sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week, exactly the same number as during the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $35,391 and $41,662.

In New London during the past week there was only one sale of real estate as compared to seven sales for the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $7,750 and $187,589.

NEW LONDON

Work is fast nearing completion on the construction of the Zion Evangelical Lutheran church which is located at Cedar Grove avenue and Ledyard street. The interior of the edifice is now being finished and the church will soon be ready for occupancy.

The new building is an attractive structure one and one-half stories high of colonial design and frame construction with a front entrance in Cedar Grove avenue and a side entrance from Ledyard street. It is 39 by 79 feet in dimension.

Broad concrete steps lead to the beautiful colonial entrance. The sides have been finished with colonial clapboard and painted white. The roof has been shingled with wooden shingles. On top of the roof is located a lantern structure with copper sheathing in a sort of belfry effect. The foundation is of concrete construction up to the ground level and of brick construction above that to the first floor.

The basement contains a large Sunday school room in the center with a platform at one end and a smaller class room on one side. There also is a large kitchen in the basement which is being equipped with gas range, gas water heater, sink, etc.

The main floor has a main auditorium 48 by 21 feet in which 34 pews are to be located. At the entrance there is a large lobby and at the far end of the auditorium is a chancel with choir rooms on each side, a pulpit and an altar in the rear of the chancel.

A parsonage, built along side of the church in Cedar Grove avenue has been completed. It is of frame construction and colonial design and contains six rooms and bath.

Building Permits

Rich Frederick, concrete block garage, 21 Nameaug street, $550.

Timothy Connors, garage, 12 Lewis street, $225.

M. J. Sullivan, frame garage, 24 Alger place, $800.

C. W. Thompson, garage, Keeney lane, $300.

Number of permits for the week, 4; estimated cost of construction work, $1,875.

BUILT-IN TUBS

A wise philosopher once said, "The bath tub is the greatest single instrument for the promotion of civilization." The old style tub on legs was a dust-catcher, an object entirely unsightly, unbeautiful and unsanitary.

No one doing a thorough piece of renovation would select any other than the built-in tub made either for tile sides or with full apron to the floor. Its beautiful lines are not its only claims to favor for in installing it, waste and water pipes are concealed behind the walls, this being a great advance in cleanliness and sanitation.

PROPERTY INVENTORY AID TO HOME OWNER

In order to safeguard household property while the family is away or perhaps when another family has sublet your home or even when the owning family is at home, an inventory should be kept listing pieces of furniture, silver, china, linens and the hundred and one odds and ends which are about the house. In case of fire or burglary missing goods can easily be determined when a claim for instance is made. An inventory is useful, too, in establishing the family's financial rating for any banker or credit agency.

NOT TO START WORK ON NEW PUTNAM BUSINESS BLOCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 20—Indications at the present are that the winter season will not be a busy one for contractors and builders. The first touch of winter was received this week with Sunday's falling temperatures and cold snap and at that time no new building projects were ready for launching a check-up revealed. P. H. Meyers of Farrows street, stated Sunday that he has recalled plans for the erection of an office and warehouse building which he proposes to build on lower Main street on a lot adjoining the new Place Motor company building. Mr. Meyers said that he decided against the proposition at this time owing to the expected early arrival of cold weather and has now definitely decided to cancel his plans until spring.

This project, if started, would have been one of the major building jobs of the winter season inasmuch as the plans called for a modern brick and steel building, 42 feet by 40 feet in size and one and a half stories in height. In line and designs the structure would compare with the Place building, which is the most recent structural addition to that section of the city.

Last week builders resumed activities at the nurses home on Pomfret street. Considerable progress on the building was made the most important step being the beginning of work on the second story. The exterior lines already show traces of the beauty the building will present when completed. Limestone trimmings can be seen in the ground appointments which are now finished. Although much headway has been made to date, there still remains many days of work before the building will be inclosed sufficiently enough to warrant finishers starting work on the interior expenses.

During the past few days several small structures have been built in various parts of the city, the majority of buildings being garages and sheds of wood construction.

In Pomfret contractors are engaged in the remodeling of the summer home of L. L. Lorrillard, wealthy New York resident and owner of a beautiful estate. The work now in progress there is necessitating the services of a number of local tradesmen.

Charles A. Seder, owner of the Montgomery Ward block on Main street and the owner of the open lot adjoining the structure, does not plan the erection of another building block this year. His decision to change plans for the original Montgomery Ward building, making the structure considerably smaller, is responsible for the large unsightly gap existing on Main street, in the heart of the city. Although the Ward building is one of the biggest blocks in Putnam, it covers considerably less area than did the Central block, which was razed to make room for the present Ward building.

A survey of smaller building projects way at the present time the following progress was noted: At the Polish-American faternal building on Providence street, builders this week are engaged in applying finishing touches to rooms on the second story. Painters and decorators have started work and expect to have the home prepared for acceptance by the end of this week.

On Woodstock avenue the bungalow home being built for P. J. Ryan of Main street is well on the way to completion, carpenters having begun work on the interior this week.

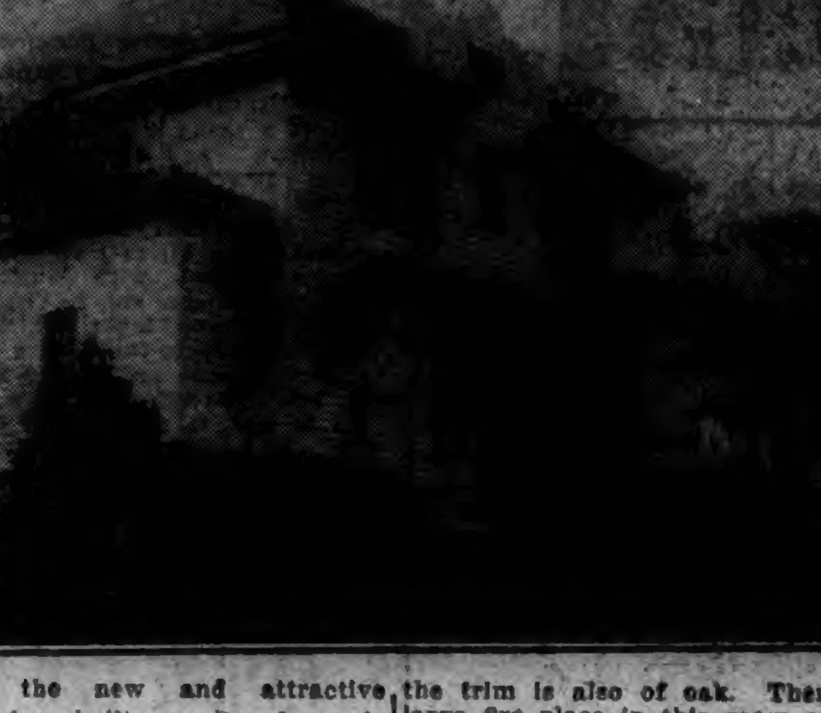
LINOLEUM RUGS PROVE BEST FOR MANY ROOMS

Style in rugs has become just as important as style in wearing apparel. For floors of kitchens, bathrooms, hallways and solarium, linoleum covering is suggested. Rugs of this material are available in many attractive designs and colorings and are especially desirable because of the ease with which they may be cleaned.

COLORED FLOORING

An oak floor adapts itself readily to the requirements of modern interior decoration and many home builders have their oak floors finished to harmonize with the color scheme adopted. Forest green, for instance, is sometimes used for parlors, or gray, perhaps, in the dining room to harmonize with a certain decorative scheme.

NEW HOUSE ERECTED ON BROADWAY



One of the new and attractive homes being built on Broadway is the one pictured above that is being erected for Harry Diachyshyn by Contractor Patrick F. Sweeney. The house is a two-story frame structure with seven rooms, bath and sunparlor. The exterior finish is in white clapboards with green asphalt shingles on the roof. The porch is done in buff wire-cut bricks as is the underpinning. One of the unique features of the house is that the brick underpinning extends about 18 inches above the level of the first floor.

The interior is exceptionally beautiful the rooms on the first floor being done entirely in oak. The living room has a quarter oak floor and the trim is also of oak. There is a large fire place in this room of brick with oak mantel. There is also an oak colonade with bookcase between. The bay window is paneled in oak and the window seat is also of oak. The dining room is very pretty with its oak cornice and plate rail and the floors have a black walnut inlay. The kitchen has a four-foot tile wainscoting. There are numerous built-in cabinets and closets in the kitchen.

The bedrooms are finished in fir and North Carolina pine while the bath room is all done in tile and has built-in tub and shower bath.

In the basement is the laundry and cold cellar. The heating is by steam and the plumbing is in brass.

PANELED INTERIORS REPRODUCE PERIODS

The popularity of paneled walls is strongly founded upon their association with home interiors of period styles now popular. Colonial, English and Norman prototypes of the houses which are springing up on every side in American suburbs usually had their main rooms finished in paneling of some type, for in many cases the old builders did not understand the art of plastering, and frequently there was no suitable material available.

Modern craftsmen have not alone reproduced the best of the elaborate hand carvings of old times but have originated new modernistic forms which accord well with the present-day interiors of pyramid, geometric effects and plane surfaces.

Elaborate applied forms as decorative centers for paneling are now made in synthetic materials, hydraulically pressed, and, because of their quantity manufacture, low in price. These materials reproduce even the defects which were the marks of authenticity on the old panelings, and are fireproof and imperishable.

MIXED STUCCO USED FOR INTERIORS

A prepared stucco, already mixed by the time it reaches the job with the exception of adding water is being used as interior wall finish. This material is a scientifically blended Portland cement product of the desired basic mineral colors — waterproofed and easily applied. It is guaranteed not to effloresce into white streaks or blotch.

Hydrated lime, imported, washed and dried silica sands and other ingredients are blended with mixed Portland cement to make a plastic and durable base coat. The finish coat is of cement mixed with mineral colors and other ingredients, making it rich in color and non-fadable in either sun or rain. This stucco is available in white and twelve standard colors.

COLORED FIXTURES

A primary change in the bathroom from the old to the new is in line of color. Color plays an important part as the initial urge in renovating the old bathroom. Bathrooms need not now be merely sanitary and austere. Beauty may now be combined with utility. It is nine chances to five that selections of the fixtures for the new bathroom will be made in color or with small accessories in color to harmonize with the larger fixtures.

INTERIOR WALLS ATTAIN BEAUTY

The day is passing when home owners feel that the only possible finish for interior walls is a smoothly finished plaster surface, either tinted or covered with wall paper. It is realized that character and interest in wall surfaces adds immeasurably to the appearance of the interior. With increased appreciation of the beauties of old furniture, and decorations carrying the flavor of olden times, has come the need for a wall surface more rugged, unsteadied and so in better keeping with the character of furnishings and architectural treatment.

Portland cement finishes for interior wall surfaces, therefore, have seen increased popularity in the last few years and in house after house we note a judicious combination of beamed and paneled walls, finished with Portland cement. No effort is made to secure a smooth trowel finish. In fact, this is studiously avoided. Rough sand-floated surfaces are usually chosen and for very rugged treatments even a modified textural treatment similar to that employed for outside stucco.

The most popular treatment of interior wall surfaces is the use of Portland cement and yellow sand. This combination gives a cream or buff tone and is rough coated, using only a wooden float so as to give a moderately rough surface. If the yellow shade contributed by the sand is not sufficiently marked a small proportion of ochre is added to deepen the tone. Of course, color is not confined to creams or buffs alone because practically any shade may be secured. Naturally, it is best to choose only the lighter and more delicate shades.

It must not be thought that Portland cement surfaces for interior walls are desirable only from the standpoint of appearance. There are a number of utilitarian advantages which appeal to the careful householders.

WHITE PINE FOR INTERIOR FINISH

Someone has given white pine the title of "the perfect wood for perfect woodwork." That seems to be quite a broad statement, for it is by no means the only wood suitable for interior trim. Several types of wood may be used to advantage as interior trim and serve every purpose quite faithfully. There is no denying the fact, however, that white pine is about as adaptable as any of them. It is easily handled, wears well and, when painted in one of numerous colors, takes a surface which is hard to equal for smoothness and beauty. One might say that when paint is to be used white pine is the equal if not the superior of any other type of wood trim. That applies to the best grade of white pine, of course; inferior grades have no place in good building, even though some builders would have you believe that it makes little or no difference.

WEATHER STRIPPING AS A COAL SAVER

Blustery winter breezes will soon be finding their way into those homes which are not protected against such expensive intrusion. Not only is comfort a factor but it is estimated by engineers that in zero weather and with a wind velocity of 15 miles an hour weather-stripping saves the home owner approximately six pounds of coal and a relative amount of fuel oil or gas each day.

Bronze weatherstrips are said to be the most effective. They are scientifically designed to be premanently installed, for they keep out cold drafts in the winter and provide a dust-proof contact all the year 'round. Their construction varies to meet every need—for sliding windows, casement windows and doors.

To complete the weather-proofing of a home, cracks in the plaster around exterior doors can be filled in by a specially prepared plaster substance which will not crumble nor wear away.

COLONIAL DESIGNS AKIN TO GEORGIAN

All Colonial houses follow more or less closely the Georgian both in elevation and plan. They call for a central hall with living room on one side and dining room on the other. The Colonial is generally of clapboard construction painted white, ivory or cream with green shutters and green shingle roof. It is what might be called classical in line. Quite often the individualising feature is a finely designed entrance motif with pedimented hood. The double-hung or sash window is also a Georgian and Colonial feature.

Just as the exterior Colonial is more classical and less picturesque than the Dutch Colonial so the furnishings are a little more classical, and less picturesque. Sheraton and Duncan Phyfe modes of furniture are more akin to the Colonial than to the Dutch Colonial which harmonise with the Queen Anne.

NEWEST KITCHEN PAPER ORIGINAL

If there was ever a happy thought among decorators it was in making the kitchen a colorful room. It was grandmother's idea in the first place. Her pans shone and her fire was bright. There were flowers in the window and, of course, a black cat on a yellow floor. She papered the walls herself almost as easily as she churned a tub of butter. She hadn't as many wonderful papers to choose from, though, as we have now. The latest kitchen papers are marvels of originality and bright hues. If your kitchen is only two by four don't miss the experience of using one of these striking and artistic new papers. A model kitchen with yellow and orange morning glories on the wall, a black linoleum, yellow organdy curtains, and yellow pans would intrigue even a cook of the modern canopening variety.

WINTER WORK ON HOME INTERIORS

During the winter months home owners can begin or carry on their modernising operations by bringing the interiors of their homes up-to-date. An organized program to attain this goal might well be started by scheduling the work with due regard for the household budget and the amount of time afforded to it.

If each home owning family could arrange to advance one step toward the perfection of their home each month definite progress would be seen at the end of the winter when exterior improvements could be started.

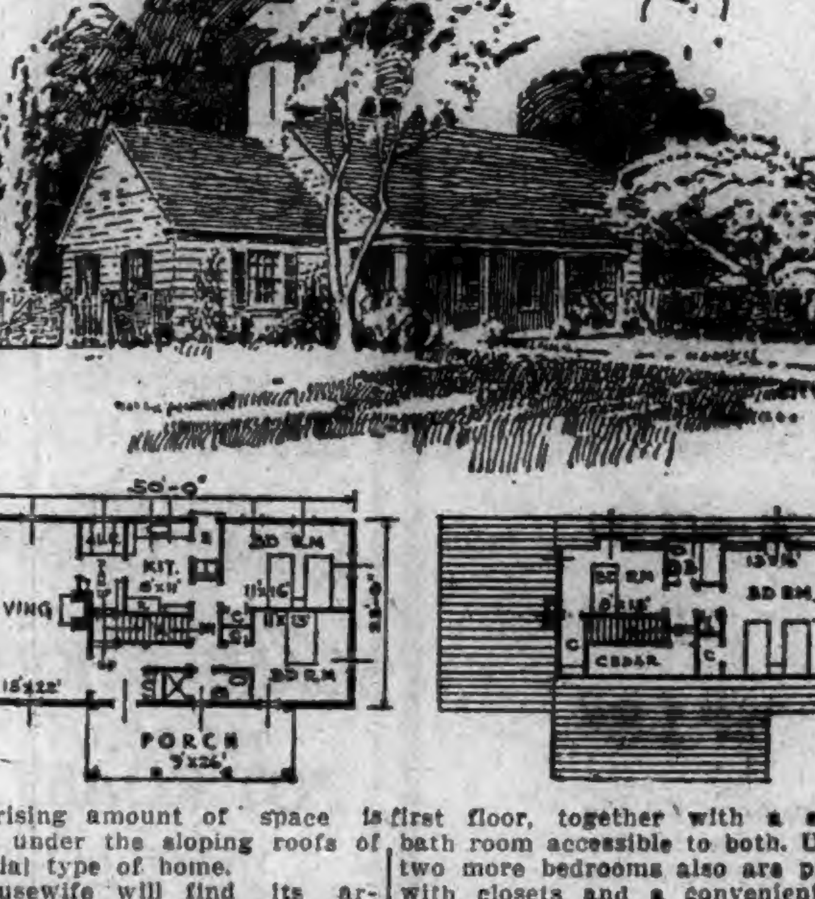
There are numerous small items within the home which can be replaced or remodelled to add an air of newness and beauty. Among these are window shades—necessary and so noticeable to the stranger entering the dwelling. Washable shades in various colors and designs are now being widely used in homes. These are particularly attractive in bedroom, bath, kitchen and nursery.

PROPERTY INVENTORY AID TO OWNER

In order to safeguard household property while the family is away or perhaps when another family has sublet your home or even when the owning family is at home, an inventory should be kept listing pieces of furniture silver, china, linens and the hundred and one odds and ends which are about the house. In case of fire or burglary missing goods can easily be determined when a claim for insurance is made. An inventory is useful, too, in establishing the family's financial rating for any banker or credit agency.

Such a list should be kept up-to-date all the time, gifts and new purchases being recorded and discarded property crossed off.

Colonial Charm and Convenience Both Found Here



A surprising amount of space is concealed under the sloping roofs of this colonial type of home.

The housewife will find its arrangement most convenient, for front door, living room and both downstairs bedrooms are closely connected with the kitchen.

The ample porch is an especially desirable summer feature, but is so placed that it does not darken the commodious living room, which has light on three sides and views of the front lawn and rear garden. The traditional fireplace, of course, completes its charm.

The dining alcove and pantry combination serve in place of a formal dining room, and the alcove is convenient to both the kitchen and bedrooms, a feature especially desirable at breakfast time.

Two ample bedrooms, both with closets, occupy the other wing of the first floor, together with a shower bath room accessible to both. Upstairs two more bedrooms also are provided with closets and a convenient lavatory.

Foundation material for this home should be of local stone, to carry out the colonial scheme. The exterior is finished in clapboards painted white, with dark green shutters. The roof has weathered dark shingles, either green or brown, though brown is preferable. Wither wood or flagstone are the most desirable materials for the porch floor.

A well-proportioned lot for this story-and-a-half house would be one measuring 75 by 100 feet. It should be properly landscaped to provide the most desirable setting for the building.

Construction costs for this home are estimated at from $8,000 to $10,000 in most communities.

ELECTRICAL AIDS IN KITCHEN WORK

Tests conducted at random among ordinarily skillful housekeepers disclosed that one dozen table napkins were ironed by an electric iron in three-fourths the time it took to iron them with an iron heated on a range; that from six to eight pounds dry weight of clothes may be washed in an electric machine in 8 to 15 minutes, while 40 minutes and extreme physical effort were required to wash by hand eight pounds of clothes of like kind and soiled to the same degree; that the actual washing and rinsing of table dishes from a dinner for five persons took seven minutes. The same number of dishes by hand took 22 minutes. When both table and kitchen dishes were put through the machine, there was a saving of 22 minutes in time over the hand method.

REP. CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR EXPERIENCED IN MANY LINES

(By Theodore Bodenwein)

The republican candidate for governor, Ernest E. Rogers of New London, is a many sided man. Even his neighbors and acquaintances for years scarcely realize how packed full of experience has been his active life. Busy always, giving full consideration to all matters entrusted to him, engrossed with business cares of many kinds, yet he had time to take on many tasks which he felt were his duty to fulfill as a citizen.

He was born and raised in a country town, Waterford, and as a farmer's son he had to perform all the chores that fell to the lot of a country boy in his day, even to starting out with the milk wagon to New London at 4 o'clock in the morning and delivering that fluid, drawn with a dipper from a big can, on a long route, while the residents he served were still in slumber. Later moving to New London he applied himself with diligence to his studies and emerged from high school with distinguished honors. In seeking an outlet for his business ambitions he selected the biggest industry in his city, the Brainerd & Armstrong Co., silk manufacturers. Here he remained 20 years, becoming its executive clerk, a responsible post, which called for high ability and business acumen. Yet he made time for other things.

He joined the national guard and soon won promotion. He applied himself seriously to military work and retired with the rank of captain of coast artillery. For him to do anything was to do it well. He mastered the technique of the soldier and learned how to handle men and executive military movements. Few Connecticut governors have been able to review state troops mounted. Governor Rogers will find no such difficulty.

When a new volunteer fire company was formed in his neighborhood years ago he was elected its first foreman. The volunteers knew he would be able to qualify. The annals of the New London fire department give record of no better officer.

He later became interested in the New London County Historical society. He was asked to be its president. He saw it needed a permanent home of its own. The society had no money, but when an opportunity presented itself to acquire the historic Shaw mansion, where Washington once slept over night and his room is still preserved intact, he started out to secure the sum needed, which included its purchase price of $33,000 as well as some needs for repairs. It looked visionary, but to everyone's surprise he did it, and the historical society not only acquired a fine home but also a sustaining endowment fund secured through his efforts, which now amounts to about $35,000.

He became a member of the Fort Griswold tract commission, and had a hand in developing old Fort Griswoul as a memorial of the battle of Groton Heights and the burning of New London during the revolutionary fight for freedom by the traitor, Benedict Arnold and finally securing its cession by the federal government to the state.

ERNEST E. ROGERS

He filled many positions of trust and responsibility in his home town. He was president of the New London chamber of commerce and while in that position became a member of the state chamber. He was elected one of its vice presidents and later its president. Upon entering that office he found it burdened with a heavy indebtedness and uncertain financial income. Here he showed his special aptitude for administration and financial management. He planned a budget system, eliminated unnecessary expenses, and increased the receipts by enrolling more members, so that before he left the office the chamber was not only free from debt but firmly established upon a sound, going basis. To the business men of this state, members of the state chamber of commerce, many of whom are among his best friends, his administration of the organization was regarded as an outstanding achievement.

When the Atlantic deeper waterways convention was held in New London in 1913, the local chamber of commerce planned to handle it. Numerous committees were appointed, but on account of a sudden death in his family the chairman of the executive committee, who was to take the management of the big affair in his hands, was unable to serve. There was little time left to carry out arrangements and the directors were in a quandary how to secure some capable person to take up the gigantic task at such a late hour and on such short notice. Someone suggested Ernest Rogers. It was an inspiration. But would he serve? He was a busy man; the job would take much time and hard work. The delegation went to his office and the undertaking was explained. He had been selected as the one man, he was told, who it was felt could successfully carry out the plans—would he accept? Mr. Rogers didn't hesitate. He replied that he wasn't seeking such a job, but if his fellow citizens felt that his services were needed in a dire emergency, he would not disappoint them, but do his best to carry forward the interrupted plans. Under his direction everything went off like clockwork, civic bodies, military and naval divisions, visiting statesmen, including President Taft, all had places provided for them, and the large convention at the Griswold and the vast multitude attracted to the spot by the event, were handled safely, expeditiously and ceremoniously, through the direction of Chairman Rogers, who had a firm grasp of all requirements of the occasion.

A strong personality such as his, could not long remain unnoticed. The republicans sent him as an alderman to the New London city council in 1905. Ten years later in 1915 he was elected mayor for a three year term. He was New London's war mayor. His familiarity with military affairs again came in handy. He was at the forefront in all local efforts of the national government during the war. He gave over much space in the city hall for use of war activities. Here enlistments for army and navy were made. Whenever a batch of recruits left the city for training camp, Mayor Rogers was at the railroad station, sometimes the only civic official, to give each man a hearty handshake and a fervid wish of Godspeed. Early and late he could be found at his desk ready for any call of state or country.

Lieutenant Governor Rogers all his life has had an extraordinary capacity for hard work. He had the faculty of laying out his time during each 24 hours, so that every branch of his duty had a given time for its performance. Each activity moved along on schedule. He planned a system of devoting a certain portion of his long working time at each task and consistently maintained the system. He disposed of one activity after another and generally managed to carry them all through [illegible]. Possessed of robust health, regular habits and even disposition he was able to readily dispatch an enormous amount of business day after day, which would have brought to mental and physical ruin a less virile man. This unusual faculty he still possesses in full degree. As an example of his capacity for public service, a glance only is needed at his record of visits and speeches made all over the state as representative of the state government during his term as lieutenant governor.

Springing from good old colonial stock, it is but natural he became a member of the Connecticut Sons of the American Revolution. Activity in this historic and patriotic organization was dear to his heart. After serving in various minor capacities he was, two years ago, chosen president general of the national body and in his official capacity visited nearly every state in the union, carrying good will and enthusiasm to local chapters everywhere.

After being with the Brainerd & Armstrong Co. 20 years, and seeing no further advancement he decided to strike out for himself and embarked in the grain and feed business. He bought out an old concern, but didn't cling to its ancient traditions. He was not content to do a small business. He built up its trade and started half a dozen branches in nearby places. At an opportune time he sold out his greatly enlarged business to good advantage. He was now free to give time to his slumbering political aspirations. Retiring from business with a modest competency he proposed, as he expressed it to his friends, to "devote the remainder of his days to public service."

It was not long before opportunity knocked at his door. The republicans wanted a candidate for the legislature. They picked on Mr. Rogers. He was nominated and elected. His talents were recognized and he was put on important committees. At the next election he was nominated for the state senate from the 18th district and also elected. His experience in the state senate was valuable and gave him a wide acquaintance throughout the state. In the next state campaign there was an opportunity to get on the state ticket as nominee for treasurer. Mr. Rogers with the aid of his influential friends secured the nomination and became a state official. As treasurer he succeeded the late G. Harold Gilpatric who had mismanaged state funds and tried to commit suicide. The treasurer's office was naturally somewhat disorganized. The new treasurer soon brought order out of chaos. He had every security inventoried and every account verified, then he installed a system of his own so that the work of the treasurer's office ran smoothly and accurately.

His good work as treasurer made him a conspicuous figure in republican circles. There was talk of running him for governor at the end of his second term, but he preferred to accept second place on the state ticket and as lieutenant governor he has served with distinction the past two years. Probably no one today in Connecticut, and this can be said without invidious comparison, in view of his wide experience in state affairs, and in the conduct of state business, is so well qualified for the position of governor as Lieutenant Governor Rogers. He has profited by his long experience while performing his duties in so many official capacities. He knows the state's finances; he has learned the needs of its institutions; he is familiar with the business demands of the commonwealth. Not one in his many

MID-AFTERNOON FATIGUE CAN BE READILY OVERCOME

One Can Be Quickly Refreshed By Eating Something Sweet

Eating between meals is often prescribed by doctors, especially for those working at high speed in offices and stores.

Appropriate food for such "snacks" is easy to get anywhere. The popular candy bar and the little packets of sweet cookies are outstanding examples of what is offered. Then there are the soda fountains where milk drinks and carbonated beverages can be enjoyed.

Doctors and food scientists who have given candy or sweet flavored drinks to workers have discovered that these foods restore energy quickly. Even a glass of water sweetened with sugar has proved to be invigorating. The fact that the tests have been made in the late afternoon, when vitality is low, makes the results more significant.

Refined sugar, in addition to overcoming fatigue, can help in promoting a more satisfying diet. Those foods rich in vitamins, roughage and minerals can be much improved in flavor by adding a dash of refined sugar in cooking or when serving them. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

STOCK MARKET OPENED STRONG AND PRICES FINISHED NEAR HIGH LEVELS

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(AP)—The invalid stock market today confounded the prophets by casting off its crutches and hopping 3 to 11 points higher.

Wheat, corn and cotton likewise made encouraging gestures of strength, foreign exchanges soared and high grade bonds firmed, so that it was a day of progress in the financial sick-room.

Wall street went to work this morning in a rather gloomy frame of mind. The heavy selling on Saturday seemed to foreshadow further liquidation today, so that the strong opening of the market was a surprise. Prices held to the advance throughout the session, meeting a little realizing near the close, but finishing near the high levels. Trading was quiet, as on the rallies early last week. Sales totaled 2,139,220 shares.

Numerous reasons for the upturn were advanced, among them the better outlook in Germany resulting from the Bruening government's success and the certainty of the $125,000,000 credit, the wide steps being taken in this country to combat unemployment and the fact that the best domestic stocks were offering better yields than bonds. In addition, and perhaps of more direct bearing, was the market's own technical position, which, after last week's heavy losses, invited a rally.

The improvement in points was the largest since October 1 and was most impressive in the seasoned stocks where investment buying might be expected.

American Can, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, National Biscuit, American Telephone, General Electric and Allied Chemical offered strong leadership and were supported by the entire industrial, motion picture and amusement groups. Rails also moved up sharply.

The absence of pressure was a distinct relief to observers who have been anxiously watching for signs that liquidation was drying up. Bear operators, discouraged by the strength of the initial transactions, failed to press their cause and aided the advance by covering, although in few instances was there any resemblance of a squeeze.

Volatile shares rallied sharply; Allied Chemical's net gain was 11 1-4, International Business Machines rose 10 3-4 and Laclede Gas, an inactive, shot up 25 points on a single transaction. A generous list of favorites improved 5 and 6, including American Can, Westinghouse, Union Pacific, Eastman Kodak, Byers, Foster Wheeler and American Tobacco "B". U. S. Steel touched 149 3-4, closing at 149 1-4, up 3 7-8 net. General Electric, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, North American, American Water Works, Radio, Radio-Keith-Orpheum, Gillette, DuPont and National Biscuit gained 2 to 3. Atchison showed outstanding strength with a 7 point advance.

The rally in wheat averaged nearly a cent and a half, reflecting a smaller visible supply and cold weather in Canada. Corn's gains ranged from 1½ to 2 1-8 while cotton finished 7 to 14 points higher.

European exchanges were strong in sympathy with the mark, which responded to the brighter situation in the Reich by railing nearly 5 points. The Spanish peseta, which is being supported by the government, rose more than one-third of a cent.

One hundred eight boxes of apples were taken from one tree in Graton, Cal., this year.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(AP)—The bond market charted a ragged course today in which the rally in stocks and news from foreign countries attracted a moderate amount of buying. Some of the second and third grade rails moved to lower levels and industrial continued their downward trend.

At the start the bond market displayed the same characteristics of recent sessions price movement being quiet and irregular. While the volume of business fell off sharply from recent sessions, highest grade issues were under accumulation in the afternoon coincident with the vigorous upturn in equity shares.

Special news was believed responsible for the bullish trend of Brazilian and German bonds. They registered gains of from 1 to 3 points, in active trading, bond circles heard that revolutionary forces in Brazil had announced that investors' interests in Brazilian bonds would be protected by them if they gained control of the government. Buying of German issues was inspired in part by the victory of the Bruening government in the reichstag Saturday, when the international credit bill was passed. German International 5½s, rallied a point, while German Central Agricultural bank bonds were up 2 and 3.

The reactionary trend of bonds in recent sessions which some persons in financial circles find inexplicable in view of the easy monetary conditions was responsible for the city of New York deciding today to sell only $50,000,000 four per cent bonds tomorrow instead of $75,000,000 as originally contemplated. The feeling was that in view of present conditions in the bond market, a better price could be obtained from bidders if the size of the offering was reduced.

While various opinions have been expressed as to the reasons for the setback suffered by the bond market, the consensus appeared to be that the revival of a strong investment interest in fixed income securities was contingent to a great degree upon the stock market showing a definite upturn. So far as the money market is concerned the opinion is expressed in financial circles that there will be no permanent firming of rates until after the first of the year, at the earliest.

The improvement in high grade rails and other domestic issues accumulated by large investors, was the best in many sessions although gains generally were confined to less than a point. Atchison general 4s advanced 1 point to lead the advance of prime bonds. Such bonds as Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s, Chicago and Northwestern general 5s, International Great Northern adjustment 6s and Reading 4s reacted sharply. Utilities were irregularly higher. New York and Richmond Gas 6s reached a new 1930 high at 106½.

Stock privilege issues made an irregular recovery in sympathy with shares. Warner Brothers 6s rebounded 3½, but General Theaters 6s, worked ½ lower and Allegheny 5s set a new low for the year.

U. S. Governments were fairly steady and dullness ruled all but Liberty 4th 4¼s. They sold within a small fraction of the year's peak price.

Offering will be made shortly of a $9,000,000 15 year 5½ per cent bond issue by the Ottawa Valley Power company, it was learned today.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(AP)—Prices worked steadily higher in today's curb market, although the advance lacked the vigor of that recorded on the big board. Net advances of 1 to 3 points were numerous. The turnover was moderate, sales aggregating 615,800 shares.

The limited advance in this market suggested heavy short covering on the big board, for the short interest on the curb is mostly limited to a few actively traded issues. Electric Bond and Share, a favorite of curb bears, however, rose 3 points in heavy trading.

Utilities generally displayed group strength. American Gas, Electric Power and Light warrants, Brazilian Traction, United Light A, and Hydro Electric Securities gained 2 to 3 points, while Middle West Utilities and American Super Power gained a point. Niagara Hudson, however, closed off 1-8, and the American Cities issues eased.

Oils in the main were firm. Cities Service rose more than a point in active trading, although the shares of Indian Territory, a subsidiary, eased. Most of the Standard shares gained a little, although Standard of Ohio, lost 2 points, presumably in response to gasoline price cutting at Cleveland. Houston and Cosden each gained a point. In the natural gas group, United Gas was active and firm, while Missouri Kansas Pipe Line sagged a little.

Industrials were generally higher, in light trading. Atlas Plywood surged up about nearly six points. Deere gained 3 and Dow Chemical nearly 2. Ford, Ltd., General Aviation and Technicolor rose about a point. A few shares in which the market is thin again dropped to new lows. Fanny Farmer tumbled 4 points to a new minimum at 10.

In the investment company issues, United Founders was bid up more than a point in active trading. Goldman Sachs mounted nearly as much. The selected industries preferred issues rose 2 to 3 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 20—(AP)—Notable fresh upturns in grain values today went hand in hand with a substantial decrease of the United States wheat visible supply total. Predictions of another cold wave in Canada, together with reports that a third of the crops in Alberta and Saskatchewan, two of the biggest wheat producing provinces in Canada, remained unthreshed, served also to strengthen the wheat market here. Moreover, some buying of grain was ascribed to encouragement over upturns in quotations of securities.

Wheat prices in Chicago closed firm, 1¼ 3-4c a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1 3-8a2 1-8c advanced, oats 3-8a5-8c up, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 17c.

Despite lower quotations on hogs, provisions rose briskly when cereals made gains.

DROVE PAST TROLLEY WHEN PASSENGERS ALIGHTING

Elmer Miller, of Jewett City, was arrested by Officer Howard Lamphere Friday evening on a charge of reckless driving when Miller passed another car that was stopped on the Uncasville four corners while the 5:15 p. m. trolley was discharging passengers, barely missing one of the passengers who was crossing the highway. When the officer blew his whistle Miller kept on going, which resulted in the officer chasing him and catching him about a mile further on. Miller was tried before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church today and paid a fine of $25 and costs.

POLICE SEARCH FOR OTHER MOTIVE THAN ROBBERY IN BURDICK MURDER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 20.—The scene of investigation for the murder of former Rhode Island Senator Charles Burdick at his Shumunkanug Hill farm last Friday afternoon in Charlestown, R. I., shifted on Monday from Westerly to the vicinity of his late home. Early in the morning Sheriff Frederick T. Mitchell visited the Charlestown farm for the purpose of questioning members of the Burdick family and household. Later, Sergt. Ernest F. Stenhouse of the Hope Valley barracks of the state police, and state police troopers also visited the Charlestown farm and questioned Mrs. Burdick, her daughter, Miss Eybel Burdick, teacher at the Shumunkanug school, and son-in-law, Charles Plympton, residing a half mile from the Burdick farm.

Altogether, six suspects have been examined and questioned as to their movements at the time of the fatal shooting, somewhere between 4 and 6 p. m. It has been learned from Mr. Plympton that he last saw Mr. Burdick alive chopping wood in his woods about 1 p. m., Friday. The wife and daughter left a note stating that they had gone to Westerly to do some shopping and so did not see Mr. Burdick that afternoon. It was their practice when leaving home to have the front door of the house securely fastened, but on the night of the murder Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon reports that the front door of the house was unlocked. At the first of the police investigation, robbery was thought to have been the only motive, but as the various bits of evidence touching on the slaying unfolded in the crime which has become more baffling to the police authorities, some other motive than robbery alone has been sought by the investigators. From the shirt of the intruder two buttons were torn in the struggle with Mr. Burdick, which began in the farmhouse kitchen with fatal termination on the porch, and they were picked up near the body by the searchers for clews. Five shots have been accounted for but the sixth has as yet to be located and also the nature and whereabouts of the firearm with which the shooting was done. The sale of cartridges in neighborhood stores has also been carefully gone over and the bullets found have been sent to the Massachusetts firearms expert, Capt. Charles A. VanAmburgh. The bullets were of .38 calibre and the police desire is to have them connected with any firearm which may be found. In this connection, a careful search has been made of the surrounding woods where the gun may have been thrown and even the water in the farm well may be pumped out to ascertain if a revolver may have been thrown into it.

One of Mr. Burdick's neighbors on Monday remarked of two conversations had with the slain man the past week, when Mr. Burdick twice spoke of trouble had with one of his woodchoppers. This man was said by the late senator to have on a number of occasions received two weeks' pay in advance and then to have disappeared for a month. On the last occasion he told his neighbor that he had told the woodchopper that he should work out his two weeks before he paid him again and the man became enraged. Later a dog of Mr. Burdick's was shot and when a helper on a neighboring farm had suggested to Mr. Burdick that this man may have known something about the shooting, Mr. Burdick took the matter up with him. This resulted in the woodchopper's going to the farm helper and demanding why he had suggested that he shot the dog, and added "if I had shot the dog I would have killed it and the dog would have been unable to return to the Burdick farm, where over 20 pieces of shot were found in its hide."

It is expected that other persons may be brought in and questioned relative to the shooting, but police authorities refuse to reveal their identity. Although Mr. Burdick was known to have a strong box in a Westerly bank, his will was found in his desk at his home, and on Monday it was expected that it would be opened and read in the presence of administrators. No reward has yet been offered for the murderer.

CONTRACT FOR POLICE STATION IMPROVEMENTS LET

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 20.—On Monday, Sheriff Frederick T. Mitchell, custodian of the state house end of the Westerly town hall building, announced that the contract had been let for the improvements on the Union street entrance to the Westerly police station, for many months held in abeyance. Contract for the changes has been awarded to A. M. Gencarelli & Co., and the price, it is stated, is less than $1,000. The plans and specifications and several bids on the work were taken by Mr. Campbell before Frederick S. Peck, finance commissioner of the state, Friday, and he approved and ordered the sheriff to have the work done.

No land has been bought from the fire district and as a result there is only 15 feet of land which belongs to the state which may be used. The new entrance to the fire station will be a walk which is on the level with the lawn and is on the south boundary of the property next to the fire district property. This walk will run in an easterly direction. There will then be four steps at the turn toward the door. At the door there will be three other steps and the walk between the two steps will be level. This will do away with all the trouble resulting from the slanting walks which made the place dangerous and slippery in the winter time.

On either side of the walk further from the door to the steps there will be a stone-faced wall and walls will be constructed around the present windows into the police station so plenty of light and air will be there.

The lawns will all be regraded and seeded and brought down to the same level as the fire district lawn. In making excavations it was found that the foundation of the court house between the Episcopal church line and the entrance to the police station was of broken stone similar to that above the ground. Only one small spot here will have to have another stone set in so as to have the rough edges uniform. The walk between the steps will not be more than four feet deep below the surface of the lawn. No new stone will be required, as the material on the ground will be used.

Westerly lodge, No. 678, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of Westerly, will hold its annual banquet on Thursday evening at the Elm Tree Inn, at which time a full course Webber duck dinner will be served.

There will be a speaking program and entertainment following the banquet and it is expected that a large number will be present. The committee in charge of arrangements is composed of Richard J. Butler, Frederic Lamb, Frank LaPere, Dr. Harold F. Doyle and Thomas Fontana.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"Old English," starring George Arliss in Warner Brothers Vitaphone version of the famous John Galsworthy play of the same name, is to be the next attraction at Warner's Broadway opening there tomorrow.

This is the screen version of the greatest Arliss stage success, in which he starred for three years in New York and on the road.

A special cast, many of them members of the original stage company give Mr. Arliss the most expert support he has ever enjoyed in a picture and Alfred E. Green, who directed "Disraeli" and "The Green Goddess," also directs "Old English."

Dialogue for the screen version of the famous play was written by Galsworthy himself for this production and the picture carries his enthusiastic endorsement.

Everett Marshall and Bebe Daniels in Dixiana at Palace Thursday and Friday.

RALPH A. DIMOCK, OF ANDOVER, SENT FROM NEW LONDON TO STATE HOSP.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 20.—Ralph A. Dimock, brother of a former judge of the Waterford court, and a former public service operator, now the operator of a large farm in Andover, Conn., was taken into custody for his own welfare tonight. After being held a prisoner at police headquarters four hours, he was committed to Norwich state hospital for observation. Dimock was examined by Drs. George P. Cheney and Charles Kaufman and later when the statements were obtained of the family physician, the examiners decided that Dimock should be placed under restraint.

Dimock, besides operating the farm, maintains a small apartment at 204 Connecticut avenue and there his wife was this afternoon when Dimock appeared at the house and by his conduct frightened the woman to such an extent that relatives of the farmer sought the aid of the police. Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolman Dennis Murphy arrested Dimock.

Dimock declares that he is mentally normal and that it is the conduct of his wife and the acts of his brother that resulted in his incarceration.

Max Regovin was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Joseph Sullivan, charged with driving without a license and was ordered to appear in police court tomorrow.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the return of the driver's license of John Montrello, 57 Warren street.

RESIDENCE OF DR. SATTI DAMAGED $1,200 BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 20.—The residence of Dr. C. John Satti, 26 Huntington street, was damaged to the estimated amount of $1200 today by fire. The flames had gained such headway before discovered that the department was given an hour's hard work in subduing them. The fire originated in the cellar, from a quantity of wood being placed too close to a furnace. The wood was ignited and made such a hot fire that the interior of the cellar caught fire and the flames spread to the upper story. The fire was discovered about 10:30 o'clock by members of the household. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters, but a pedestrian, seeing the smoke pouring from the house, ran to the corner of Huntington and Federal streets and pulled Box 21, causing Chief Thomas Shipman and four pieces of apparatus to respond. By the time that the firemen arrived at the house the flames had made their way to the spaces between the floor and the partitions so that the fire gave the department much trouble to conquer it. This house was the former residence of the late Dr. Carlisle S. Ferrin.

COUNCILOR MINER WARNS MEMBERS TO ECONOMIZE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 20—The city council held a meeting of two hours' duration tonight, Councilors Scott and Fox being absent. Councilor Miner dwelt upon the policy of retrenchment to which the council was committed.

A bill of $2,041.83 of the Merritt-Chapman and Scott Co., for repairs of a parkway outfall sewer was ordered paid.

A bond for $5,000 for the faithful performance of the duty of the city manager was approved. Councilor Minor objected to the issuance of the bond, saying it was not necessary, but the charter makes it mandatory so it was approved.

Assessor F. C. Burrows petitioned to go on the retirement list as a city official. The city manager approved the request and he was retired at a salary of $1,500. He has been in the service of the city for about 25 years.

Hibberd Alexander, formerly associated with William Z. White and at one time tax collector of the city, was given the contract to audit the city books for $500 a year. White had made an offer to do the work for $750.

Finance Committee Chairman Miner reported on the city budget. He said that the council should be very zealous in its handling of the funds of the city, that the council members were trustees of the people and it was their duty to see that value was received for every expense incurred. Their duty was the same as that of privately owned interests. The taxpayers provide the money and none should be spent except for the maintenance of the city government. The council has arbitrary power to fix the expense and the taxpayers must settle the bill. He said that we have no right to ask for a penny without getting value for it. We provide streets, schools, water, fire department and those who pay the bills have nothing to say about it. He wanted the taxpayers to come forward and express their opinions.

The council stands committed to a policy of retrenchment, he said. He said that no one came before the finance committee to give them assistance or express opinion. He said the wheel that squeaks is greased by the treasury, the one that does not squeak is the one for which the people settle the bill. He referred to a proposed appropriation for $2,000 for lighting a restricted section of the city at Christmas time. Some of the more insistent kickers against other expenditures were in favor of the lighting. He said the city listened to them, but did not hear the taxpayers who pay the expense. They were not represented.

He said taxpayers doing business and residing away from the illuminated system should not be asked to pay the bills for particular beneficiaries. He declared that $174,000 is expended for things not of benefit to the whole people. He called attention to the maintenance of the public library and said for 30 years it was no expense to the city; then came an expensive programme. A purchase of real estate was made on Huntington street and the city was asked to contibute. Later, the Spalding place on State street was bought for $40,000. He said if that money was properly invested it would yield $2,400 to the library each year, but it was not so used, and that property of a value of $30,000 was taken from the taxable list. So the city was called upon to contribute $2,400 for a programme the council knew nothing about until it was asked to provide the money.

He said no programme of this sort should be put into execution until it had the approval of the council. He asked that the council adopt such a policy of government in the future. We were not parties to the purchase of this library property at all, he declared. The management of the library put the expense on the city and the taxpayers must meet it.

He said the fire department was cut out of $2,400 in the tentative budget and the appropriation for police gymnasium was cut. He declared that the state had adopted such a policy of retrenchment and the city should do likewise.

In other times the city meeting was the place where objection to appropriations was made and that policy should be adhered to now. He said that $600 was expended to keep the police in condition but by cutting down that expenditure we could extend the beats and get greater protection.

Ida Stocker of Hartford gave notice of a claim for damages for injuries she sustained while falling on a defective sidewalk.

The Seventh-Day Adventists were given permission to hold a tag day. Councilor Miner moved for a resolution covering the placing of city employes on the pension list. It was referred to the city manager for report by the first of January.

Issac Alderman, of 27 Main street; Mrs. Glen Nagle, 130 Main street; Mrs. Catherine Linicus, 54 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Elias Wentworth, 302 Vauxhall street; Aroldo Secchiaroli, 58 Goshen street; Mrs. Elias Wentworth and infant son, 21 Huntington street; Mrs. John Tudisco, 39 Truman street; Mrs. Wilford Noel and infant son, 49 Belden street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of the parents, Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of the Groton Heights Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Colonel Ledyard cemetery, Groton.

Lence Helpt, of Mystic, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was discharged today.

City Manager William A. Holt today notified Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney of the appointment of Supernumerary Officer George Bruhns as a member of the regular force, being made a Grade C patrolman. The appointment, which became effective Oct. 16, was made possible by the resignation of Officer Harry Watterson, who terminated his services several days ago.

An attempt was made Sunday night to rob the National Economy store, 90 Truman street. This morning when the store was opened it was discovered that a screen in the rear window had been partially removed. Investigation revealed that none of the stock had been taken and it is believed that the crook was scared away while at work. Patrolman Sylvia reported that the screen was intact during the greater part of the night, but about 5 o'clock he found the wire netting giving evidence of having been tampered with.

Patrolman Frank Philopena is having his vacation of two weeks.

CAR OF WM. BARRY, NORWICH STOLEN BY ANDREW TASSONE

Andrew Tassone, 21, of 65 Pleasant street, and 86 Pierce street, Westerly, was in the police court this morning, charged with violation of the automobile law on two counts, driving with improper markers and driving without a license. He was also charged with carrying a concealed weapon, for Tassone was in possession of a paper cutter which had a dangerous and ugly blade. Because of the circumstances attending the arrest of Tassone his case was continued to the 22nd inst. In default of bail of $1,500, he was committed to jail by Deputy Judge John McGarry. The continuance was granted in part because it was believed that the automobile he was driving when arrested had been stolen and the supposition of the police proved correct. The auto, a Chevrolet roadster, was the property of William Barry, of Norwich, and the owner came to New London this afternoon and took possession of the car, which Tassone stole in that city Sept. 18. Tassone was observed on Main street Sunday night by Patrolman Dennis Murphy, who noted that the markers were incorrect. The officer halted the driver and upon questioning him, decided that there was a reason for the young man driving without a license as well as not having proper markers. When searched at police headquarters, Tassone had the paper cutter in his overcoat pocket.

WALTER KEEFE IS FINED $100 AND COSTS FOR WILD RIDE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 20.— Walter Keefe, 57 Warren street, was charged in the city court today with driving while under the influence of liquor and was fined $100 and costs, for he pleaded guilty. Keefe was driving on Truman street Saturday night and at the corner of Hempstead street, he drove the auto against an electric light pole, causing the pole to snap off close of the sidewalk. In falling across the highway, several high tension wires were dragged from their supports. Patrolman William Riordan, who was driving to police headquarters to report for duty, did not observe the pole and just before the auto reached the obstruction, the car passed over the wires, causing a contact, with the result there was a vivid flash. Riordan reduced the speed of the car and in another instant it hit the pole, causing Riordan to be lifted so that his head bumped the top of the tonneau, causing bruises. Keefe sustained lacerations of the head and scalp, which were dressed at Lawrence Memorial hospital.

RECEIVED BOYS' LOOT— JUNK DEALER IS FINED

Mandell Adel, proprietor of a junk shop at 100 Howard street, was charged with violation of a city ordinance which provides that junk dealers obtain a license before engaging in business. He was fined $10 and costs and he paid. Adel was arrested today as a result of youths, who had been arrested several days ago charged with stealing metal, confessing that they sold their loot to Adel. Four of the youths were recently given suspended sentences in the state reform school at Meriden and another, John Piscatella, 17, who violated his parole at the school when he participated in the robberies, was sent back to the institution.

William Woodbridge, colored, was charged with train riding. He was given suspension of judgment.

Disturbed Montville Car

Eddie Novak and Charles Holnsky, youths, were charged with tampering with an automobile, but from the evidence introduced there was no doubt but that Novak did the tampering and he was found guilty and fined $10 and costs. Holnsky was found not guilty as it was shown that he took no part in interfering with the auto, the property of William J. Smiddy, of Montville. Smiddy parked on Main street and in a few minutes Novak and Holnsky went to the auto. The former entered it and attempted to start the engine. His act was observed by Smiddy, who made complaint to Patrolman Harold Goldberg and Novak and Holnsky were arrested.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

To judge from the crowds which have been flocking to the Palace theatre during the last few days, the picture which is now scheduled at this popular local playhouse is one of the finest yet produced by the talking screens.

"Up the River" is the title of this great film drama. As its name indicates, it is a story of prison life. But it differs from the usual run of prison pictures. "Up the River" is a different kind of picture. True, there is excitement, adventure, thrills and pathos galore in this mighty epic, but it shows us the convicts in a new and more revealing light. Here we see men not inspired by brutality and mad desperation, but human, looking for life and laughter, seeking always to make their lot pleasanter, courageous yet carefree, and ever ready to lend a pal a helping hand.

The cast of "Up the River" is truly colossal. Outstanding in her role is little Joan Lawes, daughter of Warden Lawes, the famous head of Sing Sing prison in New York. Joan, whom the hardened criminals within the formidable walls of Sing Sing called "Cherie," plays her part with a delightful and touching sincerity.

For two days at the Palace, beginning Thursday, there will be a new bill consisting of the greatest double bill ever offered, The Way of All Men, starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Noah Beery, and Dorothy Revier Co. feature Dixiana, the miracle drama, with Bebe Daniels, Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey and 5,000 others, the largest cast ever assembled in one great picture.

Jean Miller, two-year-old Salina, Kas., child was kept alive 12 days and nights by artificial respiration.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Mother Brown is Puzzled

E'en though polite and saying "please,"
You'll find it seldom pays to tease.
—Black Pussy.

It was quite dark in the back shed, as Mother Brown opened the door from the kitchen and came out with a saucer of milk and a plate of food for Black Pussy. Black Pussy followed her as far as the doorway. There she stopped. Mother Brown put the two dishes on the floor and then turned to discover that Black Pussy had not followed her out into the shed.

"I thought you were hungry," said Mother Brown put the two dishes on the floor and then turned to discover that Black Pussy had not followed her out into the shed.

"I thought you were hungry," said Mother Brown. "You've given me no peace with your teasing for something to eat. Now come out here and get it. I've given you enough for two cats."

"Meow!" said Black Pussy and, arching her back, she rubbed against the doorpost. But she did not come out into the shed. Mother Brown lost patience. She gave Black Pussy a push out into the shed and shut the door. For a moment Black Pussy stood listening. There was no sound. She reached forward for a mouthful of that good supper and, as she did so, Jimmy Skunk suddenly stepped up. Black Pussy gave one look, turned, and shot out through the little round doorway that led out of doors. Jimmy calmly walked over and began eating.

It was a good supper. It was a very good supper and there was plenty of it. Jimmy didn't hurry. He took his time. He ate and ate until there was nothing left. He even licked the plate clean. Then he turned to the saucer of milk and drank and drank until there was none left. He licked out the saucer. He smacked his lips. He looked up at the door to the kitchen. "I'm much obliged for my supper," said he, as if Mother Brown could hear him. Then, instead of trying Black Pussy's bed again, he went out through the little round doorway and ambled back home. Such a big meal made him feel sleepy.

Hardly was Jimmy Skunk out of sight when Mother Brown opened the kitchen door into the shed. "My land!" she eclaimed. "That cat really was hungry. She has licked the plate and saucer clean. Well, I guess she won't be hungry for some time after this."

Mother Brown picked up the empty plates, took them back into the kitchen and shut the door. Meanwhile, outside, Black Pussy was wandering about, hungry and disconsolate. She saw Jimmy Skunk leave and slowly amble away until he disappeared in the dark. She knew then that it was safe to go back into the shed. She went back. There was nothing to eat there. Even the dishes had disappeared. Poor Black Pussy! She sat down by the kitchen door and began to cry. "Meow!" said she. "Meow! Meow!"

After a while, Mother Brown came to the door and opened it. She thought that Black Pussy was merely crying to come in. But Black Pussy began rubbing against her and arching her back and crying, just as she does when she is hungry. On Mother Brown's face was a puzzled look.

"What under the sun is the matter with you, Black Pussy?" she demanded. "I gave you enough for two cats and here you are teasing for more. If I didn't know better, I should think that you had a family to feed. Well, you've had enough for one night and I'm not going to give you any more, no matter how much you tease."

"Meow!" said Black Pussy, which was her way of saying "Please." "Meow! Meow!"

But all her teasing did her no good. (Copyright, 1930, by T. W. Burgess)

GREENEVILLE

REV. MR. NORRIS OPENS SERMON COURSE AT ST. ANDREW'S

On Sunday, Oct. 12, Rev. E. J. Norris, rector of St. Andrew's church, began a short course of sermons on Problems that Perplex, the first being "The Problem of Pain; Is Pain Purposeless?" The following are excerpts:

We feel assured that the world is ruled by a Supreme Being. The world is full of suffering. All pain is not punishment, sin causes suffering. God means to conserve the good and to pass on a heritage of health and happiness, that could be obtained in no other way. The problem of untraced pain is unlocked by a key shaped by Christ. God cannot take us into His confidence because we are incapable of full comprehension. Pain is not purposeless. God always chooses the best for His children. Pain may be termed a sentinel, warning of attack. A danger signal; a hand pulling a communication cord. Men in every walk of life have stretched forth their hands into the darkness and found their Father, God. Pain is full of gracious possibilities. Its chief work is to sweeten and refine the human soul. Pain is not a fiend to torture, but an angel to guide to nobler things. Perhaps it is the finger of God showing us the path to life's most precious gift.

On Sunday morning, Oct. 19, Rev. E. J. Norris dealt with the second problem, Is Prayer Answered? There is no problem more perplexing that that of unanswered prayer. This question demands an answer. In prayer man seeks to express his consciousness of something greater than himself. This certainty that God hears His children, and is interested in their welfare, makes the altar lights of faith to burn brightly. Illustrations from life strengthen our conviction here. God has a purpose for each life. He wishes to secure the complete happiness of His children; we cannot, therefore, presume to ask Him to do as we wish. This seems a desire to avoid the difficult task or hard road.

Perhaps some of our unanswered prayers, in the light of present knowledge, cause us to realize the fact that we would have missed some of the most precious lessons of life, and also some of its most wonderful blessings. We do not realize that there is more than one way of answering prayer. We know only one way, our way. The answer may be delayed because our attitude is not receptive. Prayer shapes the soul; makes possible the good that God sends.

The Giver of all good knows whether to give or to withhold. He seeks only the good of His children. He will give us success if we can be entrusted with it; or if failure, then He prepares us to bear it. If unbearable loads are to be borne, He gives strength to bear burdens. Let us grasp this fact, all prayers are heard; if all prayers are not answered, that is as we would wish.

An impressive communion service was held at the Salem Lutheran church on Hickory street Sunday. The recently organized choir was heard in a simple but appropriate anthem. Six new members were admitted into membership of the church. Preceding the service, a baptismal service was held when three children were baptized. A large number came forward for communion.

The O. A. club of Greeneville took their weekly nature hike to Preston City, Saturday afternoon. Upon returning home they went to the home of the president, Mrs. Kilcollum, where a delicious bean supper was enjoyed.

A surprise birthday party was held Saturday evening, in honor of Mrs. Mary Kane, of 187 North Main street, who celebrated her 60th birthday at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Kane, on Fifth street. During the evening selections were heard from a five-piece orchestra under the direction of W. A. Kane and vocal solos were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Kane, of Webster, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kane, Mrs. J. P. Kane, of Occum; toe dancing, by Miss Alice Kangley, of Webster; soft shoe dancing by Mrs. Charles Quigg, of Webster; clog dancing, by E. H. Malcolm, of this city. The grand march was led by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Quigg, of Webster, Mass. Old and new dancing was enjoyed for the rest of the evening. Refreshments were served, which consisted of potato salad, ham sandwiches, peanut butter sandwiches, pickles, cake, cookies, pie, coffee and tea, ice cream, cigars and cigarettes. Mrs. Kane was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, including cut glass, linen, money, flowers, candy, etc.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Quigg, Mrs. Charles Cilic, Miss Alice Kangley, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Kane, Miss Florence Kane, Michael Kane, of Webster, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Kane, of Occum; Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kane, of Greeneville; Mr. and Mrs. Lew Thibeault, of Taftville; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Malcolm, of Norwich; Michael Kane, of New York city; Miss Alice Kane, Miss Gertrude Kane, Thomas Kane, Miss Alice Ibbison, Miss Mary Malcolm and Miss Gertrude Malcolm, all of this city.

Lawrence Quinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Quinn, of 198 Central avenue, has enrolled as a student at the Willimantic Trade school and is taking a course in plumbing.

The regular Christian Endeavor meeting of the Third Baptist church was held Sunday evening at 6:30. Henry Sebastian conducted the service and the topic was "Christian and Sunday." A fairly good attendance was present, 38 in all, with over half of the number taking an active part.

Two special selections were played by the church orchestra, which helped to add much interest to the meetings each week. A group of the young people are to accept the invitation from the First Baptist church to attend a masquerade social Friday evening. Hot dog roasts and socials have been planned for the near future.

TAFTVILLE

The members of Branch 98, Polish Workers Sick Mutual Aid society, gave a subscription dance at their hall on McKay street Saturday evening.

About 40 members of the Men's club of the Taftville Congregational church listened to a most interesting address on Friendship by Judge John H. Barnes of Norwich, Thursday evening in the church lecture rooms. This being the opening of the fall season of the club there was a great deal of interest in the coming year's activities and a business meeting and election of officers was held following the speaker's talk. Judge Barnes told of some of the famous friendships of history and of biblical times, and told of incidents in the lives of Plato, Aristotle, Napoleon and many other great men. He described friendship between nations and the feeling which existed after the close of the World war. Describing Switzerland as the friendliest of nations, the speaker told of the noted conferences held within that country's borders and the establishment of the international bank of settlements at Basle. He defined Friendship as "Love with all hate taken out." At the close of his lecture, Judge Barnes was given a rising vote of thanks by his hearers.

At the business session President Albert Airey presided and Secretary-Treasurer Robert E. Cooper reported the club in good financial condition. The members voted to assume charge of the minstrel show which is to be one of the entertainments given at the annual fair of the church. At the election of officers John F. Greene was elected president; John D. Sharples, vice president, and Robert E. Cooper, secretary-treasurer. Following business there was a smoker and social hour, refreshments of sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee being served by a committee composed of Earle Mathewson, Albert Mathewson, Albert Edward Airey, Clayton Sharples and Howard Kloss.

The first juncoes of the season arrived with Sunday's cold weather.

NORWICH TOWN

"SUN-UP" INTERPRETED BY MISS PAULINE MAYO

Before a large and appreciative congregation Sunday evening, Miss Pauline Mayo, of New York, read "Sun-Up" in Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church. Miss Mayo is one of the best impersonators of characters on the public platform today and has the ability of introducing each character of her play and keeping it intact all through the action of the story. The play preached a sermon on love and sacrifice. It was written by Lula Vollmer and is in three acts with two scenes in the last act. The action takes place in Widow Cagle's cabin in the mountains of North Carolina, near the city of Asheville. The characters were: Widow Cagle, typical mountain woman; Rufe Cagle, Widow Cagle's son, 18; Pop Todd, an old man fond of telling about how he fought the Yankees; Emmy Todd, the old man's daughter; Budd Todd, his son, considered "quare" in the head; Jim Weeks, deputy sheriff, typical mountaineer; Preacher, another mountaineer type; Stranger, a young man from civilization. The pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, opened the service with prayer and scripture reading. Following Miss Mayo's reading the offering was received by Clayton Rose and Frederick Ross. Rev Myron E. Genter, district superintendent, closed the service with a short prayer and the benediction. At the morning service the pastor preached on the theme, "All Things Added." The vested choir sang "Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled." The flowers on the altar and choir loft were arranged by Mary Waters and Florence Gembel.

A Tribute

The following is contributed by Rev. George Warren Potter, in loving memory of Richard LeRoy Cormier:

In my experience in Boy Scout work over a period of about 12 years, I have never come in contact with a more manly and clean-cut Scout than Richard Cormier. He was a Scout that any troop would feel proud to count in its membership. He was not satisfied to carry out the Scout motto, "Do a good turn daily," as his daily life was a series of good turns. He was a living exemplification of the Boy Scout laws—he was trustworthy, loyal, helpful and kind, courteous and friendly. He was obedient, he was cheerful and thrifty. He was brave, as he dared to live a life that was clean in speech, in thought and deed. He was reverent, faithful to his church and religion and had respect for those who differed in their church and religious belief. As a member of our troop he was always as ready to help another Scout advance as to go forward himself. He acted as assistant cubmaster in the Wolf Cub pack for several months and was beloved and respected by all the boys with whom he came in contact. He will be greatly missed by the Scouts in Norwich Town and by all in the council fortunate enough to know him. The purity and manliness of so good a life will make its imprint and have a good influence on all his friends and associates.

The postponed meeting of the work department of the League of Service, under direction of Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, chairman, to be held Friday afternoon in the Congregational chapel, will decide upon plans for winter work. A quilt will also be tied.

NORWICH EAGLES LAUNCHED CAMPAIGN FOR 300 MEMBERS LAST NIGHT

An address on the activities and aims of the Fraternal Order of Eagles by Eddie Sheehan of Seattle, Wash., and personal representative of Conrad H. Mann, of Kansas, chief auditor and financial advisor of the order, marked the launching of a campaign for 300 new members by Norwich aerie, No. 367, of this city, Monday night. The address was delivered at a special meeting of the aerie which had a large attendance. The aerie is to initiate its first class in the campaign Saturday evening, when 33 candidates will be worked at the Eagles' home, on Cliff street. Mr. Sheehan, who is a deputy auditor and organizer, was given a hearty welcome when he was introduced to the large gathering.

In his address Mr. Sheehan said:

The Fraternal Order of Eagles was created to give service. It exists to give service. And it grows—faster than any other fraternity—because it does give service, not only in a material way, but in furthering the ideals on which the nation is founded.

First, of course, comes service to the member and his family; and so the material benefits of the order include protection in illness. Six hundred thousand Eagles feel more secure than other wage-earners because the F. O. E. pays a weekly sick benefit after the first week's illness, for as long as 12 weeks in any one year. Expenditures for that service to date total more than $36,000,000.

Most aeries furnish medical service to Eagles and their families, and pay the physicians' fees from the aerie treasury. So far this protection has called for the expenditure of more than $12,000,000.

If death strikes down the bread-winner, the Eagles are on hand to comfort the bereaved family; and, through the payment of the funeral benefit, to assure a decent burial for the one who has gone. Since the order was founded in 1898, more than $8,000,000 has been spent in this last service to members of our fraternity.

Our real estate holdings total $26,000,000. Our investment funds aggregate $10,000,000. Cash, lodge furnishings, and clubhouse equipment represent another $6,000,000. These assets, totaling $42,000,000, are a solid foundation for the growth and the leadership of the order.

There are more than 1100 subordinate bodies of the F. O. E., called aeries. Most of these aeries have splendidly equipped clubhouses or quarters where a member may find a congenial crowd for cards, or bowling, or billiards. All year 'round there are amusements—picnics, card parties, dances, and entertainments—to which an Eagle may take his wife, or his mother, or his best girl.

There are many ways in which the F. O. E. lends a helping hand to its members. Whenever a disaster has taken its toll of property and human lives, there the Eagles have been found, doing their part in the work of rescue or reconstruction. They were prompt to help during such catastrophies as the Galveston tidal wave, the San Francisco earthquake, the Ohio and the Mississippi floods, the Minnesota forest fires, and the tornado in southern Indiana and Illinois.

In such disasters, our fraternity goes into action at once. Grand aerie representatives hurry to the scene and do all that can be done for the sufferers. Generous sums are distributed to members and their families, according to their losses. There is no "red tape" to be unraveled, either. When help is needed, it is given—promptly, generously—in the spirit of mutual helpfulness.

Our activities have not been confined, however, to the merely material task of providing comfortable meeting places and stated financial benefits for our members.

The F. O. E. is the fraternity that early supported the movement for workmen's compensation laws. The order sponsored the nation-wide observance of Mothers' day—first advocated in 1904 by a past grand worthy president of the F. O. E. Extending our thought of mothers from the ideal to the practical, our fraternity advocated and worked for mothers' pensions, now in force in more than 40 states. And we can be proud that it was an Eagle—Judge Edward Everett Porterfield—who, in 1911, drafted the first mothers' pension law passed in the United States.

No fraternity has a more glorious patriotic record than has the F. O. E. Shortly after America entered the World war, the grand aerie acted to show our boys in uniform that the order would "stand by" Eagles and their families. We voted to pay the dues of all members who entered the service, so that their families might have F. O. E. protection while the wage-earners were away. Then we created the patriotic fund, to which each of the order's members not in uniform contributed small sums monthly. That money—more than $1,500,000—has made it possible for the F. O. E. to pay a thousand-dollar gratuity to the dependents of every Eagle who lost his life because he served the flag, whether he died in training camp, at the front, or afterward from injuries or sickness suffered during the war.

Eagles can truly say: "We helped to make life easier for those who gave their sons and husbands in the World war. We can be proud, as well as reverent."

In 1921, the F. O. E. determined to sponsor the movement for state-paid old age pensions. Since then, Eagles have furnished the leadership, the inspiration, and practically all the funds for this cause. We have distributed several million pieces of literature, and spent more than a quarter of a million dollars in arousing public opinion favorable to O. A. P. legislation. Today, largely through our efforts, 12 states in the United States—including the great commonwealths of California, New York and Massachusetts—the territory of Alaska, and five provinces and the Northwest territories in Canada have old age pension laws upon their statute books. Eagles may well be proud of that record—and of the following tribute from Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt. Upon his initiation into Buffalo aerie, the governor said: "Most of the credit for showing the need of old age pension legislation is due—and will be given—to the Fraternal Order of Eagles. They started this nation-wide movement; and it is because of their continued efforts that the idea has been brought to the attention of the people in the various states."

Eagles, however, are not resting upon past accomplishments. Not only are we energetically continuing our old age pension campaign; we are launched upon an even greater crusade that has as its goal the happiness of millions of American homes. At the order's national convention in 1930, a resolution was unanimously passed pledging the resources and the man-power of the F. O. E. to the solution of the problem of unemployment.

The resolution provides that a commission of Eagles shall draft "a resolution whose statements shall be the basis of bills to be introduced in the senate of the United States and in the house of representatives, providing for the creation of a federal industrial commission having all the powers necessary to deal with the economic problems that underlie unemployment . . ."

Thus will the F. O. E. and its 600,000 members support the principle that "the happiness of the wage-earning group and the economic stability of our country are based upon the right of every adult American to work continuously at a saving wage."

COLLEGE PROFESSOR OPENS CURRENT EVENTS LECTURES

Henry W. Lawrence, Ph. D., head of the history department at Connecticut college, opened the annual current events series of lectures held under the auspices of the Woman's City club Monday evening at the Wauregan hotel. There was a large attendance at the meeting and the lecture was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Willard P. Haugh, chairman of the current events committee of the club, opened the meeting and introduced Prof. Lawrence. In her opening remarks she called attention to the fact that this is the fourth year of the current events course of lectures. She said it had been realized how valuable the lecture courses have been and that it had been decided to continue them. The world is smaller now than it was 100 years ago, Mr. Haugh said, due to modern means of transportation and the radio. Every country is now considered a neighbor. The more we understand the histories and problems of foreign countries, the more we are assured world harmony.

Prof. Lawrence, in his interesting and instructive talk, spoke of England's tariff problems at some length and then went on to speak of other European countries and their problems, at the present time.

France, he said, is in a remarkable condition. While practically all the rest of the world is undergoing economic depression, France is enjoying prosperity. She has more gold than she knows what to do with. Tardieu has said that France is enjoying prosperity because she has taken good care of her farmers. "I don't think we can say that the present extraordinary prosperity of France is permanent," said Prof. Lawrence. "But it is there," he added.

Prof. Lawrence said that Spain is facing many threats of being transferred into a republican form of government. He said that one of the two most interesting countries today, in his opinion, is Italy. Democracy was failing badly there in the early 20's and because of this fact, fascism stepped in. He went on to say that Italy is as much discontented with her status quo as France is contented. Italy feels that she did not get her share of the reparations and also feels that France is holding territory which should be hers, because of geographical and racial reasons.

Prof. Lawrence said that we should not forget that it was in the Balkans that the World war flared up and that there is more dry powder there now than anywhere else in Europe. Bulgaria, he said, seems to be about the most hated of the Balkan states.

With reference to Germany he said that country has been groaning in spirit over what she regards as outrageous treatment given her by the Versailles treaty. Prof. Lawrence spoke of the activities of the extremist parties in Germany and of the indemnity burden and unemployment situation that the German people are facing.

In conclusion he referred briefly to the present situation in South America. The greater part of the area of that continent has either changed governments or is in process of changing governments, he said. There are two causes for the war in Brazil he said. One is political and the other economic.

The current events talks will be given by Prof. Lawrence once a month for seven months.

COMMODITY PRICES LOW, SAYS MERCHANTS BUREAU HEAD

Commenting Monday evening on the Business Confidence rally held Monday morning at the Wauregan hotel, under the auspices of the Norwich Lions' club and the Norwich Retail Merchants bureau, James F. Fleming, president of the merchants bureau, said:

"It is true that commodity prices of all kinds are the lowest they have been in years, and that buying now will be practicing thrift in its fullest sense.

"Whenever we have an economic adjustment such as we have been passing through, there is a loss of confidence—a fear that things are going to be worse—purse strings are tightened, not only because of lack of employment, but also by those whose incomes have not been affected.

"There are many persons today, whose incomes have not been affected, but who, because of lack of confidence or fear for the future, refrain from buying, not only luxuries, but also necessities. This, in numerous instances, has affected industries and their employes.

"If those who can will purchase their normal requirements in personal and household needs, there will be no fear for the future, as it will start the wheels of industry humming."

MUST SECURE PERMITS TO HAVE BONFIRES

As the result of three small fires Monday, all started by residents burning leaves, Chief Henry R. Taft of the fire department, reiterates that those desiring to build bonfires must first secure permission from headquarters to do so. After receiving the necessary permit, Chief Taft advises that they should select the proper time and place to build the bonfires, because of the large amount of leaves on the ground.

At 7:09 o'clock Monday morning the department was called out for its first fire at a point opposite No. 104 Washington street. An electric light pole, owned by the Norwich Gas and Electric Co., was slightly damaged.

Fire destroyed a small shed, filled with hay, on the property of Charles M. Gordon in the rear of No. 257 West Main street. The department received a summons for help at 12:27 o'clock, Engine 5 and Squad A responding. Over 450 feet of 1 1-2 inch hose was laid.

Slight damage was also done by fire to a garage at No. 60 Fountain street, owned by Joseph Walski. A bonfire, set by residents in the section, spread to the building and the department was called by telephone. Pump cans and chemical were used by members of Engine 3 and Squad A to put out the blaze.

FIRE DEPT. CALLED FOR ASHCAN BLAZE

A fire in an ashcan, located near the residence of John E. Carter in the rear of No. 289 Hamilton avenue, resulted in a call to the fire department at 5:25 o'clock, Monday evening. The blaze is believed to have been set by boys playing with matches, and was extinguished by members of Engine No. 1 and Squad A, which responded. It was the fourth fire of the day.

SMASHED JUG IN STREET AS OFFICER APPROACHED

Charges of transporting liquor and littering the public highway with glass were preferred against Patrick Cox, 55, of Washington street, Monday morning, by Officer Crary. He was arrested on West Main street and held for trial in the city court this (Tuesday) morning.

According to the officer Cox was walking down West Main street about 11:45 o'clock with a jug under his arm, which was afterwards found to contain alleged liquor. When Cox was approached by the officer he is said to have raised the gallon jug above his head and to have thrown it into the highway, smashing it to pieces. The contents of the jug were not destroyed altogether however, for Officer Crary managed to scoop up a small quantity of it. The evidence was transferred from the highway into the neck of the broken jug and a small bottle which the officer had with him in the police car.

SHANNON BLDG. ASSESSMENT REDUCED BY $30,000

Judge Christopher L. Avery of the superior court has entered judgment in a tax appeal taken by the Shannon Building Corp. The court rules that the corporation is entitled to a $30,000 reduction from their assessment in last year's tax list. The board of assessors placed them in the list for $297,570, as the assessment on their Main street property, known as the Shannon building. They appealed to the board of relief and then to the superior court.

PASTOR'S TRIBUTE

To Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Howe

On the weekly calendar of Park Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, D. D., pays the following tribute of sincerity to his predecessor:

Rev. Samuel H. Howe, D. D., the pastor emeritus of Park church, breathed his last on October 11th and was taken to his grave from this church on Tuesday afternoon, the 14th. For 46 years he had lived in Norwich and save the last two years he had been pastor of this church. An estimate of the influence he exerted upon his fellow ministers, upon the city and its environs and upon the people of the church which he served for nearly half a century, cannot be easily given. He was one of the most widely read men in the New England ministry. The energy and grasp, the grip and power of his mind made his influence one of unique power and of lasting significance. One fact is obvious: He has left us a tradition of the finest and we cannot but reverence the mind which he sought to lift up.

URGES TWO ADDITIONAL INFIRMARY BUILDINGS AT UNCAS-ON-THAMES

HARTFORD, Oct. 20—(AP)—Three additional infirmaries, each with a capaccity of 100 patients, will be requested by the state tuberculosis commission in its budget for the next biennium, it was announced following a hearing held by the budget committee of the state board of finance and control, today. The three new buildings, with the equipment, would cost not more than $525,000 according to the estimates furnished by teh codmmission in presenting its requests.

The commission has requested the erection of two additional infirmary buildings at the Norwich state tuberculosis sanatorium, known as Uncas-on-Thames; and a third at the Hartford state tuberculosis sanatorium, Cedar Crest. Each of the three buildings will cost approximately $175,000, ready for use.

Commissioner of Finance Edward F. Hall, said today that the board of finance and control has realized for some time that an extensive building programme of infirmaries for the use of tuberculosis patients would be necessary to provide adequate care for those ill from this disease. During the past year two additional sanatoriums have been completed, and it was the belief of the board that at least two more such buildings would be necessary in the near future. The commissioner gave no indication of the appropriation which would be recommended for this use.

The Trumbull airport commission which also appeared before the committee today, requested approximately $15,000 for the purpose of grading the statee's airport at Groton Long Point, and also an appropriation for the employment of a caretaker at the field in order to provide for its use by authorized persons at all times.

The budget requests of the secretary of the state's office, and that of the state farm for women, were also heard.

TO MITIGATE SUFFERING CAUSED BY UNEMPLOYMENT

President Hoover Hopes to Bring Into Cooperation All the Necessary Units of Local Government and Private Industry—Col. Woods, a Former New York Police Commissioner, Has Been Appointed Head of An Organization to Deal With Unemployment Problems—The 3,500,000 Persons Unemployed Includes 1,000,000 Who Are Always Unemployed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A national organization to deal with unemployment problems began to take shape today when President Hoover, after a conference with a special group of cabinet members, announced designation of Colonel Arthur Woods, a former New York police commissioner, to head it.

An immediate muster of plans and personnel under his direction was forecast, though the president withheld for the time a specific statement of means to be adopted. It was indicated the administration hoped to bring into cooperation all the necessary units of local government and private industry to mitigate individual suffering.

While the president is said to regard the situation as serious, particularly as unemployment has a drought problem running parallel to it which entails efforts both in city and agricultural zones, he also is anxious to prevent exaggeration in discussions of the subject.

From data now in the hands of the federal government, largely compiled by the census and labor branches, the number of unemployed workers was placed at 3,500,000 and it was pointed out 1,000,000 persons are always so unemployed.

The census inquiry was considered as demonstrating that there was on the average in each family one and three-quarters person regularly employed and that in the present situation there is a lesser number of families completely devoid of bread winners than has usually been so regarded.

There were the usual reports to the effect that the next step in the federal employment program would be directed toward stimulating public work expenditure, probably upon a large scale, but there were no official statements outlining this and it was not believed definite proposals would come until Colonel Woods assumed his duties.

It was considered certain a gathering would be summoned soon, either by the president or by Colonel Woods, to assemble advisers of responsibility and knowledge whose opinion will guide the main direction of action.

This expectation was confidently held by a number of individuals associated with the president who participated in unemployment organization which he headed in 1921.

Among the plans already discussed by the cabinet committee, Secretary Hurley indicated today consideration had been given one under which employment would be divided among a larger number of individuals working a shorter time.

The plan already has been used by the war department in flood control work, he said.

"By employing 2,000 men for three days a week instead of 1,000 for six days a week, a meal ticket would be provided at least for all of them," he said.

While plans were being formulated for the unemployment group, the president announced the railroads had agreed to continue their cooperation toward relieving drought distress by extending until Dec. 1 the 50 per cent decrease in rates upon livestock and feed moved out of and into drought-stricken areas. The president said although the December date had been set railroad aid would not necessarily end then.

COXEY HAS SOLUTION FOR UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21. — (AP) — General Jacob S. Coxey, of Massillon, Ohio, who led an army of unemployed to Washington in 1894, and thereby gained his military title, came to Washington today—alone — and tomorrow will lay before Secretary of Commerce Lamont his "solution" of the 1930 unemployment problem.

General Coxey's arrival today was as quiet as his first "invasion" was noisy. After registering at a downtown hotel, he called on Representative Guy E. Campbell, of Pittsburgh, who obtained tomorrow's conference with Secretary Lamont.

Coxey said the unemployment problem was caused by the curtailment of credits over a period of three or four years. This, he continued, reduced production with subsequent unemployment.

41 SUCCESSFUL PHOTOGRAPHS OF TOTAL ECLIPSE OF THE SUN

NIUAFOU ISLAND, Oct. 22—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Weeks of patient waiting and construction by American astronomers on this little island in the South Pacific were rewarded today when 41 successful photographs of a total eclipse of the sun were taken.

The eclipse and weather were excellent.

The eclipse began at 7:55 a. m., (2:28 p. m. Tuesday e s t) became total at 9:09 a. m., (3:51 p. m. Tuesday, e s t) and ended at 10:31 a. m., (5:14 p. m. Tuesday e s t). Duration of the total eclipse was 93½ seconds.

The New Zealand expedition announced its observations of the eclipse also were entirely successful.

CASHIER OF DEFUNCT BANK CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

HARRISONBURG, Va., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Noah F. Crist, 50, cashier of the defunct bank of Dayton, and treasurer of the town of Dayton, Shenandoah college and several other business and church organizations in the village four miles south of here, was charged with embezzlement in a warrant issued here today.

Crist was charged with embezzling approximately $4,000 of funds of the bank of Dayton, which closed September 19. At that time Miss Elizabeth Coffman, assistant cashier, confessed defalcations amounting to $36,900. Bank officials said the amount charged against Crist was included in the aggregate against Miss Coffman.

CHARGED WITH STRANGLING HER 4 MONTHS OLD SON

REDDING, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Axel Mortensen, 42, of Sunset Hill, is under arrest by state police of the Ridgefield barracks on a charge of strangling her four months old son at her home today.

The woman strangled the child, police say, in an upstairs bedroom where she had gone to get him preparatory for his daily bath. Preparations for the bath had been made in the kitchen.

The woman's husband ascribes temporary insanity as the reason for her act. They have two other children, Eva and three

EXPLOSION ON A BABY ZEPPELIN "AIR YACHT"

TOMS RIVER, N. J., Oct. 21.—(AP)—An explosion on Captain Anton Heinen's baby Zeppelin "air yacht" today hurled three men 40 feet to the ground and wrecked the dirigible's engine and gondola.

The airship, recently completed by the widely known designer and pilot of dirigibles, was tied to a temporary mooring mast in preparation for a flight when the explosion occurred. Two members of the crew and a man who was going for a ride were seriously cut and bruised by the fall.

The gas bag was undamaged, however, and a few hours after the accident, Captain Heinen deflated it for transportation to the Heinen Air Yacht corporation's hangar at Cape May. Officials of the company said repairs would be completed soon.

Those injured in the accident were Chester Lee, 23, of Cape May, and Joseph Heck, 17, of Atlantic City, members of the crew, and John K. Fall, of Sea View park, the passenger.

Physicians at a hospital in Lakewood said they would recover.

TRAGEDY DISCLOSED BY SCHOOLBOY'S TARDINESS

WASHBURN, Wis., Oct. 21.—(AP)—A schoolboy's excuse for tardiness revealed today how a father had slain his wife and four children, then committed suicide.

Robert Thorsen, on his way to school, stopped at the home of George Froseth, 60, assistant postmaster, to return a book. The door was locked, and when he looked through a window he saw the body of Mrs. Froseth.

"There's something wrong at the Froseth home," he told his teacher, explaining why he was late.

The teacher went on with classes, and at recess notified authorities.

They first found the bodies of Mrs. Froseth, 45; George, Jr., 11; Adelaide and Neil, twins, 9, and "Boostie," 6. The husband had beaten them to death with a hammer, and had slashed his own throat with a razor.

BELIEVE INFANT KENNETH SWANSON DIED OF EXPOSURE

WINSTED, Oct. 21—(AP)—The belief was expressed tonight by state police that two year old Kenneth Swanson, whose badly decomposed body was found in a woods today, had wandered away from the home of his grandparents and died of exposure.

Coroner Samuel A. Herman, however, declined to make a statement following an autopsy performed on the body of the boy, who dissappeared with his collie dog last August 24, by his son, Dr. Donald Herman, medical examiner.

Provoked By British Palestine Attitude

Lord Melchett, Leader of British Jewry, Resigns Chairmanships of Committees

LONDON, Oct. 21—(AP)—Asserting that the British government by its attitude on Palestine had broken faith with the Jews who gave their lives and money during the war, Lord Melchett, noted British industrialist and leader of British Jewry, resigned his chairmanships of two committees of the Jewish agency today.

His letter of resignation was sent to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, who yesterday resigned the presidncy of the Jewish agency and the International Zionist organization in protest against the government's white paper, which he interpreted as curtailing the activity of Jewish work in Palestine.

Lord Melchett said the governemnt had been aided by Jews during the war but that the way the government had "wrecked" the loyal support of the Jews was incredible.

"It is an act of almost unparalleled ingratitude and treachery committted by a government toward a nebulous and harassed people," he said.

An appeal to the Jewish people to bear witness to their loyalty to the Jewish national home in Palestine by heightened energy and redoubled achievment was issued tonight by Dr. Weizmann.

Under the heading of "in an insolent hour" Dr. Weizmann said he had decided to resign his two offices and had informed the government of his action. The fact that he had taken this step after twelve years of leadership of the Zionist organization and the Jewish agency "in itself expresses the view that I take of the government statement," he said.

No Pomp At Funeral Of General Weyle

Last Surviving Figu[illegible] Vivid Chapter [illegible]ish Military History

MADRID, Oct. 21—(AP)—Less than forty persons in San Lorenzo cemetery today witnessed the burial of Valeriano Weyler, Spain's last captain general of the old school, her last surviving figure of a vivid chapter of military history across the seas that faded with the present century.

No crowds lined the rainy streets as the body of the aged warrior was rushed in an automobile hearse to its last resting place.

No one except the family, a small group of friends and a few newspaper men who had been watching the Wey- The family held the funeral suddenly a The family held the funral suddnly a full two hours before the time announced for the purpose of avoiding crowds, and the captain general's last dying wish for a simple funeral was realized.

The interment was unostentatious and the simple ceremonies were over 30 minutes after the body had left the house and long before the people had planned to line the streets and go to the cemetery to see the funeral.

By his own will, Captain General Weyler rejected all the gorgeous ceremony of a state funeral. He, who in life had passed in processions where multitudes gave him honor, rode in death through indifferent streets unheeding his passage because it was unknown.

The body, in a simple wooden coffin, went into the grave wrapped in a white robe. A priest who is stationed at the cemetery to perform last rites, said the final ritual.

Cold gray skies gave intermittent drizzling rain. The earth was piled in. The handful of spectators went away. There were no guns, no salutes, no uniforms. An hour or so later people generally began to hear of the funeral and disappointment was expressed everywhere.

But the captain general had won. Not long ago he said, "I have seen much of wordly honors and know they are worth nothing."

The captain general, who was 92, died yesterday.

1,500 CARLOADS POTATOES FROZEN; LOSS OF $500,000

In the Red River Valley of North Dakota—Break in Cold Wave in the West Promises Relief For the Blizzard-Swept Eastern States—Meteorologist Asserts That the Freeze Which Gripped the Middle West Over the Week-End Did More Good Than Harm in Most Agricultural States

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Old man winter's premature rendition of "Button Up Your Overcoat" was due to end tonight in the middle west, its echoes lingering in Oklahoma and Texas and in states east of the Mississippi.

With the dusting of snow removed by rising temperatures and sunshine, Artist Jack Frost was ready to take the stage and complete the transformation of wooded hillsides to crimson and gold ready for the frolic of a promised Indian summer.

Relief for the blizzard-swept and shivering eastern states was thus promised from the land in which much of the eastern weather is brewed.

The Pacific slope was moderately warm today and the country east of the Rockies experienced intermittent sunshine and clouds with no further storm threat. Colorado had cool, fair weather, Wyoming rising temperatures and lingering snow flurries and Montana was warmer with more warmth predicted.

In place of temperatures which ran from a new seasonal low of two degrees at Max, North Dakota, to a high of 55 as far south as Oklahoma City, the wheat and corn states west of the Mississippi were promised a milder night tonight and maximum temperatures which might reach into the 60's. That was the interpretation put upon the laconic "slightly warmer" forecast for the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Iowa and Minnesota by the weather observers.

Freezing temperatures were to continue tonight, however, in Kansas and Missouri.

The freeze which gripped the middle west over the week-end and yesterday did more good than damage in most agricultural states, in the opinion of S. D. Flora, meteorologist at Topeka, Kas. He said it tended to conserve moisture already in the ground while the snow and sleet augmented it.

But in the Red river valley of North Dakota 1,500 carloads of potatoes were reported frozen, the loss to growers estimated at $500,000.

The snow and sleet, which reached as far south as Oklahoma, Arkansas and Tennessee, disrupted flying schedules, particularly in the Rocky mountain country, and in all sections brought appeals for help to charitable organizations.

On the other hand, the promise of ducks in southward flight gladdened the hearts of hunters.

NO SOUP LINES IN DETROIT; 83,500 PERSONS UNEMPLOYED

DETROIT, Oct. 21.—(AP)—There are no bread lines or soup kitchens in this automotive center, and yet there are 83,500 persons who have registered with municipal agencies as being idle.

The great majority of these, records showed today, have so far been able to support themselves and families without appealing to charity. This has been possible, in the main, by falling back on resources laid away for the proverbial rainy day. When wages were high the workmen were able to make regular deposits in savings banks and invest money in homes and automobiles.

Detroit has been able accurately to gauge its unemployed problem through Mayor Frank Murphy's employment committee in registering those out of work. The total number of idle will not be known until some weeks hence, but officials estimate the number at 100,000.

Out of this army of unemployed humanity the recognized relief agencies now are supporting 15,000 families and 1,000 single men. The dependent persons reached this number after a steady growth from a low point of 9,500 in June. Only in March, 1930, when it reached 16,900, was the number of dependent families greater.

While some of the registered unemployed have been idle only a few weeks, thousands of others have had practically no work for a year.

Even in "big" years, the automobile worker rarely has a full 12 months' work, this circumstance serving to compensate in a measure for good wages paid those who are employed. Even in 1929, peak year of the industry, few of the 800,000 workers averaged five days a week. The workmen have learned to expect such conditions, and most of them deposit in savings banks to build a reserve to tide them over.

WHAT ROARABACK HAS TO SAY ABOUT DEAN CROSS

HARTFORD, Oct. 21—(AP)—Dr. Wilbur L. Cross, democratic gubernatorial candidate who characterized J. Henry Roraback, of the state central committee as "the dragon of Canaan" in a recent political speech, was denominated as "the dear old gentleman down at Yale," who, as gubernatorial timber, presents a humorous spectacle, by Mr. Roraback in an address to some 800 republican women from all parts of the state at the Hartford club, here this afternoon. Chairman Roraback, expressing pride in the republican organization and the nominees of that party, expressing pride in the republican organization and the nominees of that party, ridiculed the democratic standard bearer on some of his statements and made other pleas of the opposition candidate the subjects of sharp, direct attacks.

The statements of Dr. Cross having a bearing on state finances drew the heaviest fire of Mr. Roraback. "He has promised at least a hundred million dollars," he said. "He is for old age pensions. He's entitled to be; if I were in his place I'd be too. But he doesn't say where the money is coming from. Of course the money will have to come from you and me, from every business and from every homekeeper in the state."

MISS HARRIETT E. PERKINS DIES AFTER LENGTHY ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 21—After a long period of declining health Miss Harriet Eliza Perkins, 67, died this morning at the home on Maple street. Miss Perkins had been a life long resident of Danielson. She was born here May 1, 1863, a daughter of James and Mary Putnam Perkins. On her mother's side she was a descendant of General Israel Putnam of Revolutionary fame. After completing her education Miss Perkins was employed for years as a clerk in the store conducted by her father in the Hyde building. After Mr. Perkins disposed of this business Miss Perkins was with the Quinebaug company store in a similar capacity. She was a communicant of St. Alban's church. Miss Perkins is survived by her brother, William P., and by two sisters, Misses Belle and Helen Perkins, all residents of Danielson.

This evening members of the Service battery, following their regular Tuesday evening drill at the state armory, journeyed to Dayville for their annual dinner at the hotel there. The meal was started with a fruit cocktail and was followed by all of the fixings that go with a roast beef dinner. With them for the evening was Lieut. Anthony Sunderland, mayor of Danbury and a candidate on the democratic state ticket just now for comptroller in the election to be held in early November. Lieut. Sunderland or mayor, if one prefers, is attached to the Service battery.

Walter Warren, an East Killingly youth, spent this day in custody at the state police barracks here in default of $1,000 bonds required for his appearance when his case comes up for a hearing in the town court on Wednesday.

The detention of Warren follows revelations and allegations made by a 15-year-old East Killingly girl, a neighbor of Warren's. The girl is in distressing difficulty just now. It is understood that the girl has made certain statements to state officers who have been investigating the case that resulted in the arrest of Warren.

A couple of rainstorms of the past few days appear to be drawing an overrating as drought killers. As a matter of fact they have proved to be nothing of the kind. All the territory hereabouts remains deplorably short of water. Only a trickle has emerged from underground into dry wells as the result of the two fairly generous downfalls of rain. Many farmers continue to haul water. They face the prospect of doing so until much more rain comes. Old-timers are confident about one thing, however. "Winter never sets in until the wells and ponds are full," they tell you. That's fine, but not so encouraging, considering the fact that the temperature was down to 22 degrees here this morning. The old-timers counter that with the forecast: "Don't be deceived; there is plenty of warm weather ahead; why you haven't even had Indiam summer yet!"

Each year at about this time the attention of the local public is directed to the annual Tag Day effort of the Civic Federation. This event is scheduled for next Saturday. It so happens that the demands upon the federation have been heavy during the past year, and the prospect is they will continue to be during the winter season that is just ahead.

The Civic federation has accomplished such outstanding work in this community through a long stretch of years that it may be a bit superfluous to again set forth here its great value to this community. Still, lest we forget, there are hundreds of people here who have reason to regard the organization with the most profound admiration. Through its visiting nurse service, for one thing, it works daily throughout the year to bring good cheer, good nursing, comfort, hope and material comforts to persons who otherwise would be left to their own and often very slender, resources. Its program of humanitarinism considers neither races nor reeds. It works with all, for all. No other organization here even attempts to approximate the splendid work it is doing. In its field it stands alone, though having the unstinted co-operation of the local chapter of the American Red Cross. Giving to the annual Tag Day of the Civic federation is a privilege and a pleasure to many here. The officers of it hope the donations will be very numerous next Saturday.

At the October meeting Harmony Court was busy with plans for the official visitation, on Oct. 23, of the Grand Royal Matron Nettie C. Miller and her corps. of grand officers.

Harmony Court is to be honored at that time, by the presence of Supreme Royal Patron, Sir Knight, Dr. Philip J. Jones, and Grand Royal Matron of Massachusetts Hon. Lady Nichol of Springfield, several other supreme officers have signified their intention of coming.

At the close of the meeting last Thursday a surprise was given Royal Matron and Past Royal Patron, Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Parkhurst in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Gifts of a modernistic vase and a book rack were presented by the officers.

The dining room was gay, the tables being set with Halloween colors. Sandwiches, pickles, cake, coffee and candies were served. All enjoyed the bride's cake which was presented her, and which she cut with due ceremony.

The evening's affair was planned by Associate Matron Norman D. Playdon.

It was, Chief John McFarland noted when he came on duty this morning, only 22 degrees above zero, this at a time before sunrise. This is the low record for the present fall season.

Miss Alice Monohan of Providence, a former resident of Danielson, has been a visitor with relatives and friends here.

Local boxers will be seen in action at Taftville Friday evening. Al Rodman will meet Young Rochette of Westerly in a 6-round bout. Al Brouillard will meet Julius Rosse of Westerly in a 4-round affair. These are amateur bouts. The same evening Rene Peloquin of Danielson goes to Worcester to appear in a professional bout against a New Bedford boy.

Will the person who holds Frigidare No. 4-4-16 please deliver it to Mrs. Richard D. Banigan on or before Nov. 1?—Adv.

Very general interest was aroused here by this morning's announcement in The Bulletin of its forthcoming publication, The Norwich Sunday Record, the first issue of which will appear Nov. 2.

Robert Saunders has sufficiently re-covered from the serious attack of illness that caused him to collapse by the roadside at South Killingly at the week end as to be able to be about Danielson again.

With Mrs. Rene Buteau as hostess to the Entre Nous club winners at bridge were Mrs. Earl Wood, Mrs. Lucien Lambert and Mrs. Richmond Dunwoodie.

These first two days of the season hunters have reported only fair luck in obtaining game birds though a number of cock pheasants have been taken.

In political circles it is of interest that active campaigning is going on in Killingly in the interest of Senator Napoleon J. Fournier of Moosup, democratic candidate for sheriff of Windham county.

It is reported that Niagara is going dry. Another triumph for prohibition?

AUTOPSY ORDERED TO LEARN CAUSE OF SUDDEN DEATH OF DANIELSON YOUTH

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 21—Coroner Arthur G. Bill today ordered an autopsy performed on the body of Francis Socquet, 22, of lower Dyer street, who died last night at the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam after having suffered agony. The body was brought to the funeral home of L. E. Kennedy on Furnace street here this morning, and the autopsy was performed here late this afternoon by Dr. F. A. Morrell, medical examiner for the town of Putnam.

The unusual nature of the young man's illness, the manner in which he suffered and the fact that he emitted pinkish colored matter from the stomach during the course of his sickness all combined to result in the order for the autopsy.

It appears that the young man, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Socquet of this town, motored to New Bedford the past week end. He became ill during the return journey, on Sunday, and grew worse so rapidly during Monday that his removal to the hospital was ordered. During Monday evening his condition became hopelessly worse and death followed during the night.

Coroner Bill said this afternoon that he wished to determine whether the young man, who was very well liked here, was the victim of some sort of poisoning of an accidental nature. For that reason the autopsy was ordered. A chemical analysis will be made, the coroner said, of the contents of the stomach, and a report on the results may not be obtained for several days.

This afternoon Coroner Bill said that he had briefly interviewed Arthur Rainville, a friend and neighbor of the dead youth and his companion on the New Bedford trip and is to question him later at more length about the trip.

It appears that both Socquet and Rainville have girl friends in New Bedford. The young men left here Saturday night to spend Sunday in the Massachusetts city. They met young people, boys and girls, they know in New Bedford and spent the night at the home of friends. Sunday morning they attended mass.

During the course of the afternoon they went riding and partying about with three New Bedford young men of their acquaintance. In the evening they took their girl friends for a motor trip to Taunton and had a meal at which they ate scallops. Their evening entertainment of the girls included attendance at a theatre. Having safely delivered the girls to their New Bedford homes Socquet and Rainville started for home. They stopped a few minutes in Providence before setting forth on the last leg of their trip to Danielson. A short distance out of Providence Socquet complained that he was suffering from severe cramps. The car was halted that Socquet, who was driving, might rest a bit, but his condition grew worse, and after a wait of about an hour Rainville drove the car to Danielson.

State Officer Elton Nolan was working on the case today.

PUTNAM

CASE OF SCARLET FEVER DEVELOPS IN PUTNAM SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 21.—While making physical examinations of pupils enrolled in the primary department of the Israel Putnam school today, Dr. Florence F. Dean, school physician, discovered one student to be ill with scarlet fever germs. Immediately after ascertaining the nature of the child's sickness, Dr. Dean conferred with Superintendent of Schools Leon M Farrin, who ordered sessions in the first grade class of Miss Gertrude Warner suspended for a period of one week, to enable Dr. Dean to continue investigation without subjecting the remainder of the student body to further exposure.

Superintendent Farrin stated that he has been assured by Dr. Dean that no need for alarm on the part of parents exists, since school health authorities are taking every precaution to prevent contagion.

Today's discovery of scarlet fever afflicting the first grade student constituted the unearthing of the first case of communicable disease in the schools this year. The affected child, Superintendent Farrin said, was found to be suffering from the early stages of the disease and the timely discovery of his condition will enable school health officers to render every assistance to prevent development of new and more serious complications.

In this movement parents are asked to cooperate in the effort being made to stamp out the contagious malady, by keeping a close watch over their children and reporting unusual observations to the family physician at once. Since the situation is by no means a serious one, no steps to quarantine exposed students will be taken, although parents are urged to keep dismissed children from associating with others who thus far have escaped exposure.

This afternoon Dr. Dean continued to examine pupils of the first grade class of Miss Angelina O'Flynn at the Israel Putnam school to ascertain whether or not symptoms of the disease had been transmitted to that division of the primary department and a report of her findings will be made public by Superintendent Farrin Wednesday.

According to a trial list for assign-ment of cases, published this morning by Clerk of Courts Curtin N. Dean, attorneys, figuring in the $10,000 damage suit instituted by Cornelius Shea of Willimantic against Andrew Link, Jr., and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., are preparing the case to be retried before a superior court jury.

The case was first tried in superior court in this city two weeks ago and after a five-hour period of deliberation the jury informed the court that it was impossible to reach a satisfactory verdict. Accordingly, Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol instructed the opposing counsel to make arrangements with court officials for a new trial. The case attracted considerable attention when first tried since the important question rested in whether John Shea, Willimantic young man, killed in an accident occurring on the Willimantic-Norwich road in December last year, was the driver of the death car, owned by Link. After a police investigation of the accident, Link was arrested and arraigned in New London county superior court, where he was found guilty of a charge of manslaughter when the tribunal was convinced beyond doubt that he was the operator of the car in which Shea met his death. He was sentenced to from one to three years in the state prison at Wethersfield.

Presentation of the case in superior civil court here, necessitated that Link be released from prison in order to testify. On the stand he unfolded the pathetic story of events leading up to the accident in which his close friend met a death for which he (Link) is paying the state with years of his life. The plaintiff and witnesses combatted the defendant's version of the incident and sent the jury into disagreement.

In the new trial, Cornelius Shea, through his attorneys, still petitions for the original settlement of $10,000. He is administrator of the estate of John Shea, the accident victim.

Fifteen cases are listed for trial on a list prepared for the short calendar session of superior court to be held in Willimantic on Friday, Oct. 24. Only one petition for divorce is entered, this being an uncontested action instituted by Mrs. Lillian Bradley Delude of Willimantic against her husband, Arthur F. Delude. Other cases listed are: The Chelsea Savings bank vs. Edna C. MacArthur, et al.; Willis L. Baker, et al., vs. Richard J Bowne; Wladyslaw Kozlowski vs. Peter Blash and Tillie Blash; Jennie A. Allen vs. George H. Allen; Walter J. Lis, by Lucas Lis, vs. John F. Lewis; Mederise Muire vs. John B. Morin; Wetmore-Savage Automotive Equipment Co. vs. School Street garage; Fernand Durand, a minor, vs. R Foster Reynolds; Gerard Bousquet, a minor, vs. R. Foster Reynolds; Karl H. Kothe vs. Sadie Rosenthal; Bernard W. Edwards vs. Alice Battey Edwards; General Equipment Co. Corp vs. Maurice S. Leonard; Boston Automotive Co vs. Harvey F. Prentice, et al.; Thelma Harris Balcom vs. Arthur Leslie Balcom. Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol will preside at the session, which will open at 10 o'clock in the morning.

AIRPORT FOR PUTNAM TO BE DEVELOPED SOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 21. — Plans are rapidly going forward for the immediate development of a Putnam airport, a community proposition being sponsored by an airminded group of progressive Putnamites, who have achieved the notable and worthwhile distinction of being pioneers in a movement to make this town accessible from the new highways of the air. Local men, who have stepped into the realm of new travel, are Subbo Nikoloff, Alexander Gilman and Whitman Danielson, incorporators of the recently organized Putnam Airport corporation. Sharing equal honors with these citizens are, Dr. and Mrs. F. G. Goodridge of Abington, who are members of the board of airport directors. Officers have been named with Mr. Nikoloff as president. Mr. Gilman is vice president and Mr. Danielson is secretary and treasurer of the corporation.

The organization has acquired the land comprising the Larned farm on the Putnam-Pomfret road and in the spring will make extensive improvements to convert the field into a modern and adequate field that will have facilities to accommodate the greatest liners of the air both in the way of making landings and take-offs.

President Nikoloff this afternoon termed the movement as one which has only the advancement of Putnam's aviation facilities as its chief interest. The corporation is supported by private funds, which were necessary since the community in itself is not in a position to aid financially. In the minds of the incorporators, the development of an airport is a matter of paramount and immediate importance to Putnam and northeastern Windham county at large and in view of circumstances the investment of private funds was the only means through which action could be taken at the present time.

Mr. Nikoloff said the corporation is intensely interested in developing the Larned field at an early date, but due to the early arrival of cold weather it has become necessary to postpone the execution of plans until spring. However, preliminary improvements are being made at the present time so that aviators may utilize the field at any time during the coming winter months.

Larned field has received the praise of all birdmen who have alighted upon it. It is especially well adapted for the requirements of an airport, both in size and geographic position. Its situation with regard to the position of wind velocity is such that an airplane can land or take off from the field in any direction, that is to say that the approaches contain sufficient runway area to permit a plane to land or take off into the wind, regardless of what direction from which it might be blowing. This is a feature few airports in this vicinity are enabled to boast of.

Another point deserving of serious consideration is that adequate airport facilities are essential to Putnam if the people of the community ever hope to be served by the post office department's air mail services and at the present time this city lies in the proximity of an established Boston-New York air mail route, which will eventually include Putnam as a stopping point when a government approved air station is provided. Officers of the board of directors of the new airport corporation are also of the opinion that within a period of five years, the owners of passenger air lints will avail themselves to the use of the proposed Putnam airport, which alone will have lasting benefits for the city.

The success of the whole thing, Mr. Nikoloff stated, rests entirely with those who have elected to assume responsibility for the development of the airport. The burden, he said, is a large one and a credit to the public spiritedness of his fellow workers who have joined in the proposition that is absolutely without the slightest prospect of early financial return for those who have given so freely of their time and money.

"Navy Day" was given a premature observance in Putnam yesterday when flags were raised over business houses and public buildings Monday. A few of the merchants imbued with patriotism released their colors to the breeze when under the impression that Oct. 20 was the date set aside, as "Navy Day" and incidentally the birthday of the late President Theodore Roosevelt. One merchant, discovering he had erred in the matter of historical facts and dates, has decided to honor the navy for its part in making and maintaining the nation for a week's period and consequently will leave his colors flying until Monday, Oct. 27, which will be nationally observed as "Navy Day" and Roosevelt's birthday.

Armistice Day will be fittingly ob-served in Putnam this year. The event falls in mid week and arrangements for the usual recognition accorded the anniversary marking the end of the World war are already being formulated. Schools will be closed and business will be generally suspended on this day, Nov. 11. A parade will be held and the observance will be brought to a close with a programme of public speaking. A town appropriation of $150 was made at the October meeting, for the use of the general committee in charge of the celebration.

Chief Special Deputy Commissioner Chauncey E. Genung of the state department of domestic animals while in Putnam today on official business reported that Woodstock and Pomfret sheep raisers have sustained losses through the recent depredations of sheep-killing dogs. Two dogs have already been captured and killed and searches are being made for others still believed to be at large. This is the first time in more than a year that canines have taken to the warpath by launching offensives on unprotected sheep.

This morning's announcement in The Bulletin of the initial appearance to be made on Sunday morning, Nov. 2, of The (Norwich Bulletin) Norwich Sunday Record, is one of special interest to Bulletin readers of Putnam and communities in the immediate vicinity of Putnam. As explained in the formal announcement appearing on the front page of The Bulletin today the Windham county news columns will be contained in the new Sunday morning edition, the same as on week days. Inasmuch as the new news medium makes its debut next week, it is important that readers receiving The Bulletin on delivery routes maintained by The Bulletin Co., place their orders with the newsboys at their earliest possible convenience. The standards of breakfast table delivery afforded Bulletin readers on week days will be in order on Sunday morning in Putnam and elsewhere throughout the eastern part of the county.

Mrs. Walter Rich, local woman re-publican leader, and Miss Katherine Byrne, vice-president of the republican state central committee, were in Hartford today, attending a state rally.

Armand J. Lizotte of Main street made a business trip to Boston today.

Jasper Holmes of Grand View, who has been seriously ill, is making a satisfactory recovery and is now able to be out of doors a few hours daily.

FUNERAL

Walter Durfee

The funeral of Walter Durfee, formerly of this city, who died Sunday in Oneida, N. Y., was held this morning in Putnam. Members of the Quinebaug lodge of Masons were in charge of the service, which was conducted according to Masonic rituals. Burial was in Grove street cemetery. Mr. Durfee was born in Putnam and attended schools here and for a number of years worked as a printer and pressman in a local printing office. He went to Oneida, N. Y., where for a time he engaged in police work and in other professions. He was an excellent musician and well known for his ability as a bandmaster. Besides his wife and daughter, Mr. Durfee is survived by a sister, Mrs. S. Nikoloff, of 209 Pomfret street, this city.

JEWETT CITY

UNCERTAINTY OF RESULTS IN COMING ELECTION

Not in some years have the registrars, town committees and party leaders been so active as in the present pre-election days. With close to 100 who are qualified to cast their ballots, there seems to be no certainty in either camp as to how the cat is going to jump. Of late, the borough elections, and several of those in the town, have been pretty well in the bag before a ballot was cast. The registrars have nearly completed the voting list, which gives evidence of being the largest ever accredited to Griswold. There have been 11 nominations for justice of the peace, all of whom will be elected. Six of these names will appear on the democratic ticket and five on the republican. Until last year, there were always 12 nominations, six by each party. Griswold can have only 11 justices, thus there was always the low man who failed of election. Since the Griswold town court supplanted the justice court, the duties of these officials are mainly the executing of legal papers with an occasional marriage. W. R. Palmer married four couples last year and he says the fees were not all "poor house" ones, either.

Lively interest was manifested in Monday evening's bowling contest between the two girl teams, which resulted in the following score: The high single, 86, went to Miss Dufresne, with the high three, 245, chalked up to Miss LaChapelle.

TRAPPING SEASON NEARS— OUTLOOK FOR OTTER PELTS

O. C. Watson, who is getting ready to put out his trap line off to the east of Mt. Misery, with the expectation of being able to lift his bank account a few dollars with the money he will get for his catch of skunks, was over to see the town clerk Monday about taking out his hunter and trapper's license. Mr. Watson said he hated to have to pay such a terrible price for it, but planking down the necessary coin, he took his card and button and departed. Local hunters are some inclined to believe the report of the veteran woodsman, when he declared that he would have a new pelt to show within a few weeks, as he had seen the unmistakable signs of otter, on Mt. Misery brook; in fact, had located one of their "slides." The now-and-then appearances of the Canadian otter in the local great wild districts off to the south and east of the town, have been few and far between. A hunter named Hix, who in 1880 lived in the basement of the Whiting block, shot an otter on Baldwin's brook in the town of Canterbury during the time of a February freshet, and sold the skin for $13. Hal Chase saw one swimming in the Pachaug river, above the "Nigger" bridge, about ten years ago. The same spring, Amon Phillips shot at one below the old flume of the Hopeville mill, which structure had been a ruin for 26 years.

Mr. Watson said that near his old home at Macardis, Maine, every pond and lake generally had a few otter. He used to trap them there, and is not mistaken now. A brother trapper passing, he said, is not expected to meddle with an otter, even if seen struggling in the trap. In the case of a mink, the laws of the trapper require him to kill it and hang up the carcass to a neighboring bough, then reset the trap. Generally, however, the old Maine trappers were very distrustful of each other, adding that to rob a trap is an offense of the "high sass" order, and is never overlooked nor forgiven.

During Monday night the mercury dropped, according to the lowest reading, to 24. Vines and plants, growing close up to buildings, which had escaped earlier frosts, were killed in the freezing temperature.

Double Birthday Celebration

Dorcas circle of the King's Daughters was entertained at the home of Miss Grace E. Olin Monday evening, 26 being present. The rooms were fantastically decorated with hobgoblins, witches, owls and grinning pumpkin moonshines, spitting, arched-back black cats and various other animals appearing, a veritable zoo. Entirely a surprise to the leader, Miss M. A. Burdick, the affair was arranged as a birthday party in her honor. She was showered with all kinds of remembrances, each one accompanied by a birthday card, which was read by Mrs. N. B Parkhurst. A handsomely decorated birthday cake lighted with candles was brought into the room and placed before the leader and Mrs. E. B. Cheney, who, also, was enjoying a birthday. The two cut the cake while Mrs. Everett H. Hiscox gave a toast. The program was most entertaining with animal games and puzzles and animal prizes were taken by Mrs. W. H. Payne and Mrs. F. I. Ray, Miss Sarah and Mrs. J. W. Carter, Mrs. Alice Anthony and Mrs. Payne. There were readings by Mrs. F. E. Robinson and Mrs. Ella Geer. Sandwiches, hermits and cocoa were served. During the evening, the members told their experiences in earning a dollar during the summer, a good sum being realized. Miss Olin was assisted by Mrs. Gertrude Sparks in preparing the many unique features of the delightful evening. The committee, Miss Olin and Miss Adams, was assisted by Mrs. Parkhurst, Mrs Payne, Mrs. Cheney and Mrs. Ray.

As a sign that the war is over, the bodies of thirty-nine Hungarians who died in detention camps in Sicily have been interred in the Victory monument at Palermo. The former dead were saluted with full military honors at the burial ceremony.

MOTORING TO FOOTBALL GAMES

Those who live on the main highways of the state centering at New Haven know what effect the football games have upon traffic. Those who have occasion to use those arteries on the days when minor games are to be played know what a rush there is before and after the games.

While much additional traffic is caused prior to the small games, the line of autos becomes continuous on the Saturdays of the big games, and along with this traffic there is the steady cutting in and out by those who want to get there quicker.

Thus when recognition is given to this traffic condition by the motor vehicle department, the state police department, the state highway department, the police of cities, and automobile clubs, it will be apparent to those who have driven to such games or gotten into the traffic line that there is good and sufficient reason for the regulations which they are sponsoring in the interest of safety.

The days when the highways of the state are burdened with heavy traffic and uneasy drivers are times when there needs to be a full measure of caution used. It is a time when traffic needs to be kept moving but it should move with full regard for conditions and the need of protecting the other fellow as well as self.

Through the measures that have been taken in other years and through the plans that have been made this year, with departments and organizations cooperating, there should be valuable contributions to safety. The days of the big games are days when there is no place for the reckless driver, the chance-taker or the fellow who is disposed to race for advantage.

Handling such a large crowd by means of motor vehicles involves apparent difficulties, and it is through the recognition of such that accidents can be kept at a minimum. Regulation of traffic, policing the highways and freeing the main roads from construction work on those days are excellent precautions and, with the cooperation on the part of motor vehicle drivers, the valuable work of accident prevention can be accomplished.

IMPORTANCE OF ADVERTISING

In speaking before the New England Advertising convention at New Haven this week, Allyn B. McIntire of the Pepperell Manufacturing company of Boston asked the question, "Has New England an advertising future?" and then, in Yankee style, proceeded to answer it by both asking and answering more.

He is convinced that New England has an industrial future, a farming future, a vacation future and an advertising future, and he believes the last to be the greatest because in that direction we have done the least. He bases this upon what advertising has done for other parts of the country, those sections which are familiar because of the advertising they have received, directly and indirectly.

Recognizing the importance and the accomplishments of advertising, Mr McIntire knows of "no good and valid reason why practically every manufacturer here in New England, I don't care where he is located, should not be carrying on an advertising campaign in the local papers of his town or city, to say nothing of all the other cities in New England. Local newspapers supply a force for the sale of merchandise that should be quick acting and productive of results. . . . Those manufacturers should be advertising first to sell their wares right at home. If they can't sell them there how can they expect to sell them elsewhere? . . . Advertising and the future of any locality relates most closely to the use of advertising by the concerns in that locality."

Mr McIntire has sent home a point that is too seldom considered. There are manufacturers who are persistently carrying on just such advertising campaigns, and doing so to their advantage. They are known and their goods are demanded. They are making business for themselves and their localities. They have recognized the mistake of keeping their light hid under a bushel, trusting to the chance business and keeping from those closest to them, where they are in business, what they are offering and what advantages they have to offer to the buyer. They are leaving their home field open to others and neglecting business development which they want and should seek.

CONTROLLING HUNTERS AND FIRES

It is not the practice of states to adopt laws of a uniform character when their legislatures are in session. None of them suffer from a lack of business when the law-makers get together, but much legislation originates from conditions experienced and the resulting desire to see that they are prevented in the future, and from the experience of other states in trying out new regulatory measures.

Quite the same as individuals can profit from the acts and mistakes of others, states can and do handle their problems.

Just now attention is being called to the fact that where the governors of certain of the eastern states have placed a ban on hunting because of drought conditions, it is impossible for any such step to be taken by certain of the other states. This isn't always because the desirability of such a law hasn't been considered, or because no effort has been made to obtain legislation conferring such authority on the chief executive of the state, but because it has been impossible to convince the law-makers of certain of those states that such a move is needed.

While opinions may vary concerning the effect of such closing of the woods to hunters as governors believe necessary in dry periods, and while there may be a question as to how many fires are actually started by hunters, it is evident that such reduction of the number of persons in fields and woodlands by the prohibitory order contributes its share to the needed prevention.

It all depends upon conditions as to how often such an order will be used and how long it will remain in force. The states which have a law giving the governors such authority are in a position to deal with emergency conditions of that character which is not the case with other states. It is an advantage which speaks for itself and it is authority which isn't likely to be abused. It is the greatest good of the greatest number that is at stake and those states which are waiting for some serious condition to provide distressing home experiences before acting are failing to profit by the experience and action of others who have already gone through the mill.

RELIEF MEASURES

With the special committee named to deal with unemployment during the winter, no delay is being tolerated in perfecting the organization and getting down to business.

With the selection of Arthur Woods, former police commissioner of New York and former head of the unemployment commission under President Harding, a man of experience and ability has been chosen for directing the relief work.

Indications from Washington that the administration proposes to ask congress to remove restrictions upon federal public work point to the fact that while congress has already given its approval to certain projects to be undertaken over a period of years it has not provided the money with which such work can be undertaken. Approving a project and voting the money for it are decidedly different, but it is possible for it to authorize the entrance upon such work at once. That being done, there would be furnished no small amount of federal funds for winter work, especially if there is the speeding up of preliminaries which too often involve delays and red tape.

With the government going ahead in this direction it should get plenty of cooperation on the part of states. Some will be able to do much more winter work than others, but the voting of $1,000,000 by Boston and a drive to obtain $2,000,000 through public subscription indicates the reaction in Massachusetts to the unemployment relief which the president has inaugurated.

Early action by the committee is not only needed but assured. The task is by no means trifling, but with federal, state and other agencies putting their shoulders to the wheel the situation is bound to experience a help that will prevent suffering and distress.

GENERAL WEYLER

By the death of General Valeriano Weyler there is recalled that period in his career which covered his military service in Cuba. It was a period that did not add glory to his name. However must it may have been that he was the one selected to carry out the policy of Spain toward the Cubans, it will never be possible to efface the record which he made in the island during the two periods he served there.

During the ten years' war in the island which ended in 1878, Weyler was not in command of the Spanish forces, but he was closely connected with the charges which grew out of the military executions at that time. In 1896 he was sent back to Cuba as governor-general in order to put down the rebellion. Even though it was his claim that conditions developing from the leniency displayed by his predecessor necessitated the strong tactics which he followed, it was because of the brutality which occurred after he took office that protests of such a character were made in the congress of this country that he was recalled the following year. He was charged with terrorism, brutality and the starvation of 200,000 Cubans, civilians as well as rebels, in his efforts to put down the rebellion.

General Weyler served at many important posts for Spain. He was a military attache at the Spanish embassy during the Civil war, governor-general in Cuba, the Philippines and the Canaries, and following his recall from Cuba he held responsible posts in the Spanish ministry. Military service did not prevent him from living to the ripe old age of 92 or from getting many prized honors from his country in recognition of the long and faithful service he rendered. Spain never failed to appreciate his value as a military leader and government supporter. Cuba can never forget him.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Every little cold wave has a meaning all its own.

With the lawn mower put away for 1930, it is time to put the snow shovel in shape for early service.

If the opening session was a fair sample, the German reichstag is due for an interesting winter.

The question has quickly changed from "Is it hot enough for you?" to "Are you keeping cool without ice?"

The man on the corner says: Where are the boys who used to hike for the woods to get the chestnuts the first frosts released?

It will not take long to get used to running the heater instead of the lawn mower, or to removing the ashes instead of emptying the pan under the icebox.

AN APRIL FOOL

"The 1st of April!" mused Virginia, "my birthday! How very appropriate! And I can truthfully state that I was never a bigger fool than one year ago tonight!" In gazing at the reflection staring back from the mirror, her face flushed with disapprobation. That the face was youthful and attractive did not in the least mitigate this feeling.

"Seven-ten!" she exclaimed, consulting the watch lying on the dressing table. "I must hurry or I'll be late! Ah me! how pretty my costume was! Arthur declared—avaunt romance! Remember, Miss Virginia Marsh, that you are now secretary to Mr. Brief, head of a large law firm, and that you are looking forward with pleasure to spending another afternoon at the public record vaults, digging data from dry and dusty volumes, to be used in the case of 'Colby vs. Chase!'" Shortly after this soliloquy Miss Virginia Marsh was hurrying along the street to the elevated station.

As the train rushed toward the city her thoughts kept reverting to the fancy dress ball she had attended one year ago that evening at Phi Delta Theta fraternity house, with Arthur Noyes as escort. How happy she had been with the party in prospect and what a miserable failure it had proved!

"Why, oh, why, did I let Arthur see that I was angry? Perhaps if I hadn't been aware that Bess Ferguson was just behind his back, straining her ears to catch every word, I would have allowed him to explain! But there she was, and I, goaded into a fit of temper—comes of having red hair—stopped him peremptorily, with, 'There's no need of an explanation, Mr. Noyes. I understand perfectly!' Surely I cannot blame him for not speaking another word till he bade me good-night on my own doorstep! He's quick tempered, too! If—"

"Madison and Wells!" shouted the guard.

Drawing ponderous tomes from their niches, running down dead and gone business transactions, Virginia endeavored to keep her thoughts from straying beyond technical terms, but she might as well expect to find in the musty volumes the tales of the genii, and several times she was obliged to tear leaves from her notebook and begin over again.

With head bent low, she was unconscious of a young man swinging around a distant corner into the corridor or of his advancing within a few feet of where she was working and then pausing abruptly. All the while she was engaged the young man remained in the same place and, though he made a pretense of examining a certain record, he was in reality watching her. When finally she was ready to depart he darted ahead a few steps, stopped, picked up something, glanced at it a moment, then thrusting it hastily into his pocket, ran siftly on and caught up with Virginia just as she was about to leave the vaults.

"Miss Marsh!" he ejaculated.

With a little cry of surprise she exclaimed, "Arthur! Mr. Noyes!"

"Have you a moment to spare?" he asked.

Virginia replied that she had.

"There is something I'd like to explain to you."

"What is it?"

"It concerns the night of the Phi Delta Theta ball one year ago," he began. "Doubtless you recall that after Bud Turner cut in on our dance I disappeared?" with the bright color mounting her cheeks Virginia nodded, and he resumed, "I have long wanted to apologize to you for my seeming rudeness, but never had an opportunity. The reason I left so unceremoniously was, I had received word that the caterer's truck had skidded off the road and all our refreshments were in the mud at the bottom of the ditch! As chairman of the committee it was up to me to provide more and it required some hustling—"

"Then you were not out with Bessie Ferguson?" Virginia interrupted.

"Hardly! But I suppose you are in a hurry. May I call tonight to explain fully?"

"I shall be at home," she nodded.

The instant Virginia was gone Arthur took from his pocket a crumpled leaf that had been torn from a notebook. Smoothing it out, he again read, "Know all men by these presents, that I, John J. A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 — The world gets a laugh out of the idea that a sailor might hire a row boat for pleasant relaxation between voyages, or that the mailman might do a walking tour on his annual vacation.

Yet Jim Preston, veteran superintendent of the senate press gallery, found just about as improbable a way of amusing himself during an off-season stay in Atlantic City, supposed to be devoted to rest.

Jim is a veteran of all the national political conventions that have happened since he came of age. It has been his job to fix up press arrangements at such affairs for republicans and democrats alike.

He has measured up available space, battled over its apportionment and all that in every convention hall that ever offer itself as a stage for either of the great American political circuses held every four years.

You would think—he was fed up with that sort of thing.

Competition

He's a nervous sort of chap, however. He finds just sitting a hard job—too hard.

So after a few days sitting at Atlantic City, he hastened off to dope out national political convention possibilities of the fine new hall just completed there. And he found them amazing.

"Think of national committeemen having more than 20,000 spectator tickets to hand out," said Jim. "There never was any such animal."

Which presents the quite probable alternative of San Francisco or Atlantic City as the republican convention city of 1932. Both are expected to put in for the honor, San Francisco having narrowly missed it two years ago.

With a California president to be renominated in 1932, presumably the Pacific and Atlantic seaboards will vie for 1932 gathering.

Which ought to be good news to the host of reporter folk who will have to be there wherever the big show goes.

Giddap

Preston encountered an old Washington friend at the Atlantic City hall, part of the staff. He is Frank Hartnett who used to be a reporter on a Washington paper. And Hartnett recalled a news assignment of those times that tickled Preston very much.

It was when the Wrights were getting ready fo rtheir first military airplane test flight at Fort Meyer over the Potomac. They were to fly to Shooters Hill, in Alexandria, and back, perhaps 20 miles all told.

Most people expected them to smash up, so Hartnett's city editor ordered him a-horseback to "cover" such an emergency.

"The plane finally got off," said Jim, "and so did Hartnett, galloping. He spurred along frantically in the wake of the plane. And by the time he was a mile out on his blowing steed, the plane was back at Fort Myer, the job finished. That's what he saw of it all."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Williams' Views

Mr. Editor: On several occasions in the past you have had some high sounding editorials on civic duty and honesty in public affairs. Fine ones. At the time of the "blow out" in Willimantic you remarked sagely that the people themselves are to blame for such things, because they would not look into, or concern themselves with the public pocketbook. Let the officials have a free hand, as it were, and so if they got trimmed by one or a combination of public officials it served them well right, or words to that effect. How about it? Was, and is such talk just editorial "we" stuff? Or is it be taken with the tongue in the cheek, as a sort of joke on the suckers. Just tripe, like German promises. It seems so, for on several occasion during the last few years I have tried to use your paper as a means of stirring public interest in the affairs of this town. Did I have any luck? No! You either cut all the meat out of it, or refused to print it at all, and I've never stated anything that isn't common knowledge and proved by the "town reports." No room! I suppose you claim. But you can find room for such letters as appeared signed 100 Per Cent American.

His letter is an insult to every one of us who went across to help lick his friends. What is he doing here and what was he, she, or it doing during the war? Probably blowing up some of these dear ones who ducked the overseas business to work in ammu. shops and dockyards. He hopes Germany will tear up their treaties. Of course they will! They always did! And I for one hope they tear up the treaties with some American business men who have loaned them millions to do business on, at low wages, to make goods for Americans to wear and use, goods which should be made by Americans at high wages. If a suit of clothes is made by a German at an average wage of 80c a day, it is a certainty that that suit of clothes can not be made by an American at $4 a day average. And we wonder why all the mills are closed. Facts of history are facts. And facts we see and experience are the strongest form of facts. If this self-styled 100 Per Cent American still loves the imperial sham so much, and what he and his gangsters stood for, I hope he does make cranberry sauce for the blighter and I hope I'm there to help square my account with that gang. I'm a cripple from the war, but if this 100 per center thinks he ought to have a war, and really needs it, I'm open for dates.

This German 100 per center talks pitifully about a 25c hanky that the French gypped the boys with, but says they got a Frenchman to do their buying for them, so it appears to be a 50-50 transaction, one Frenchman putting it over on the other Frenchman and the Yank getting the hanky. As to paying for graveyards, let this 100 per center try to get buried here and see how it costs him. But I'll bury him willingly for nothing, for I am of the opinion that anyone who thinks the women and children drowned on the Lusitania got just what they deserved and speaks as callously of tearing up treaties and causing another war needs some considerate treatment. Of course, there will be another war. Anyone who has been in Europe in the last few years know it, especially us ex-war chumps who mix with and talk with the other ex-war chumps—German, French, Italian and British. I've talked with hundreds of them and seen them getting ready for it. Anyone can, but the old ones will be pretty canny next time; they will let George do it and become war workers and Y. M. C. A. men themselves. Once is too much. But I'm still of the opinion that any sane person who still worships his imperial niblets can not be a 100 per cent anything.

Hash

Mr. Editor: Do you know I really believe we are getting away from the real good things of life and what I mean to infer is the real good "eats" we used to have. It is an axiom that we eat to live, not live to eat, and still love to get something that appeals to the inner man, something that tickles the palate. We enter some place with the thought we are going to have the best there is on the menu card, and we are confronted with a lot of names of dishes that we do not know. We try to wrestle with the name, and in sheer desperation, compromise and order ham and eggs. Yet on the bill of fare there may be something we intended to order. It is hidden behind some outlandish word we don't know and we don't like to ask, for we imagine all eyes are focused on us and we don't want to let them know we don't know and still they are missing the one thing that is the real essence of life—hash. I know what kind of hash is good and brother let me tell you the real dish today is corned beef and tomorrow it makes its bow as hash. Yet this delectable dish can be made as mysterious as any chow you have ever known for it is ofttimes the creation of many things that have been saved from day to day and finally comes down to the present time in the "ambiguous conglomeration" that is known as hash. I am willing to bet that some of you old New England people have often heard the hired girl down in the kitchen pounding away in the early morning in the old chopping bowl when she was getting that ambrosia ready for the morning meal. As you lie in your bed up under the rafters you now and then get a whiff of the aroma that is wafted up the back stairs, when she opens the back door to look for something more to add to that dish that gives off this savory appetizing odor.

Boy, you can say what you will, you can sing the praises of hot tamales or chop suey, but brother, lead me to that one dish that is known as hash. There are some folks who can make hash so good that you just love to eat until you have to kinder let out another link in your belt. You feel like fighting it out on that line if it takes all summer.

Yes sirree, the moderns have missed all these good things for there is another form of hash in the shape of codfish and potatoes. Rather a plebian dish but what wonderful goodness was in this, and what memories it brings to us! With nice white boiled potatoes and with all this goodness spread over it. Oh, by the way, there is that real homemade tomato ketchup. Will you please pass it this way? Thank you.

These are only two of the many things we recall and there are many others for with the incoming of other people they have brought in the hot dog and the spaghetti and these somehow or someway have driven out that great national dish of hash, that was one of the standard dishes of yesterday. I personally care not what others may take but as for me give me hash and plenty of the fixin'sthat go with it.

Still in this winter of our discontent we can look with civic pride on the one thing that is dear to the heart of every loyal son of New England—baked beans. Oh, there is a dish that poets rave over and when we get near to where they are we sniff the aroma that is like the blest odors of Arabia. It seems that the coat of arms of New England ought by right to be emblazoned with a loaf of brown bread and a pot of beans embossed in all their grandeur upon a background of that succulent dish called hash.

The question before the house is what will we have today? Reader, you furnish the answer.

Rheumatism Is Not Hopeless

By Ralph Pemberton, M. D.,
Philadelphia.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Rheumatism is an old term which is applied, often erroneously, to a large number of conditions. Two of these conditions, however, are of great importance. The first is rheumatic fever, sometimes called acute inflammatory rheumatism, which generally affects young people, is accompanied by fever and great pains in the joints and often induces, unless well treated, more or less permanent damage to the heart. The second condition is that which is known as arthritis, is more or less chronic and is often called arthritis deformans or rheumatoid arthritis. Both rheumatic fever and chronic arthritis are in some part preventable and are diseases, the latter especially, for which a great deal can be done under the best conditions of modern practice.

The exciting causes of rheumatic fever are not fully known but the disease is generally thought to result from an infection, that is some kind of a micro organism, although it is not contagious. The site of this infection is often to be found in the tonsils or teeth and, since the removal of bad tonsils has become more general among children, the number of cases encountered is considerably less than formerly. At the first sign of illness the patient should be put at complete rest under the care of a physician. There is no single remedy which will check the disease but much can be done to relieve the pain, lessen the danger of involvement of the heart and, not infrequently, to shorten the course of illness. One of the most important considerations for the layman to appreciate is that ample time should be allowed for convalescence even after all symptoms have apparently disappeared, in order to avoid the danger of cardiac damage.

Chronic arthritis is the oldest disease known to man and is probably the cause of more disability and economic loss than any other condition, except "colds," which affect mankind. Because of the difficulty of successful treatment, scant attention has been given to it but fortunately at present a large movement is going forward with the aim of arousing the laity and the profession alike, to the importance of instituting early and vigorous measures of prevention and treatment. Despite difficulties in therapy and the considerable time often required for treatment, a great deal can be done for this condition, much more than formerly, and there is no longer justification for the hopeless outlook which many patients and even many medical men have entertained. The disease is not hereditary but the tendency towards it may be. Knowing this, it is often possible to pick out those persons most likely to develop it and to prevent the disease by precautionary steps.

Many persons suffering from arthritis make the mistake of postponing treatment because they are not wholly incapacitated, although perhaps gradually becoming so. The disease should be treated early, however, not only because it is easier to prevent deformities than to correct them, but also because, as in nearly all other conditions chronicity only adds to the difficulties already present.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

West Haven Buckle Company, West Haven.

The West Haven Buckle company, a corporation according to the laws of Connecticut, was founded in 1858 in West Haven, then the town of Orange. The meetings were held in the West Haven school house until the first building was erected during that same year on the present building site of the company on Washington Ave. The first directors of the company were S. S. Hartshorn, Silas Thompson, Minot Ward, Geo. W. Tuttle, and Wm. R. Shelton. From these Wm. R. Shelton was chosen president and Geo. W. Tuttle secretary, treasurer, and manager. S. S. Hartshorn was the mechanical genius who patented, in the company's name, the first hinge buckle to be made in America and from which most of the buckles now in use today have been developed. Three years later Geo. R. Kelsey, formerly connected with a Middletown buckle company, joined the firm as secretary and treasurer. These men laid the foundation of a company that celebrated its 75th anniversary in 1928.

In 1860 a wealthy retired ship owner and merchant, Daniel Trowbridge, became interested in the company. He traded stock holdings in an oyster company for stock in the buckle company and was that year elected its president, holding that post until his death in 1892. By this time buckles had come into general use and the company prospered. Additions were made to the original building from time to time, all of which are in use today.

George R. Kelsey resigned from the company in 1888 and started the American Buckle company on Campbell avenue in West Haven. Silas Thompson's sons D. S. Thompson, C. E. Thompson and George R. Kelsey remained in the offices of secretary and treasurer, and president respectively until 1900. In this year C. E. Thompson became the treasurer, Phelps Montgomery the president, and J. C. Hyde became the secretary.

This company now specializes in surgical and clothing buckles and fastenings which are used on such articles as artificial limbs, orthopedic appliances, garters, pants, vests, overalls, etc. The products are classified as follows: Prong buckles, point protected buckles, slide bar buckles, frame buckles, clamp buckles, catches, hooks, slides, rings, links and special wire formings. These buckles range in size from three-eighths of an inch to two inches and are made from brass and steel.

West Haven buckles are now sold all over the United States, in Canada, South and Central America, and Europe.

The present directors of the company are: Phelps Montgomery, a grand-son-in-law of Daniel Trowbridge; Burton Mansfield, who manages the Shelton interests; C. E. Thompson, a grandson of Silas Thompson; A. M. Hyde, secretary and manager of the company; J. P. Montgomery, a great grandson of Daniel Trowbridge.

Leading Hospitals throughout America make it a point to specify KOTEX

WHY do you suppose our outstanding hospitals, staffed by world-famous surgeons, make it a point to specify Kotex? There's more than one reason!

In the first place, it is hygienically safe. In the second place, it is amazingly absorbent—and that is vital for all surgical purposes. Actually—think of this—Kotex is five times as absorbent as the finest surgical cotton! The material of which it is made (Cellucotton—not cotton—absorbent wadding) is laid layer upon air-cooled layer. And each one of these delicate layers is a quick, complete absorbent in itself.

Because it is so absorbent and because it absorbs scientifically (not just in one concentrated area but all over) Kotex naturally stays soft. It is guaranteed to stay soft longer than any other sanitary pad.

13,000,000 pads to hospitals alone

To give you an idea of the great weight of hospital approval in back of this first of all sanitary pads, the hospitals of America bought 13,000,000 Kotex pads during the first nine months of this year. Then added to this number, they bought 2,500,000 pounds of Kotex absorbent—which is enough to make 80,000,000 more pads. Hospitals need the best. So do you. Safety, security, good health demand it. Why should you be content with anything else when you can buy Kotex everywhere—at all drug, dry goods and department stores?

You ask for it by name. Simply specify: Kotex.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a special process.

4—Disposable, instantly, completely.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

The NEW KOTEX BELT

brings new ideals of sanitary comfort! Woven to fit, on an entirely new patented principle. Firm yet light; will not curl; perfect-fitting.

HUGH BLACKLEDGE

He was a staunch republican and in June, 1908 was elected a member of the court of common council. The following year he was appointed to the board of water commissioners. He also served as a member of the board from 1916 to 1922.

For years Mr. Blackledge was a deacon and a trustee of the Greeneville Congregational church and always took an active interest in the affairs of the church. FRAMINGHAM MAN DIES IN HOSPITAL AFTER CRASH AT HARLAND RD. CORNER

Fatally injured in an automobile crash on Washington St, about 8:15 o'clock Tuesday morning, while on the way to attend the funeral of his nephew, Richard Elmer Cormier, 15, killed in an automobile crash at Northfield, Vt., Philip Cormier of Grant St., Framingham, Mass., died at 3:25 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the W. W. Backus hospital. His skull was fractured. Edward J. Cormier, 38, of Hartford, cousin of the boy who was buried yesterday, escaped with a bad cut over the left eye. He was arrested by Constable Lucius A. Fenton on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. Later an additional charge, manslaughter, was placed against his name and his bonds set at $2,500.

The two men, and a third whose identity had not been learned, were riding in an Essex coach, registered in the name of William P. Cormier of Hartford, and said to have been driven by Edward Cormier. The machine, according to Constable Fenton, was being driven towards Norwich Town at a speed of about 60 miles an hour, and crashed into a telephone pole and upset near Harland corner.

As the fast moving machine approached Harland corner the driver suddenly applied the brakes, the machine slid sideways for about 40 feet, hit the pole and toppled over. The car was practically demolished and the victims were removed from the wreckage with much difficulty. Both men were rushed to the hospital, nearby. Constable Fenton, after learning the facts in the case, arrested Edward Cormier at the hospital, after he had received treatment for his cut, and he was taken to police headquarters. His answers to questions were vague and in some cases he refused to make any answer. He was asked for his driver's license, and after searching his pockets stated he did not have it. Chief Linton asked him where the license was and he replied that he guessed it was at 156 Putman street, Hartford. He declined to admit that he was driving the machine. Constable Fenton, however, claims that the man admitted driving while at the hospital.

Coroner Edward G. McKay, because of the seriousness of the accident, started an investigation during the early afternoon. After Mr. Cormier's death, Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve conducted an investigation and J. J. Lyons & Co., undertakers, were given charge of the body.

Mrs. Cormier was in Norwich to attend the Cormier boy's funeral, but was not riding with her husband at the time of the accident. She was at his bedside, as were other members of the family, when he died.

Mr. Cormier leaves besides his wife, three children, Richard, Elizabeth and Philip. The body, accompanied by relatives, was taken to Framingham Tuesday evening by the J. J. Lyons Co.

FIRE CAUSED DAMAGE AT BROAD ST. SCHOOL

An overheated smokepipe caused several hundred dollars damage at the Broad street school building, about 8:15 o'clock Tuesday morning. The fire was discovered by Miss Marion Beebe, a teacher at the school, and a telephone call was sent to the fire department. Engines No. 1 and No. 3, and Chief Henry R. Taft responded.

A line of hose was laid and the fire was extinguished in about 45 minutes time. The smokepipe ignited a wooden partition, the flames spreading to the ceiling of the cellar and burned through the first floor into one of the class rooms. It is the third fire of its kind to occur in the building. The trouble will be remedied by the construction of a re-inforced concrete floor.

Because of the fire, the fifth and sixth grade sessions hours have been changed. The sixth grade will be in session from 8:30 until 12:30 and the fifth grade from 12:30 until 4:30 o'clock.

In conclusion he called attention to bad posture in young girls and gave the warning that many times pains in the neck, arms, legs or back were ascribed to bad posture and could be cured if the posture were set right.

The lantern for the slides was operated by Jean Kieffer.

FINED FOR LITTERING HIGHWAY WITH GLASS

Although he was freed of a charge of transporting liquor, Patrick Cox, 55, was fined $20 and costs in the city court Tuesday morning on a charge of littering a highway with broken glass. For lack of convicting evidence, City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy recommended that a charge of transporting liquor for purpose of sale be nolled.

Cox was arrested Monday by Officer Clifford Crary after he had been seen taking a gallon jug of alleged moonshine liquor from a taxicab on West Main street. When the officer approached Cox the latter smashed the jug in the street.

NEW LONDON STUDENT WON NORWICH SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Carlotta Damon, of New London, who won the scholarship from the Norwich Art school to the school of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, has commenced her studies in Boston.

SUPREME COURT SESSION CONTINUES ALL DAY

Because the first case to come took so much time for arguments the supreme court of errors which was in session here Tuesday did not close until close to 6 o'clock in order to dispose of the three other cases on the docket. Arguments in the first case were not closed until 3 o'clock and the attorneys in the cases coming afterwards were told by Chief Justice George W. Wheeler that each case could have an hour for arguments.

Sitting with Chief Justice Wheeler were Justices William M. Maltbie, George E. Hinman, John W. Banks of the supreme court bench with Superior Court Judge C. L. Avery, who took the place of Justice Frank D. Haines. Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown offered prayer when the court session opened. Sheriff G. H. Bradford was the court officer.

Court opened with hearing the City of New London's appeal in the case of City of New London vs. Pequot Beach company and Lucius E. Whiton, both of New London. The city sued to obtain possession of a certain proportion of Pequot avenue, being the highway extending from Pequot avenue at the lighthouse to Neptune avenue. On trial before Judge John R. Booth in the superior court, he gave judgment for the defendants and the city took the appeal. Thomas E. Troland, director of law, argued the case for the city, with Attorneys Frank L. McGuire and C. B. Waller for the defendants.

The next case argued was defendant's appeal in The Texas company vs. Jacob R. Solsberg, Hattie Solsberg, the Shetucket Coal and Lumber company, of this city, concerning a boundary line on Erin street, where the Texas company wanted to put up a fence, which was blocked by the action of the defendant or his agents. Judge C. B. Waller in the common pleas court gave gudgment for the Texas company up to the divisional line and $100 damages. Attorney E. W. Perkins made the argument for the plaintiff and Attorney C. V. James for the defendants.

Third on the list was the case of Demetrio and Samuel Chinigo, both of Norwich, against Samuel Ehrenberg of the same city, which was an appeal by Ehrenberg from a common pleas court judgment by Judge C. B. Waller in favor of the Chinigo's for $981.34 and $50.33 costs. There was an allowance of $217.93 under a counterclaim, the suit having been brought over a contract for digging a cellar and other work in January, 1927. Attorneys E. W. Higgins and John H. Barnes represented the plaintiffs and Attorney C. V. James the defendant.

The final hearing was in the appeal in the suit of John J. Somers of John J. Somers of Bridgeport against his brother, William A. Somers of this city in which an accounting and judgment were sought involving the property 212, 214, 216 Main street. The brothers were formerly in the grocery business, and were joint owners of a lease of the premises mentioned. On July 10, 1909, the plaintiff sold his interests in the grocery business to the defendant, but retained his interests in the lease, according to his claim, and on Oct. 11, 1909, John Somers gave a power of attorney to William Somers. The plaintiff claimed that he and his brother were negotiating to buy the premises, but that William Somers took title in his own name on Dec. 19, 1914, and has never rendered an accounting of rents collected or any acts under the power of attorney. In the superior court trial of the case, Judge Allyn L. Brown gave judgment for the defendant, finding that the 6 year statute of limitations applied in this case which precluded recelvery by the plaintiff. The arguments in the supreme court were made by Attorney G. H. Gilman for the plaintiff and by Attorney C. V. James for the defendant.

RECREATION COMMISSIONER SPEAKS TO K. OF C.

William J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the recreation commission, gave an interesting address at the regular meeting of White Cross council, No. 13, K. of C., Tuesday evening in K. of C. home, Broadway, with Grand Knight Patrick M. Coleman presiding. He spoke upon the recreation commission. The speaker was introduced by Lecturer Matthew J. Sheridan.

Mr. Fitzgerald traced the history of the recreation commission since its appointment in 1922. He said that of the $6,000 that is appropriated by the city, $4,000 is expended for salaries for instructors, leaving only $1,500 to take care of repairs and purchase of new material.

There are at present 11 play centers in the city, at which about 1,300 children were enrolled this year, continued Mr. Fitzgerald, who spoke of other lines of activity in charge of the commission.

At the business session committee reports were received and it was voted that the officers arrange for the annual memorial service.

NORWICH ART ASSOCIATION OPENS SEASON PROGRAMME

The first number of this season's programme of the Norwich Art association was a lecture Monday evening on "America Comes Into Her Own in Design." After the usual business meeting in Converse gallery the vice president, Miss Ruth Hamilton, in a few well chosen words on "Pioneering in America," led up to the evidence of a pioneering spirit in art to be described by the speaker of the evening, Alon Bement, director of the Art Center of New York city.

Mr. Bement began by saying, "I am going to make a statement with which you probably will not agree, art is passing into the hands of industry. Later, I hope to prove that this is true." He went on to say that art in its younger days was the child of the church, note the frescoes and ornamentation of the old Roman Catholic churches. Later it came into the care of education. Now it is entering the world of industry. The collection of workers of art and founding of museums was always due to the merchant princes.

Mr. Bement then gave some of his own experience studying art for many years in various countries, only to find later that he must unlearn the ways of painting of the nations among whom he had worked. He also found Europeans asking for an American painter with a style of his own, not a mere copyist of the French, English or others.

Not in painting only, but in other lines of art, America has been accepting the product of others. Look at our homes. Scarcely anything there of American design except the telephone receivers and radiators, but even in these we are beginning to look for beauty. Mr. Bement told of a representative of the Bell Telephone company who came to him for advice as to how to make their instruments less ugly. Mr. Bement suggested having four expert designers compete, each to be paid $1,000 and the successful one to receive $5,000 more, and it is being done.

Illustration and proof of Mr. Bement's first statement were also drawn from the popularity of certain makes of automobiles, and the improved appearance of them all.

Taking up the subject of design in textiles, Mr. Bement said: "The reason we are using so many French designs is that we have not enough artists in that line to supply the demand. Cheney brothers alone put out about 400 designs each season of which only 75 are American, simply because they cannot get any more." The speaker brought from Statili and company some exquisite samples of silks in new designs, (all American) which were passed around in the audience.

At the close of the lecture Mr. Bement, by request, gave his opinion and explained the reason for it, of an exhibit of Cheney silks on the walls of the hall. He warned his audience not to say too rashly: "This or that is good or bad," but rather to say "I do or do not like it."

A social hour followed with light refreshments.

The November meeting of the association is to be an open meeting with a Russian dance recital by Vera Mirova on the programme.

ACADEMY'S NEW GYMNASIUM BUILDING IS DEDICATED

Dedication of the beautiful new Norton Memorial gymnasium building at Norwich Free Academy was conducted with public exercises Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at Slater Memorial hall, followed by inspection of the building, with a near capacity gathering including students, their parents and friends of the Academy. Owing to the large number of students attending school, only the members of the senior class were permitted to take part in the exercises.

For a period previous to the opening of the exercises the Academy orchestra, under the direction of Frederick H. Cranston, offered a fine programme of music and also accompanied for the singing. The exercises were opened promptly at 8 o'clock by Prof. Henry A. Tirrell of the Academy, who asked Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, for the prayer of dedication, which was followed by the singing of America.

Shepard B. Palmer, president of the board of trustees, a number of whom, with the guest speaker, Dr. Ernest E. Butterfield of Hartford, new state commissioner of education, were seated on the platform, welcomed the gathering, and went on to say that nine years ago the class of 1883 of N. F. A., wanted by some means to honor the late William Hutchinson, former Academy principal. They conceived the idea of collecting necessary funds to be used in the construction of a gymnasium in his memory, but later the matter was turned over to the executive committee of the school. The class at that time had collected $9,000.

At this point the speaker, in referring to the late Henry B. Norton, in whose memory the gymnasium was constructed, said that over 100 years ago a young man about 16 years old came to Norwich alone and entered a store as a clerk, later becoming head of the business. Mr. Norton, said Mr. Palmer, was prominently identified with many industries in Norwich, several of which were founded by him, and was also greatly interested in civic enterprises, but the Norwich Free Academy was held in his highest affections. He was president of the school corporation for 16 years, was widely interested in it and spent much time and money for its advancement.

Miss Ella A. Norton, daughter of Mr. Norton, was finally approached by members of the executive committee, asked for a sum of money for the erection of the gymnasium and contributed the same with the understanding that the building be constructed in memory of her father, said the speaker. Her contribution, together with available funds, enabled us to complete the gymnasium, he said, one room of which is to be known as the Hutchinson room, in which a memorial tablet will be placed in memory of William Hutchinson.

Professor Tirrell introduced Dr. Butterfield, who congratulated the gathering upon the acquisition, and pointed out that it was a gift that would not only influence the present generation, but generations to follow.

The subject of Dr. Butterfield's address was Life, Happiness and Long Life, which was based upon two letters that he read, both of which were written by students at college to their sisters, one 100 years ago and the other of recent date.

We are all going to live longer than we thought we would, said the speaker, who backed up his statement with a quotation from a Columbia university professor that the span of life has been increased ten years in the past decade. We are going to work less than we expected; the working day is growing less. He cited the fact that the working day has decreased from 12, to ten and finally to eight hours, and now Henry Ford predicts that a five-hour day will be sufficient. So the working day grows longer and the leisure day grows longer.

With the longer life, shorter working period, there is a need today, said the speaker, for equipment that will permit for happiness in old age. We must keep in mind the children. They must have many social interests and physical entertainment, making their leisure time a satisfaction. I wish all boys and girls in high school would learn to play golf, the real walking kind of game, and the jumping kind of dancing.

In closing, Dr. Butterfield said that he was glad to rejoice with the gathering in the dedication of the building, a health center for long life, health and happiness.

Two men who were interested in the new gymnasium, Franklin Pierce, superintendent of education, and Dr. J. Prohaska, senior supervisor of physical education and health, both of Hartford and connected with the state board of education, were introduced by Professor Tirrell, who announced that the gathering was now afforded an opportunity to inspect the gymnasium. They were taken on a tour of inspection of the rooms by Academy students and John and William Schaeffer, janitors. There was also dancing to music furnished by Eddie Brennan's Atlantic Beach orchestra.

DRINK WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Plain water best diuretic. Add a spoonful of ordinary JAD Salts to clear intestines of poisons that may pass from intestinal tract to kidney and invite trouble.

If you have miserable pains in your back, or strained feeling, don't jump to the conclusion you have a bad kidney ailment and start dosing yourself with a lot of medicine. Plain water is the best diuretic—the best flusher of the kidneys you can find.

Drink a full glass one-half hour before breakfast to which you've added a spoonful of ordinary Jad Salts. The water will flush the kidneys. The Jad Salts will cleanse the intestines of the dangerous toxins of Systemic Poisoning which are probably the real cause of those back pains.

According to recent discoveries of able men of science, these toxins frequently pass from the lower intestines to the kidneys, causing pus formations and pain—and inviting trouble. Get them out of your system ad chances are those pains you've diagnosed as "kidney pains" will go like magic. You'll feel a general easing up, less of that horribly tired and strained feeling at your back. You'll feel more snappy and alert than perhaps for years.

You can get the Jad Salts at any corner drug store. Just ask for ordinary Jad Salts. Take as suggested above. Also drink two glasses of plain water between every two meals and at bedtime. Then if your "kidney pains" aren't completely gone in six days or less, see a good doctor. Try this simple way today. You'll be glad that you did.

JOHNNY WOODS TO SUBSTITUTE FOR RUSSO AGAINST CURCIO

Claiming that he is unable to box because of illness Joe Russo of Westerly has been forced to cancel his engagement with Johnny Curcio of Providence in one of the three star bouts of the Shyma club show on Friday evening. In his place Matchmaker Leo Flynn has secured Johnny Woods of New York as a substitute.

This will be Woods' second appearance in a local ring as he came in as a substitute against Russo early in the summer. Those that saw Woods that night will never forget him. He came into the ring with all the awkwardness of a first nighter and then proceeded to give Russo one of the worst shellackings of his career. That night Woods threw gloves from every angle and they landed just where he wanted them to land with the result that Russo looked like a very poor novice against the New Yorker. However, in New London, Russo eked out a close decision in an uninteresting fight, Woods apparently not extending himself to win over the Westerly boy.

The substitution instead of taking away from the interest of the card really adds to it as it is very evident that the New Yorker is a much more experienced boxer than Russo. Woods possesses a good amount of science and also packs plenty of steam in his punches which will make him a better opponent for the Veteran Curcio than Russo.

Local interest will be divided between the Jimmy Quinn-Tony Caprio bout and the Vic Darr-Al Koziol go. Quinn is fighting his first bout over the eight round route which will be a severe test for him. Starting in with the four rounders Quinn soon graduated to the six-round preliminaries and now is given his chance over the longer route. It is possible that he will show better in the eight rounders than he did in the shorter bouts as he is strictly a boxer and not a fighter. But he meets no setup in Caprio, who, like Quinn, is fighting his first eight rounder.

Caprio has met some tough boys during his professional career since leaving the amateurs. He has met Ero Peterson, Harry Devine, Romeo Dubois and Geno Pecheni, local youth, with varying success. His experience seems to be somewhat more extensive than that of Quinn but the local boy also has an excellent record and is developing a punch which is something that he has lacked. Caprio has engaged in 40 professional bouts and has won 32 of them which speaks very well for his ability.

These two star attractions should prove very acceptable appetizers for the main go between the two local youngsters, Vic Darr and Al Koziol. Both the local boys are working hard and there is plenty of hatred between the two which dates back to the Kop-Koziol feud of several years ago.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COMMISSION HOLDS UP BROUILLARD

Dynamite Lou Brouillard, the Danielson boxer that may climb to the heights of fistic fame, remains in the doldrums for the time being but not because he isn't rarin' and tearin' to go. Frank Barber of Danielson has a letter from Frank Flourney of the Madison Square Garden organization that has signed up Lou, setting forth that Brouillard's suspension in New Hampshire must be raised before the local boy can get going without wraps again. It is understood that Commissioned Thomas Donahue, New London, Connecticut, boxing commissioner, is willing to let Lou through, but up in New Hampshire the reaction has not been so gracious up to the present time. Lou got in Dutch up at Keene by socking a home-boy favorite out of the picture. And it so happened that he hit the New Hampshire boy, while the crowd was a yelling crazy mob, after the bell had been sounded to signal the end of the round. Lou says he did not hear the bell—and you can believe the boy. He was winning, anyhow. However, there are complications for the time being. The Garden people are anxious to straighten things out. They have a lot of work cut out for Lou the coming winter, and frankly state they regard him as a big shot.

SANTA KAYOS HEFFNER IN FIRST ROUND

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(AP)—Jose Santa, Portuguese rival of Primo Carnera for the crown as the biggest heavyweight in the ring, knocked out Tiny Heffner of Philadelphia in the first round of their scheduled ten round bout at the Broadway arena tonight. Santa carried 258 pounds into the ring; Heffner weighed 223½.

Twice Heffner put over wallops to the jaw that sent Santa down for counts of seven and three. The second time, Santa got up and delivered a ponderous blow over Heffner's heart that ended the bout, which was only two minutes old. There was some difficulty in reviving the Philadelphian.

In another ten rounder, the veteran Philadelphian, Battling Levinsky, knocked out Joe Simms, St. Louis negro, in the third frame after sending him to the floor three times. The weights: Levinsky 195, Simms 214.

ACADEMY FACES TOUGH ASSIGNMENT IN WESTERLY

The Academy football team reaches the halfway mark in its season Friday at Westerly when the Wildcats meet Westerly high, 1929 conference champs and who are making a strong threat to repeat this year. The N. F. A. boys have a nine-game schedule and this is the fifth start. They have beaten Chapman Tech and Hartford Bulkeley and lost to Harding and Fitch.

In Westerly, the Academy meets the only undefeated eleven in these parts and one that the locals can expect the stiffest sort of a tussle from. Westerly has played four games and won them all. They walloped Central Falls and West Kingston and gained close decisions over Windham and Bulkeley.

NO SCRIMMAGE FOR YALE SQUAD THIS WEEK

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Taking no chances on further injuries to his squad, Coach Mal Stevens today decided not to scrimmage his Yale team this week as it practices for the Army game.

Instead, he gave the sons of Old Eli a long workout on fundamentals, the linemen going into the bull pen for charging while the backs threw forward passes.

The afternoon was topped off with a signal drill with Booth and McLennan directing the first and second backfields, respectively. With Booth were Austen, Dunn and Crowley, who started the Brown game and who undoubtedly will start against the Cadets. Beane, Taylor and Muhlefeld were in McLennan's combination.

Charlie Helm, third string quarterback who has been on the injured list, reported today.

DIFFICULT TASK FACES TENNIS RANKING COMMITTEE

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The problem of making up the American tennis ranking list for 1930, with the scrambled results of the season's tournament play to work on, has prompted the ranking committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association to start its work weeks earlier than usual.

The task has not been lessened by a change in the chairmanship of the ranking committee, placing the responsibility upon Dr. Philip B. Hawk, who already is chairman of the Men's National Championship committee of the U. S. L. T. A., and chairman of the Tournaments' committee of the West Side club, Forest Hills. The former chairman of the ranking committee, William M. Fischer, resigned in mid-summer upon taking up the business of tennis instruction.

If Dr. Hawk's present plans work out, he will hold a meeting of the national committee on or about Nov. 17, in New York, two months in advance of the annual meeting of the association, in order to whip the rankings into shape. Meanwhile he has called for the rankings of the 14 sectional associations of the U. S. L. T. A. as a basis for the main job.

For the first time since his suspension nearly pushed him from the top of the list a few years ago, Big Bill Tilden is in danger of being deposed from the No. 1 position he has occupied for ten successive years. Taking into consideration his play abroad, where he won the Wimbledon crown and scored America's only Davis cup triumph, Tilden well might be kept at the top but he slumped on home courts, losing to Frank Shields at Southampton, defaulting to Cliff Sutter at Rye and losing to Johnny Doeg, the new national champion, in the semi-finals of the national championship.

On the other hand, the inconsistency among young rivals of Big Bill mitigated against the selection of any one of them to displace him.

Doeg, by winning the national doubles with George Lott and then sweeping through the national championship field, defeating Tilden and Frank Shields in the semi-finals and finals, compiled the most impressive record at home.

Wilmer Allison defeated Henri Cochet and Doeg at Wimbledon but lost to Sidney Wood at Southampton and to Shields at Forest Hills. Wood beat Shields at Southampton but lost to the latter in the nationals.

Other rising young stars who will be candidates at least for positions well up in the "first ten" include Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, sensation of the early tournament season; Bryan Grant of Atlanta, the national claycourt champion; and Clifford Sutter of Tulane, the new intercollegiate title holder.

SEVERAL TEAMS HAVE CLEAN SLATE FOR TWO SEASONS

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Several of the great football teams that went through last season without defeat have fallen already in the course of a strenuous campaign, but a handful headed by Notre Dame go marching on as though possessed of charmed lives.

Several leading colleges have not lost a game in more than a year—Notre Dame, Utah, Western Maryland, Ohio university, Texas Christian and Fordham. The first three named have not even been tied.

Virtually all of these seven are scheduled to defend their records against formidable foes this Saturday. Notre Dame plays Pittsburgh, Utah meets Denver, Duquesne opposes Catholic university in a Friday night affair, and Fordham comes to grips with its metropolitan rival, New York university, in a game that has the big town stirred up.

Somewhat easier assignments are anticipated by Western Maryland in meeting Loyola of Baltimore and by Ohio and Texas Christian in playing Miami and Texas Tech, respectively.

Knute Rockne's men will carry a string of 12 straight victories into battle with Pittsburgh's powerful eleven at the huge Pitt stadium Saturday. Not since Southern California tossed them for a 27-14 loss in the final game of the drab 1928 campaign have the Irish been beaten or held to a draw.

Utah, king pin of the Rocky Mountain conference, was last beaten by Creighton in 1927, although tied by Brigham Young and Creighton in 1928.

Under the expert coaching of Dick Harlow, former mentor of Colgate and Penn State, little Western Maryland, one of the smallest schools in the east, has won 16 straight games since it was tied by Gettysburg in 1928. Included in this sweep were two victories over Georgetown and one over Maryland.

Fordham was tied twice last year and Duquesne once but otherwise they have carried all before them. A tie last season and a scoreless game with Simmons a few days ago are the only breaks in Texas Christian's victorious progress. Ohio, after going through last season unbeaten and untied, was held to a draw on Oct. 11 by West Liberty.

Among the football elect of last year who have fallen before the present season has passed the halfway point are Tennessee, which suffered its first defeat in 34 games since 1926 at the hands of Alabama Saturday; Southern Methodist, which fell before Notre Dame in a thrilling game; Tulane a victim of Northwestern's powerful attack, and St. Mary's, turned back by California by a single point

AMHERST-WESLEYAN GAME TO BE AT AMHERST

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The Wesleyan-Amherst football game, originally scheduled to be played here next Saturday, will be played at Amherst on that day.

The Wesleyan physical education department today accepted the invitation of Amherst authorities, who yesterday declined to permit their football team to play here because of an outbreak of infantile paralysis, to transfer the contest to that school

This is the first of the "Little Three" series. Wesleyan plays Williams at Williamstown on Nov. 8.

Reds Get Two Players

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 21.—(AP)—The Providence Reds, of the Canadian-American Hockey league, have secured two new players for the 1930-31 campaign, it was learned today with the announcement that the team would train here with the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey league. The players are Jean Pusie, owned by the Canadiens but who played with London, Ont., last year, and Gerald Carson, also of the Canadiens. Charlie Gagnon, with the Reds last year, returns to the Canadiens for the coming season.

BAIN IS PRACTICALLY UNKNOWN IN RING

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, ring clown, Broadway playboy, and light-heavyweight champion, will step around the corner from his favorite thoroughfare into Madison Square Garden tomorrow night to battle 15 rounds with an almost unknown title challenger, Abie Bain, of Newark, N. J.

Searching through the records, the experts are nicknaming Abie "Where-Have-You-Bain," for the Newark youngster never has appeared in a main bout before in the Garden or in other leading fistic centers. He has confined most of his battling to the home town in Jersey. His chief claim to fame is a decision there recently over Rene De Vos, of Belgium.

Rosenbloom, conquerer of Jimmy Slattery in Buffalo last spring for the 175-pound crown, has had trouble finding suitable title opposition in a class that has gone slightly to seed. A short time ago he toured the country in a series of non-title appearances. He has failed so far to convince the New York state athletic commission that he should be permitted to fight out of his class because of the shortage of suitable light-heavyweight opponents.

Bain, a rough, strong youngster, is given little chance to defeat Rosenbloom and the wagering on the champion probably would be 5 to 1 if there was any wagering.

Pete Sanstol, Norwegian bantamweight, will meet Joe Scalfaro, of New York, in the ten-round semi-final.

BASEBALL RULES TO BE GIVEN AN OVERHAULING

NEW YORK, Oct 21.—(AP)—There are far more important revisions needed in the baseball rules than the elimination of the sacrifice fly, in the opinion of John A. Heydler, president of the National league.

Although refusing to comment on the suggestion of President E. S. Barnard of the American league that the sacrifice fly be banned, Heydler predicted there would be a thorough revision of the rules at the December meeting of the two major leagues.

"Scoring rules in particular need clarifying," he said, "so that the average fan can tell the difference between an error and a hit. The method of figuring pitchers' records also is in need of changing.

"There is a committee of baseball writers working on the clarification of the rules but I cannot say just what revisions they will recommend. Personally I prefer to remain out of any baseball discussion until the football season is over."

Merle Hufford, Washington "Deer," Scurries to Coast Halfback Fame

MERLE HUFFORD
Washington U.

By FRANK GORRIE

SEATTLE—(AP)—Imagine a deer running for his life over a piece of logged-off land, and you have a picture of Merle Hufford, fleet-footed University of Washington halfback, carrying a football through a band of opposing tacklers.

The "Milton-Freewater Splash" is considered one of the greatest grid players ever developed in the Pacific northwest.

He is the whirling, weaving, dancing type of a ball carrier and has no equal in this part of the country when it comes to performing in a broken field.

Once past the line of scrimmage Hufford passes his interference like the wind and from there on one witnesses one of the most thrilling stunts of football.

He has the knack of shifting at the right moment and often dances away from a would-be tackler just as you expect him to go down.

Although playing on an eleven that failed to win a single conference game last year, Hufford easily gained All-Pacific coast halfback honors. He was the unanimous choice of sport critics.

And the youngster who hails from the joint communities of Freewater, Wash., and Milton, Ore., not only shines at carrying the ball but throws and kicks as well.

He is the main gear of the Washington lineup and does most of the punting and pass throwing for Coach Jimmy Phelan's squad.

Hufford's only weakness has been his defensive play and interference running. In high school, the only thing he learned about football was how to run with the ball.

When not packing the pigskin he stood around and watched the game.

Since playing at Washington, however, he has picked up the other necessities quickly and now rates with the best in all departments.

The late Enoch W. Bagshaw, head football mentor at Washington from 1920 to 1929, last year declared Hufford the best backfield man he had ever coached. And Bagshaw has handled some mighty fine ones including George Wilson and Charles "Chuck" Carroll, two All-Americans. Hufford is 20 years old, weighs 170 pounds and is 5 feet 10 1-2 inches tall. He has one more year of college competition after this season.

EDDIE CASEY MAY GET HARVARD COACHING BERTH

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Unofficial reports that Arnold Horween would be succeeded by Eddie Casey as coach of the Harvard football team at the end of the current year were described as "premature" by Director of Athletics William J. Bingham.

"I am not certain," Bingham said, "whether or not Horween is willing to return next fall and nothing will be done about the matter until after next month's Yale game."

Casey, now Horween's backfield coach, appears to be in line for his chief's job as a result of Harvard's graduate coach policies. He stated, however, he has not been offered the position and he did not expect the subject would be broached until the season ended and then only after Horween had declined an invitation to continue as head coach for another year.

When Horween agreed about last December, to retain command of Harvard's football through the 1930 season, he warned Bingham that he could spare but one more year away from his Chicago business interests. It is known, however, Bingham will make a strong effort to make him reconsider this decision some weeks hence and only after a definite refusal will the Crimson athletic director and his athletic committee take any steps to select a successor.

Casey, one of the Crimson's greatest backfield stars, has a wide coaching experience. He first served at Mount Union college, Alliance, Ohio, about ten years ago and then at Tufts college. Five years ago, he returned to Harvard as freshman coach and had marked success for three seasons. He joined Horween's staff in 1929 and his transfer to the varsity indicated, at least to followers of Harvard football, he was being groomed to succeed Horween whenever the latter decided to retire.

TICKNOR GIVEN REST BEFORE DARTMOUTH GAME

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Captain Ben Ticknor, Harvard's All-American center, was idle today when Head Coach Arnold Horween started his final drive for Saturday's Dartmouth game by putting his squad through long and arduous fundamental drills. Ticknor was bruised in the Army game and has been ordered to sleep in the Stillman infirmary to obtain complete rest. He was able to attend classes today and will return to the squad tomorrow. Horween has been assured by Dr. Tommy Richards that his husky pivot man will be able to start against the Green.

Gildea took Ticknor's position during practice and, with all the other forwards, went through hard sessions on the tackling, charging and blocking machine. The endes and backs spent most of the session drilling on forwards and laterals.

Eddie Mays, who has been out three weeks, rejoined the squad and alternated with Jack Crickard at left halfback. Charlie Devens, regular right halfback, was in uniform but was given only light work.

DECLARES ANNOUNCEMENT TO BE PREMATURE

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Announcement from Toronto today that Pittsburgh interests would take over the Niagara Falls franchise in the International Hockey league the coming season, was declared "premature" by Roy D. Schooley, of the prospective purchasers, tonight. He added, however that negotiations were on in Pittsburgh with league officials expected to come here later in the week to further discuss the project.

Schooley, who will own the club with the Townsend estate if the deal goes through, formerly owned the Pittsburgh Yellowjackets, national amateur hockey champions of a number of years ago. The Yellowjackets later were turned into a professional aggregation. The Townsend interests have been connected with hockey here for a long time, owning the National league club before it was sold to Benny Leonard.

Efforts to bring an International league club to Pittsburgh follow the recent transfer of the local National league franchise to Philadelphia.

INTERNATIONAL HOCKEY LOOP TO BE ALMOST AMERICAN

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 21.—(AP)—The International Hockey league will be pre-dominately American in complexion when the teams line up for the opening of the 1930-31 season.

At the league annual meeting today authority was granted for the transfer of the Niagara Falls, Ont., team to Pittsburgh, and the Hamilton, N. Y., team to Syracuse N. Y. The Toronto Millionaires will be disbanded for the season, leaving seven teams in the circuit. Of these, five will be in the United States—at Cleveland, Buffalo, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Syracuse. The two Canadian representations will be London and Windsor.

F. G. (Teddy) Oke, owner of the Niagara Falls and Toronto franchises, decided not to operate the Millionaires this winter after he learned he could not obtain permission of arena gardens to play his home games at the downtown home of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey league. The Millionaires suffered big financial losses last season when they played to slim crowds at the Ravine rink in the northwest part of the city. Oke would not risk another season at that rink, remote from the downtown seection.

Oke will retain the territorial rights for his Toronto franchise, which will remain in suspension this season. He will send his Toronto and Niagara Falls players to Pittsburgh, which has transferred its National Hockey league franchise to Philadelphia.

BABE STRIBLING WINS OBER JOE TRABON

TOPEKA, Kans., Oct. 21—(AP)—Outboxing his opponent, Herbert ("Baby") Stribling, Macon, Ga., was given a newspaper decision over Joe Trabon, Kansas City welterweight, in a 10-round no decision bout here tonight. The bout was featured by Stribling's clever dodging and lightning-like punches.

LAWRENCE FIVE CLASHES WITH AETNA THIS EVENING

The Lawrence Five, the leading bowling team of New London, will clash with the Aetna Five this evening at the Aetna alleys in the first game of an intercity series. Keen rivalry exists between the two teams and the competition in tonight's match will be very torrid.

GAGNON TAKES SLUGGING MATCH FROM O'KELLY

BOSTON, Oct. 21.— (AP) — Jack Gagnon, Boston heavyweight, outslugged aggressive Con O'Kelly, former Irish champion here tonight in a furious ten round battle. The victory entitled Gagnon to a battle with "Young" Stribling here on October 31. Gagnon weighed 192 and O'Kelly scaled 194.

KELLOGG EXPLAINS PRESENCE OF COACHES AT PENN GAME

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 21.—(AP)—N. A. Kellogg, director of athletics at Purdue university, said tonight an "evident misunderstanding" caused publication in a Milwaukee newspaper of reports that Purdue had three scouts at the Wisconsin-Penn game last Saturday. The paper named "Earl Martineau, Christy Flanagan and Bill Mathei" as the Purdue scouts.

Martineau did the only scouting for Purdue at the game, Kellogg said, explaining that Flanagan scouted Pennsylvania for Notre Dame at the request of Knute Rockne, Irish coach. The "Bill Mathei" mentioned, Kellogg said, probably is Guy Mackey, a Purdue freshman coach, who attended the game unofficially "as did any other person in the crowd, merely through a desire to see the game."

Kellogg said he had received no word of the matter from George Little, Wisconsin athletic director.

WOLFF RETURNS TO DARTMOUTH LINEUP

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 21—(AP)—Shep Wolff, important cog in Dartmouth's backfield, rejoined the Green football squad today and participated in the long drill that Jackson Cannell arranged to fit his gridiron charges for Saturday's important clash with Harvard.

After warning his players that the Hardvard game would be "an even, hard battle", Cannell stressed his aerial attack so strongly that observers became convinced his team would play an overhead game against the Crimson.

The varsity backfield quartet includes Quarterback Morton, Wolff and Donner halfbacks, and Sutton, fullback.

Jewett City "Jolly Five" Organize

The Jewett City "Jolly Five" pocket billiard team has organized for the coming season and wishes to hear from any team in eastern Connecticut for a home-and-home match. The team would prefer to hear from Hickey's Norwich All-Stars for next Monday or Tuesday evening; also would like to hear from New London, Willimantic, Plainfield, Moosup or Danielson.

Please answer through this paper's sport page.

Kolb Lost to Aggie Team

STORRS, Oct. 21—(AP)—John Kolb regular tackle on the Connecticut Aggie football eleven, will be lost to the team for the rest of the season, it was disclosed today. He sustained a severe spinal injury in Saturday's game with Trinity. It is hoped, however, that Kolb will be able to take his position as pitcher on the varsity nine next spring. A long workout was in order this afternoon.

Eastern Football Briefs

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Princeton's football varsity, preparing for the Navy game, found the freshmen plenty tough and showed only a slight margin of superiority in an hour of scrimmage. Bogar replaced Trix Bennett at quarterback and made the longest run of the day from scrimmage, a 55-yard dash on an off-tackle play.

NEW YORK—Evidently believing it will not be easy to gain ground through Fordham's great line, Chick Meehan gave his New York university outfit a thorough drill in passing, with Bob and Bill McNamara, Jim Tanguay, Joe La Mark, Vic Connor and John MacDonald on the throwing end.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—Malloy and Burlingame were used at the end posts in place of Messinger and Carlmark today and may start against Yale. Malloy has been pushing Messinger all season while Burlingame, a lanky sophomore, played his first big game against Harvard and made a good showing.

PHILADELPHIA—Penn's defeat by Wisconsin led to a drastic shakeup in the Quaker varsity today. Captain Dick Gentle, Walter Masters and Tom Barrett were dropped to the second team and Warren Gette, Mel Hemeon and Rolf Carlsten to the third team.

HAMILTON, N. Y.—Walter Terry, Colgate halfback, suffered a pulled tendon in the game with Michigan State and will not be able to play against Penn State. Clauer, Antolini and Ask, sophomores, are battling for the vacant post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Navy, after two straight beatings, hopes for better luck against Princeton. Gray, Kirn and Hagberg, injured in the Notre Dame game, participated in a strenuous scrimmage session today.

PITTSBURGH—A short scrimmage marked Pitt's workout today for the Notre Dame invasion. Ted Daily was at left end, indicating that neither Jim MacMurdo nor Ed Hirschberg, injured regulars, would be able to play against the Rockne men.

SPORT BRIEFS

The only new coach in Montana collegiate football circles is Roland Deitmeier, graduate of Carleton college, coaching at Intermountain Union college at Helena.

Montana university, Pacific Coast conference member, will have a lighting system for football games next fall.

Dartmouth college this year has ten good backfield men.

John Lindquist, former Swedish distance runner in the Olympics, is a caretaker of an apartment at Butte, Montana.

Monk Campbell, Alabama university quarterback, is called the lowest running back in the Southern conference by sports writers.

Yale football teams, according to the experts, labor under the disadvantage of outmoded and cumbersome suits.

Chicago's 24-0 defeat by the Northwestern football team is the worst the team has been trampled in 29 years. In 1900, Wisconsin won 35-0.

Not a member of the West Point football team this season chose No. 12 jersey, the numeral made famous by "Red" Cagle, great back.

At the Rockland Palace fight club in New York women are admitted free whose male escorts have bought ringside seats.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Black Pussy Grows Thin

Who lacks for food well ne'er grow fat;
You may be certain sure of that.
—Black Pussy.

Poor Black Pussy! She was growing thin. Each day saw her a little thinner than the day before. She wasn't her sleek, well-cared-for self at all. Her fur was becoming rough and unkept. Farmer Brown's Boy noticed it. He called his mother's attention to it. "Something seems to be wrong with Black Pussy," said he. "I don't remember ever to have seen her so thin before."

"I've noticed it," said Mother Brown. "I've been trying to fatten her. She eats enough, goodness knows. Every night I put out a great big plate of food and a saucer of milk for her; and every morning the dishes are licked clean."

Farmer Brown's Boy rubbed his nose thoughtfully. "You don't suppose that scamp Flip has been stealing her food, do you?" said he.

Flip the Terrier looked up when he heard his name mentioned. Then, as his master said nothing further to him, he dozed off again.

"No," said Mother Brown, "I'm sure Flip hasn't been stealing Black Pussy's food. A couple of times I have looked out in the shed shortly after putting the food out, and when I knew that all the time Flip was here in the kitchen, each time the food was gone. Black Pussy has been getting all that is good for her. I have fed her regularly every night. Of course, she has had some scraps through the day, too. But she's always hungry and she is growing thin. I think there must be something wrong with her."

"Meow!" said Black Pussy, coming up just then. "Meow! Meow! Please give me something to eat."

Mother Brown paid no attention to Black Pussy but went about her work and Farmer Brown's Boy went out to the barn. A few minutes later Mother Brown heard a noise in the pantry, the door of which had been left open a crack. She peeked in and was just in time to see Black Pussy jump down from a shelf with a chicken leg in her mouth. Mother Brown drove Black Pussy out of that pantry in a hurry, you'd better believe. However, Black Pussy hung onto that chicken leg. She rushed outdoors with it and there she ate every scrap of meat from the bone.

"I haven't known Black Pussy to do such a thing as that since she was a kitten," declared Mother Brown. "I don't see what ails that cat. No, sir, I don't see what ails that cat. She isn't herself at all."

Meanwhile, Farmer Brown's Boy was doing some thinking. He was beginning to suspect that perhaps Black Pussy wasn't getting her dinner each night. It didn't seem reasonable that she should be eating so much, yet remain so thin. No, sir, that didn't seem reasonable at all. He decided that that night he would see for himself just how much Black Pussy did get to eat. The more he thought of it, the more he began to suspect that some how, some one was stealing Black Pussy's food; and the only one he could think of was Flip the Terrier. He had a suspicion that some how Flip was fooling Mother Brown and was getting the food that was put out for Black Pussy.

So he decided that he would keep an eye on Flip that night and know for certain just where Flip was and what he was doing after Black Pussy's supper had been put out for her. In the mean time, Jimmy Skunk was growing fatter and fatter. Never had he had such easy living. Everything was just as Jimmy liked it. He didn't have to work for his food and he had all he could eat with no trouble at all. From Jimmy Skunk's point of view, it was wonderful.

Listless? Depressed?

Don't let constipation wear you out. Combat it with this modern Chewing Gum Laxative.

To correct constipation you must first know that the way you take a laxative is fully as important as the kind of laxative you take. All laxatives will vary in effectiveness unless every particle can be made to work. Feen-a-mint the original chewing gum laxative, was prepared to insure uniform "internal distribution," which is now known to be so important in the operation of a laxative.

Because you chew Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the quantity swallowed as upon the thoroughness of its distribution throughout the alimentary tract.

While you chew this delicious bit of gum the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage, it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the health laxative. Ask for a package at any drug store.—Adv.

MANY IN ATTENDANCE AT FUNERAL OF MURDERED RHODE ISLAND SENATOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 21—Funeral services of Senator Charles Burdick, Richmond, were held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Avery funeral home in Hope Valley, R. I., and attended by over 250 mourners, many of whom were politically prominent in Rhode Island affairs. The services were conducted by Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, D. D., pastor emeritus of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church of Westerly, who spoke of the deceased, patriotically in his service to the state as representative and senator from his town, helpful neighbor and father and husband. The tragic death, Rev. Burdick declared, was familiar to all present.

There were many and beautiful floral tributes from Chomowauke club members of Charlestown which bordered the Burdick farm on Shumunkanug hill, and Charity lodge, No. 23, F. and A. M., of Hope Valley in which Mr. Burdick had held office. The committal services at the Burdick cemetery in Charlestown, near the Burdick farm, were conducted by a large number of the members of Charity lodge, Worshipful Norman E. Randall of Shannock, R. I., master; Christian Hansen, chaplain and Herbert E. Lewis, secretary. Bearers were Asa Hoxie, former senator, and O. R. McCloy, superintendent of schools, both of Charlestown; Alfred Browning of Shannock, R. I.; Oscar W. Gates, Wood River Junction, R. I.; Nathaniel Lewis of Alton, R. I., and Albert Hilton of Carolina, R. I.

Senator Burdick held membership in the Sassafras club, of which but three members are now living, Walter J. Potter, Charles Gay and Walter Dyson. The services were attended by town officials of every town in Washington county and during the hour of the services auto traffic was cared for by members of the Hope Valley barracks of state police. The state police in this baffling murder mystery, one of the first with which they have had to cope, are bending every energy in their search for clews to find the person guilty of the ruthless shooting. Some fifty Boy Scouts of Shannock were engaged on Tuesday morning by the state police for a systematic "sweeping" of the woods about the Burdick farm in a search for the firearm with which the shooting may have been done, but falling leaves have been a great handicap. The motor pumper of the Charlestown-Richmond fire department, will be brought into play to pump the thirteen feet of water from the Burdick farm well and all outbuildings have been carefully gone over.

Late Monday night the widow, Mrs. Gertrude Burdick and daughter, Miss Ethel Burdick, after a four-hour questioning by the state police at the Hope Valley, R. I. state police barracks, returned to their home and the authorities were unable to gain much additional information on which to work.

Sheriff Frederick T. Mitchell has begun a most careful and painstaking investigation on which he has the assistance of his deputies in the various south county towns to whom no clew is too slight to receive a most careful investigation. Due to the illness of Charlestown Town Coroner George C. Cross of Cross Mills, the inquest may be conducted by Oscar E. Barber of Carolina, R. I.

NEW RULES MAY REGULATE AIRPLANE RACE CLASSIC

WASHINGTON —(AP)— New rules may be in store for running the Thompson trophy race, airplane speed classic staged Labor day for the first time.

Clifford Henderson, perennial general manager of the national air races, believes that next year's speed will be at least 40 miles faster than the 301.91 mile an hour gait set by Charles "Speed" Holman.

The five mile triangular course in use this year, he says, will be too "tight" for such speeds and plans are under way to use a 10-mile course, eliminating half of the turns which caused pilots to lose valuable time this year.

To eliminate slow entrants, he says that qualifying races may be run each day of the program.

LEO HAM CATCHES BIG BLUE SHELL CRAB IN HARBOR

Getting blue shells seems to be the sport among the crab catchers in the fishing village. They can be seen from the town dock in row boats with a fish on the end of a string. When Mr Crab gets on fish he is as slow as a turtle trying to beat a deer in a race. The line is puled to the top of the water and a scoop net does the rest to get the crab into the boat. It sure is some sport. Take along a morning Bulletin to read and find on the sporting page how the Fitch high school football team beat N. F. A., and by the time you have read that sad news, two or three crabs are on the fish, all ready to become prisoners. The law books that are piled several feet high in an office at Hartford reads in one book that any crab not 4½ inches long from point to point shall be put back in the water. That gives the crabs that are short under the new law a chance to become the right size next season. Leo Harris seems to be the champion crab-catcher of the village by the sea. In 2½ hours of catching he had 180 crabs—over a bushel basket full. As I was handing up the crabs, he said: "They sure were heavy. I thought at first an old anchor was on the line and almost tipped the rowboat over. But after ten minutes I got the monster crab on top of the water and landed it in the boat. It was 16 inches from tip to tip of claw and if the fish market scales at town dock don't lie, and Raymond Coon with his gold rim glasses on read the weight it was 2 3-4 pounds. Gee! Some crab! Almost big as a blue fish.

With a smart remark one fellow said it was not a good day for crabs at that. The champion will have a picture painted on the shell.

On the Noank Crushers' football team, Harris played quarterback, in 1927. Having a load of crabs he did not know what to do with them, with work at a standstill. The champion with a kind heart gave some to the ones that need them. With what was left he had a party at the home of his cousin, Walter Willis, being his 19th birthday. The day being cool, they could not hold the party outdoors and have a real North Cove crab-bake, with green corn for a side dish. So a house party got under way as Miss Nellie Snowdrift cooked the crabs and the good things that went with them. Games were played until the blond cook said: "All ready!" A telephone game was played, where a girl, then a fellow would be in a line and the trick was to see who wanted No. 23. If right, he would get a kiss and a prize. George Patterson found the lucky one. "Who says No. 23?" But he kissed several fellows on the way down the telephone line. Miss Hilda Sharper was lucky. She got a kiss, also a box of candy for keeping young Patterson guessing. George's face was red as a baby's face on a fall day with the wind blowing. For finding the lady he received a pair of overshoes. That game brought many laughs.

Post office came next, where many letters were received and stamped. Then a sweet voice came from the kitchen: "All ready for the crabs!" It was not long till everybody was getting filled up on the champion crabber's crabs caught in the Noank harbor—a good feed it was for October.

Cousin Willis was more than pleased to have such a crowd at his surprise party. He thanked them all for coming and the crowd gave three such noisy cheers for the champion crab-catcher, Leo Harris, that it almost shook down the W. L. Main block, on East Main street. Everybody went home at a late hour after a real feast of blue shell crabs.

TRAINED ENGLISH SPARROW WOMAN'S ALARM CLOCK

The English sparrow is a bird that hangs out in the cold weather, snow or rain, trying to get something to eat. Mrs. Nellie Bump, who lives on Branch avenue has a trained sparrow. She has trained that bird so he can talk. One of the tricks "Pat," the bird, has, is waking her up in the morning. She never sets an alarm clock. But on the north window pane, at the hour of 6 the bird will knock six times with his beak, meaning that the hour has come for his mistress to get up. For a year this same bird which she has named Pat, comes to the window to wake her. Pat will eat bread out of her hand and seems not afraid; also she can pet the lonesome sparrow, with his eyes winking, meaning "That is good."

If all the sparrows were trained to wake the people up every morning the Big Ben Alarm Clock factory would go out of business. You can travel by foot or auto or airplane but you never heard of a bird being used as an alarm clock. How Mrs. Bump trained her bird Pat to do that trick will never be known. It sure took time; but Mrs. Bump kept at it until the bird mastered it.

One day Pat flew into the kitchen when his mistress who was making pies. That good apple smell could be almost tasted over on East Main St. Mr. Bird did not want a piece of the pie, but just a drink of water. So he lit on the edge of a glass meaning "water." She got it for him, then he put out his foot to shake like it was a hand, meaning "thank you" in bird language. Pat stayed in the house awhile; then as the door was closed, he knocked on it to get out. Mrs. Bump had to let him out and with a nod of his head he walked down the stairs slowly out into the open air again, flying off to his pals.

Mrs. Bump is some happy to have trained a bird like Pat. A limb of a tree is his home, day in and day out. It seems that sparrows are as easy to train as a dog having been in this country so long.

One day as the house cat "Flip Flop" was stealing a sleep under the stove, Pat thought he would pay his mistress a visit for something. He flew in the door which was open. Then Mrs. Bump put some bread in her hand and Pat started to eat it. She was talking nice to her trained pet, right next to the good right ear of Flip Flop. Nothing would he like better than to catch a bird for a meal. So waking up quick the cat peeked to see if the bird was still eating and was not looking. But, is as an owl, Pat was watching the cat. Puss made a spring toward the bird, but before you could say no, the bird was on top of his mistress' head, out of danger.

The cat was mad but it did not do any good for Mrs. Bump sent the cat out and left her pet Pat in the house until she was sure that it was all safe to let the bird free. If anything happens to the trained sparrow she would cry, after working so hard to train the only feathered alarm clock in the fishing village.

Mr. Bump is to build a bird-house where the trained bird Pat can go in bad weather with his pals.

Immediate Relief for INDIGESTION

WHAT most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. Food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention, it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate with no harmful after effects.

Once you learn this perfect way you'll never deal in any other manner with the headaches, gas, bloating, nausea, dizziness, indigestion, biliousness, etc., due to an over-acid stomach and bowels.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips'. It is always a liquid; never made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle. All drug stores—25c and 50c.

Health Means Clear Skin

"For nine years I was troubled with acne. I tried everything I could think of and everything people told me but it didn't do any good. Last winter a nurse where I was working told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build up my system from the inside, so I did. When I had taken three bottles my face was 95% better. I kept on and now I haven't a single pimple on my face, chest or back."—Mary L. Heinitz, Carrington, North Dakota.

IN RELAPSE OF STOCK MARKET PRICES FELL FROM 2 TO 6 POINTS YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Fatigued by the exertion of Monday's ambitious rally, the stock market suffered a relapse today and crawled back to bed.

After only momentary hesitation at the opening, prices went into a slow slump that erased all but a shade of yesterday's recovery. Net losses ran from 2 to 6 points in a turnover of 3,421,900 shares, not a large volume of business.

Weakness was general, although it was most conspicuous in the electrical equipment, oil and copper shares. The decline met little resistance until last Saturday's lows were approached; there was then a pallid rally that lifted the market moderately from its minimums. General Electric, Westinghouse, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corp., Anaconda, Kennecott, American Water Works, Public Service of New Jersey, International Harvester, Nash Motors, Hudson, Studebaker and several investment rails went to new lows for the year or longer.

The drop pointedly showed that Monday's rally had been quite technical. News of the day hardly had a bearish cast, except for rumors of further cuts in crude oil prices in the mid-continent petroleum field and the generally unsatisfactory character of the earnings statements, which, of course, had been anticipated. However, the Westinghouse third quarter report revealed that the company failed to earn its dividend in the third three months period and the heavy offering of the stock had a distinctly unsettling effect on the entire list.

There was some solace in the condition statement of the Federal Reserve member banks for the week ended Oct. 15. "All other" loans, in which commercial borrowings are classified, soared $61,000,000, making the gain $155,000,000 in the past three weeks. There was a small decline in the same period last year. The collateral loan item dropped $10,000,000 compared with last week's $215,000,000 deflation. This increase was smaller than had been expected, but it reduced the total gains for the year to $383,000,000, and in many quarters the present volume is not regarded as too heavy a burden. The opinion is frequently expressed, however, that further weakness in the market will lead to a more extensive downward readjustment.

Wheat met very small net losses, for firmness in Liverpool offset reports of a large increase in the world's visible supply. Corn eased about a cent on predictions of larger receipts and on hedge selling. Cotton again closed higher, advancing 6 to 10 points.

Selling pressure against stocks carried many of the favorites severely lower. General Electric dropped 4 to 60, but recovered a point, closing 2 7-8 lower. Standard Oil of New Jersey lost 3 to 58 1-8 before coming back fractionally. American Can failed to receive much support until it had tumbled 5 points. Its net loss was 4. Westinghouse, down 8 3-4 at the bottom, recovered 2 points, and American Telephone regained a point of a 4-point loss. Allied Chemical, which had been 9 1-2 lower, finished 6 1-2 below the Monday close.

U. S. Steel sagged to 144 3-4, within 1-4 of the year's low, and then rallied 3-4 to close at 145 1-2, off 3 3-4. There were 2 to 3-point net declines in American & Foreign Power, American Water Works, Public Service of New Jersey, Penney, Case, DuPont, American Tobacco "B," Paramount, Union Pacific and Sears Roebuck. Eastman Kodak and Houston Oil lost nearly 6 and Safeway Stores, 7.

Foreign exchanges held firm. The German mark reacted slightly, but there were small gains in the French franc, the gilder and the peseta.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Unsettled by a new drop in prices of securities, all grain values today underwent a late setback that more than erased an early advance. Increased selling of wheat, corn and other cereals, however, appeared to be largely in the nature of profit taking, wheat at the top point touched today showing about 5 1-2c a bushel gain from recent low figures. Statements credited to Chairman Legge of the federal farm board that agricultural commodities had reached their bottom level, attracted much notice, but for at least the present, were without lasting effect as a market influence.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-4c a bushel decline. Corn closed 3-4a1 1-2c down, oats 1-8a3-8c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5c.

Provisions followed the course of grain fluctuations, and ignored a downturn of hog values.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Oct. 18 were $9,910,115.74; expenditures $29,450,026.22; balance $275,575,182.88.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The curb market slipped still lower today, losing most of yesterday's gains, and recording many new minimum levels. Trading, however, was moderate, with a turnover of 565,700 shares, somewhat less than that of the preceding session.

Oils were unsettled by the reports of further softening of gasoline and crude oil prices. Cuts in mid-continent crude prices by a few small producers were regarded as possibly foreshadowing similar action by large companies. The Standard shares were distinctly heavy. Standard of Indiana, which normally moves in a small trading area, sagged nearly a point to a new low for the year at 40 5-8. Standard of Nebraska tumbled nearly 3 and Standard of Ohio more than 4 to new bottoms. Gulf declined more than 3, also to a new low. Cities Service closed off 5-8, at 24.

Several of the utility shares were again under effective selling pressure. Electric Bond & Share dropped about 3 points, to within a shade of its recent low, then rallied fractionally. American Gas tumbled 5 to a new minimum and Associated Gas common and United Light A each lost 1. Nevada California and Tampa Electric were two lightly traded issues to move against the trend, both showing gains of about 3 points. Natural gas stocks again eased.

In the industrials, Aluminum Co., Babcock & Wilcox, and Shaeffer Pen dropped 2 to 3 to new lows, and Perfect Circle 5. National Steel Car, which is rarely traded, sold at 32, off nearly 20 points from the preceding transaction. Ford, Ltd., was steady, closing a shade higher.

In the investment company group, Continental Shares convertible preferred, in which the market is thin, sold at 50, off 18 points.

Investment trust shares generally were inclined to ease, although changes were largely narrow. The Prince & Whitely issues were quiet and steady, however, and Prudential Investors rallied a point.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(P)—A slightly easier tone in the money market proved of no value as a stimulant to bond buying today. Trading in domestic issues was dull and price movement displayed about the same characteristics as in recent sessions. Declines slightly exceeded the advances.

Activity in the foreign issues was of a more constructive nature, although the progress was somewhat marred by the divergent trend of a few active issues. The greatest activity centered in German municipal and industrial bonds, which were generally higher. Latin-American issues continued their climb to higher levels but as in previous sessions there were a few laggards. Brazilians were mixed.

The city of New York found only a single bidder for the entire $50,000,000 in 4 per cent 50-year bonds, which it sold today. Four others bid for small amounts. The Chase Securities Corp., with its "all or none" bid of 100.3, obtained the issue and is offering it at 101 to yield 3.95 per cent.

The premium, amounting to $15,000, is the smallest obtained by New York in some time, but recent issues have carried higher coupons. The lack of interest in the issue was regarded by bond men as an indication of the present unsettled state of the market.

The city of Detroit is planning to sell $19,692,000 city bonds Nov. 21 to retire a majority of the $22,000,000 short term notes due Dec. 31.

A few foreign issues reached new highs for the current advance. Chile 6s of 1961, Cundinamarca 6 1-2s, Dominican first 5 1-2s, Bolivia 8s, Santa Fe Argentine 7s, and Uruguay 8s and 6s gained a point or more. Most of the Brazilian issues that had been strong in recent sessions were heavy in thin trading. Brazil 8s reacted 1 1-2 points.

Turnover of Germans was the largest in the foreign section. The government 7s, bank issues, German General Electric 6s, and Berlin City Electric 6s, were about a point higher and German Electric 7s reached par on a 4-point advance. The International 5 1-2s sagged 3-4 in dull trading.

While most of the investment section moved quietly in a narrow groove, convertible and stock purchase bonds were again reactionary in sympathy with stocks. Warner Brothers 6s, Atchison 4 1-2s, Allegheny Corp 5s and General Theatres 6s declined a point or more.

Offering will be made tomorrow of $9,000,000 40-year 5 1-2 per cent mortgage bonds of the Ottawa Valley Power Co.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

A Consecration

"Not of the princes and prelates with periwigged charioteers
Riding triumphantly laurelled to lap the lap of years,—
Rather the scorned—the rejected—hemmed in with the spears;

"The men of the tattered battalion which fights till it dies,
Dazed with the dust of the battle, the din and the cries,
The men with the broken heads and the blood running into their eyes.

"Not the be-medaled Commander, beloved of the throne,
Riding cock-horse to parade when the bugles are blown,
But the lads who carried the koppie and cannot be known.

"Not the ruler for me, but the ranker, the tramp of the road,
The slave with the sack on his shoulders pricked on with the goad,
The man with too weighty a burden, too weary a load.

"The sailor, the stoker of steamers, the man with the clout,
The chanty man bent at the halliards putting a tune to the shout,
The drowsy man at the wheel, and the tired lookout.

"Others may sing of the wine and the wealth and the mirth,
The portly presence of potentates goodly in girth;—
Mine be the dust and the dross, the dust and the scum of the earth!

"Theirs be the music, the color, the gold;
Mine be a handful of ashes, a mouthful of mould,
Of the maimed, of the halt and the blizzard the rain and the cold—
Of these shall my songs be fashioned, my tale be told. Amen."

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

One of the smallest of the birds that inhabit marshy lands and the vicinity of ponds is the long-billed marsh wren. There are two species of marsh wrens, the other being known as the short-billed marsh wren, because its bill is a trifle shorter than that of the long-billed species. The two birds differ in other respects, for the short-billed species frequents low-lying meadows, dried marshes and brushy lowlands along streams and about ponds and marshes. It has a streaked crown, whereas the former has a uniformly dark crown. The eggs of the long-billed marsh wren are so thickly spotted that they appear dark brown in color, while those of the short-billed marsh wren are pure white.

Most birds have some peculiar characteristic which sets them off from other birds and adds to their interest. The yellow warbler, for example, frequently outwits the cowbird by building two, three and four-story nests; the chimney swift, after the nesting season, congregates in large flocks and roosts in unused chimneys, the birds flying in wheel formation when about to go to roost; the crested flycatcher, if possible, makes use of a cast-off snake skin when building its nest; and the cowbird builds no nest but lays its eggs in the nests of other birds. Many, many other examples might be given.

Ruth Miner—I thank you very much for my book. I have read quite a little of it and I found it very interesting.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

What We Made

Dear Uncle Jed: We are learning about Indians. They are copper color. They have many houses and they are long houses, tepees, mud houses, and adobe houses. The squaw does most of the work. She moves the tents and plants the corn and weeds the garden. The girls work hard, too. We made a sand table about Indians. A boy from my room made a dig bowl spoon and a spear. We are going to weave mats. The girls made dolls to put in our sand table. We drew some pictures about Indians, too. The Indians hunt for food. They did not have stores like we.

MARY MICAR.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

Studying About Indians

Dear Uncle Jed: We are studying about the Indians. The class has made a lot of Indian posters. We have them hung up in the room. The class works in groups; we have an Indian table.

WILLARD SMITH, age 11.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 6.

Our Sand Table

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you just a few lines about our sand table. It is about the Indians. It is very attractive. Our teacher gave us a piece of paper and we had to make a poster. When all the children finished, I looked at the posters. They were about the Indians and they were very nicely done. I hope you are going to enjoy this letter. I shall close now. I am in grade 5 and I am 10 years old.

FRED STAKLINSKI.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

Prince Caught A Skunk

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a pet dog at home. He is black and white. His name is Prince. One day while I was working on the hay, I heard him bark, so I went to see what was the matter. When I came there I saw him digging under a stone. The stone wasn't very big, so I bent down and looked under the stone, there I saw a big skunk. I ran to the house, took my knife and cut a big stick, then I went back to the woods. When I came there I pushed the skunk on the dog's side. The dog took his front foot and caught the skunk by the tail and pulled it out. That is how he caught a skunk.

ABRAHAM PASTER, age 10.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

About The Indians

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write about the Indians. Their hair is long, straight, coarse and black. Their eyes are small and black. Their skin is a copper color. They wear but a little clothing because the air is warm. They are glad to wrap in buffalo skins in winter. One thing they like to do is hunt animals. They hunt deer, fox, buffalo, and wolf. They use the skins and meat. Their canoes are made of birch bark. They had a dugout which they used in early days.

ALFRED PERKINS, age 12.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

Indians

Dear Uncle Jed: I'd like to tell you about school. We are studying about Indians. The Indians are in America. I'm going to tell you about their looks. They have straight black hair, and small eyes. They are slender and straight. Their skin is copper color. They wear moccasins. Now I'd like to tell you the kinds of houses the Indians have. The names of the houses are called adobe houses, tepees, long houses, and tents. The Indians like to work and hunt, but they hated the white men. When anyone dies in their family they sit him up or stand him up in the grave. The women cry and the men holler.

GUSSIE PASTER, age 8.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

Helped Plant Potatoes

Dear Uncle Jed: When my father planted potatoes I helped him. My brother put fertilizer in while I put potatoes in. One day a hard rain came with hail stones. My father thought his potatoes were spoiled. So he pulled one. He found it was ripe so we dug six baskets and four barrels of potatoes.

PAUL JUDGE, age 9.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

Likes The Autumn

Dear Uncle Jed: I like the autumn. Sometimes I go to the woods and pick nuts. Sometimes I see a squirrel going to school. One day I saw a chipmunk. It was a baby. It looked like it had the mumps because it had nuts in its mouth. It was going to its home in the bushes.

PATRICIA WILBER.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

The Falling Leaves

Dear Uncle Jed: This year has been a beautiful one, neither too hot nor too cold. Now it is fall. All the leaves are falling down in colors of red, yellow and some green. This is the time of picking nuts. It is time because of the squirrels gathering them.

MARY WIKNA, age 11.
Hallville.

Cat Played A Trick

Dear Uncle Jed: One day when I was home, I was playing with my cat. He is a merry little fellow. I call him to me and he comes. One time I taught him a trick. One night when I was going to bed he hid under my pillow. I found him because I saw his tail sticking out of the corner of the pillow. I took him up in my arm. He licked my face because he was playing a trick on me.

EDWARD STAHLINSKI, age 13.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

Won First Prize

Dear Uncle Jed: Last year we said that at the end of the year we were going to have a fair with our school work. We couldn't take this to the fair because we didn't have any vegetables so all of us had a garden during the summer. When fall came our teacher took our vegetables and our school work to the Pachaug fair. We won first prize. We will put what we get into the things we need most in our room.

ALBERT MITNICK, age 10.

Dear Uncle Jed: This summer I went to Rocky Neck Beach. It is nice there. As my brother and I could swim we had a nice time. My brother and sister went in the water, too. A Mother Deer And Baby Deer

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you are feeling well. I thought you might be lonesome so I am writing to you what I saw in the woods. One day while I was walking through the woods I heard something crackling in a clump of bushes. I went to see what was there and there was a baby deer and a mother deer. She was in the grass when she saw me She was alarmed and began to run. It was just over a shower and I followed her tracks from where she came. The tracks went deep in the woods. The tracks led me near a large brook but there was much brush. I came to an old large stump and in back of the stump was large brush. I went on the other side and there was a place where the grass was all stamped down so I knew this was where the baby deer was. I went home thinking of what I saw. I hope you are enjoying my letter. I am ten years old and in the fifth grade.

EDDIE HUATIUK, age 10.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

What I Saw

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written a letter to you, and I hope you enjoy it. Have you ever been walking and seen the leaves flying and whirling about. One day while I was going to school I saw something in the leaves. I looked to see and I saw a chipmunk. It had two nuts in its cheeks and it looked very funny. It was all light brown.

PAULINE CUDO, age 10.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

Likes To Work

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to you. In school we are studying about Indians. We are studying many things about the Indians and we are going to make a chart. We have to learn two long words. I am in the third grade. I like to work hard. I like to know things.

JULIA BARRON.
Hallville.

A Chipmunk

Dear Uncle Jed: I saw a chipmunk. It had two swollen cheeks. But I was mistaken. It had two acorns. Then it disappeared. I looked all around but could not see it. Soon I heard a noise up in the tree. Soon he ran like lightning down the tree. I didn't know what happened. He ran after an acorn that had fallen down the tree. He picked it up and ran under the stone. I had to go home to dinner because it was noon. I was coming back to school and I saw him again.

JOHN BIEDERKA.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

My Garden

Dear Uncle Jed: I had a garden this summer and I had all I could do to keep the weeds out of it. I had to hoe it every day. I had corn and carrots and that was all I had.

NORMAN H. GREINER, age 9.
Norwich, R. F. D.

Our School Room

Dear Uncle Jed: I'm just sending you a few lines about my school room. We are making some posters about Indians. One is about an Indian on a river with tepees. On the side of it is little children playing around it. The other one is about Indians dancing around the fire with their bows and arrows, and a river near them with boats on it. We are making some mats. One boy made a dugout, a bowl, and a little bow and arrow with a stone in it.

WILLIAM FONTAINE, age 9.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 1.

A Playful Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a pet kitten. When I went home the other night from the show I saw my kitten in the window. I went in and he went in my plants, I raised the year before.

OSCAR ECCLESTON.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 6

The Trip

Uncle Jed: Sunday afternoon I went for a ride. We went through Yantic, then into Lebanon where we saw some beautiful fall flowers that had not been touched by frost. As we passed through Columbia we saw the lake which was so low that we hardly recognized it. Next was Andover where we came across a pretty place with tables and benches where we had our lunch. After lunch we went on our way until we came to Bolton Notch. In a little while we came to Manchester which was a very pretty town. From there on we saw a great number of tobacco sheds. We passed through many more towns and villages. One of the prettiest was Enfield. We then passed through Rockville and Tolland before we came to Stafford Springs. From there we went to Mt. Ocheepetuck in Union on the summit of which is a fire tower. A lady is there all of the fire season as a lookout for the state. After we went up in the tower we went home through Willimantic.

WALLACE W. ALLEN, age 11.
Norwich.

A Hike

Dear Uncle Jed: One day during the summer, my friends and I decided to go on a hike the following day. We started very early the next morning. When we had walked about a mile we saw an auto run over a dog. It did not even stop to see if it were hurt. We all ran over to the dog, to see if it was injured. He seemed to have a broken leg. One of the girls ran over to a nearby house and told them a dog was hurt. A man and woman came running towards the dog. The man carried the dog to the house. He told us it was his dog. They thanked us for our hospitality. Once again we started on our hike. We then walked a little farther until we came to woods. We spent a lovely day there. We started home about five o'clock. On our way, we stopped to see the dog's owner and inquired for the dog which was very much better. We arrived home about six o'clock. That night, we were all very tired after our day's outing.

SUSAN LYNAS, age 12.
Norwich.

A Dreadful Adventure

Uncle Jed: One hot afternoon I started for the woods to get some nuts. I walked and walked until I thought I'd never get there. I could feel the sweat running down my face. After a long walk I soon got there. I knew where the nut tree was so it didn't take long to get to it. I didn't have to search for nuts. They were there in heaps. After a time I thought I had all the nuts I could see. So I walked further into the woods until I couldn't walk any more. I had to sit and rest. As I was sitting down I felt a few rain drops on my hand. I started to get up when I saw the sky grow dark. I started to run thinking it would pour. All of a sudden it started to pour. I ran with all my force, but soon had to run under a tree nearby, all out of breath, and wet to the skin. I started again thinking I'd make the best of it. I started to run again finding myself running in the wrong direction, but soon got out onto the road for home. It seemed as if I was stumbling along. Soon I was half way up the yard hugging my bag of nuts tight in my hands. I had to sit on the doorstep because I as all out of breath and my head was in a whirl. After a while I stumbled into the house, nuts and all. As I stepped in the door my bag broke and all the nuts were scattered all over the floor. I had a fine job picking them all up again.

Can your set meet this tone test?

Is the tone of your set merely pleasant, or gloriously true? Does it enable you to distinguish between instruments of similar tone quality—to hear vocal music reproduced without distortion over the entire tonal range? For example: Do the kettledrums have a distinct pitch, or do they just sound like thuds? Does a man's voice give the impression his head is in a barrel? Can you distinguish the letter "S" in speech? In an orchestra, do you find several or only one violin playing the same part? Does the violin radiate brilliancy, or does it always sound muted?

Investigate the lifelike tone of the new Grebe before you buy. The famous 7-check test enables you to compare directly with any other set. Get a test list from your nearest Grebe dealer.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

A knockout double-feature bill has been arranged for patrons of the Palace theater Thursday and Friday of this week. Just for two days these two great pictures will be shown, because on Saturday the bill will change, as the Palace reverts to its former custom of starting a new show on that day.

The plays booked for Thursday and Friday are "Dixiana" and "The Way of All Men." The former is a glorious drama of the romance of the gay south; the latter is a powerful epic of men greedy and relentless, a story of beggars and financiers, of society leaders and the scum of the underworld, all drawn together by a relentless fate.

Heading the magnificent cast of "Dixiana" are Bebe Daniels, Everett Marshall, Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, Joseph Cawthorn and Jobyna Howland.

A shameless picture of humanity is painted in "The Way of All Men," a picture which has a cast of stars including Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Dorothy Revier, Noah Beery and Anders Randolf. The story is based on the novel idea: How would a group of people, all of different sorts, react under circumstances where they are all facing death—a death that is only a matter of a few hours?

That is the burning question which "The Way of All Men" seeks to answer, and the answer is certainly a thriller. This picture and its companion piece, "Dixiana," are going to be at the Palace only two days, Thursday and Friday, so there is no time to lose if one is going to see this program.

Today for the last times the Palace theater presents that magnificent comedy of prison life, "Up the River," starring "Cherie" Lawes and a host of other featured players.

Broadway Theatre

George Arliss has a peculiar ability of identifying himself with the characters he portrays on stage or screen. This was true with "Disraeli" to such an extent that more people in the world think of Disraeli as looking like Arliss than as he actually did.

The same thing is true in "Old English," the famous Galsworthy drama which Arliss has made into a Vitaphone picture for Warner Brothers and which is now showing at Warners' Broadway theatre.

In the original Galsworthy story Sylvanus Heythorp, which is the real name of "Old English," was described as a tremendous man, very fat, very red of face and very short of breath. But Arliss made "Old English" what he is today in the great picture by that name and he is not at all like the original described by the author.

So completely did Arliss come to dominate the part that when the scenario was prepared for the screen production—with the assistance of no less an authority than John Galsworthy himself—"Old English" was described briefly and as looking like George Arliss.

The cast of "Old English" includes Ivan Simpson, Doris Lloyd, Betty Lawford, Leon Janney, and others. Alfred E. Green directed.

Spanish orange exports for 1929-30 were 1,086,900 tons, valued at $40,759,130, most of them going to England, France, Germany and Sweden. Spain consumed only 100,000 tons.

PROWLER AT SHARAF STORE SCARED OFF BY A JANITOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21.—What is believed to have been an attempt by a thief to enter the Sharaf Furniture company's store, 108 Main street, was frustrated tonight by the janitor of an adjoining building. About 8:30 o'clock, Lynn Smith, janitor, observed a man at one of the rear windows of the furniture store. Realizing that the store was closed, Smith raised the window of the building adjoining and the fellow ran away. CORONER ORDERS AUTOPSY IN CASE OF ALBANO INFANT

Gloria Albano, aged four months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Albano, 91 Truman street, died at Lawrence Memorial hospital last Saturday and Sunday Coroner Edward G. McKay ordered an autopsy to be held because of the fact that the child died within an hour after it was taken to the hospital. The autopsy revealed that the child died of a form of stomach trouble and the funeral was held yesterday afternoon, with burial in St. Mary's cemetery. The child had been a patient at the hospital a month ago and was discharged as cured. The latter part of last week the baby displayed symptoms of a recurrence of the malady and when admitted to the hospital, died almost immediately.

Gunning For Gulls

The police of New London have been requested to be on the lookout for a crook who is operating about the state getting money under false pretenses. The plan of the crook is to offer cartons of cigarettes for sale and with the promise of a premium, usually a talking machine. He accepts a deposit of $4 or $5 and then departs, with assurance that the cigarettes and premium will be delivered within a day or two. When the goods were not received by the purchaser inquiry revealed that the man is a fakir and fraud.

Bluejackets' Dance A Riot

A farewell dance to the sailors of the submarines and the tenders Camden and Bushnell, which will leave port tomorrow in compliance with the federal order that the undersea boats and the Camden be decommissioned, was attended by about 700 enlisted men and their friends at Danceland, Ocean Beach, last night. The affair was without unusual event for about two hours but as the hour drew near for the suspension of the dancing, frequent fights were staged. The battles were not only participated in by the bluejackets, but the women entered into the battles for there were no less than three fights with the participants being the "fair" sex. When dancing was suspended and the attendants started for the coat room, a score of sailors made a rush upon the employes and when the disturbance was concluded it was discovered that a fur coat, owned by a young woman, who had only purchased it the day before, was missing. The coat was valued in excess of $100 and no trace of it has been found.

Everything is in readiness for the departure of the boats tomorrow and this afternoon and tonight the bluejackets are being given shore leave, but with orders to return to their respective boats by midnight.

BURGLING IS MADE EASY BY CARELESS MERCHANTS

The police are continually wondering why there are not more burglaries in New London, with the indifference of merchants or their employes in securing places of business for the night. One business house was found insecure three times within a week recently. Last night, the police discovered five stores offering easy access to thieves. Patrolman Henry Sylvia discovered eight windows of the Harbor Grain Co., 19 Reed street, either unlocked or open. The officer entered through one of the windows and after securing them, left by means of the front door. The officer also discovered a window of the Thompson Motor company, 289 Bank street, unfastened and the same window has been found in that condition before. Today the manager of the store was requested to see that more attention be given to securing the building in the future. The officer made his third discovery of this nature when a window of the Autocraft Service Co., 45 Truman street, was found unlocked. The officer climbed through the window and upon finding $12 in a cash register and the tire room open, summoned the manager, who made an investigation and decided that none of the stock had been molested. Patrolman Albert Iverson discovered two windows in the rear of the Green Stamp Co., 23 Union street, broken near the lock, so that a thief could easily open them. Patrolman Henry Hick found the front entrance of Siff's second-hand store, Bank street, unlocked. The owner was summoned and secured the building.

HOUSE AT QUAKER HILL IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

The one and one-half story remdence at Quaker Hill, Waterford, owned by Mrs. Walter W. Concklin and occupied by George H. Hodsdon and family, was damaged by fire early today, together with its contents. So serious was the fire when it was discovered that the Hodsdon family was forced to flee from the building in scanty attire. The fire was discovered shortly after midnight by a member of the family, who had awakened and realizing that the building was a mass of flames towards the roof. Arousing the other occupants all fled from the building. Because of the apparatus of the Quaker Hill fire department not being available owing to its being painted, the Waterford, and Goshen fire companies were asked to give assistance. Both companies responded and pumped quantity of water into the burning building for nearly two hours before it was extinguished. When the fire had been subdued the entire roof and upper floor of the dwelling had been gutted and the lower floor was badly damaged. So great was the damage it is believed that the building will be rased.

But one case was tried in the police court this morning. Max Rogovin, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law, was fined $10 and costs.

Not To Arrest Mrs. Ryane

Mrs. Wilda Ryane, 24, wife of Jack Ryane, a sailor stationed aboard U. S. S. Oglala, who attempted suicide several weeks ago by swallowing poison, was discharged at Lawrence Memorial hospital today and returned to her home, 86 Washington street. Mrs. Ryane is estranged from her husband and since the estrangement she had been living with another sailor. Following a dispute between the woman and sailor over the former's alleged extravagance, Mrs. Ryane swallowed the poison. Her condition was serious and she was rushed to the hospital where the woman responded to treatment with the ultimate result that her recovery was obtained. A few days after Mrs. Ryane's attempt at self-destruction, her sailor sweetheart was arrested and when presented in the police court on a charge of adultery was fined $50 and costs. It was planned that the same procedure be taken against the woman but Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer has decided not to cause Mrs. Ryane's arrest.

A Hudson brougham, owned by W. H. Eldridge, 10 Bulkeley place, was stolen last night while parked in front of Eldridge's residence. No trace of it has been found. The auto carries Connecticut markers L-5630. Another identifying mark on the auto is a Junior Order of American Mechanics emblem.

There is a possibility that Andrew Tassone, 21, of Westerly, arrested here Sunday night, charged with driving a car with improper markers and driving without a license, will be connected with the theft of $3400 by the Westerly police. The police of this city and Westerly are making an investigation for the purpose of determining whether Tassone was aware of the theft of the money. The car Tassone was driving when arrested is owned by William Barry, of Norwich, and was stolen in that city Sept. 18. Tassone is a prisoner in the county jail in default of $1500 and will be presented in the police court tomorrow.

A fire hydrant on Ocean avenue, south of Plant street, was discovered damaged today, but it is not known whether the damaged resulted from an accident or by the act of some malicious person.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"When one is famous one can paint any kind of trash."

"Are you famous?"—Vart Hem, Stockholm.

"How is it you don't come to Sunday school, Katie?"

"Oh, please, miss, I'm learning French and music now, and mother doesn't wish me to take up religion till later."—Exchange.

"I had to discharge my nurse for being cruel."

"What did she do?"

"She kicked poor Fido for biting the baby."—London Opinion.

Tunnes (in restaurant): "Schal, how can you eat with a knife?"

Schal: "It is not so easy as it looks. Look round at the other guests, not one of them can do it."—Lustige Kolner Zeitung, Cologne.

"Why do you go out on the front porch whenever I sing? Don't you like to hear me?"

"It isn't that. I want the neighbors to see that I'm not beating my wife."—The Pathfinder.

Two small girls were playing together in the park one afternoon.

"I wonder what the time is?" said one of them at last.

"Well, it can't be 4 o'clock yet," replied the other with great logic, "because my mother said I was to be home at 4—and I'm not."—Child Life.

Brevity is the soul of modern journalism. A budding journalist was told never to use two words where one would do. He carried out this advice in his report of a fatal accident in the following manner:

"John Jones struck a match to see if there was any gasoline in his tank. There was. Age sixty-five."—Christian Evangelist.

Extract from the letter of one gentleman to another gentleman in the next building.

"I, being a gentleman, cannot dictate what I think of you. My stenographer, being a lady, cannot transcribe what I think of you, but you, being neither, will doubtless know what I mean." — Army and Navy Journal.

The story of a book so amusing its reader laughed when death impended and thus saved his life is revealed in the musty records of the war department in Washington. Related by an old Indian chief of the Dakota Indians and recorded in a war department report now yellow with age, the tale has as its major character an Iowa settler who was captured by the redmen. The Indians prepared to kill him. He showed them grains and seeds of various kinds, but they were not interested. Finally the white man pulled a book from his pack and began to read. He grinned, chuckled, finally laughed aloud. Unable to understand a seemingly super-natural being who laughed when death approached, the Indians let him live. There was one missing link in the story. The name of the book was not given.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

The harvesting of Connecticut crops indicates slightly higher yields than were expected a month ago. The potato crop on October first was estimated at 2,400,000 bushels compared with 2,030,000 harvested in 1929 and 1,998,000 bushels the recent five year average.

The apple crop of this state also turned out better than conditions indicated last month and is now placed at 1,870,000 bushels. The commercial production is estimated at 303,000 barrels as compared with 162,000 barrels harvested last year and 273,000 barrels the 1924-1928 average. As compared with last year, all varieties except Wealthy, show larger production. Many of the varieties, including McIntosh, produced the largest crops in the past five years. The Baldwin crop is the largest crop on record since 1926.

The local market was very inactive, with light offerings of native products except in apples, potatoes, turnips and cabbage. The heavy freeze of the last couple of nights has practically put an end to all kinds of summer and fall vegetables and the shipped in products are becoming more liberal. Potato market was slightly easier with native stock principally offered. Apples, turnips and cabbage were fairly steady but moving very slow.

STATE CONVENTION OF W.C.T.U. SHOWS ACTIVE YEAR IN PROHIBITION WORK

"We are dry because we are Christians," said Rev. Walter Van Kirk, of the Federal Council of Churches, of New York city, in an address at the Tuesday evening session of the annual state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Connecticut, at Trinity Methodist church. "We are temperance workers because we are followers of Christ" he continued. "We must choose between 'personal liberty' on the one hand, and social morality on the other hand," he said.

Dr. Stanley High, editor of the Christian Herald, was scheduled to deliver the principal address at the meeting, but because of illness, was unable to be present. Rev. Mr. Van Kirk took his place on the programme.

The state convention opened at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with a lengthy business session at the Norwich inn, the state president, Mrs. Mary E. Welles of Hartford, presiding. At the close of the afternoon session there was an informal reception, which was followed by the annual banquet held in the inn dining room. The banquet, scheduled to start at 6:15 o'clock, took longer than had been expected, and in view of the fact that the evening meeting was scheduled to start at 8 o'clock at Trinity Methodist church, it was decided to transfer the after dinner programme to the church.

Evening Meeting

The evening meeting was opened about 8:15 o'clock with the state president, Mrs. Welles, presiding. After the organ prelude and the singing of a hymn, a selection of scripture was read by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, who also offered prayer. Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, leader of the girls' choir of the church, was then heard in a delightfully rendered solo, Abide With Me. Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of the church, followed with a brief talk in which he extended greetings to the convention. The church choir then sang an anthem, Forever With the Lord (Gounod).

The state president, Mrs. Welles, explained to the large gathering, that owing to an unforseen delay in the banquet plans, it had been decided to carry out the after dinner programme at the church, instead of at the inn. Mrs. Welles then introduced Mrs. Mabel P. Preusser, of Waterbury, New Haven county president of the W. C. T. U., as toastmaster of the banquet.

Greetings Extended

Mrs. Preusser, in turn, introduced Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, who extended a welcome to the convention on behalf of the clergy of Norwich. Rev. Dr. Pitt advocated enforcement of the prohibition amendment. "We know we can't legislate a drunkard into heaven," he said, "but if the drunkard chooses to legislate himself into hell, he ought to be deprived of the right to legislate his wife and children into hell, with him." "Don't repeal—Enforce!" he concluded.

Mrs. Charles B Gilbert, president of the Woman's City club, extended greetings to the convention as did C. Edward Smith, a deacon of the Central Baptist church. Dr. John Barton of Hartford was next introduced by Mrs. Preusser. In a brief address he said the time has come when we should take our stand on the prohibition question. "We ought to be on the right side," he said. Dr. Barton said that a Hartford insurance man, who does not believe in the 18th amendment, had told him that he hadn't taken a drink since the 18th amendment went into the constitution. "I told him that he was a real citizen," said Dr. Barton. "What we need is more real citizens," he added. "Don't you think conditions are better than they were?" he asked. "Of course they are," he said. "You can't tell me that there is as much, no, not one tenth as much liquor sold in Hartford as there was in the days of the saloon" said Dr. Barton. "It is a funny thing, but do you know that the wets are beginning to kill themselves in their own arguments," he asked. "Let's keep the 18th amendment—let's enforce it," he concluded.

On World Peace

Mrs. May Bell Harper, a national director of the W. C. T. U., who was scheduled as the guest speaker at the banquet, was next introduced by Mrs. Pruesser. Mrs. Harper said that world peace is the object and goal of her department, the international relations department of the W. C. T. U. With reference to the activities in behalf of world peace, Mrs. Harper asked "Why are we women interested in warships? Because we are interested in peace. We want to abolish war, and if we abolish war, we must abolish warships." Mrs. Harper advocated the abolishment of submarines as the next step toward world harmony. "We must gradually break down the great war machine and gradually build up the great peace machine", she said. Mrs. Harper's talk concluded the after-dinner programme that was to have been held at the inn.

The state president, Mrs. Welles, then took charge of the remainder of the meeting. Mrs. Welles introduced as the principal speaker of the evening, Rev. Walter Van Kirk, of the Federal Council of Churches, of New York city.

Why Are We Dry?

Rev. Mr. Van Kirk spoke on the same subject, Why Are We Dry?, which had been the subject for Dr. High for whom he substituted. The speaker said that one of the most treasured memories of his life was the memory of his Sunday school teacher. Her husband was a liquor addict, he said, and her children, following in his footsteps, also became liquor addicts. "She had to labor to provide food for him," said Rev. Mr. Van Kirk. "She was a member of the W. C. T. U. I can see her now with her shrunken hands and knotted fingers," he said. With reference to the temperance work of the W. C. T. U. he said "I cannot feel but what the world is indebted to this organization. We are dry because we are Christians. We are interested in prohibition, more primarily because we are representatives of the Christian religion. We are temperance workers because we are followers of Christ. Religion, if it is true to the teachings of Christ, cannot be anything else but 100 per cent opposed to the liquor traffic.

"You are temperance workers because you are Christians; because you are opposed to the moral bankruptcy that follows the liquor traffic and because you love little children. We feel, as Christians, that our Risen Lord would bid us not only to undertake to make this country dry but to make the world dry, as well. We must choose beween personal liberty on one hand and social morality on the other hand. Will anyone tell me how we can repeal the 18th amendment, without inevitably paving the way for the return of the saloon?"

President's Annual Message

In the afternoon business meeting which opened the session at the Norwich Inn at 1 o'clock, Mrs. Mary E. Welles of Hartford, state president, gave her annual address, which was received with great enthusiasm and is to be printed for distribution.

Mrs. Welles spoke as follows;

"The year has seen many bold and vicious attacks on the 18th amendment, as was to have been expected just before the election of practically a new congress. Never before have the foes of prohibition been organized under such able leadership, so powerfully financed, so generally vociferous, as during the last few months. Their objective is to build up a wet majority in congress in order that it may submit to the states the question of repeal of the 18th amendment. "Give us back the legal right to buy liquor in very moderate quantities, under very careful restriction," they say. "O no, we would not have the saloon again in this country of ours,—but the feeling that we are law-breakers every time we buy a little liquor to be used at 'reasonable hours' is an 'intolerable' situation to us. We must have the law repealed so that we can legally buy the little we want." Repeal the 18th amendment is their slogan. It is well for us to renew our faith in this protective amendment and to strengthen our courage in this war for its retention by recalling some of the reasons why it was written into the constitution of the United States and some of the results which we have seen in the ten years of its existence.
